CHARLESTON FIRM IS APPOINTED STATE AGENT

INCOME TAX LAW INTO COURT FOR THE LEGAL TEST

Sanjeev Mills Would Have It Declared Unconstitutional, Hearing May 15.

Columbia, May 9.—The state income tax law got into the courts today on the allegation that it is unconstitutional, and the supreme court, assuming jurisdiction, met May 15 as the date for hearing arguments in the petition of Sanjeev Mills, of Orangeburg, for a restraining order against the state tax commission, to prevent them from proceeding with the collection of tax.

The Sanjeev Mills alleges, among other things, that the act was not read three times in each branch of the general assembly, that the act of Congress, providing the federal income tax, was not read into the act except by title; that there is no provision in the state income tax law for exemption from taxation of the federal income tax paid each year, and therefore the act is unconstitutional, as it is not income, thereby falling outside the scope of an income tax; that the state act incorporates the enforcement of the same tax and regulations as are provided in the federal income tax law, that the two branches of the state legislature; that the state law allows a return for the calendar year or for the fiscal year thereby taxing some persons for twelve months and others for a longer period than a calendar year; that the act imposes a tax on certain interstate commerce and that it exempts insurance companies from taxation, thereby becoming in a sense class legislation.

LATER CUTTING OF ALFALFA FOUND BETTER PRACTICE

Delaying the cutting of alfalfa until it is nearly in full bloom has been found a better practice than mowing it soon after blooming, statistics made by the United States Department of Agriculture and State experiment stations indicate that the yields are larger over a period of years, and that the life of the stand is prolonged by delaying harvesting until the plants are nearly in "fall bloom."

Hay made when the plants are nearly in full bloom possibly is not so palatable, but the effect by the gain in quantity of hay. The fields that were cut prior to or at the beginning of blooming showed a tendency to die out sooner. Cutting when the alfalfa is nearly in full bloom gives more growth to left for protection in winter, also had much to do with thinning stands. The department recommends that the alfalfa be given time to reach a height of 6 to 8 inches before cold weather shuts off the sap flow.

In the past the growing of alfalfa in rows in dry regions has been recommended, but experimental evidence gathered by the department in 1919 and 1920 shows that, with the exception of a few rare varieties the seed of which sells for a high price, this method is seldom practical. It is more reliable to sow alfalfa in broadcast stands. It can not usually be grown profitably in rows. A slightly larger yield may be produced by the broadcast method for the added expense. Also the hay harvested on this cultivated ground is apt to be dirty and it is hard to cut and combine. An accumulating experience also has exploded some old notions about the value of cultivation of broadcast stands. It has been found that harrowing a field of alfalfa ordinarily does not increase the yield; neither does it prolong the life of the stand to any noticeable extent. The method of spring-till narrow rows, not injure the plants, but the disk often kills many and reduces the stand. Some sort of cultivation appears advisable in irrigated regions where the water carries a great deal of silt or where the soil has become compacted by the tramping of cattle pastured on the alfalfa. The department believes there is usually little to be gained by cultivating broadcast fields when the stand is good. If weeds and grass work in and reduce the stand it is better to plow up the field and put in another crop for a year or two. It is hard to think of where the soil has become compacted by the tramping of cattle pastured on the alfalfa. Balzer, Molony & Conar get Kim Sales for the Entire State LOOKING FOR ASSISTANTS NOW

Balzer, Molony & Conar, of 143 Calhoun Street, Charleston, are being congratulated by their many friends on having been appointed the General Distributors for Kim Milk for the State of South Carolina. Their years of experience as Kim salesman make them invaluable men in this new capacity.

Chance to Get a Kim Agency Talking to a reporter the other day, Mr. Balzer said that the primary interest right now was to find good live men and women throughout the state who would be interested in selling Kim. Considerable lead work is being made but he pointed out that there were thousands of towns and villages in the state where Kim is known to the housewives, and he wants agents in each town. It certainly looks like a good chance for men who work like looking for something good to work on, or women who would like spare time work. From what Mr. Balzer says, the work is easy and interesting and pays well. He wants to hear from any man or woman who is interested.

