Faculty evaluation to be given trial run

By KATHY SNEAD
TJ staff writer

Public faculty evaluations will be given a trial run during summer session, senate announced last week.

In February, a recommendation was submitted to senate to investigate why professor evaluations were not made public as they have been several years ago.

Phelps Senator Linda Gaetan and the Rules and Regulations Committee sent out 100 letters asking professors if they would approve of the evaluations being publicized.

Out of 100 letters, 30 percent responded with 25 professors for the recommendation, four against and the rest undecided.

The committee then approached Mike Smith, dean of faculty, who made the following suggestions: 1) that the Rules and Regulations Committee ask psychology professors to create the questions for the actual evaluations, 2) that a trial-run of the evaluations be done in summer session and 3) that the results be submitted to the Faculty Council this fall.

"It will be exciting to see how the results turn out," Gaetan said.

In other business, several recommendations and charters went before senate for approval.

Recommendation 20-85-86, requesting the registration office to submit the exam schedule to the student body with the printed edition of the schedule bulletin, was passed by vote of 16 to eight with two abstentions.

According to Bryan Grant, senate president, registration said the recommendation is a "good idea and is looking into it for the spring (bulletin)."

Recommendation 21-85-86 failed with a vote of 11 for 13 against, and two abstentions.

The recommendation concerned having exams "administered on one of the days in which the normal class would fall."

The recommendation would go back to student life committee for further deliberation.

The Action for Food charter passed its second reading.

Action for Food (Winthrop College students concerned about Hunger) is affiliated with Winthrop's Cooperative Ministries and its objectives, as submitted with the charter, are to "inform and educate students on campus about world hunger and to provide opportunities on campus for people to become involved in current hunger issues."

"We're really glad the school is going to recognize us officially," said the Rev. Randy McAdams, Presbyterian campus minister and AFF adviser.

The charter was passed by 22 votes with two votes against and one abstention.

One vote against the charter came from Randy Firestone, day senator and president pro-tem.

"I don't mind them backing realization of world hunger," said Firestone, "so long as the United States is included in their world. So often it isn't."

Charters for Tau Kappa Epsilon and Campus Baptist Young Women passed their first and second readings respectively.

The winner of the Urscheler, Grimes, Gibson SGA Award of Excellence was Linda Gaetan for her contribution to SGA this year.

This year's last senate meeting will be April 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Dinkins Auditorium and will be open to the public.

U.N. to celebrate anniversary

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

On the second floor of the Center for International Studies are the cluttered offices of the Winthrop College Model United Nations: Enter at your own risk.

"I don't mind them backing our work," said Donna Chapa and her able-bodied - if overworked - staff busy preparing for what they hope will be the best Model U.N. yet.

Model U.N. X will begin April 9 and run through April 12. During that time representatives of more than 60 southeastern high school and dozens of Winthrop College students will take part in various arguments, discussions, debates, and occasionally some old-fashioned scream sessions about various world issues.

There will also be special guest speakers from the United Nations in New York, some special events, and as Chapa said, "a lot of good, clean fun."

While arranging details at Winthrop and rushing to mail information packet to the various high schools involved, Chapa took time to talk about this year's conference.

"For those who are unfamiliar with the program," Chapa said, "The Model U.N. is a student-run, student-organized simulation of the real United Nations in New York City. High school and college students come together for a four-day conference to debate world issues and try to solve conflicts in a non-violent way."

"And have a good time," she added.

Winthrop students involved in the program begin by taking political science 260, a course taught by Dr. Glenn Thomas.

The course examines the history of the workings of the U.N. During the course, the students are each assigned a country represented in the U.N. and try to learn as much as possible about it. They practice debating and arguing from their assigned country's point of view. At the end of the course each student is assigned a delegation from a high school, who will eventually take over the debating themselves.

"Almost all of the students who take the class enjoy it," Chapa said. "I think it's one of the most influential programs a student can take part in. The knowledge gained from actually experiencing U.N. activities surpasses what you can learn in class. Model U.N. provides a better understanding of national and international affairs and an increase in debating skills."

"We are especially excited this year because this is the 10th anniversary at the program. We've added some special activities. There will be a special 10th anniversary commemorative magazine, as well as some added activities for the delegates," Chapa said.

Visitors to this year's conference will be Jose Manuel da Silva Campino, U.N. deputy political affairs officer, and Augustin de Fritos, U.N. deputy press and information officer. Campino is making his second appearance at Winthrop.

Among the other student workers for the U.N. are Secretary General James Dedes and Administrative Assistant Jean Kiser. There is also a 12-member secretariat, whose duties include public relations, conference operations, conference leadership, protocol, and member nations affairs.

"We're all looking forward to the conference," Chapa concluded, "and we hope to make it one of the best ever."

Area student represents USSR in Model UN.

