PUSH.

When you've come a splendid deed to do, Some action worthy, good and true, There's just one duty left for you—

Push it through.

When your best girl stands on the pier, And will not dive because of fear, Don't let her linger there a year—

Push her in.

When Lisa Jane slopes there like you, There's just one thing for you to do—

Push her through.

When some Wise Alec rocks the boat, And you're not sure that you can float, Don't let old Smarty get your goat—

Push him off.

THE ETERNAL MYSTERY.

The eternal mystery is personality.

Everybody talks about it. We all appreciate its importance. It is universally considered to be the deciding element in each one's influence and career.

Yet nobody knows what it is.

Lily Langtry, the famous actress and beauty, now 74 years old, said the other day "Beauty is not enough for any woman, nor is it enough to have the rare combination of beauty and brains. Beauty and personality are better. Far better the plain woman with personality than the beautiful woman without it."

Think of Mrs. Bernhard, never called physically beautiful—she would waste that adjective on her.

She will live forever because of her genius, her brains and her humanity."

"In other words, while we do not know what personality is, we know Sarah had it."

Nothing more reminds us of the fact that we are all invitable spirits and that no man has seen a human being at any time, just as no man has seen God at any time, than this puzzle of personality.

There does not seem to be much use in studying it nor striving for it. You have it, you have it, if you have it not, you are out of luck.

Its forces spring from sources that arise in depths where science and observation have never reached.

We can not say that personality depends upon our father and mother, for very often the child of "blessed parents is a weakling.

We can not say that personality is the product of environment, because the child who has a mediocre and a zero surrounded by every element of culture.

Personality is not made by the schools, for the college graduate is often once a ninny and the child of the slums becomes a leader."

After we get through talking of it about the only conclusion to which we come is that we do not know what it is.

Of course there will be many who will say that this is all wrong, because the particular fact, cult, or system they have explains exactly what personality is and how to cultivate it.

They explain it well enough when you have it, and if you do not have it, they do not explain it at all.

The most persistent characteristic of the human being is mystery. We can give a little way in our explanations and penetrate to a certain depth with our science and grasp a few comforting ideas with our beliefs, but roundabout the whole circle of our knowledge is the wide, infinite, unexplored region of mystery. Just as all around our little planet there is the vast, dark and boundless sky.

We do not have to attend table readings nor consult oracles to find mystery. All we need do is to look up to the stars at night or turn to look at whirling our bosoms.

The taxi business began with "sleazing" as a side line, but today it is a bigger business than passengers.

Her Heck says: "Wimmin kin want to be a man better than they kin a man."

One of the rules for happy marriage is to give and take on a strict 50-50 basis.

The Unity of Society.

By Frank Collins.

George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City bank, made a good speech, the other day at the Washington's highly entertaining of the Union League club of Chicago.

In his speech he emphasized the necessity of modern society of modern society as consolidated as we would be under socialism, but we do not realize it. "We have developed," he said, "an intricate, highly specialized industrial system, in which each of us does some one thing, which often has little direct relation to his own work, and depends upon satisfying his wants by exchanging products and services with others. It is a wonderfully effective system when all in balance and running order, but it is an independent system. It is like a great machine in which every part is dependent upon all the other parts."

"Moreover, it is a great voluntary system, and its efficiency is largely dependent upon good understanding, good feeling and cooperation among all the groups and members that compose it," and that is not easily maintained. Emerson said that the real test of civilization was the "Fidelity of Association"—the ability of people to understand each other, get along together and work together for common purposes. Most of our troubles, it seems to me, are due to the fact that we have developed the industrial organization beyond the comprehension of the common man."

