Dr. Herman L. Frick, superintendent of the Winthrop Training school in Rock Hill, has been named director of teacher education and graduate study at Winthrop college, officials of the South Carolina school for women have announced.

*Two
Weeklies:
Walterboro
Newberry*

"The creation of this new position," President Henry R. Sims said, "Reflects the importance of teacher training, both to Winthrop college and to the state."

"Of the 296 graduates last June and August, more than 194 qualified for teachers' certificates. Winthrop is the greatest source of supply for teachers in the public schools of South Carolina," President Sims pointed out.

Doctor Frick, a native of Newberry county, has been at Winthrop since September, 1941, except for two years, 1944-'46, when he served as lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Before coming ~~here~~ to Rock Hill, he was connected with the city school systems of Walterboro and Columbia. He acted as principal of the University high school in Columbia one year.

Doctor Frick was a member of the staff which compiled the study for teacher education and certification in South Carolina, and wrote the summary volume which gave the proposed plan for teacher education and certification.

At one time he served as president of the department of superintendence of the South Carolina Education association.

Last year, he directed the Winthrop College summer school. Doctor Frick is general supervisor of the Winthrop training school, particularly as related to teacher education.

He received his degrees from the following schools:
B.A. Newberry college; M.A., University of South Carolina; Ph. D., Ohio State university.
