Chester County-Wide Historical Pageant April 27th, ATTRACTING WIDE INTEREST

BIG PAGEANT DEVELOPS FINE COMMUNITY SPIRIT

PAGEANTRY GROWS IN POPULARITY

Chester County Replete With History—When finally Written into the Valuable Younger Generations Interested—Historians of Chester County Tells Many Thrilling Stories of Early Settlers—Re-Enact Each Episode of This Section.

A pageant is history portrayed by its own people by means of a series of episodes, interspersed with dramatized symbolic dancing and with appropriate music and settings. This is what the Chester County-Wide Historical pageant is. Chester county is replete with history. The kind of history that had for its foundation the making of a nation. Chester county has participated in all the great historical periods of this country. With this as a background it is entirely fitting that a pageant should be given to bring before the younger generations some of the wonderful history enacted during the stirring times of the founding of this section and its subsequent growth from an Indian settlement to its present development.

Civilization follows in the wake of blood and hardships. The historians of Chester county tell many thrilling stories of the early settlers; their bravery and daring in the pioneer days has been handed down for generations and will be without unappreciated value and interest.

The Chester County-Wide Historical pageant has been worked out with accurate precision and understanding to re-enact the great episodes of the history of this section in a manner that will be instructive and highly entertaining. Its educational value alone is more than worth the effort.

It has all been worked into a tangible story and is so developed that it can be easily followed. It opens with the coming of the Indians and after a play depicting the progress of the nation and finally ends with the "making of a nation." It is a story which characterizes the civilization of this great country. The Chester pageant is realistic. If anything it is a pageant in its concept. It is founded upon the realities of Chester county's history brought down to the present day.

400 CHARACTERS IN THE PAGEANT

The 400 characters that take part include the young and old, uniting them in the common task of consolidating Chester county's history into a grandeur, granting them opportunity for self-expression, emphasizing the needs of the ever present play spirit and lastly, but most important of all, acquainting our people with their past—a matter so vital to the correct molding of the future. Not only do it do all of this but it brings together all Chester county and strengthens the bonds of friendship in one common interest. The pageant spirit is the community spirit. It is a new impetus to co-operation effort which means so much to the success and the future of our county.

Fairground Good Place. No better place than the Chester county fair ground could have been selected for the pageant. This was given a good deal of consideration by the director before it was finally decided upon. The surroundings are most appropriate. The setting fits in with the picture. The open

PROLOGUE: ARRIVAL OF MISS CHESTER AND HER ATTENDANTS—Beauty, National Pride, Strength, Fidelity, Patriotism, Peace, Courtesy, Faith, Hope, Charity, Liberty, Health, Wealth, Thrift and Preparedness.

"Follow citizens of Chester County and the United States. In the name of the inhabitants of this goodly city and in honor of our celebration this evening I bid you all a most cordial welcome. Whether you were born within its ancient boundaries, interlacing your affections with those with whom you compose this incorporated brotherhood, in the great family of the union, or whether you have forsaken your home in some foreign country, renouncing all allegiance unto it and having adopted this as your earthly home, here to abide as one of its children seeking its peace and its welfare as long as God in his providence shall continue you here, or whether you are a native of some other town, city or state, or country and are desirous to enjoy with us the celebration in the making of this Chester, I extend to each and all of you the cordial greeting of FELLOW CITIZENS, and bid you welcome to Chester."

ARRIVAL OF COLUMBIA AND THE PORTY-EIGHT STATES.

"Welcome, Welcome Columbia and you her daughters, Fair United States, Welcome to Chester and the Historical Pageant of Chester County. INTERLUDE ONE—Prophecy of Time."

FATHER TIME THE PROPHET:

"I came I know not whence, I go I know not whither, Eye of things created never Upon my coming looked, nor shall it see my passing. Brist and last of all things I, For I am Time."

Look ye upon the Dawning of Creation Call ye Universals When out of the chaos, order it brought, And last—man, the Red Man."

EPISODE ONE THE DAWNING OF CREATION—Creation, Flowers, Sky and Land Animals.

NOTE—Just as everything is in perfect harmony with the creation growing in its merry play, the voice of man is heard. This breaks the stilled harmony of nature and in gross confusion the creation spirit rurs and hides under cover of the earth.

THE COMING OF THE INDIANS—Indian Camp and Primitive Occupation.

