Davis Predicts Ed. Will Have New Look

Dr. William Davis, Superintendent of Education, predicts that the next academic year will bring significant changes to the educational system. He states that the current system is outdated and ineffective, and that changes are necessary to improve the quality of education in the community.

Davis predicts that the changes will include new curricula, updated textbooks, and increased teacher training. He also predicts that the system will be more responsive to the needs of individual students, with more personalized instruction and fewer standardized tests.

Dr. Davis's predictions are based on his extensive experience in education and his understanding of the current state of the educational system. He is confident that the changes will have a positive impact on the quality of education in the community.

Holiday Extension Movement Shows Student Body's Maturity

Students began campaigning Monday for a two-day extension of Christmas holidays. Congratulations are in order for the leaders of this movement.

Not only was there much talk on campus, winning the support of the majority of the Student Body, but also there was a great deal of thought, work and organization behind it.

The objectives of the movement (in the form of a recommendation to President Davis from the Student Body) were presented at a meeting attended by Senator Nancy Plybon on behalf of the student's leadership. Over 160 supporters were present to witness, noting not only their interest in the recommendation, but also their faith in Senate as an instrument of the students.

The recommendation read as follows:

“We, the Winthrop Students, recommend that Christmas holidays begin on Sunday, December 18, rather than on Tuesday, December 20. We also propose that the week of December 16 be closed until 12:00 noon Sunday, December 18, so that there will be no interruption of normal class schedule. We ask that your action be with us the evening of December 17 or with our support on Sunday, December 18.

Valid reasons for a holiday extension given by the recommendation were:

1. Parents could come get students earlier on Sunday, which would be more acceptable.

2. Winthrop students have planned to work during the holidays and will be able to do so as week holidays begin so late and in the middle of Christmas week.

3. The floors in McAuliffe are going to be filled during the holidays, and students could work for three more days to work on them if students vacated the dorms.

4. Enthusiasm for the dance week-end and before the holidays would be so great that very little scholastic achievement would be made.

The Senate and visitors discussed the pros and cons of the recommendation for nearly an hour. The vote by Senate to send it to the President was unanimous. The recommendation was taken from the Student Body's December 17th meeting.

Before The Johnsonian went to press, the outcome of the Senate debate was not yet known. But, the value of this recommendation lies not in the fact that it was passed, but in the value of the reasons that are presented. These peaceful and organized procedures are commendable and often have been lacking on the campuses of other colleges, whose planners would have been hostile to the Senate's recommendation. We should not condemn our President if he chooses not to see eye to eye with us on this matter. Rather, we should be grateful that we have the right to organize such movements as a means of bringing our desires to the attention of the Senate.

Social Eyes
by BARY JONES

There is a definite need of social news this week as there was little traveling home or abroad. Thinking that this would come as a surprise to some, I wanted to announce that there was no news of the sort. Unfortunately, I have not learned of any social event that will take place this week. However, there are plans for a social event next week, so stay tuned for that news.

Contemplating this social vacuum, I was struck by the idea of telling you about a social event that occurred in another city. It seems that there was a social event that took place in another city, and I wanted to share some news from that event with you. The event was called the "Social Event of the Century," and it was attended by a large number of people. The event featured a fashion show, a dance, and a variety of other social activities.

However, despite all of these events, there is one social event that I would like to mention. This is the "Social Event of the Year," which takes place next week in a small town. The event features a social ball, a social tea, and a variety of other social activities. I urge you to attend this event, as it will be a great opportunity to socialize with friends and family.

Study Of Past Sophomore Weeks Reveals That Event Is Relatively New Tradition

As president of Sophomore Week, I wanted to clarify the origin of the event. Sophomore Week was initiated as one of the first events on the campus in the fall of 1935. It is now held every year in the fall semester.

In the future, we hope to continue to expand Sophomore Week and to include more events that will benefit our students.
