TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1925.

From conversations The News has had with various citizens of Chester it is evident that many Chesterites look upon the establishment of a Country Club as a play ground, where folks will go to play golf, tennis, and all around. They say it is all right to have a country club, but it is not for those to join who can afford it.

This party may be right in the opinion of a Chester Country Club, but The News does not look at it that way. It is true that to a certain extent it is a playground for the members. It is understood that a golf course will be built, tennis courts furnished, and probably some other things in order that one may sit down in the shade of a magnificent old oak with friends. However, the Chester Club can't expect the members and the citizens of a town would have it.

For instance, there are thousands of men who have made their money and who spend weeks of every year traveling hundreds of miles, for the purpose of getting a tan. Knowing this to be a fact, why could not a Country Club have a large lake, store it with fish, and let the members and the citizens of a town go fishing. These people would spend their money with the hotel, merchants etc., and in that way the country would have a great asset to the town.

Florida to us is mostly a play ground. Take the climate away from Florida, and there would be no attraction there for the thousands who yearly visit the state and spend thousands of dollars.

Why not have your country club at our store—and save that 20 per cent more? A well known Charlotte store sent this message to the Chester people last week in the form of a circular. This Charlotte firm is taking advantage of the situation caused by the passing of the "nuisance tax" by the late legislature of South Carolina.

The News looks upon the organization of a Country Club as an investment. It may be that it will turn out to be a poor investment, but it can be a paying investment—something that will pay dividends, not only to the club, but to the citizens of the town. It costs $100 to join the club, payable $10 a month until paid, and we have been assured that the monthly dues will not be more than $3 a month. Some fellows say they cannot afford to join the club, but they see these same fellows buy an automobile, paying one-third down and the balance over a period of twelve months. When they buy an automobile he immediately assumes an obligation and he has one that will give him a darn sight more fun, $3 a month and an "investment" that stands a poor chance of paying a dividend. By far the greater number of automobiles in use are luxuries and nothing more.

Yes, it will cost much less to be a member of the Country Club than it does to operate a "five year." But you say the country club will be out-of-town and you must have a car in order to enjoy the club. Well, the chances are that you already have a car, and if you have kept an accurate record of the expenditure of the car in connection with the operation of it, you have realized the fact that it is costing you not less than seven cents for every mile you run it. Practically every afternoon you go for a ride. We will say that you average about 400 miles a month. There you have an expenditure of $28 a month. Suppose you were a member of the Country Club and that you visited it 25 days in each month and it was three miles from town. You would spend 45 cents a day, or $13.50 a month getting to and from the club. This added to your monthly club dues would be a total of $13.50, or $13.50 a month. You are already spending that much in the case we fail to see the wisdom in the argument that the Country Club is a rich man's affair.

Chester needs a Country Club. Chester can't operate a Country Club and a Country Club can't be operated in Chester. It is hoped that owing to the urgent need of the contemplated improvements, they will lose no time in getting into action.

Members of council who have given this matter their time and study are to be congratulated and it is hoped that owing to the urgent need of the contemplated improvements, they will lose no time in getting into action.

the man who after a day of honest toiling on the farm, in the factory, in the office, who is tired, who is over his work—can go home and say with a feeling of sad satisfaction: "This home belongs to me." Edward Harrison, a prize among American capitalists, the organizer and builder of the Union Pacific railway company, said: "Can you save? If you can't save you can't succeed. O, the tragedy, the economic tragedy, the moral, mental, and spiritual tragedy crowded into those words of Luke: 'And he spent all.'"

A good citizen is one who is dignified in honest toil, Jesus put the laboring man, and I mean all who do honest work of any kind, over the pleasure seeking man of leisure, when he sought for a living at the carpenter's bench at Nazareth. Paul, the apostle, said: "If any of you will not work, neither shall he eat." The Thessalonians: "For even when we were with you, we used to labor and to toil, as you have seen. If any of you will not work, neither shall he eat." I believe that every one who is able should bear his share of the burden of honest toil. I do not believe that any one who inherits a fortune or makes a fortune, has any special right to sit down upon it and say: "This is mine. I have made it. I will enjoy it." He has and he has the world to amuse him while he takes easy. O, the rich people, the world is full of more than they can furnish pleasure for fashionable resorts of pleasure, constitute one of America's social and economic problems. What shall we do with our idle rich who sit on their money and do nothing? I asked a leading business man in the city of New York, "What effect has the coming of summer tourists brought about?" He replied: "We have been helped financially, but corrupted morally. A great many of our young people are going to Europe, and they are bringing back the latest in European style and Christian citizenship." Work, work, God commanded it and Jesus sanctified it. In a great many cases the only difference between a hobo and a rich person is the hobo beats his way and the rich man has money.