HISTORICAL NOTES—When this land was first explored, it was inhabited by the Red Man. Where this race came from, how long they have lived here and what people it replaced has been a question of much dispute. There are are historians who believe that the Indians were preceded by another race, who built beautiful palaces and large cities, which long ago have crumbled into dust. Others suppose that mounds and mounds of earth, of an earlier occupation, were the work of ancestors of these Indians. Therefore, with no direct knowledge or evidences at hand for the ancestry of the Indians, their coming is merely symbolic.

"INDIAN CAMP AND PRIMITIVE OCCUPATIONS."

This is the first scene, where the Indians, which were found living in small villages and scattered in roving bands. Everywhere the early settlers came in contact with these people. Extremely improvident, they cultivated the soil very little and depended almost entirely upon the chase. Hunting and feasting constituted their enjoyment. The great interest in life was to procure food and devour it and to subdue their enemies.

If a campaign proved a failure, the braves shrunk back and moped in silence with a feeling of disgrace, often taunted by the Squaws for lack of

AARON BURR CAME HERE UNDER MILITARY GUARD

Chester Scene of His Attempted Escape—Claimed Civil Protection—Stalwart Figure Who Fought a Duel With Alexander Hamilton—Had Often Visited South Carolina to See Theodosia—Delivered To Military Authorities at Richmond.

No more interesting "bit" of Chester county history can be found than the visit of Aaron Burr to Chester. Burr tried to escape from his military captors here and claimed the protection of his friends. He was given the best of advantage of an opportunity by jumping from his horse and making an appeal to a street crowd, but he was over-powered and taken back to his horse. He was finally delivered to the military authorities at Richmond.

His journey through South Carolina with particular reference to his attempted escape here is as follows: "Two days more brought them to the confines of South Carolina, where the confederate army of old had been a popular favorite and where, on his visits to Theodosia, he had ever been warmly welcomed. He was met here by his friends. Perkins knew the difficulty he should have in conveying with such a force as this, a prisoner like Burr, and he had no alternative but to order his men to renewed vigilance. By keeping well to the north, he avoided the larger settlements until he reached the district of Chester, which was only one day's march from North Carolina. As he approached the principal village of this district, he halted his party and changed the order of their march, placing two men in front of his prisoner, two men behind, and one at each side of him. The march, they proceeded, without incident, until they passed near a tavern, before which a considerable number of persons were standing. Burr and his men were heard from within. Here, Burr threw himself from his horse, and exclaimed in a loud voice, 'I am a prisoner under military arrest, and claim the protection of the civil authorities.'"

Perkins snatched his pistol from his holster, sprang to the ground, and in an instant was at the side of his prisoner. With a glance in each hand, he sternly ordered his men

Spectacular Historical Event

Creating Interest Throughout County.

DIRECTOR DOYLE PLEASED

All New Costumes—All Members of Cast are Happy To Take Part—Many Rehearsals.

400 CHARACTERS IN THE PAGEANT

The cast for the Chester County-Wide Historical Pageant has displayed an unusual interest to make the event a success. The larger majority of them have appeared punctually at rehearsals. It has been the typical Chester spirit—they went into it with the determination to see it through and make it a credit to Chester county. In getting up a large cast naturally many had to be called upon that do not ordinarily take part in public events of this kind. The manner in which they have adapted themselves and taken an interest from the outset has been the big and pleasing surprise.

They take their work seriously, as it should be, and they are going to "put it in" in the same spirit. All parts and groups have been rehearsed continuously for several weeks and the spectators will be surprised to see the wonderful development of this splendid pageant with local talent within the short time given to preparation. However, this has been ample and Director Doyle and his assistants have been very busy people and the fine co-operation has received. At times he has had as many as 200 people at a single rehearsal and his long experience in training a large cast made it simple to work them into the different groups where they were best suited and get assured results. All members of the cast are happy to take part. It will be a most memorable event in Chester county.

The 400 costumes for the pageant are new. This is the first pageant of the season for the John B. Rogers Producing Co. The costumes are gorgeous and have been made up especially for the pageant. This is a son. Chester is fortunate to get them first when they are bright and fresh. This large cast, all in costumes, will form a pretty picture. It will be spectacular and thrilling.

THE FIRST TRAIN CREATED A THRILL

From Columbia to Chester in 1851—Enjoy Grand Barbecue at Station.

The progress in transportation in one of the marvels of the present age. In years to come the story of the first train will make interesting reading and afford the same amusement and historical reference as the pioneer days in railroading do at the present time.