The same unity which exists in our national life is also essential in our international life. He gives the following illustration of this:

"A serious reaction from the collapse of Russia is seen in the relations between that country and India. India is a great tea producing country and Russia formerly was a great tea consuming country. India did not trade directly with Russia. She took her tea for the tea in cotton goods and other exports from Great Britain, and Great Britain took her tea from Russia for the tea in foodstuffs and raw products. It was a three-cornered trade. The inability of Russia to take the Indian tea affected the ability of India to take cotton goods from England, the fall-off in the demand for cotton goods made 1921 the worst year for the British cotton goods industry had experienced since the American civil war, and the inability of England to sell cotton goods sent the price of raw cotton in the United States from 43 cents a pound in 1920, 11 cents in 1921, and that decline in the principal product of our Southern states affected all the industries of this country."

YORK IN THROES

OF MEASLES OUTBREAK

YORK, May 7.—York is in the throes of a measles outbreak. The disease made its appearance here, months ago but it was only in the last ten days that the outbreak became widespread. Since then grades school pupils have been going down by the score, and a few adults have fallen victims. Quarantine measures have proved futile to check the spread of the disease. The mortality does not appear to be of a malignant form, however, and no fatalities have been reported.

THE SMELLER.

When the Ike Walton returns from communing with the babbling brook and discoursing on the trout THAT long, the smeller will prick up his nostrils and reply: "It smells like a fish sure."

And when the golfer, after conceding himself a 10-foot putt, says: "Well, I got a five on that one," his opponent will sniff the circumambient atmosphere and answer: "It has the odor of an eight."

But, on the other hand, consider the predicament of the citizen whose neighbors are addicted to the use of garlic.

Pullman Company detectives have found stolen Pullman blankets, being used for a wide variety of purposes. Some are replacing the beds in women's coats, men's trousers, bath robes and children's clothing. Berth curtains have been found made up into a beautiful coat for a woman, and other curtains, with cretonne trimmings added, have been found as drapings and table covers. During 1918-19-20, 8,200 Pullman blankets were reported missing from cars. Through the aid of the police and hotels much of this stolen property has been recovered.

To write well, you must first experience the things you write about.

CHESTER CATTLE AT SALE.

Much Interest Being Taken in First Sale at Columbia Today—Chester County Well Represented.

The first annual consignment sale of the Commercial Carolina Cattle and Breeder's Association is being held in Columbia today, and the outcome of this sale will be awaited with much interest not only in Chester county, but throughout the entire State.

Mr. R. B. Caldwell, president of the Commercial Bank, of Chester, who is also extensively engaged in farming and cattle raising, is president of the association.

There are a number of Chester county Guernseys at the sale today and are as follows:

R. B. Caldwell has consigned Pretty Dairy Maid of Elmendorf. She has a record of 385 pounds of milk in class G.G. This cow is pushed around make 600 pounds of fat. She is now owned by Mr. Caldwell also consigned—May Rima of Brice farm. This little lady will freshen before the sale and will be ready to go to work.

W. B. Stringfellow will consign Imp. Waller Boy's Marie of Mara. This cow was on A. R. test and bids fair to make 600 pounds of fat. She is one of the tops of the sale, combining both type and production.

Stringfellow will also consigned Beauty of Paw Paw. Beauty is a daughter of Edgmont Demonstrator, who is by a noted bull, Lang Water Demonstrator. No man could go wrong in raising the bid for a cow of such ancestry.

Alex McDonald will consign Haldrat's Birthday. Birthday comes from the Raymond of the Preel Family and is a splendid young cow, due to freshen the day of the sale.

A. Mayo McKeown will consign Bestie's Raider of Cornwall and Beauty of Cornwall. These two will breed young animals from the herd of one of Chester county's best Guernsey breeders.

WINTHROP COLLEGE HAS INSTALLED SET CHIMES

Rock Hill, S. C., May 6.—A set of chimes have been installed in the new three-story building at Winthrop college and they will be used for the first time tomorrow. These chimes consist of 16 notes and are operated by electricity. An operator using a small keyboard, Miss Nancy G. Campbell will have charge of the operation of the chimes for the purposes of replacing the bell. On Sunday afternoons a concert will be given, and as the chimes can be heard for a distance of four miles, it is expected the people of the community will look forward to the concerts, as well as to the hours devoted to the ringing of the chimes daily. Members of the student body will also study the operation of the chimes and different ones will be assigned to attend to their operation at the set intervals during the day.

