FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1925.

If the pessimists were all as bad off as they think they are, this would be a fine old world.

Looks like the roads will have to be widened so automobiles can get past passenger buses.

A smart man is one who can tell people things he doesn't know and get paid for it.

All's well that ends well—triumph that should be remembered by tank robbers.

Manpower above the shoulders not horsepower. Is what makes the farm pay.

No need to worry about your sins finding you out because if they don't the neighbors will.

In these days of paint and powder, a rose is not the only thing that is born to blush unseen.

Taking physical exercise is a good practice, but the mouth doesn't need to be included.

One of the joys of an old man is to tell the mean things he did when he was young.

There are 346,962 Indians in the United States, not counting those who drink white liquor and set like Indians.

The provoking thing about hair is that it seems to grow on every place except on the head of a middle-aged man.

A blue-jay like that gets the best results plus worthless stock peddlers in places where they can't see the blue sky.

If we atone for our sins on earth, the inventor of the cross word puzzle has a lot of rough going ahead of him.

Although it is regarded as good policy to stay out of the way of most things, we are willing to be hit by property.

It may be true that this century needs a spiritual awakening, but it equally is true that most of us are sound sleepers.

The farmers of the country are reported to owe fourteen billion dollars. They ought to be proud of being able to borrow that much.

Disputing the right-of-way of an interurban car leads all other foot stunts that candidates for the graveyard try.

If Friend Husband ever had a bad word, it was doing dishes. "All right, buy it if you think you'll be satisfied."

The man who built the electric chair in the Ohio state penitentiary was executed in a current event session.

When Friend Wife tells the bits of news which work down the word puzzle, then cross words puzzles may be regarded as a national menace.

Pop-Up The Whole State.

The most important task of the newspapers of South Carolina can perform is involved in selling South Carolina to South Carolina.

Misses are not believers in our state. Our point of view, our attitude, our collective point of view, is wrong—and until it is corrected, we are not going to accomplish the things, political or material, by the natural resources of the state warrant. We have got to develop a sort of South Carolina cynic all over. Not over all states, perhaps, but over all sections, all cities and all senseless partisanisms.

From the state of South Carolina from the state of the mountains is a wonderfully blessed region, in climate, soil and possibilities. It is necessary only to present the facts to sell the state to ourselves and to others. We have failed to do the habit of whining and of carping instead of smiling and of working with an end in view—a steady end. We protest, distrust and ourselves become distrustful.

We seek to undermine confidence and make no effort to build it up in authority and place of responsibility. We are looking about to see how some one else is doing this or that instead of applying ourselves to our own tasks.

The newspapers of South Caro-

ADVERTISING.

Being in the newspaper business it is natural that I should be interested in advertising. Nevertheless, I must confess that since I was in graded school I have been interested in advertising in the business of selling merchandise by advertising, and also creating a desire in people to buy things in various and sundry things.

I always feel that when I am buying an advertising advertisement, I am assured when I purchase the article that I will get one which will prove satisfactory and that will give me good results.

When I was a lad in my teens I bought a nationally advertised watch. I carried it for a number of years and it always gave excellent service. In 1908 I bought a Hamilton watch, which I well advertised and one which, as a man, whether he owns one or not, will tell you is a good watch.

Notwithstanding the daily lessons we have in the advantages of advertising there are still scores of merchants who do not believe in advertising. They think their stores. How they can think this is beyond my comprehension unless it be that they have never been in the line of business and when the customer came they disappointed him and since then they have been un-der the counter spending his dollars in their store. I gladly admit that to advertise to do a certain thing or to give a certain bargain and when the customer comes they do not do what you advertised you would do, in commercial suicide.

Any merchant who thinks he can get a job of "beat it" in the printer ink and expect an enlightened public to gulp down such stuff is worse than a fool. This kind of thing would do a thousand times better to never let his name get in print. But the merchant who advertises in this way, he thought into his advertising and who does what he says he will do, is as sure of patronage as the result of a sure thing. I would not say you think that a few ads will turn the trick. It takes perseverance in advertising just as it does in any other business. If you are going away in the right way, success is assured.

Of course, one can spend more money advertising than the business will justify. The proper way to advertise is to spend a certain per cent of your gross sales in advertising. No merchant should spend less than three per cent of his sales for advertising. His advertising should be a fixed matter just as his rent or stock hire.