The story of the first train from Columbia to Chester is told as follows:

The running of the first train from Columbia to Chester August, 1851, caused great excitement. The larger part of the people had never seen a train, and masses of people crowded to see it. Great preparations were made for its coming, possibly the greatest being a grand barbecue prepared near the depot.

"The whistle of the engine announced the approach of the train and soon it came into sight, decorated with flags and streamers and carrying a large number of people from various points along the road. Though it must be confessed that they were not altogether in haste, the enthusiasm of the people and the confusion was beyond description. The engine finally ploughed its way through the crowd to the station where the railroad president made a speech. After this the barbecue was served, the like of which can only be prepared by the people of Chester."

Wonderful History in This Section

Yorkville Editor Commends Chester County Pageant—Rich Material in This County.

The editor of the Yorkville Enquirer has the following to say of the Chester County-Wide Pageant: "Just what it is or does not matter, maybe; but he or she has done a good thing for this whole section. We have in mind that great historical event that is to be held in Chester next Friday. All this section has a wonderful history. That is especially true of that part of it known as Chester county. The early settlers of that locality included strong vigorous men and women of sentiment, character and vision. They were self-reliant men and women, full of initiative and thoroughly conscious of the fact that they were the equal of the best on earth. They proved it before the American revolution, they proved it in the American revolution and they have proved it since. What a pity this country has so little literature! What mines of rich material there are in Chester County."

While her father and brothers were away with Marion fighting for liberty, she was the sole dependence of her mother, her mother and several small brothers. She could use the old flintlock musket with unerring aim and ride any horse she could be mounted on. At occasions she out-witted British soldiers and often challenged the pursuit of Indians.

"It was said of her that one night she watched a band of Indians slip up to the little log stable at the back of the house and steal a young horse. She had the window open of which she thought a great deal. It was a wild and fractious animal and had never been mounted by any one but herself. In the bright moonlight, Barbara saw the Indians lead the mare away, and waiting until they reached the cover of the woods, she quietly slipped from the house, determined to follow them, and bring her favorite possession back or die in the attempt.

CALCIUM ARSENATE

We have just received a car load of Calcium Arsenate. This Arsenate was manufactured by Riches-Piver & Co., of New York, who made the first Calcium Arsenate the government used in fore, it's the best.

For the next 30 days we will sell this Arsenate

We are reliably informed that Calcium Arsenate is very scarce, and we think it would be very wise to secure your Calcium Arsenate now. We were fortunate in getting this early, otherwise we could not begin to sell this Arsenate at this price.

Cotton is too high to take chances in not pois-

PLAN 'T' SOIL BUILDING CROPS

The South Carolina farmer has a wide range of soil building crop from which to choose those best adapted to his local conditions. Nature has been especially kind to him in this respect. In the northern states if one desires to plant a leguminous crop to maintain the fertility of his soil, it means that he practically has to sacrifice a staple money crop. Not so with us, says T. S. Leitner, assistant agronomist, South Carolina experiment station, for we can grow soil building crops throughout the year, and in many cases at the same time we are growing a staple crop. Are we going to pass up this opportunity of increasing the productive power of our soil and thereby reducing our fertilizer bills, by failing to plant every available acre in some leguminous crop this year? Every acre of corn should have a companion crop of legumes—vetch, beans, or soy beans, depending upon local conditions and individual preference. Peas should be sown on all the oat stubble, as well as on those small fields and corners which otherwise might be left out of cultivation this year. A great deal of land now considered too poor to yield profitable returns could, by the plowing under of a few crops of cowpeas and other legumes, be so improved in fertility that other crops might be raised profitably. The farmer who plants every acre possible in some leguminous crop for soil improvement this year, will most surely have a smaller fertilizer bill in 1924.

THE SOUTH IS "GROWING" INTO DAIRYING

Never before in the history of the South has there been so general an interest in dairying as at present. This increased interest is due to a variety of facts or conditions. It is by no means entirely due to the presence of the boll weevil over the greater part of the Cotton Belt. With cotton above 20 cents a pound the per acre income from cotton is much greater, even though the weevils reduce the yields, than before the weevils came; but no doubt the boll weevil has caused many to seek an additional source of income and to adopt a system of farming which will tend to increase rather than deplete soil fertility. The boll weevils have made it even more evident than before that the future success of Southern agriculture is dependent on rich soils.

This need for a farming system which would make soil improvement more easy and certain is one of the chief reasons for the present increase of interest in dairying. It is also being learned that dairying is one line of livestock production which fits well with cotton growing. It not only gives more continuous employment to labor, but gives a steady and constant income, thereby reducing the credit needed for the production of a cotton crop.