The Last Week Of Opportunity

We desire to remind prospective purchasers of Electric Ranges that this is the last week of our Electric Range campaign, Saturday, May 12th, being the last day.

The campaign has been a wonderful success in every respect. More than 300 Ranges have already been installed in the homes of customers to date and many customers whose homes or apartments are not ready have availed themselves of our special offer and have purchased Ranges to be installed later.

The more than 300 discriminating housewives who have already had their Ranges installed made their purchases after the most careful and thorough investigation of the advantages of the Electric Range, and after the most critical inspection and comparison with other forms of cooking. Following this painstaking investigation they have become enthusiastic users and advocates of this wonderful appliance.

Scores of other progressive and discriminating housewives are going to bid good-by to this week to old fashioned cooking methods and uncomfortable kitchens and begin life anew with a modern Electric Range. Here are some of the reasons:

The Electric Range is thoroughly and absolutely dependable.

It has stability and durability.

It is economical in operation, the cost being less in a vast majority of homes than the cost of coal, wood, or any other form of fuel.

Food cooked on an Electric Range is more palatable, more attractive and more nutritious than food cooked by any other method, and the waste is less.

The Electric Range eliminates from the kitchen dirt, fumes, danger and worry.

The Electric Range saves the housewife time and labor, and makes pleasant pastime of what was onerous drudgery.

The housewife who owns an Electric Range is always proud of her kitchen, and has every natural satisfaction which comes with the ownership of the most modern efficient cooking appliance that has ever been produced.

During our Electric Range Campaign we are offering such terms and prices on Ranges as will enable any ambitious, progressive housewife to secure one—$20 down and $10 per month. In addition, we are giving with each Range a handsome and useful Aluminum cooking set. Prices on all Ranges during this campaign include installation. All in all, the customer for any range has $25 to $40 to gain through our special campaign offer.

The campaign will positively end on May 12th, and during the last few days our sales force will be overwhelmed with work. We, therefore, urge you to visit our display room immediately for our special offer to be explained to you, see the various types of Ranges, and make your selection.

Service follows the appliance.

"The Pacific Triangle" Is Chautauqua Lecture Subject

Sydney Greenbie, noted writer and traveler, and one of the leading authorities of the day on the problems of the Pacific, will lecture at the coming Redpath Chautauqua on "The Pacific Triangle," treating especially of the inter-relationships of America, Japan and Great Britain with regard to Pacific questions.

SYDNEY GREENBIE.

Mr. Greenbie has recently published a book, bearing the same title as his lecture, which has precipitated an almost sensational flood of praise from the press in all parts of the world.

Mr. Greenbie has lived in many of the countries that border on the Pacific. In Japan he was connected for some time with the Department of Education of the Imperial Japanese Government. He was on the staff of the Japan Chronicle at Kobe, Japan, has been an associate editor of the magazine Asia; and a contributor to many other leading periodicals, including Harper's, Country and World's Work.

It is of our sense of moral revitalized to his highest degree, the world would be a better place to live in, because we should immediately detect when a person was practicing deceit."

Thus speaks Dr. Hendrich, the eminent chemist, and he says a noseful.

When interviewed one day last week Mr. J. B. Duke, who is the prime mover in all of the electric power plants in the Carolinas, stated that he did not anticipate building any more plants at the present time. Mr. Duke stated that his company had investigated the cost of construction thoroughly at this time and had found that they could not build plants at the present cost and make a reasonable return on the investment. One would infer from the interview that Mr. Duke and associates will not erect any plants until the price of material and labor comes to the point where they can build and make money on the investment.

IN SANG BEFORE GALLICURI

Young Chester Man Appears Before Gall-Cure in Columbia Hotel. After much persuasion he convinces lovers all over the State, who we are sure a number of our readers will be interested to know when he entered the suite of Madame Gall-Cure at the Jefferson Hotel. After much persuasion he consented to answer the following questions.