"Being on the staff is an experience," Chapa said. "I have enjoyed it, although it has its hectic moments. There is a sense of accomplishment when the conference rolls around, just knowing you were involved. I love it. You can never get the U.N. out of your blood once you've been involved with it."

"The high school students also enjoy the conference," Chapa said. "There are many who take part in the conference in high school who come here and work with the program from the other end. In fact, Laura Cude, last year's student coordinator, took the course in high school and worked her way up through the ranks."

"Winthrop's Model U.N. was the first to bring both high school and college students together," Chapa said. "Although many high schools and colleges offer Model U.N. programs, from feedback that we've had, Winthrop's is one of the best. It is certainly one of the most renowned. Many schools write us about getting similar programs started, and we have requests from schools even in Georgia who wish to join."

Art exhibit to open in Rutledge

By JILLIAN COFFIN
TJ staff writer

The Seventh Annual Winthrop College Senior Invitational Art Exhibit will open Tuesday, April 8, along with an opening reception for artists and the public will be from 8:30 p.m. in the Rutledge Galleries.

Eleven students will show their work for this year's invitational, art professor David Freeman explained.

"We instigated this as an equivalent to an honors show. Showings are by invitation only," Freeman said.

The students hand in work for critical help from the faculty.

"The seniors remain essentially faithful to the quality, presentation and installation of their own work," Freeman said.

Karen Werth, one of the participating students, explained, "It gives a chance for future artists to show their work professionally—a taste of the real world.

Werth is presenting sculptures for the show.

"The pieces are a series of staffs based on the idea of Styrofoam. They are non-utilitarian based on aesthetics," Werth said.

Werth used polyester, rosin, wood and silver for her materials.

"I try to pull my ideas from primitive forms and modernize them. I enjoy working in color and pattern and I'm having great times doing this. The idea of the staff has allowed me to move into other directions," Werth said.

Russel Biles, another participating artist, is showing a series of sculptures and paintings.

Washington post

WASHINGTON, D.C., (CPS)-A professor of Catholic theology says his church is trying to control what he teaches in class.

Vatican officials last week told the Rev. Charles Curran of Catholic University either to revise what he says in class about birth control and other sexual ethics or lose his right to teach Catholic theology at the university.

"This brings up tricky questions dealing with the academic freedom at Catholic universities," Curran warns.

"There cannot be judgments (about what to teach) made by authorities outside of the university," Curran says. If a school questions a professor's competence to teach, Curran maintains "he must be judged by his peers and according to due process, not by the church.

The church's efforts to control what Curran teaches come on the heels of a Vatican proposal that would require bishops to approve all theology teachers before they can lead classes in Catholic colleges.

Catholic theologians say they have a right to require the teachers of Catholic theology to adhere to church doctrine.

But critics maintain any kind of church interference in classrooms that is supported by public funds amounts to usurping public money to promote a specific religious doctrine.

Consequently, such interference could endanger federal funding, and student aid to Catholic colleges, as the U.S. Constitution mandates separation of church and state.

Curran says the church has scrutinized him since 1979, demanding the struggle between Vatican and local authorities' control of Catholic institutions is an old one.

"A number of us (professors) have long argued that we can be Catholic and American at the same time," he says.

In this instance, being "American" means classroom debate and freedom to dissent, he adds.

Theologians at other U.S. Colleges last week supported Curran in a statement published in the Washington Post.

"For many years, enemies of the Catholic Church in the United States has argued that Catholic colleges and universities are not independent academic institutions, but are nothing more than educational arms of the official church," they said.

Honor society initiates new members

By CHRIS F. ROWELL

The Winthrop College chapter of Phi Kappa Phi will hold its spring initiation ceremony Sunday, April 13 at 3:15 p.m., in Dinkins Auditorium.

According to Chapter President Dr. Joe Zdenek, the National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi recognizes graduates and undergraduate students of superior academic achievement, regardless of major.

The Winthrop chapter was founded in 1964, and currently hosts 58 student members, and 58 faculty, staff, and honorary members. Five new members are to be initiated at the upcoming ceremony.

High school senior wins award

By JILLIAN COFFIN

A Marion High School senior was selected as the first recipient of the Lois Rame West Scholarship at Winthrop College.

Sheri V. Gerald, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gerald, received the award at the Winthrop Weekend held in February. The Lois Rame West Scholarship program includes a gift of $125,000 to be made over a four-year period.

The program was established by the West foundation. Gerald and other recipients are selected on the basis of academic excellence. Mollie Bethea, director of financial aid, explained, "The criteria for this award is a minimum score of 1150 on the SAT or to be ranked among the top 10 percent of their class and a score at least 1050 on the SAT. The gift includes the total cost of the college.'