Moreover, butterfat has suffered less from the general depression in prices of farm products than most other farm products.

But after giving due allowance for all these good reasons for increasing dairy production, we cannot but feel that perhaps the most powerful influence which has stimulated an interest in dairying is the knowledge that the farm families of the South are going not over one-fourth the milk necessary for the proper feeding of our population. No product has ever received more helpful publicity than has come from the recently proved necessity for milk as a human food. The facts which science has recently proved, but which many believed for generations, that milk is necessary for the vigorous healthy growth of children and almost equally necessary for the best health of adults, have been given greater publicity than perhaps any other recently developed facts relating to agriculture.

The encouraging feature of our present dairy development is the large number of small farmers who are selling a little cream, or increasing to some extent the milk produced on the farms. In short, we are now "growing" into a larger dairy interest, instead of "going" into the dairy business as has been too frequently the case in the past.

Beyond question the South has conditions favorable for dairy feed production, which will enable us to make dairying an essential and important part of profitable farming. More feeds, better cows and more dairy knowledge in all that the dairy business needs in the South to put it on a sound and profitable basis—Progressive Farmer.

Romance of the Sandhills.

The story of the Carolina peach is to be heralded in moving pictures; the romance of the sandhills is to be shown upon the silver screen. Through the medium of the film is the world to be told of the wonders of the Carolina sandhills—a waste place that has become the playground of a Nation—and dunes that have been made productive through the ingenuity of man. The farthest fibers of the land, as Oglethorpe will become but a happy memory in comparison with the Red Skin of the Tex. feed plant.

It is blossom time in the sandhills country. Thousands of acres of pink buds are waving their welcome to an all-enveloping sun. The stunted oaks and scrubby vegetation of a former generation have given way before the coming of the horticulturist. Miles upon miles of well kept orchards have replaced the loblolly that our forefathers knew, and Pinhurst and Southern Pines and Aberdeen have reached their heads from the desert of the Scotchman's paradise. The story of the sandhills country—a story as thrilling as the tale upon the peaks of the proof of the fecundity of a supposedly barren soil.

The Chamber of Commerce of Southern Pines, acting in conjunction with the two fruit growers' associations of the section, have hit upon this popular method of "telling the world" of the superiority of the North Carolina peach. There will be pictured with the planting of the first orchards the vicissitudes uncounted by those who perished and brought to the Nation the well flavored fruit of today. The various stages in the production of the peach will be shown—planting, picking, packing, and the completed picture will be released as an educational feature throughout the country.

California with its grapes and its oranges; Florida with its citrus fruits; Georgia with its melons and its peaches, and the apples on the mountain slopes of Washington and Oregon became known to fame through judicious advertising. None of these have anything on North Carolina either in productivity or scenic environment. And now the sons of North Carolina are going to shout from the hillsides the wonders of their native land. The romance of the sandhills peach is going to be told in moving pictures.

Mrs. J. L. Carroll Dies Suddenly.

A profound shock and one which caused sorrow to many friends in Chester and throughout the county was the sudden and untimely death of Mrs. J. L. Carroll last Sunday morning.

All of the members of the Carroll family were attending services Sunday morning, when the exception of Mrs. Carroll, who was in the front of the home when a neighbor ran in and informed her that the rear of the house was on fire. The fire department was immediately summoned and members of the family notified of the conflagration. When the department arrived the house was almost a mass of flames and Mr. J. W. Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Carroll, in going around the house struck his head on an arch across the gate which cut his head very badly and from which blood ran profusely. Mrs. Carroll, not being very strong, fainted during the excitement, and was placed in an automobile to be carried to the Chester Sanatorium, her daughter, Miss Sarah Carroll, going with her.

When the car arrived at the hospital it was found that Mrs. Carroll had passed away while being held in the arms of her daughter.

Mrs. J. W. Carroll, who had been injured as above mentioned, had already arrived at the hospital and was being given medical attention while awaiting the arrival of her mother. Owing to the possible seriousness of his injury he was not informed of the sad death of his mother until yesterday morning, and accompanied by a physician, was able to attend the funeral yesterday afternoon.

Her home was a complete loss and very little of the furnishings were saved.

Mrs. Carroll is survived by her husband and the following children: Mr. Glenn Carroll, Charleston; Mr. W. D. Rice, Rock Hill; Mrs. Arthur Parrott, Greensboro; Miss Nancy Carroll, Sumter; J. W. Carroll and Miss Edna and Sarah, Columbia.