How to Get Kim Agent Until the state organization of distributors is solidly under way, Mr. Balzer wants to know any one looking to ship Kim by parcel post, to the numerous South Carolinians who are using it now. The prices which will prevail for these parcel post shipments are as follows:

Kim whole milk - 1 lb., $ .70
" 1/2 lb., $ .35
" 5 lbs., $ 2.00

Until there is an agent in your town, send Balzer, Molony & Conar your order, together with a money order to their address in the first part of this article.

New Organization Means Much

"With every little town in South Carolina having a Kim distributor, Mr. Balzer went on to say, "much will have been accomplished. It will give the different communities a steady supply of good country fresh milk."

RAILROAD COMMISSION IS ENJOINED BY COURT

Telephone Rates Are Under Severe and Drastic Cuts

Charleston, S. C., May 9.—Under a recent landmark court decision in the District Judge Henry A. M. Smith, here, the state railroad commission of South Carolina and the attorney general of the state are enjoined until final determination of the petition of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company to have the Foster telephone rate status declared invalid on ground that it is discriminatory and unconstitutional. Attorney General Samuel M. Wolfe had asked that the telephone company's petition be dismissed, thus permitting the state authorities to compel the telephone company to reduce rates in South Carolina. Judge Smith has dismissed Mr. Wolfe's motion. The judge's order stays the state rate law until the case is finally decided in court.

In the meantime the telephone company has been required to make bond of $100,000 to protect the public and toll patrons in the event that the courts finally uphold the Foster rate law. A temporary injunction against the state authorities was issued at the time the petition was filed by the telephone company. No date has been set yet for the hearing of the telephone company's petition.

A poison-tipped spear taken from an African tribesman found from the wall and its point pierced the foot of a New York girl. It was at the home of an African explorer that the incident occurred. An African native administered an antidote known to the Africans and she was rushed to the hospital where she was treated.

Plums and Prunes The good things of this world have to be planned for, worked for, struggled for. There is no easy road to success. The plums are few.

BOLL WEEVIL POISONING.

Matter of Much Moment to Chester County Farmers—Interesting Letter From Georgia County Agent.

Since Chester county depends upon cotton for its money crop it is natural that every one in the county should be interested in the outcome of the crop. While every one in the county does not raise cotton, every one, except a few, is anxious that those who do raise cotton make a success of it. Such being the case, many are talking and thinking of boll weevil machines and boll weevil poisoning, and are wondering what there is to it. Not being experienced in this line the farmers of Chester county will doubtless do a lot of experimenting; many of them will probably try plans that are not worth the use of some cotton. The news comes absolutely nothing first hand about poisoning bolls. However, we do know that the thing to do when you do not know anything about a matter is to go to a man who DOES KNOW, and before we are pointing a communique with reference to poisoning bolls we will refer to the County Agent, at La Grange, Ga., located about sixty miles south of Atlanta.

LONG BRANCH PHILOSOPHY.

We have been headlined, "Boll Weevil Control," and how to make cotton in spite of the pest. We have read and listened to speeches and read bulletins on the subject, and none of them seem to strike the spot. We are sick and tired of seeing a bulletin sent out by the government and on the front cover the picture of a one-hundred and twenty Dollar machine drawn by two men going through a cotton field with the cotton bolls flying out behind, looking like the Hagood plane during a high wind in a dry time. The job is not one of those that we may send "George" to do while the rest of us go to town and talk over hard times.

I wear it and every day that I see it I wish I could get it. I am from Missouri myself, but I have long since learned that I have been had and I am right. I was willing to try the thing out and give it a fair chance. I will say for your relief that I have offered five cents each

CAMPBELL INDICTED FOR MURDER OF SWEETHEART

Prisoner Refused Repeated Requests to View Body of Young Woman He Killed.

Charleston, May 9.—An indictment charging murder was returned in Bamboe superior court this morning against William W. Campbell, slayer of Mrs. Anna Smith.

"I have no lawyers, and I don't want one," he said, in reply to Judge Shaw, who asked if he had counsel.

In a whispered tone the defendant answered: "I am able to employ a lawyer, but I don't want to."

CHILDREN ARE HURT.

Three Struck by Greenville Automobile.

Greenville, May 9.—Mildred Meadows, Virginia Hudson and Susan Erwin, three little girls aged about six years, were painfully hurt early tonight when they were struck by an automobile on West Park avenue.