To the question, "How did you feel when you knew you were in the presence of so great an artist?" "To be honest, I was very nervous, but the minute I was in the room the personality of Madame Gall-Cure so completely overcame my nervousness, she and her husband, Mr. Homer Samuel, made me feel at ease, and after I finished one song she went through with the singing and illustrating the wonderful power the vowels have in singing. She then played some exercises, which she sees, sang them with me. Again and again she emphasized the fact that singing illustrates this she chose the canary, who fills the room with spontaneous melody—putting his whole being into the lovely harmonies. The different kinds of tones, breathing and phrasing were explained. In all her illustrations she stressed the fact that we can safely rely upon nature. There could be no better example of this than the great diva herself—a marvelous voice combined with personality and musicianship, for she is versed in the highest traditions of the Bel Canto School.

Samuels is a marvelous pianist, accompanist and composer. He explained different points to me during the singing. He is a very talented pianist himself and to whom I am indebted for his lovely accompaniments to my songs. Both Mrs. Gall-Cure and Mr. Samuel encouraged our careers, and along the road to success, when we were discouraged we will not say for I am sure they are our friends.

Madame Gall-Cure is the greatest coloratura soprano in the world, and Columbia people, as well as music lovers all over the state, who heard the great artist will recall the first visit to our capital as an occasion to be remembered through a life time.

THE GREAT LAURANT.
The Great Laurant, in a notable record of magic and mystery will be a headlining attraction at the coming Redpath Chattanooga.

Laurant is one of the outstanding magicians of the day. Those who have seen Keller and Herman the Great at their best state that he is unequalled and that he has a few pronouncements his superior.

The production which will give here will be presented with elaborate and lavishly settings, especially for Mr. Laurant under his personal supervision.
Laurant employs the arts and mystery of both ancient and modern conjurers—Hindu magic, the craft of the ancient Chaldeans together with American "Hindu" and "Tutu" Mysticism. The "Tutu" of Nations, The Soldier and the Fun, The Silk and the Spirit of the East, and many other mysteries presented. The reproduction of an ancient Egyptian ceremonial reminiscent of the days of Tut-Ankh Amen is one of the notable Laurant mysteries.

STREET AND HEALTH DEPARTMENTS CONSOLIDATED

Council Held Meeting Last Night and Consolidated Street and Health Departments—Patrolman Gill Gregory Placed in Charge—C. Cross Elected Recorder to Succeed J. L. Doolittle—Patrolman and Chief of Police Re-elected—Designation of Health Officer Boldridge Accepted to Take Effect Immediately—Council Must Economize—Flating Doubt New $40,000.

A special meeting of the city Mayor Carter is going to have a council was held last night with the following Aldermen present: Fraser, Peden, Gage, Whitlock, Young, McFadden, Refo and White.

The meeting was called for the purpose of electing officers of the city for the ensuing year. This matter was postponed at the meeting last Tuesday night, when the present administration took charge of the city's affairs. The city's affairs were postponed at the meeting last Tuesday night, when the present administration took charge of the city's affairs. The city's affairs were postponed at the meeting last Tuesday night, when the present administration took charge of the city's affairs.

It was also decided to pay the Chief of the Fire Department $75 a year. He has now received $600 a year. The next matter to come up was the election of a Recorder at a salary of $300 a year. Mr. P. L. Doolittle was re-elected to this position and another applicant was Mr. H. Clarendon. Mr. Cross was elected, the vote being as follows: Cross—Fraser, Peden, Gage, Whitlock, Douglas—White and Young. Mr. Cross was declared elected to take office immediately.

The members of the police department were re-elected, with the exception of Mr. Gregory, who takes charge of the street and health department. Mr. R. L. Scroggins, street superintendent, was elected as a patrolman to take the place of Mr. J. L. Scroggins. The Chief gets a salary of $1200 a month and each of the patrolmen $115.