The funeral services for Mrs. Carroll were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Glenn, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock after which the remains were laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the loss of their beloved wife and mother; also in the loss of their home.

The Lancaster-Chester River Bridge.

At a recent meeting of the South Carolina Highway Commission, the Federal allotment of $75,000 for a bridge over the Catawba river, between Chester and Lancaster counties, was withdrawn and the allotment transferred to the Broad river, between Fairfield and Newberry counties. A number of local people were unable to understand why the transfer of funds, which was due to the fact that Chester county representatives made no provision for Chester's one-fourth of the cost of erecting the bridge. To have taken care of this charge it would have been necessary for the delegation to have raised the local levy.

The Highway Commission made the allotment for the bridge at the solicitation of representatives of Lancaster county, with the understanding that the two delegations would probably get together and provide for their respective allotments. The attention of each Senator was called to the matter immediately after the allotment was made. Since the legislative adjournment without making provision of each county's share, the Highway Commission did not feel warranted in holding the allotment open, hence the transfer to Fairfield and Newberry counties.

There will be another Federal allotment available the first of next year and if Chester and Lancaster counties want this bridge over the Catawba river they should take the matter under advisement and arrange for their respective share of the cost. If this is done it is understood that the Highway Commission will be glad to make the allotment.

Another Fire Yesterday.

The fire department yesterday afternoon again was called upon to fight a blaze, this time being the home of Centary James, colored, at 163 Center street.

When the firemen arrived the house was a mass of flames inside and the firemen did creditable work in putting out the blaze and confining it to the house of James.

Two lines of hose were strung and the new fire engine gave good pressure.

Some of the firemen are somewhat sore on account of considerable criticism of late about fighting fires and, as a matter of fact, are taking it serious. The News is of the opinion that the boys are being unduly criticised and that such criticism is coming from those who are not familiar with the facts. It is impossible for the boys to do any worthwhile fighting unless they get the proper pressure and it begins to look as if there is no such thing when it comes to connecting hoses than one line of hose to the average four inch main. This fact has been clearly demonstrated twice in the last short while.

It must be admitted that the local boys are not "graduates" when it comes to fighting fires with a fire engine and The News believes that it would be the part of wisdom for the city fathers to arrange to get an expert fire-fighter to visit Chester for several days and give the local boys the benefit of an experienced man who no doubt, would be able to show them many short cuts about getting to fires and getting their lines of hose in action. We believe the boys would welcome instruction coming from a man of experience but they cannot be expected to pay much attention to the average laymen, who has never qualified as a fire-fighter.

The Ebony Minstrel, given by local talent under the auspices of the Masonic lodge, at the Republic theatre Thursday night was a great success. It afforded an evening of wholesome fun and amusement to a packed house, and was as thorough in enjoyment by visitors as by the home folk. The affair was directed by C. E. Gatlin, who displayed no mean ability in selection of cast, etc., as well as in playing the part of the showy brother himself. Mr. J. S. Wadsworth, the popular manager of Republic Theatre, gave excellent lighting and stage arrangements, and the entire program consisting of quartets, solos, ballads, monologues, comedies, and vaudeville, was a rich with wholesome fun and good sense, and every number brought a storm of applause from the audience. An attractive between-act number was a waltz dance by little Norma Wadsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wadsworth, in which Norma displayed grace and beauty rarely seen in one so young. As a whole, it was a good show, and the Ebony Minstrel will always be greeted with a hearty welcome in Great Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaver were among the first settlers of Great Falls, moving here at the beginning of the construction of the first hydro-electric plant by the Southern Power Company. Mrs. Shaver was a good woman, a faithful wife and mother, and was loved and admired by all who knew her. She is survived by eight children and her husband, together with a number of relatives and friends, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Hall, superintendent, after which Miss Gibson received "The Gypsy Flower Girl" which selection she won the cup in the contest. Miss Elizabeth Kettles was introduced to the school as the winner of second place, base ball throw, in the track meet at Winthrop Friday afternoon. Miss Essie Orr then favored the school with several vocal selections.

Many people are helped most by giving them alone.

The world is short of kindness, and the cry is for people who can supply it.

Two impossible things are these: Pleasing everybody and beating Wall Street.

It is not what you get, but what you expect to get, that makes life so interesting.

Nothing perhaps keeps your spirits up so much as keeping your expenses down.