The car, it is understood, was recently purchased and the owner was out with a demonstrator learning his optics. The children were playing in the street at various points around a pile of timbers that had been placed for building work. The automobile struck the timbers in an attempt to avoid hitting one of the children, and as a result the three children, then in quick turn struck the other two children who had darted out into the street in an effort to escape.

HICKORY DENTIST HAS RETURNED TO HIS HOME

Hickory, May 9.—Dr. Forest H. Hicks, Hickory man who is alleged to have disappeared from Asheville while his attorney, W. A. Self, was arguing before Judge Shaw in Bamboe superior court a motion for change of venue to Burke county in a case in which Hicks was accused of aiding and abetting the liquor traffic, has returned to Hickory. The theory was that he did not like the looks of things and it is thought that he had returned because he had not been indicted.

But let us get back to the cotton question. We have read how the man, his boy, and donkey, all got drowned by taking everybody's advice. We are not much at figures, or anything else, but we calculate that two bales of cotton in the acre at 37-1/2 cents a pound would just about get a fellow out, after taking the advice offered in order to make some cotton.—Farmer John.

RIOT BREAKS LOOSE IN JAIL

OF OAK COUNTY, CHICAGO

Chicago, May 8.—A four-hour riot in the Cook county jail was quieted early today when Wesley Westgrove, warden, and 30 guards rescued the ringleaders from their cells one at a time and whipped them. Displeasure of the prisoners over the method of admitting visitors led to the outbreak.

The riot started on the fourth tier, flaming blankets were dropped to the ground floor. Dense smoke poured out of the windows. With steel strips torn from their banks, the prisoners beat upon the bars of their cells, the warden being heard for a moment. Crows gathered at the jail entrance and police were called to drive them away.

Warden Westgrove said that after each of more than 300 prisoners had a visitor on a recent visiting day, sixtimes as many would be required to visit the entire jail force nearly all night to serve them. "The result was that guns, swords, files, drugs and other articles of contraband came into the jail," he said.

The warden then decided to divide the jail into four sections and permit a fourth of the prisoners to have visitors at a time.

MANUFACTURERS HEAR EDGERTON

He Says Americans Are Saving at Rate of $100,000,000 a Week. He Is Discarding Non-Essentials and Clinging to Necessities, He Declares.

New York, May 9.—Americans are saving at the rate of $100,000,000 a week, according to Ben Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, declared at the annual convention of that organization today at a high-priced hotel, theaters, ball parks and other camping grounds of amusement and non-production areas.

Edgerton asserted that the chief economic problem of the day is that there are too many middle-aged men in the industrial fabric, with too many persons engaged in distributing the products turned out by the plants and the manufacturing industry.

G. W. Dyler, of Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., in an attack on labor unionism, declared that the chief trouble in the industrial world today is due to the unwarranted interference by labor unions with the government with the freedom of industry.

DIES FROM INJURIES

Shelby, May 9.—Henry Johnson, of Lawsville, died in the Lincoln hospital yesterday afternoon as a result of internal injuries he received when the car he was driving ran over a 15-foot embankment in upper Cleveland Saturday afternoon, when he had his passengers in his public car, Mr. and Mrs. Max Johnson and three children.

Johnson was driving on the high fill, and the car plunged down the embankment into a stream of water. Johnson sustained underlying and superficial injuries. Mrs. Max Johnson sustained three broken ribs, but is reported to be improving. December 10, 1900, he was 10 years of age. He was buried today at Knob Creek church in upper Cleveland.

EVANS WILL RUN IF PEOPLE URGE

Sparksburg Citizens to Make Definite Statement Next Week

Greenville, May 10.—"I will be a candidate for governor of South Carolina under one condition and that is if the people of South Carolina express a feeling that my services are needed," was the statement made today by John G. Evans of Sparksburg to a Greenville newspaper correspondent at Greer, where Mr. Evans delivered a speech at a public address. Mr. Evans, when asked as to his intentions as to the governor's race, said he would probably make a definite announcement in the next two weeks. Applications will be allowed to the various legal associations in communication to the chief secretary tomorrow.

EXCURSIONS IN THOUGHT.

Narcissus, Or The Youth Who Fell In Love With Himself.