The motion with regard to Mr. Gregory taking charge of the street and health departments was made to read that if later it was decided to change that the would be appointed as patrolman. The council proposes to try out their new plan and have taken the precaution to arrange that if it does not work satisfactory, they can easily make the change.

Mr. J. H. McLeure was re-elected city clerk and brought out at a salary of $200 per month. The fact was brought out that the city has an accumulation of worn out material and possibly some very poor live stock on hand, and the street department was instructed to look into this matter and if necessary, arrange to dispose of the stock for which the city has no use.

Dr. G. A. Hennies was re-elected as a member of the Board of Health. Dr. McGill, who had presented a verbal application for post inspector, etc., was elected to this place at a salary of $200 a month. It was also noted that there were no applicants for this position.

The matter of several shipments of cases having been received in Chester was brought before council. It was stated that these cases had been ordered by Dr. Boldridge, but was understood, would call on the citizens who secured them and that he would remit direct for them. The clerk, upon being asked, stated that he did not know how many had been bought, but that he thought the bills would amount to approximately $1,000. It was further stated that the city did not authorize the purchase of the cases and that the payment of same was a matter between Dr. Boldridge and the firm which shipped them to Chester. The clerk and treasurer stated that no money for any of the cases had been turned over to him. The clerk was instructed to get an inventory of the material turned over to the city by Dr. Boldridge as being health officers.

A list of the various committees as made by Mayor Carter was read after which council adjourned.

WIDOWS ARE WITNESSES
When we stop to think that there are 5,000,000 widows in the United States who do not have the common comforts of life, we can know the need that has been made for provision, and when we look around us and know that only a very small percentage of our high school boys have the opportunity of getting a college education, we see another great reason for the progress of life insurance. These things are the sad things to look at.
Contrasted with them is the happy home which is kept together by the life insurance policy, and no matter how small the policy may be, it is hardly sufficient to keep the home together, it has done a wonderful work, because the home is the unit of civilization in this country of ours, and if the roof is kept over the heads and the family can be kept together, they will manage some way to get through.
There is no question in the mind of any thinking person that the life insurance business is the greatest business in the world, both from its financial magnitude, as well as from the great good that it does.
A policy contract in the good old "Union Central" would be a wonderfully good thing for each man reading this advertisement to tie to.
Many families in Chester county would today be in the middle of the "big road" had it not been for these investments.

THE PURPOSE OF EDUCATION.

Some time ago a college president expressed himself as follows: "The highest purpose and privilege of the university and the college is to do what it can by the best means at its disposal to turn out citizens capable of sound reasoning and thinking."

Although this sentence is somewhat overlaid with words, it expresses the right idea, which is that it is the business of education primarily to teach people to think rather than to give them information.

The idea of learning a teacher simply because he knows a great deal and possesses the knowledge of many facts is not such a good idea. It does not make enough difference how much a teacher knows. It makes all the difference in the world whether he has the peculiar faculty of arousing in his pupils the desire to know.

The older I get the less I burden myself with information. I know where to get it and that is enough. Why should I load my mind down with tons of statistics when I know right where to find them in the library?

It is much more important to know how to handle the facts than it is to have the facts. For facts, generally speaking, are pretty well stored away, classified and indexed. And it is better to know how to find the index and table of contents of a book than it is to know all the things in the book.

Although this is supposed to be an intellectual age, we are not yet fully alive to the importance of thinking. We do not, for instance, realize that a man trained and reared in a school worth a thousand trained hands. We have an idea that such and such a man is worth a million dollars' worth of business rates for its property entirely upon the hand workers, when, as a matter of fact, the real basis of its success is the thinker at the top.

Few will deny that the most important thing about a human being is the little part or so of matter in the skull. But it is also true of any business concern or of any nation that the most indispensable element in it is that element that thinks clearly and soundly.

So it makes little difference how much information your boy has gathered at school provided he has learned to think.

And if he knows all sorts of things, can speak English and can speak Polish fluently and does not know how to think he is but a sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal.