When the merchant must study his advertising. He should spend hours every year studying various plans of advertising. He should read magazines, daily newspapers, mercantile magazines, etc. and read them carefully, looking at the various ads and reading suggestions.

During my newspaper career I have seen merchants take a piece of scrap paper and a pencil and write a ten dollar advertisement in a few minutes. No merchant who handles his advertising in this haphazard manner can expect to get the full benefit from it. I think advertising of such importance that a merchant should talk with it just as he would be writing a very important business letter, and he should give that to the printer far through ahead of publication. I think that the printer can also take pains in composing the ad. When a merchant does this I will wager that he will get a return from the money he spends in carrying his message to the people.

Advertising is a business. It is a good thing for his store. Good will is one of the greatest assets any business establishment can have. Only a few weeks ago when Dodge Brothers, automobile manufacturer, announced that the good will of the firm brought fifty-six million dollars. Such an illustration is worthy of close attention.

By emphasizing those things that are done well and encouraging those who have accomplished things worth while, can stimulate the idea of service and get results, even from those who have been discouraged and discouraged by senseless and unjust criticism, based upon nothing more substantial than a complaining attitude. This state cannot be developed except by those who are here, and if they are without vision and are discouraged, willing to destroy and pull down, rather than for anything at all, or for the satisfaction of a few.

Things are going to be done. If one newspaper can sell a county to its people, all the newspapers in the county can. A newspaper can sell a state to all its people.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY.

Says The Rock Hill Herald of Wednesday:

Another tragedy is reported between police officers and private citizens in which an innocent North Carolina lawyer met death. Commenting on the situation, the Charlotte Observer writes:

It is a case, as a parallel one, condemning the free use of fire arms in the case of the policeman. The officer who shot the lawyer met death. Commenting on the situation, the Charlotte Observer writes:

But the North Carolina case is not a parallel one. The North Carolina case was a case of a man who was shot by a policeman. The North Carolina case was a case of a man who was shot by a policeman.

Jack Scruggs Makes Good and is Able to Laugh at His Own Espionage.

Spartanburg, June 2.—Mourning a dead for 15 years, Jack Scruggs walks the streets of Spartanburg today. Equal all to that ghost of a man who disappeared from the world in 1910.

In New Pugh cemetery there lies an unknown man and upon the headstone of the grave is engraved the name of Jack Scruggs.

Discharged from the penitentiary hospital in what authorities thought to be an unremarkable condition, Jack Scruggs, imbued with an overwhelming desire to live, to live that he might prove to the world how unwholly he repented the act, traveled westward where he conquered the disease.

Since then driven onward and onward by that ceaseless desire to live, he has traveled the world over in an attempt to forget, living always a straight-forward and honest life. That he might never be faced again by the horrors of the penitentiary and companions, who would have made it hard for him to live straight, he left his people under the impression that he was dead.

It was seven years ago that he met his life's companion, a charming young woman, who later became his wife and who has proven an ideal companion and the return of their lives is happy.

Capture Boys And Car Here.

Two young white boys, Ernest Ayler, 15, of 17 South E. Street, and Fred Hillberg, 16, of 811 South Fourth street, of Wilmington, North Carolina, arrived in Chester this morning around 12 o'clock. On the way from Rock Hill they picked up A. B. Gunnels, a Confederate Gray, who was on his way to get work in Charleston, he says.

When they rolled into the Prison Service Station in Chester, Gunnels advised Mr. W. T. Betts, proprietor, that the boys had brought along a Dodge car, which was called and arrested the two young men.

The automobile is a Dodge touring car, with a South Carolina tag number C-1653; motor number A-247,444, serial number 170828. The right hub cap is missing, also the gas tank cap. The speedometer registers 507 miles.

We left Wilmington Tuesday, and walked a large part of the way to Lumberton. We got the car started at 10 o'clock. We went from there to Camden and back to Charlotte, and came on Tuesday Rock Hill to Chester.

Ernest Ayler said he had worked some time ago in the City Market, at Wilmington. Hillberg said he had spent a large part of his time on the golf links, caddying for the golfers there. Both claim to be law-abiding citizens.

Both boys looked tired and forelorn, and claim they were very hungry. They will be taken to the Chester jail until authorities, which have been communicated with, arrive from Lumberton.