R. N. Allen, Teacher of Manual Training.

In Greek mythology there is a most beautiful story which tells about a lovely youth named Narcissus. Narcissus was extraordinarily handsome and his ways were so attractive and charming that he was beloved by many maidens. One of the most beautiful of all those who loved him was Echo, a nymph of the wild woods. With all of the wealth of her love, she was not able to arouse in the self-centered youth a spark of love. Her affection for him was deep, but the deepest mountain stream; her love was as pure and fragrant as the illusive scent of the wild honey-suckle; her intensity and fidelity was so marked that all of the Nymphs, Saitys, and Dryads of the romantic woods took note of it.

But with all of the love of Echo was vainly lavished upon the self-loving Narcissus. He scorned her, he persistently avoided her. Wherever she went, there he was. Not wherever he went, there she was. The gods upon Olympus knew of the love of Echo for Narcissus, and Echo was punished for her love of Echo. She was made to repeat the words of those who spoke to her.

But Juno, the queen of Olympus, had seen all of this tragedy. Her compassion for the love of Echo was so great that she decided to give Echo a chance to win the love of Narcissus. She had been long known to all of the gods that Narcissus was a vain and self-admiring youth. It was agreed upon then in council that Echo should be allowed to speak her words to Narcissus.

Has your wife started your garden yet?

Any used car is a pleasure car to the man who runs a repair shop.

The saddest words of tongue or pen, the fly will soon be back again.

A few women can drive cars, but the majority sit at the steering wheel and are taken care of by a kind fate.

In spring the average woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of gardening—very lightly.

The fashion news from Paris is that the dresses over there are not full. Over here they're full and running over.

The teachers who advise their young charges to hitch their wagon to a star should make it plain that they do not mean a movie star.

"Shifternuts" is the latest fad among the kids. We don't know exactly what it is, but so far as the girls are concerned, it isn't helping mother with the dishes.

Single women are more to be relied upon than married women, according to opinions expressed by many employees. Try that statement on your wife some dull evening.

The London speeder, who knocked a clothing dummy through a show window probably was only practicing his up.

There are a number of people who have peculiar ideas as to the position of a newspaper man. They seem to think that a newspaper owner absolutely nothing to do with the community in the way of news when a particular piece of news does not exactly suit them.

The operation of a newspaper is not always pleasant and many newspapers are called upon to put items in their papers which personally would prefer to leave out, but many times it is a duty they owe to the community in which they live, to give publicity to certain things which happen from time to time, especially items of a public nature.

There are some newspaper men who can be shown the eagle on a dollar and they will print or not print items of public interest as they are told to do by certain individuals, but The Chester News, we are proud to say, cannot be classified among the newspapers who do the Klan stunt.

The News has by request, and many times not by request, omitted items of a personal nature to save certain citizens of Chester embarrassment. The News has omitted items of which it was acquainted which, if printed, would have made some mother's heart ache. This has been gladly done, and it will be again. But when it comes to matters of a public nature The News does not propose to cover them up.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Tifton, Ga., Gazette: Here's another illustration of the difficulties experienced by truck growers in Georgia: A Valdosta, Ga., man received returns the past week from two carloads of cabbage shipped to New York. One car contained 629 hampers and sold for $487.88. The freight was $500.97; commission $48.79; cost of cartage $100, leaving the grower $118.12. Another carload brought $15 net. Neither paid cost of cartage and packing. The grower is confronted with the alternative of leaving his cabbage to rot in the field, or gathering them and giving them to the railroads and commission men. Quite a large acreage was planted in cabbage around Tifton this season. Prices were so low that some growers gave away what they could and plowed the remainder under. The later crop is coming on now. Tifton truckers expected better prices, but judging from the Valdosta man's experience they will be disappointed. Hence the railroads can decide to give the producer at least half truck grower here will turn their attention to something else.

Sunday, May 14th—Mother's Day—a special service will be observed in honor of the mothers at Purity Presbyterian Sunday School. Every mother in the membership of the church is cordially invited and urged to come, with the children. Special seats will be reserved and special classes arranged for them.

People often make the mistake of identifying the will of God with the forces of nature, and the codes and laws of life. We too often regard and speak of the "will" of God as something to which human souls must bow in submission or obedience. Frequently one hears good people consulting themselves in the sorrow and disappointments of life with the remark: "It is the will of God that this thing happened, and we must not murmur or complain." So all sorts of avertible calamities and preventable accidents are being attributed to "the will of God." In the familiar words from the classic Lord's Prayer, we get a different conception of what the will of God is. It is something to be "done," not something to be suffered passively.