Gerald has received other honors including attendance at the Academic Governor's School at the College of Charleston, the University of South Carolina's summer program for minority students and the Clemson Career Workshop for Minority Students. She was also named a National Merit finalist, Wofford Scholar, Columbia College Scholar, and the National High School Institute Scholar.

Gerald has also been involved in extracurricular activities, such as The National Honor Society, Annual staff, Spanish Club, Science Club, A.S.C. and Junior Association of Science and her high school band.

"Sheri was selected unanimously by the board. She was very impressive," Bethea said.

Tatler annual arrives

By KAREN PARKER

Patty Toepke, Margaret Pat- terson and the Tatler staff had good enough. The truth is that you don't need a lot of experi- ence," said Toepke.

The events are being held out at the Publications building, which is located next to Dinkins Student Union. A student I.D. and receipt are necessary to pick up the annual.

Students try to embarrass chancellor

SANTA BARBARA, CA. (CPS) - About 2,000 U-Cal at San- ta Barbara students have signed a petition to try to fire the university chancellor.

As a result, The Associated Students Legislative Council will vote in early April whether to put Chancellor Robert Hut- tenback's credibility to a test before students.

The motion, which students say probably will pass, will have no binding authority. It's merely a statement of student feelings.

"We got student signatures to show it's a student movement, not a student government ver- sus administration conflict. Those are all too common," student officer Todd Smith con- tends.

"The reason behind this movement is not one particular thing. It's his style," complains Ray Laine another council member.

The petition is just the latest in a series of insults traded bet- ween the administration and the campus student government.

"He runs the school like a business, but does not deal with the consumer-students," Laine says.

The administration, in turn, says the student politicians are attacking Huttonback only to try to recoup credibility lost to allegations of scandal and failures to read student at- titudes accurately.

Smith maintains students' ire began last spring when someone overheard Huttonback say he would flush down a student petition for divesting school funds in South Africa.

"The context of the situation has been forgotten," asserts Betsy Watson, the campus's director of public relations.

Students had forced their way into Huttonback's office, and demanded he sign the petition. Huttonback replied he would not work on a college yearbook.

"So many students think it's hard in college to get on the staff. They're afraid they're not good enough. The truth is that you don't need a lot of experi- ence," said Toepke.

Students maintain Hutton- back subverted student govern- ment by scheming to get his way on a campus busing issue.

Watson says the administra- tion made a procedural mistake by allowing the student government to take up the issue in the first place.

"I think (student officers) are very embarrassed (by subsequent student support of the bus fee)," Watson speculates.

"They feel they have to posture themselves to restore faith in their position," Watson adds.

Moreover, Watson says the student government is still smarting from allegations made last fall that some officers misused student funds.

But the officers charge Hutton- back, unwilling to abide any political defeat by students, has created his own rump student government by reactivating a student advisory council, made up of about 10 students hand-picked by the chancellor and the student body's deans.
Banquet overlooks majority
By MARK WOOD
TJ news editor

The guest list for this year's academic banquet will be reduced from approximately 400-500 to around 25 according to Mike Smith, vice president of academics and dean of faculty.

In the past, the academic banquet has incorporated students winning special awards, individual scholarship recipients, and dean's list and president's list students. However, when one goes from 400 plus to 25, a huge majority is lost in the transition. And whereas the dean's list may not be as important as the Winthrop Leadership Award, both awards do demonstrate a sense of achievement on the part of the students receiving those honors.

This year, only a select few will be present at a banquet that will be moved from McBryde Hall to the Dunlap-Roddeney Room.

Smith contends that the condensed banquet will be more intimate and ... a nicer banquet." Smith said that the idea is to change from a "mammoth affair" and to move away from a banquet that is "a little bit more than a three-ring circus," Smith said.

With a reduction in students attending, the atmosphere is sure to be more restrained and quiet, but many students who have worked so hard for so long will suddenly become an ignored mass whose efforts in academics surely enhance the image of the entire college.

These students give a lot of their time and effort to Winthrop College to upgrade the image of the institution. Is it asking too much for them to be recognized for their efforts?

Letters to the editor

Racial harmony
Dear Editor,

I'm writing in reference to the editorial entitled "Racial Harmony Needed." I agree with the title of the editorial totally, because racial harmony is needed throughout the world. Nevertheless, I don't see how you can justify condemning someone else's actions of racism when The Johnsonian is a part of the problem here at Winthrop. The overt actions of the persons in February were indeed results of prejudice attitudes, but not covering minority events and persons the same as other events and persons are covered is also bigotry without a doubt.

Even though the actions are different, they are derived from the same ethnocentric attitude, and the effect is the same.

You indicated in your editorial the ways in which The Johnsonian has shown its concern and support for minorities at Winthrop. Why didn't you specify that even though you have covered distinguished individuals such as Lerone Bennett and Yolanda King, one had to search to find such coverage? There were even times when coverage was bestowed only after questions and criticism aroused. And, in my four years here at Winthrop, I can count on my fingers and toes the number of times minority have been shown voicing their opinions in your "Sound Off" segment. Why is that?