Thinking is hard and desperate work and most people hate it. But it is tremendously important, and the business of the school is to find out that portion of the child population that is capable of it, and to train them to do it and to like it.

Dope is the yeast in the bread of life. Discouragement is the worst misfortune that can befall a man. It is the death of his strength.

On the whole, there is only one person in the world toward whom it is safe to be always inflexible, and that is yourself.

"Big Brother to a Hundred Thousand Kids" at Chautauqua

Capt. T. Dinmore Upton, "Big Brother to a Hundred Thousand Kids," will be a featured lecturer at the coming Redpath Chautauqua here. His lecture, "The Four-Square Builder," is a plan for clean, wholesome recreation for all.

CAPT. T. DINMORE UPTON.

For children as a foundation for better citizenship. Captain Upton speaks from a uniquely successful experience as director of athletics in prominent high schools and as a physical training director in the army during the Great War. As a speaker he is magnetic and eloquent. He has the faculty of reaching everyone—children through their parents, and parents through their children.

"Circle Upton Clubs" in many parts of the world attest his influence.

Be Careful What You Say. In speaking of another's faults, Pray don't forget your own; Remember those with whom you are connected.

Should never throw a stone. If we have nothing else to do but talk of those who sin, The letter we commend at home, And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man Until he's fairly tried; We know the world is wide, Some may have faults—and who has not— The old as well as young; Perhaps we may, for aught we know, Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan, And find it works quite well. To try my own defects to cure Before of other's tell. And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know, My own shortcomings bid me let them pass.

The fault of others go; Then let us all, when we commence To slander friend or foe, Think of the harm one word may do. To those we little know. Remember curses sometimes, like Our cheeks, "froast at home." Don't speak of others' faults until We have none of our own.

An organization with a history replete with notable achievements is the Russian Cathedral Choir, whose faultless renditions of the songs of Russia will be one of the feature musical attractions of the coming Redpath Chautauqua.

Through the personal interest of the late Carl Nicholas of Russia, they became a part of the choir of the world-renowned cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, Later in America they scored remarkable successes with the St. Nicholas Russian Cathedral choir in New York City, and also as the singing gypsies in the spectacular Grand production of "Czardas" in "Redemption."

SOME FOLKS THINK.

That water polo is a game played by sea horses.

That a smoking jacket requires a fire alarm.

Poland is bounded by the North and South poles.

That a dry dock is a medical man without any liquor blanks.

That a filling station is managed by a dentist.

That, per se, "Warum" is a foreign name for the dead letter department.

That a sea-bank has a heavy deposit of sandbags.

That wild flowers are all tiger lilies.

That cutting the cards is wanton destruction.

That a highball has something to do with baseball.

That a pacifist is a native of the Pacific Coast.

That a table is furniture from an installment house.

That the Prince of Wales only luna Welsh agents.

That all beans are rolled from Boston.

That you can get an accident policy against insurance agents.

That only children like baby dolls.

SURE OF YOURSELF?

By Beatrice Fairfax.

Are you always quite sure of your motives when you decide on certain courses of action? Do you prefer to certain other courses which lie open before you? Do you always acknowledge to yourself what is the impelling factor in your choice?

It is always fairly easy to form a judgment about other folks and to dismiss them as disinterested or selfishly motivated. But how can such a judgment be fair when it is so hard to know what is right when you are face to face with a problem of your own?

You may think you are acting wisely when you shall a new candidate for membership in your club. You may believe—with the surface of your mind—that the one or the other is doing much to the organization. But, if you dug deep enough into your own consciousness, aren't you likely to discover some hidden anxiety against the very person you are now so righteously and "impassionately" condemning?

Let us go very long ago two good friends were reported to be very angry to save the day. She did everything in her power to clear up the existing misunderstanding. But her efforts were of no avail. The break came. Suddenly, to her great astonishment, she found that one of the two "combatants" attributed the breach to her. A few malicious folks seemed to find great joy in telling her that she had done it. Others, who were commiserated with her in the tragedy of being "misunderstood."