The "will of God" is, in fact, that which we must make our own and to which we give concrete validity in the world. Mothers will permit their children to go galavanting round town after street cars get in bad company, I run over by an automobile or a train and are killed and at the funeral the priest says that it was God's will. Men driving an automobile try to beat the fast express over the crossing, and innocent lives are lost in the accident that follows. Contention is offered in the mockery of "it was God's will" and judges and scientists will "resolve" that "whereas God has taken our beloved brother, or sister, when it was not God's will that the foot driver should not that way. There is too much foolishness and thoughtlessness on the part of man to do "the will of God" in the easy way to seek to evade the responsibility of the consequences of our own carelessness.

We are too prone to wait upon heaven for things that need to be done on earth, and to seek by prayer and supplication what can only be accomplished by human action, and the "will of God" can only be done when we all unite to give concrete effect to the most important that stir within us, and give our service to those things that make for a more abundant life for all the children of men.

A matter which should be receiving the attention and thought of every citizen of America today is the National prohibition law. The News has in times past been a prohibitionist. The News hopes that it will never again see a saloon in America. The News believes that liquor is a curse upon the community. Notwithstanding all of this we are beginning to wonder if there is a prohibitionist in America who thinks that the prohibition law is prohibiting.

The prohibitionists worked hard to bring about the prohibition law, and if they all but knew it the work has just begun. Our laws are being violated all over the country. Moonshine liquor is being made and sold in almost every village in the country. Men are stealing, robbing, murdering, etc. Men who months ago committed cold-blooded murders in South Carolina have not yet paid the penalty. Men are making and selling liquor in the most secret places, and them of with tight fines. If the people of this country do not demand a stricter enforcement of the laws of our land the time will soon arrive when every citizen's life will be in danger.

Unless there is a stricter enforcement of the laws the prohibition law is going to prove a complete failure and saloons will rise up over the entire country. Woodrow Wilson was in favor of beer and light wines and the News must say that it believes beer and light wines are better for our country than the kind of prohibition we now have.

America must not go back to saloons but that is going to happen unless the citizens see that the originals and moonshiners receive more punishment than they are receiving today.

CIVIC CLUB MEETING.
The Civic Club held its regular monthly meeting in the A. R. P. church Monday afternoon, May the 8th.

Mrs. J. G. Carleton, chairman of the Cross Nora group reported that a valuable box of clothing had been packed and sent to that school since the last meeting.

Mrs. T. S. Lettner, Chairman of the planning committee stated that some plans had been put on the Dora Jones School grounds, others had been ordered, and that the planting of these grounds would be carried out according to plans.

Mrs. R. R. Moffat reported that the Memorial plot had recently been cleared off and arrangements had been made for keeping it in order.

Upon the suggestion of Mrs. J. C. Hoper, the corresponding secretary of the club to write to the Dora Jones Committee of Atlanta extending its work, and asking for information in regard to further co-operation.

Some of the business men have appeared to this club to request the ladies of the city to begin their afternoon shopping early enough in order to complete it before 6 o'clock, so that the stores may close promptly at six. This is considered a sane request and the club kindly asks that the ladies will all show this high consideration for the clerks of the city to begin their work.

The Civic Club has been highly honored in having its former president, Mrs. T. S. Lettner, made chairman of the Memorial Department of the State Federation of Clubs. This is a high consideration for the Civic Club, and the club wishes to thank her for her work.

Memorial Exercises Wednesday.
Quite a number of the only 67 surviving Confederate veterans in Chester county assembled in the church Wednesday to participate in the annual Confederate Memorial Day exercises which were held under the auspices of the Chester Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

An appealing dinner was served the veterans in the Sunday school building of Purity Presbyterian church. A delightful feature of the dinner was that the Children's Chapter of the Confederacy served the Veterans of the War Between the States.

The Memorial Day address was delivered by J. L. Brice, superintendent of education of Fairfield county. The address was delivered in the Sunday school building of Purity Presbyterian church. It was a scholarly effort and held the closest attention of the large number of people present. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Robert G. Lee, P. D. pastor of the First Baptist church of this city. In connection with the exercises the Children's chapter of the Confederacy sang patriotic songs. After the exercises at the church a procession composed of a large number of automobiles wound its way to Evergreen cemetery.