I am not placing the blame entirely on you and your staff, Miss Buie; the seeds were planted here long before you even took position. You just allowed the seeds to sprout as they always have.

Not only does The Johnsonian under-represent minorities—look at The Tailor, Winthrop's annual. Open it up and you would assume that approximately fifty minorities attend Winthrop.

Where are the photographers during minority sponsored functions and events? It's not a matter of not knowing. I would think that these publications' duties to gather, and cover all events affiliated with Winthrop.

After all, Winthrop is an interracial institution Or is it?

"Goodbye"

Dear Editor,

I'm not totally sure where the motivation comes from to write this letter, but I recently experienced something I would like to share with your readers, my friends.

The 21st of March started a lifelong nightmare for me. Now that Kevin is gone, I find myself wanting to tell him so many things. I would give anything to kick the soccer ball again with him, or tell him a joke (Continued on page 5)

so that I could hear that laugh only he could make. It was so hard walking up to his casket where he lay motionless and realizing how final everything was. I looked down at him and cried. I reached over and put my hand on his chest and said, "Take care kid. I love you." I hope he heard me. I've said to myself a thousand times at least, "If I could have been there, this would not have happened." Well, I don't want to let it happen to another friend.

For you out there that drink and party late night, be your friend of mine or not, you are somebody's friend. Please keep what I've said in mind. We are all excited about the coming summer, but let's live to enjoy it. Believe me, the hardest thing you can ever do in a lifetime is tell a friend goodbye while he lay in a casket.

I hope that there will be in the paper for my letter a piece I'm borrowing from Dear Abby's column, "Please God, I'm Only 17." I'd like to dedicate this letter in Kevin's memory and that we all may live a good, safe, long life.

With my deepest sincerity,

All talk and no guts

By ALLAN C. JENKINS
TJ contributing editor

It cannot be, I am sure that the whole campus is made up of warmongers, but sometimes it seems as if it may be the case.

A week ago, within days of each other, forces of the Libyan government engaged forces of the U.S. in the Gulf of Sidra. During provocative U.S. maneuvers therein, while Nicaraguan troops entered Honduras in an attempt to eradicate counter-revolutionary guerrillas there.

Consequently, all during that week, Winthrop students could be heard saying, "I think we should go in and destroy Libya" and "We ought to invade Nicaragua and get rid of the Sandinistas once and for all.

OK, who's going to bell the cat?

I don't see any of these tough talking would-be soldiers making recruiting the armed forces recruiting offices; they were either headed for class or a cold one at the Money.

Nor, when I asked around, did I find too many of these heroes remaining to enter the services after graduation.

All talk and no guts is a dangerous thing.

Attendance policy

Dear Editor:
On March 6 the Faculty
Council took the unprecedented action to change Winthrop's attendance policy. The policy obviously is of interest to students.

The faculty have wrestled with the issue for several years. I suspect that many of us think the existing policy needs to be changed, but we differ widely on what these changes should be.

The question may well come before the faculty again next year. In short, the attendance policy is an ideal subject for a well-researched article examining the issues and problems from various points of view. Therefore when Allan Jenkins asked to interview me for a story on the subject, I was happy to talk with him.

I was one of a number of faculty members on the subject of Faculty Conference, and I gave Mr. Jenkins what information I could about the background to the Conference again. However, I encouraged him to talk to faculty members with other information and points of view, especially several whom I named who serve on Academic Council. A day or two later I happened to run into him and he said that he had talked to some other persons, although apparently he had not approached them. I thought it would be especially helpful in producing a balanced, informative story.

The result of his efforts, published in the March 31 Johnstonian, was disappointing. Mr. Jenkins could have performed useful service to the Winthrop community by examining an important and by no means simple issue in a thoughtful and constructive way. Instead, he printed a news article or an analytical piece, he chose to write an editorial distinguished more by heat than light. I don't mind at all being criticized in print for my views. However, I would prefer that they be presented more accurately but on a subject of such wide interest to both students and faculty I had hoped that a responsible journalist would want to get the opinions of more than one faculty member and to discuss the subject objectively.

Department tries to solve problems

Editor's note: This article is the second part of a two-part series.

By PATTI BOARD
TJ staff writer

Rosso said Winthrop works through a system of advising. The adviser will give him a list of students who need certain classes to graduate. He then tries to keep slots open for them. The problems arise when students who do not register at the right time or transfer students may create a problem.

"Advising is important and for the most part, our advisers do a good job," he said. "They need to be great advisors by necessity.