To the amusement of all concerned, the man who had failed smiled imperceptibly and said: "I don't mind being misjudged; because I know I was disinterested in the whole matter and that I made an honest effort to straighten things out."

Not only has the breach come, but you've an enemy, to boot," urged one consoling person. "Evidently the breach had no cause," said the woman, who had tried to keep peace in the ranks of her friends. "And the girl who attributes it to me now is bound to find out sooner or later that I didn't cause it. When she sees how she misjudged me she may take a look of the situation and realize that she wasn't utterly fair to the other girl, either. So it's likely to work out splendidly. Anyway, as long as I'm sure I was honest and sincere, I don't see why I should let myself be unhappy about what had to happen."

Cow, Hog and Hen

The cow, the hog and the hen. It is the slogan of Turner county, Georgia, and the agricultural forum in out of which such achievements in the restoration of prosperity in a ball weevil stricken country, have come, that within the last week agricultural agents from all parts of the country have gathered there to see. Along with the agriculturalists from South Carolina, Maryland, Horton, a staff correspondent of "The States," went to see what was being done in Turner County.

"Many of us have heard of Turner county and its prosperity," through the dairy cow, the hog and poultry. Mr. Horton sends his paper an interview with one of the leading bankers of Ashburn, Ga., who "put the whole business in a nutshell and concludes with this significant statement: "It is of transcending importance that the country bankers learn the advantages of productive credit over consumptive credit, from the standpoint of both the banker and the farmer."

"I wish to emphasize the fact," says Mr. Betts, "that the returned prosperity of Turner county is to be attributed solely to the county-wide adoption of the dairy cow, the hog and the hen on the farms in the county. And the wonderful change in the spirit of the farmers of the county is due to their having proved to themselves that farming with the dairy cow, hog and hen is a profitable enterprise."

"You are interested to know how such rapid progress has been made. Simple enough. By realizing, a truth of the statement that the farmers of a community rise no higher than the business man of that community who serves their wants."

"It is of transcending importance that country bankers learn the advantages of productive credit over consumptive credit, from the standpoint of both banker and farmer."

Throughout the whole the South the steady year around, income for the farmer from the cow, the hog and the hen is the answer to the problem. It relieves the small farmer from the advances from the store or the bank, and the program builds up the land, while it establishes a basis of credit.

Truth is often so obscure that it can not be discussed.

Macfarren Symphony Quartet Popular Chautauqua Attraction

The Macfarren Symphony Quartet, a premier instrumental organization, under the direction of Herbert Macfarren, noted British student and composer, will be one of the outstanding musical attractions at the coming Redpath Chautauqua.

The Macfarren Symphony Quartet renders individual and ensemble selections from the compositions of the older masters, as well as productions of the more popular composers, through the medium of violin, viola, cello and piano. The Macfarren Symphony Quartet is an organization whose appearance here will be a distinct musical event.

"Joyously Enthusiastic"

That term was used by one discriminating person to describe the attitude and state of mind of the 900 happy and progressive housewives who were using Electric Ranges on our system before our Electric Range campaign began. There has been a 40 per cent increase in this happy family during the past five weeks and the increase becomes more marked each day.

The campaign will end May 15th. There are only a few more days during which you may join this happy family under our very attractive campaign offer. This campaign proposition means from $25 to $40 to each purchaser, because all prices include cost of installation and a premium in the form of a valuable and convenient Aluminum cooking set.

No discriminating, ambitious and progressive housewife can afford to let this campaign pass without at least making a careful and thorough investigation of the Electric Range. They simply transform a kitchen and brighten the atmosphere of the entire home. You can not begin to appreciate their many points of superiority over the old fashioned and less efficient kinds of Ranges still used in most homes until you have studied it carefully and had it demonstrated to you.

Many housewives who wait until the last minute to investigate or to select their Range are going to be disappointed because our sales forces are going to be rushed to their capacity during the last day or so of the campaign. Don't be one of those. Act now.
