TUESDAY, JUNE 12.

Almost every one in this neck of the woods is now engaged in the act of telling the farmers how to raise cotton under boll weevil conditions. Every merchant in this section will tell Brother Farmer that he must work his cotton hard and fast; he must continue to cultivate it, disregarding the old practice of "laying-by." In other words, the way to make any cotton at all under these weevil conditions is to go after it. This same merchant who dares out this "dope" to Brother Farmer is sitting around growing about business being dull and that he don't see any use doing this, or doing that, just as if he can make business unless he uses the same tactics in his business that he advises Brother Farmer to do.

The way for the merchant to raise a good crop of business is to go after it, cultivate his business all along; and the best fertilizer we know of is good persistent advertising. Brother Farmer the best time a merchant tells you how to make cotton under boll weevil conditions tell him, for our sake, how to make sales under boll weevil conditions. You cannot make cotton under boll weevil conditions without some hard work. You cannot sell merchandise under boll weevil conditions without some hard work also. Some Chester merchants are letting the grass take their crops. They are expecting business without plowing or without using any fertilizer and when the harvest time comes they are going to find that their crops have been destroyed by the grass.

President Harding is threatened with a severe insurrection. The lack of interest in the Dyer anti-lynching bill has angered colored leaders, and they will make a demonstration tomorrow.

A "monster mass meeting" will be held in Washington tonight to make final arrangements for a picturesque demonstration tomorrow. A silent parade will be the first thing on the schedule. The negroes will follow the example of the Allies at the White House during the Wilson administration. President Harding has been asked to review the "silent parade," the movement of which was started by negro women, telling their people to action the committee in charge says, "hang together or hang separately."

Great Falls News Items

Great Falls, June 12.—The high school's graduating exercises held in the auditorium on the evening of June 8th and 9th, closed a most satisfactory and successful term of the Great Falls school, under the superintendency of Prof. E. H. Hall.

On the evening of the 8th, the high school play was given, entitled "After the Game." This play, which pictured graphically the college spirit as well as sports, and very pleasing to the audience.

The graduating exercises on June 9th, were particularly interesting to the patrons of the school, being the first class to graduate since the consolidation of the schools in Great Falls district. The exercises opened with the invocation by Rev. J. E. Brown. The class numbered eight: Thompson Jackson, president; Robert Jordan, who delivered the address of welcome; Marie Linmer, class historian; Emma Anderson who read the class poetry; Kathleen Hollis, the class wail; and Kate Johnston, the class poem. Oscar Funderburg was the valedictorian. After listening to the program as rendered by the above named young ladies and young men, it was easy to appreciate the statement that the entire class had averaged 90 per cent and above for the year.

Dr. F. H. Martin, of Florence, delivered a very interesting and fervent lecture to the class on the theme being "Building a Hope with Eight Rooms."

Four medals are given each year to the high school students two for debate and two for declamation. Mrs. H. B. McNamee presented the medals, with very happy and fitting remarks, to Kate Johnston and Robert Funderburg, for debate, and to Louise Gibson and Palmer Mahaffey for declamation.

Every phase of the program was interesting, all interspersed with music by Miss Bleska Beangard and the interest and appreciation of the people of Great Falls in her school was manifested by a packed audience for each program.

Mrs. W. B. Fort entertained the teachers informally Friday afternoon from four to five, at her home on Bangsford street. A delicious salad and ice cream was served. "Enjoying Mrs. Fort's hospitality, silent parade will be the first thing on the schedule. The negroes will ter, Eunice Oliver, Ida Young, Julia Setzler, Maude Baldwin, Lucile Foster and Pauline Smith. Mr. and Mrs. R. S. McNamee and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McNamee gave a delightful swimming party at their home Thursday afternoon, their guests including friends from Rock Hill, Chester and Great Falls. Lunch served on the lawn and the occasion was a happy one to every one who attended.

The out-of-town members of the Great Falls school faculty left Friday and Saturday for their respective homes: Misses Vera and Luis McCreer, Early Branch, Margaret Carpenter, Leatrice Julia Setzler and Ida Young, Pomaria; Pauline Smith, Leesville; Eleanor Halliday, Rock Hill; Leatrice Julia Setzler, Blakesburg; Beaumont, Clover; Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Columbia; Mr. W. P. Lyster, Lancaster and Mr. Seane near Columbia.