Rosso said that the maximum number of students allowed in a class depends on the type of course. Most oral classes are limited to 20 students and the journalism classes and radio/television classes are limited to 18 students. "We tried to keep near 20 students per class this semester, but the large-number of majors also been modified. Additional courses have been added for majors. Rosso said, "Fall 1986's schedule is the best schedule we've been able to offer this fall.

Overall, there has been an increase in GPR of communications majors. "The students are always interested in better things," said Rosso. The program has expanded from a 27-hour major to a 38-hour major to upgrade the experience the student has. "Communications majors are an asserts group and that's good. That goes to show that they are using what they are being taught in class. We have a very good major," he said.

Rosso said that he was looking for "a big turn-around" in the department next semester. The two sections of feature writing and two sections of news editing offered (as compared to one section of each that is being offered now) would be an additional course in television will be offered.

"We are not going to see such a large request of getting in classes with the new majors," Rosso said. "We are also trying to offer more courses and less service for the non-majors. We hire for the majors and not for the service," he said.

The summer program has also been modified. Additional courses have been added for majors. Rosso said, "Fall 1986's schedule is the best schedule we've been able to offer this fall.

I'm encouraged about the fall semester, and I'm looking forward to preregistration."
Baseball team on a win streak after two losses

By ERIC FEARN
TJ sports writer

The Winthrop baseball team is on a streak. After opening the season with two losses, Winthrop is now riding the crest of a 10-game win streak. After Sunday's doubleheader sweep of conference opponent Radford, Winthrop moves up to 21-4 overall and 6-1 in the Big South Conference. The winning pitcher in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader was Waine Shipman. Shipman is one of only three seniors on the baseball team, and he's the only senior among the pitching corps. Last season Waine was second on the team in wins with a 9-2 record. He had an earned run average of 3.62. He recorded 5 complete games and he's the only senior among the pitching corps.

Winthrop ranked 15th in nation

Winthrop is ranked 15th in the nation this week in the NCAA Division II women's fast pitch softball poll. The Eagles were rated 20th in the first poll of the season. They are currently 15-3 on the year. Cal. St.-Northridge is rated first with San Houston State second. Akron, Ohio, and Stephen F. Austin complete the top five in this week's poll. Head Coach Frankie Griffin said, "I feel like the rating is representative of what we have done so far. I hope that if we continue to improve as we have in the past few weeks and continue to win that we can be rewarded by being ranked even higher in the polls."

Pitching staff improving with each game

Winthrop was facing a tough situation when the 1986 season began because of the departure of Paige Nichols, who had been the team's top pitcher for the past four seasons. However, Michelle Miruski and Laura Blackmore have proved that they are capable of pitching well. Miruski, a sophomore from Oklahoma City, Ok., has been in ten games with nine starts and four complete games. Blackmore, a freshman from Dade City, Fla., has been in eleven games with eight starts and four complete games. Griffin said, "At the beginning of the season I was very much concerned about our pitching situation, but Miruski and Blackmore have certainly done the job for us thus far." He added, "They have improved with each game, and I feel very good about our situation on the mound right now." Miruski was a starter a year ago for Winthrop, while Blackmore is in her first season with the garnet and gold. Miruski has three shutouts to date, while Blackmore has one.

Eagles continue to lead East Division

Winthrop continues to be the leader in the Big South Conference East Division. Horace Turbeville's club is 30-0 on the season in division play. UNC-Asheville is second at 4-4. They are one and a half games behind Wainwright, who is in his first season with Winthrop, from Auburn.

Hummel ties record

Drew Hummel tied the school record for total bases in a game last week in a 12-2 win over West Virginia. The junior first baseman had a home run, 4 RBIs, and a pair of singles for nine total bases. The nine total bases tied the mark set earlier in the season by rightfielder Jeff Dodig. Hummel, who is in his first season with Winthrop, is from Auburn.

Malseed becomes career home run leader

Malseed becomes career home run leader

Winthrop's top pitcher for the past four seasons, Waine Shipman, has moved into a tie for 3rd with Jamie Holt (1980-81) in shutouts (3) and had the second best walk-to-strikeout ratio on the team this year. Shipman has moved into a tie for first on the all-time win list with Bob Steer (1980-81) and Wainwright, who is in his first season with Winthrop, is from Auburn.

Hettick Off to an impressive start

Junior left hander Mark Hettick is off to a great start in 1986. Through the first 19 games he has a record of 4-0. He has been in six games with four starts, and he has one complete game to his credit. He has been on the mound for 26 and 23 frames thus far and sports an impressive ERA of 1.31. In addition, he has an ERA of 1.80. As a staff Winthrop has allowed only 22 earned runs in 117 innings.

Eagles sport six regulars with better than .300 averages

Winthrop has six players with batting averages of more than .300. Karen Nicholson leads the group at .473, with veterans Diane Sisley and Trudy Taylor following closely behind. Newcomers Laura Blackmore and Sandy Donaldson are also on the list. Catcher Monica McFadden complete the group. As a team Winthrop is batting .324 through the first 18 games of the season.