MEN PLEAD GUILTY.
 Sentence Passed in Anderson Court.

Anderson, May 9.—There were several who pleaded guilty today in court to the charge of violation of the prohibition law and seven were given a sentence of from $100 to $200 with an option of serving from three months to six months of the chain-gang.

John Donalds also pleaded guilty of larceny and receiving stolen goods, and was sentenced to five years. A short time ago officials chased the car which Donalds was driving because the car had no number. When Donalds said that he was going to be overtaken he headed the car for the embankment of Rocky river and let it go over. He then jumped into the river and tried to evade the officers but was caught. The car was found to be stolen property, and was not badly damaged by the fall.

Deciding Where To Buy

The success of a business depends on its ability to analyze the mental operations of the public, and to determine how people decide as to where they shall buy goods. The merchant who reads the public mind most accurately gets the business.

When one finds that he needs something, the question comes up where that article should be bought. From some source back in the mind the suggestion comes that such and such a place would be a good store to visit for that purpose. Whence comes that suggestion?

In the majority of cases, it is created by the store that has made the most effort to impress its reputation on the public mind. People remember the things they hear about constantly, and they forget other things that are rarely called to their attention. The advertised store conforms to the laws of psychology, by constantly calling public attention to its enterprises, its goods, its methods, its prices, and the advantages of trading with it. Consequently the inner consciousness, when asked what or where a person should buy, is apt to respond by suggesting certain advertised goods.

It is of course true that while a store by advertising can always draw in a lot of new trade, it can't keep it unless it really does give good value. But advertising helps a store do that, notably in these two ways:

Advertising encourages merchants to handle big lots when such are offered them at low figures. They know that by appealing to the public by advertising, they can swing these big lots and turn them into money in a short time. This buying in a large way and taking advantage of special opportunities, they are able to offer special values.

Advertising increases volume of trade, thus reducing the operating and overhead expense per article, making it possible to cut prices to the public. The advertised store buys and operates at low figures, and can thus make low prices.

COOPER CALLED TO WASHINGTON FOR CONFERENCE

South Carolina Governor May Succeeded Laver on Farm Loan Board.

Columbia, May 10.—Governor Cooper left Columbia yesterday afternoon for Washington, where he was called in connection with his possible appointment to membership on the federal farm loan board, to succeed former Congressman E. F. Laver, who recently resigned to become head of the new joint stock land-bank of Columbia.

It is stated that Governor Cooper has strong chances for appointment to the positive. An announcement from the national capital is to the effect that he and Lieutenant Governor Cooper of North Carolina; and T. C. Atkeson, Washington representative of the National Grange, are the persons under consideration for appointment to the office. It is understood here that the South Carolina governor has strong officials in Washington "pulling" for him, and it is believed he has a strong chance for appointment. The many friends of the governor throughout the state are hoping for his appointment.

The position on the federal farm loan board is to be filled by a Democrat, the law provides, and it is understood the appointment will be of a Southerner. The salary of the office is ten thousand dollars.

If Governor Cooper receives this appointment, it will mean his resignation at an early date, as the farm loan board vacancy is to be filled right away. In such event, Lieutenant Governor Wilson G. Harvey, of Charleston, would become the governor.

Advantages
 By Dr. Frank Crane.

According to Dr. Eugene Flak, "Americans are rushing madly to the grave, flogging themselves with stimulants as they gallop through life."

By stimulants, says the press-reports, Dr. Flak does not mean alcohol, which he identifies as a drug, but such things as tobacco, coffee, tea, moving pictures, the telephone, the typewriter, electric light, motor cars, newspapers, magazines, theaters, baseball games, labor-saving machinery, heating devices, and a hundred other pleasurable but health-wrecking inventions and discoveries of the last 50 years which, about have been done out in the course of centuries to enable the human race to get used to them, and to take them moderately and unobtrusively.

Not the least paradoxical thing in this paradox of life is the fact that we are all straining after the things that injure us, and running away from the things that do us good, as hard as ever we can.

We want softness and luxury, warm baths, ice cream sodas, and in manner of needless self-indulgence—and yet that is loose and inaccurate English, for we don't want those things, we wish them, and it is a whole lot of difference between what we wish or desire, and what we want or need.