"Keeping the Indians in sight she followed them through the woods, swamps and thickets until they, thinking themselves beyond pursuit, halted. Barbara saw them tie the mare to a sapling and lie down on the ground a little distance away to sleep. Hidden in the undergrowth, she waited until she was sure that the Indians were fast asleep. She realized that to attempt to rescue the mare, she would simply have to make good on the undertaking or die in the attempt. She crept slowly and softly up to where the mare was tied and deliberately cutting the rope halter, sprang upon the mare's back. It was done in an instant; but with the cracking of a twig under her feet, an Indian had the mare by the rope. She stooped over and gave the savage a stinging cut across the face and eyes with the hickory stick she had in her hand. The Indian gave a yell of pain and dropped stunned to the ground, while she ran to the mare, pulled and dashed away like a flash. Hours after, just as the sun was tooting the eastern hills, bruised and bleeding and with a little sore to show, Barbara stepped from the mare's back at home.

"Barbara had to carry water at night for her family's use from a spring nearly a half a mile away, along a dark wooded path past the old stone mill house, where 'they said' a murder had been committed and where a haunting spirit still lurked. One night while going down the path to the spring for water, Barbara saw two Indians, one close the door after them. She knew that they had seen her and that they were intending to hide until she was gone. When they would spring out and kill her. With the greatest coolness she deliberately wounded her way down the path to the spring, springing her rifle, and humming an old Puritan hymn. When she reached the old mill house she sprang to the door and had it securely bolted with its strong wooden bolt, before the Indians knew what she was about. She had to keep them prisoners in the mill house for several days before she succeeded in getting rid of them.

"She often expressed herself to the effect that if she was born to be killed by Indians she would never drown in Fishing Creek. Hairbreadth escapes from Indians seemed to have had a fascination for her. She had challenged them so often and so caped them so successfully that she had become reckless in risking her ability or ingenuity in putting them to flight.

"The day came when there was no bread. They had scraped the bottom of the meal barrel. To obtain more meal a fire was kindled across the country, swarming with a duel barbarous enemy. It looked like it was tempting Providence to leave the abolition of the house, when only the day before alarming reports had been circulated of several depredations committed by Indians in the settlements. But this was not the only thing that she had to do.

"She had been to the mill scores of times before and was not afraid to go again. So nothing daunted, she prepared for the night when the night was starting for the mill. As she rode away on her perilous errand, who would not have admitted her courageous spirit—her certain accomplishment? She had not been gone more than an hour and had just forded the creek, when a band of Indians rushed from the undergrowth where they had been hiding, and springing upon her, pulled her from the mare, and wrenched her musket from her hands and with the long, sharp scoping knife glittered in the morning sun, and she knew no more. After scalping her, they left her for dead on the banks of the creek, they took the mare and the sack of corn and fled. Barbara did not revive until hours afterwards. She crawled far into the woods and hid herself in the thicket and lay there all day thirsting for water and almost dead.

"When the night came she left her hiding place, slipped to the creek and washed the blood from her hands and face, after which she put her musket in her belt and fled to her home, where she was found by her very old, and was greatly loved by all who knew her.

"She always wore a black silk cap upon her head and delighted in talking the young folks who gathered around her of the tragic way in which she lost the soft brown hair of her youth.

"There's a Reason"

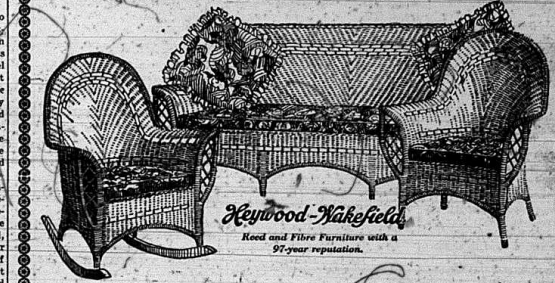

No description of the electric range and what it does could more strikingly attest its superior advantages than the mere statement of the fact that this modern appliance has replaced old fashioned, less efficient and less satisfactory cooking appliances in the homes of more than 1,000 progressive, intelligent and representative people in the cities in which the Southern Public Utilities Company operates.

Some of the advantages of electrical cooking are:

Better preparation of food, Economical operation, Dependability, Elimination of dirt, fumes, danger and worry, The saving of time and labor, The general and natural satisfaction that comes with the ownership of the most modern, efficient, and perfect cooking appliance ever produced.

An equally striking fact is this: So rapidly are other discriminating housewives learning of and appreciating the superior advantages of the electric range that we are now installing this modern appliance in an average of 50 homes a week.