Banner winning season possible

If Winthrop continues to win at their present rate, they could surpass the all-time record for wins in a season. They are 15-3 at present with a possibility of 24 games remaining in the year. If they win 20 of their last 24 outings, which is in their present rate of success, they would finish with a mark of .587. The record for the most number of wins in a season is 35, which Winthrop accomplished in 1984.

Jerome McKiver is 6'2" tall and weighs 175 pounds. He is starting guard on the basketball team. From Bennettsville, S.C., he alternates point guard position with Junior Ted Houp. Since coming to Winthrop four years ago, Jerome has become more of a student.

He has learned to take his grades seriously because "to be eligible, you've got to make the grades. I think I've matured a lot, on and off the court. College has taught me a lot about making my own decisions." Upon coming to Winthrop to play college basketball, Jerome had to improve his ball-handling skills and sharpen his decision making on the court.

Jerome is an integral part of Winthrop's two-guard system because he receives the plays from the bench. He usually calls the signals and sets up the offense. Jerome's only real disappointment this year was Winthrop's loss to Pfeiffer in the final of the WISTV Classic. Winthrop was nipped by 62-60 in that game, 66-68. The major factor which prompted Jerome to sign with Winthrop was a sense of belonging.

He came here to Winthrop and saw how the people got into the games. They were playing in Sullivan Gym then, in '82-83. It was just a nice feeling. I said College Ball! and the pep band was roarin'. "I came to the campus and I liked the facilities. You were so free to do things." These were Jerome's initial impressions upon visiting Winthrop.

When I asked Jerome if he would attend Winthrop again if he had it all to do over, he said: "That's hard to say. If I could go back to my high school days knowing what I know now, I would change a lot of things about my game. I would learn to run the offense and set up more often. When I was in high school, my key was my jumping ability and height, I was labeled a small forward. If I went back to high school and came out I try to go to a bigger school, maybe.

"If Jerome would change one thing from the last four years, he said he would "try to improve my overall game." "People always accuse me of being too selfish with the ball and they say that I overpass. They'd say, 'You were wide open, why didn't you shoot?' I would become more of an offensive player." He pointed out that sometimes "people tend to overlook the little things you do." To an alert basketball fan a good assist is just as exciting as a dazzling score. Without that good assist, the dazzling score would never have been possible.

To further this concept, good defense creates offensive opportunities. Many times a team's best offense is a good defense. This is Jerome's major role on the team. This is his strong suit. He is one of the defensive catalysts on the team. Players who do the "little things" on a team are vital to a team's success. Defense starts out front with the guard play.

Jerome's most exciting moment is an all star game he played in his freshman year at Winthrop. "Seniors from the ACC came in to play us. I got to meet Michael Jordan and was in a dunk contest with Thurl Bailey. I played against Sidney Lowe and Derek White of N.C. State." When I asked him what he will miss the most upon graduation from Winthrop in May, he said: "Mainly my girlfriend and being roommates with Fred, all the guys on the team and the unity we have." Jerome is the youngest of eight children; he has five brothers and two sisters. "I was a happy kid, I suppose. I had the same things other kids had. But you always do want more. I've had the chance to do some exciting things." Starting forward on the team and from Columbia, S.C., Allen transferred from the University of South Carolina to Winthrop after his freshman year. He became more of an inside player upon coming to Winthrop. "When I went to Carolina I played mostly small forward and some outside, and then I came here and immediately started playing real well inside and rebouning a lot. I took on another role." Allen has also made a great deal since coming here. "When I went to Carolina I was young, just right out of high school. Here I've matured because I've come of age.

Allen was really impressed with the Winthrop Coliseum upon visiting Winthrop. He also found Winthrop has a good communications department, that being his major. These two factors were the main reasons he chose Winthrop. Allen went through a small slump right around Christmas break. However, he said he made some New Year's resolutions and ended up having a great second semester. Allen's best rebounding performance came in a 93-86 win over Piedmont College. He pulled down 23 boards in the Eagles victory.

I asked Allen about his feelings about crowd turnout this year's games. "It was disappointing with the crowd turnout this year. The Rude Crew came out and had a run-in with Mr. Vaselenko. They said they were coming back, but they never showed. I'd like to thank the little fans we had for coming out. I'd like to thank the cheerleaders for trying to keep the crowd up. It's a little hard to take a while, but I think Winthrop will maybe be like some of the bigger schools." Allen will be coming back to finish up next semester and graduate with a degree in communications.