The little boy wants his tummy tickled, the woman wants to know what she needs is very probably vigorous application of mama's hair brush, upon that part of his anatomy which the Creator designed that to be treated.

The wise man, however, is the one that knows what to do with disadvantages.

Anybody can get along with plenty of money, plenty of genius, and plenty of fame. That man, however, has the best assurance of happiness in this life that has found out how to get along without these things.

Almost any woman could do with a host of admirers, grand pianos, solid silver, and Dresden china, but it takes a regular woman, you know the kind, that can be happy and cheerful, and make everybody around her happy without any of such trink.

The great difficulty of life is not to get the things we want, but to keep them from ruining us when we get them.

The best kind of life, by which we meet the nearest and strongest, is the one that contains the most struggle and triumph over the most opposition, is not by any means the one that enjoys the most advantages.

Many a son has gone to the devil because of the advantages his father and mother have put into his hands.

And many a woman has been an idle and dangerous member of society simply because some man has insisted on giving her everything she wants, whereas if she had married an honest bricklayer, had 33 children and been compelled to take in washing, she might have been happy, and have done some good in the world.

Slavery is always repulsive, but the worst of slaves is the slave to his own desires and his own unbridled appetites. Tyrants are always hateful, but the worst of all tyrants is oneself.

NIGHT RAIN

The heavy rain fell all the night long through courtes streets in the forest of dream.

Steady and loud in a wild gray song, I heard the drip of my cabin eaves, And drop by drop the rain-storm weaves On stelfs and blades of a million leaves.

I listened to hear the heavy roar, Where swollen streams in their channels tore Far out in the darks of the forest floor.

And all else was still; nor life nor sound, No humankind in the whole round Gave note or stir in the depths profound.

Torrest and drench lay the long night pall, With yellow-mist and fountain call, With the rain and rann and rannel-fall.

And sweet it was in the pouring deep.

To lie awake in my vigil keep, Nor lose one note in the blanks of sleep.

And good it was in my slendge shell, While the nearing skies about me fell.

To be wet and free and weather-well I thought of birds asleep on their spray, Of the burrows deep where wild things lay, And was glad for crops on farms away.

A ban there was in the falling rain, To the heat and bird in wood and plain, To cast the fields of their drought and pain.

Then the morning woke, and clear and wide, The sun shone out on the country-side And the hills and woods were million dyed.

My cabin smoke mounted straight in air, Soft rainy pools settled ev'rywhere, The trees were clean and the farms were fair.

Oh, birds in song, and the meadow through, Oh, broken clouds in the fields of blue, The rain and the night make all things new.

—From Wind and Weather by L. H. Bailey.

GUN FAILS TO KILL
 THIS GEORGIA CROW.

Shelby, May 9.—Charlie Crow shot a weasel and a "boll weevil" at a single discharge of his 22 rifle a few days ago in the Double Springs community. Between 600 and 700 negroes have come into Cleveland county during the past six months from the boll weevil sections of Georgia, and these negroes are called "boll weevils" by local whites and colored. Crow and a Georgia boll weevil negro were after a weasel and when Crow shot the "boll weevil" the weasel, "passed on" and struck the negro in the forehead. The impact of the bullet was stopped by the negro's cranium, and he is getting along nicely except for a flesh wound in the forehead.

Changing artificial light into daylight" has been accomplished by an artist of London, England. The colors absorb the energy of the light rays to such an extent that it produces the effect of sunlight.

IT'S NOT WHAT IT COSTS TO GET IN THE NEWS—BUT WHAT IT COSTS YOU TO STAY OUT.

What Does It Cost to Stop Advertising?

You remember James Pyle's Pearline. It had been advertised regularly from 1873 to 1907.

Then the trustees of the estate saw a brilliant chance to save money. They cut out advertising.

Sales dropped like a clap hammer—profits went where soapuds and bubbles go. In 1914 Pearline, like Jess Willard, tried to come back. But it was too late. The business was sold at a price which is said to have covered barely the value of the machinery and inventory.

Moral: A business will grow as long as it advertises.

A salesforce will thrive as long as it TRIES.

You can't make progress against the current unless you keep rowing. But the harder you row, the faster you go.

How much will 'The News' readers spend in your store?

Doesn't the answer to that question depend upon you?

Advertise—means to sell.

Not to advertise usually means to lose.