all things; hold fast to that which is good. An open-minded man is one who carefully considers questions and never accepts or brands or teaches a thing as true until it is quite sure that it is true.

A great deal is being said today about academic freedom, a man's right to think as he pleases, he has as his pleasure and teach as he pleases. When I read what some of these champions of free thought have to say I recall a young boyhood days. We were engaged in a game of marbles. Some boys were near. Unfortunately my white tail rolled too near the old drake who picked it up, and swallowed it before I could frighten him away. If that old drake, who had more greed than brains, had taken a few moments to look at the marble, he would have swallowed my white tail rolled too near the old drake who picked it up, and swallowed it before I could frighten him away.

glory of God. He who has not the altruistic, social consciousness, can not adequately acquire with Him who taught and wrought out the divine imaginative of universal brotherhood. Paul, the world citizen, the countless missionary of the cross, said: "I am debtor to all the world; and I live of beautiful, self-sacrificing, selfless love, true to that wonderful conception of faith. 'And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on the face of the earth.'"

PALE, NERVOUS

West Virginia Lady Says That She Was in a Serious Condition, But Is Stronger After Taking Cardui.

Huntington, W. Va.—"I was in a very weak and run-down condition—in fact, was in a serious condition," says Mrs. Fannie C. Ross, of 184 Madison Avenue, this city. "In my left side the pain was very severe. It would start in my back and radiate. Part of the time I was in bed and when I didn't feel like doing anything or going anywhere."

"Life wasn't any pleasure. I was very pale, I was nervous and thin, and so tired all the time. I took two bottles, then I noticed an improvement. I kept on and found I was helping me. I have taken three bottles. Part of the time I have been in a long time."

COMMENCEMENT LAST NIGHT

The commencement exercises of the Chester High school were held in the school auditorium last night, the large auditorium being filled to capacity, which is about 1,000.

The graduating class consisted of twenty-one pupils this year, the largest in the history of the school, and one of the largest high school graduating classes in the state.

The annual program was carried out. The address was made by Dr. D. M. Douglas, President of the Presbyterian College at Clemson.

Dr. Douglas told the young people especially of their privileges and also their obligations. He congratulated Chester on having such a large graduating class and also congratulated the community on having erected such a handsome, high school building.

His message was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd present.

SCHLOSBERG'S Opportunity Event.

In this issue appears a page advertisement of Schlosberg's Department Store. Mr. H. H. Hamilton, the manager, advises us that every item advertised is in stock and will be sold at the price advertised, which is below the regular selling price, some of them being very much lower than others.

It is also stated that all of this merchandise is fresh seasonable merchandise, and the sale is not for the purpose of working off old or shoddy goods.

As the sale is being advertised as an "Opportunity Event," and a newspaper man has the appearance of being along the line used extensively by the larger department stores of the city, it is fitting to be the custom of all up-to-date stores to offer attractive bargains to their customers from time to time, with the view of stimulating trade and making new customers, and those who are adopting this plan of business are forcing to the front.

Mr. H. H. Hamilton recently stated that the main reason the average merchant did not make a success of his business was due to the fact that he endeavored to always make a big profit on his goods and at no time would he offer special bargains to his customers. He stated that the successful merchant of today was the man who went after volume of a small profit, giving his customers the benefit of items he was able to pick up at special prices.

That Schlosberg is offering real bargains is evidenced by the fact that he is offering Straw Hats at one-third off. It is not a cheap way to make reductions in Straw Hats so early in the season and a merchant must be desirous of giving his customers' bargains when he does so early in the season. Read the advertisement thoroughly and if any item in the list is not an advertised regular price, it is not an advertised bargain.
