CBA Promotes 'Working Well With Others' in Professional Development Conference

Quick Facts

- This year's conference theme is 'Strategies for Working Well With Others.'
- Speakers will include several staff members from Winthrop Athletics, including Director of Athletics Ken Halpin.

ROCK HILL, SOUTH CAROLINA — Winthrop University always strives to give students the edge in finding jobs and furthering their careers post-graduation.

This spring's Student Professional Development Conference on March 7, hosted by the College of Business Administration, will do just that with multiple workshops and a keynote address.

This year's theme, "Strategies for Working Well With Others," tackles issues as getting along with co-workers; building a trusting relationship with customers; and establishing a strong foundation of trust with supervisors.

Students can choose which workshops they'd like to attend based on two tracks—in-person sessions and online sessions—beginning at 9 a.m. The in-person sessions will take place in Vivian M. Carroll Hall.

At noon, Dr. Timothy Clare, founder of ProHealth and Wellness Chiropractic in Charlotte, North Carolina, will give the keynote address, "The Art of Building Relationships."

While the workshops are free, there is a $5 individual charge for lunch or a $40 fee for a group table of eight.

The full schedule is below:

8:30-9 a.m.: Opening Reception with registration and a continental breakfast in Carroll Hall and Macfeat