When I asked Allen what his most important roles on the team are, he replied, "Rebounding is my top priority. Second, rebounding is my top priority. Second, rebounding is my top priority. I'm still waiting to be a starter, of course. Thirdly, I look to score my average, about 16 points a game. I've achieved everything he wanted that with offensive rebounds and a few passes inside. I work hard under the basket." Allen said that the Johnson C. Smith week was great. Jerome's only real disappointment this year was Winthrop's loss to Pfeiffer in the final of the WISTV Classic. Jerome said the jump to Division I next year is "going to take a lot of heart." He will be graduating in May with a degree in communications.

Student to study abroad

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

The Winthrop College International Center and foreign language departments are offering two overseas study programs this summer. Winthrop College Studies Abroad 1986 is offering two trips: one to France from June 22 until August 5, and one to Spain from June 9 until July 21.

Glenn Thomas, director of the International Center, said, "This is the second year we've attended the program. We offered the French trip last summer, and this year is the first time we've offered the Spanish trip."

"We had excellent reactions from those who participated last year," Thomas continued, "They gave a very enthusiastic assessment of the program, and we're very enthusiastic about the program's future.

The trip to France includes tours of Paris, Aix-en-Provence, Burgundy, and Loire Valley. It features visits to the Louvre, the French Riviera, and the vineyards and wineries of la Bourganei. It also offers a study program at the University of Provence, with a possibility of six hours credit.

Participation on the program requires completion of two years of high school French or two semesters of college French, and recommendation of a French teacher. Cost for the program is $2,660 which includes air fare, ground transportation, room and board, and tuition.

The Spain trip includes tours of Madrid, Granada, Seville and Cordoba. It features visits to the Prado Museum, the walled city of Avila, and Toledo. It also offers a five-week study program at the Universidad de St. Louis en Madrid.

Eligibility for the Spain trip requires completion of two years of high school Spanish or one year of college Spanish, and the recommendation of a Spanish teacher. The $2,550 fee includes air fare, room and board, transportation, and tuition.

Thomas said that, while application deadline was originally scheduled for early March, the deadline is being postponed indefinitely, so that more students can take advantage of the program. Students interested may contact the International Center.

Thomas also revealed that, while plans have not been finalized, negotiations are presently underway to offer an African Study program in 1987.

Before you make a long distance commitment, make sure you know what you’re getting into.

If Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh had known what being stuck in the same boat would mean, chances are neither would have set foot aboard.

And if you’re stuck in the same boat with a long distance company that doesn’t give you all the services you need, it’s easy to harbor mutinous thoughts.

But when you pick AT&T as your long distance company, you know you’re in for smooth sailing. You’ll get trouble-free, reliable service. Immediate long distance connections—even at the busiest hours. And long distance operators to assist you with immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling.

And you’ll get discounts off our Day Rate on your state-to-state calls. With savings of over 50% during weekends until 5pm Sundays, or nights from 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Friday. And 40% discounts evenings between 5pm and 11pm, Sunday through Friday.

So when you’re asked to choose a long distance company, sign aboard with AT&T. With AT&T Long Distance Service, you’ll never be left stranded. Just call 1 800 222-0300 for more information or to choose AT&T. Reach out and touch someone.

Black population may drop

ATLANTA, GA. (CPS) --
There will be fewer black students in college in 1990 than today if present trends continue, says a new study by the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB).

Since 1976, while a greater percentage of college-aged students have been registering for classes, black students' rate of increase for college attendance has trailed the total enrollment growth by a larger and larger margin.

And since 1982, growth "has been at a standstill," says Joseph Marks, author of the SREB study, "The Enrollment of Black Students in Higher Education: Can Declines Be Prevented?"

Marks found that while more black students are going to college each year, their enrollment growth rate actually declined by over eight percent from 1976-1982.

At the same time, while students' college-going rates increased, even though whites' high school enrollment and graduation rates suffered a greater decline than blacks'.

Moreover, the number of black students completing college increased only nine percent from 1975 to 1982.

But from the mid-1960s through 1970, black students' graduation rates grew a whopping 60 percent, thanks to "successful integration" and "people realizing the door to education was open."

Marks blames black students' inability to obtain financial aid and better job prospects for making "the college-going rate plummet."

Financial aid also played a major role in black students' dropout rates, the SREB found. It also said a scarcity of minority professors and administrators made black students feel more isolated and less comfortable staying in school.

Former Employee of the Month retires

Ethel Craven

By A. GISELE CHICK

many years at Winthrop, she has shown outstanding dedication in her service to the students.

Ethel Craven, assistant to the staff and students of Winthrop, plans to retire. Craven was born in Rock Hill. In her many years at Winthrop, she has shown outstanding dedication in her service to the students.

Craven has received numerous awards during her tenure at Winthrop. The Johnsonian ran a feature story on her in December 1980. The 1980-81 volume of the Tuler gave her a recognition page. In June 1981, she was awarded the "Winthrop Student Life Commendation for Service". She received the SGA Service Award for 1981-82 and the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority Outstanding Service Award for 1983. In April 1981, she was inducted into the Winthrop Chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa and was presented a 20-year service pin by President Phil Lader. In October 1984, she received the Employee of the Month Award.

"After I received the Employee of the Month Award, Steve Vacendak came into the office and placed a strip of paper over the word month and wrote it. "I know that I won't be able to do both," Craven said.

Craven has given Winthrop years of dedicated service. She said that she'll miss it greatly.

"Winthrop has been a major part of my life for so many years. I know that I won't be able to just quit. I hope to have a part-time position at Winthrop and be partially retired," she added.

Rosen popular attraction at ATS

Garfield, Tweety and Sylvester, and an Opus the penguin. Carl Rosen is about to perform. Rosen, a musician based in Charleston, is one of the most popular performers at Winthrop College. His renditions of hit songs are a delight to many.

Ann Howell, assistant director of Dinkins Student Union, said that Rosen was the most popular artist ever to perform at ATS.

"The reason we're having him back again is because he draws the largest crowd in ATS," Howell said. "Out of all the people we could think of, Carl has the most fans.

Rosen frequents many college campuses in the Carolinas and is making his second appearance at Winthrop this semester and his third appearance at ATS for the year.

In addition to playing the college circuit, Rosen also makes the rounds in local clubs in North and South Carolina. Dedicated fans like Chelle Sapp often see Rosen whenever he's in the area.

"It strikes me as strange that he hasn't made it nationally yet," Sapp said. "One day he's gonna go big-time," she said.

Rosen has also cut his own records. His current album is entitled "The Tooper and another," and a Opus the penguin. Carl Rosen is about to perform. Rosen, a musician based in Charleston, is one of the most popular performers at Winthrop College. His renditions of hit songs are a delight to many.

"When I think about retiring, I get a sick feeling but I will be happy to spend more time with my closest full of projects," Craven added.

Craven says that she has a closet of 101 projects that she has started but not finished. She would like to return to them and to do more things with her husband and in her yard.

"My husband is partially retired and has taken care of the yard and I took care of the house. Now I want to be able to do both," Craven said.

Craven has given Winthrop years of dedicated service. She said that she'll miss it greatly.

"Winthrop has been a major part of my life for so many years. I know that I won't be able to just quit. I hope to have a part-time position at Winthrop and be partially retired," she added.

Feminist theses hurt job prospects

(CPS) -- Women may have a hard time getting a job if their resumes evince strong feminist feelings or refer to school projects that a prospective employer may see as meaning they could cause "trouble" on the job, a new study by two professors suggests.

Employers surveyed by Michael Hitt of Texas A&M and William Zikmund of Oklahoma State seemed especially reluctant to hire female students who had done studies of job discrimination.

"But corporate preferences for female applicants in general seem to be fading," Hitt adds.

Other job placement officials, however, question Hitt and Zikmund's study, and note "political" references on a resume are always a risk.

"I am not sure if (discrimination) is specific to women's groups," says Joe Santos, a placement officer at Miami of Ohio.

Employers in general seem to respond less positively "to social stands of any kind" on resumes, Santos says. Each company got the chance to respond to feminist applicants identified only by initials.

"Whenever you mention involvement with a political stand, there is always the chance the person reading the resume may have a bias the other way," Santos says.

But Hitt and Zikmund were most intrigued by firms' replies to the resumes that mentioned the job discrimination thesis, but were identified only by the applicant's initials.

"It seems companies were apprehensive only if they felt a woman was doing a discrimination study," Hitt says.

As a result, Hitt advises women who wish to mention on their resumes activities that could be considered vaguely "feminist" to identify themselves by only their initials.

But companies responded to women who did not evince any feminist philosophies on their resumes at the same rate they did to female applicants.

"I would question the validity of the study," she says. "It seems a bit skewed" because each company got the chance to respond to only one type of resume, not all four.

This is the official examination schedule for spring semester. Examinations may not exceed 2 1/2 hours in length. Legitimate conflicts are defined as follows: more than one scheduled exam per period; more than two scheduled exams per day, and more than three scheduled exams in any four consecutive periods. A student with a legitimate conflict will receive written notification from the Registrar's Office. The instructor involved also will be sent notification of the conflict. Students are responsible for working conflicts directly with the instructor by April 4. Personal conflicts such as travel plans and work schedules do not warrant a change in examination times.

In an article in the Phi Delta Kappan, former U.S. Sec. of Education Terrel Bell says his tenure was marred by constant battle with an ideological "lunatic fringe" within the Education Department over funding and other policies.

In his suit, Dr. Andrew Burt claimed former U. Nebraska Prof. Dr. John Connolly's negative reference letter kept him from getting a job. At issue was if Connolly would have to travel out of state to defend himself, a precedent that, some experts feared, would inhibit professors everywhere from writing honest evaluations of former students.