Mrs. Wallace, supervisor of the primary department, will return to Great Falls for the summer vacation to take up community of juvenile work in the village, until the opening of school when she will resume her supervisory work in the school.

Miss Jennie McLaughlin, the popular milliner for Seppie Mill Stores, is out again after several days illness.

CHICKENS PROVE BIG CASH CROP

Moultrie, Ga., June 10.—Colquitt County farmers in one day sold to Swift & Company more than 800 chickens, principally fliers. This gives an idea of the remarkable growth of the poultry industry in this section recently as there are other big buyers here besides the packers.

It is believed that the raising of chickens will become such a big business in this territory that Swift & Company soon will establish a killing station and will buy poultry, dress it and sell it on the market. They will buy poultry direct from the farmers or dealers, and will pay good prices at all seasons, taking all that comes in, in case the killing station is established, and it is practically certain that it will be.

One of the problems of the poultry business in Georgia has been too easily glutted. There will be no possibility of reducing the poultry business when the killing plant is put in. Already Swift & Company have been handling it with their present equipment, but the packers look for such a large increase in production that it will be necessary to install a $50,000 plant, separate from the main packing plant, to handle it.

Other counties in this section are getting interested in the poultry industry. Recently a solid car of chickens was sold at a co-operative sale at Camilla. Another will be sold there on June 20, and Spilator will stage a similar sale on the same day. The car sold at Camilla was the first car of live chickens ever shipped to Moultrie. Six cars of hogs came in on the same train.

Thousands of fish DYING ON COAST

Washed Up on North Carolina Beaches Over Strutch of Twenty Miles.

Wilmington, N. C., June 8.—Thousands of fish, ranging in size from one inch bottom feeders to five foot sharks, are dying along the Pender coast, and are being washed up on the beaches over a stretch of 20 miles. Dr. J. H. Hamilton, county health officer, viewed the fish today, and immediately wired the government fisheries bureau, asking that experts be sent here to investigate.

Dr. Hamilton advanced the opinion that the fish were killed by lightning during the severe electrical storms of the past few days.

A local ecologist advanced the opinion that an oil gusher or subterranean earthquake is responsible for the catastrophe. He cited the instance of tons of dead fish appearing on the surface of the sea immediately after the Charleston earthquake about 15 years ago.

Local health authorities have taken prompt action to prevent the sale of fish caught within a hundred miles of the scene.

Past dairy cows that are lean producers should be sent to market.

"THE SLAVE THAT."

SAVED ST. MICHAEL'S.

Argued Stannish News for June reprints from the Outlook, an interesting sketch, concerning Charleston under the caption "The Slave That Saved St. Michael's."

The sketch follows: "Even before the Civil War there were half a million 'free people of color' in the United States."

"Frequently a master allowed a very efficient or favored slave to take charge of himself. Such a man, usually skilled in his trade, would hire himself out, paying his master a stated sum each year and keeping the rest for himself. In this way not infrequently slaves saved enough to buy themselves; and sometimes they were able to buy their wives and children too. Many were set free because their masters did not believe in slavery. George Washington will provide that all his slaves should be set free at his wife's death; but Mrs. Washington, who are told, as soon as she learned of this provision, insisted on their being set free at once. Some masters, like John Randolph, of Virginia, not only set their slaves free, but bequeathed money to buy land for them in a free state and to transport them thither. In this way several progenies of freed slaves were planted in the Middle West."

"Some slaves were set free in gratitude or affection, after especially faithful service. A few were their freedom by some deed of courage or sacrifice. There is the famous story of a slave who saved St. Michael's South Carolina, who saved St. Michael's from the flames. This quaint and ancient Episcopal Church, once the oldest in the country, whose bricks were brought from England in colonial times, and in which many of the state's most distinguished men have worshipped, is due to all South Carolinians, regardless of church connections. The story goes that a fire which swept a whole section of the city was stayed by herculean effort before it reached the church. Just as the flames were about to take a great gust of wind blew a bit of burning timber high against the old wooden steeple, where it caught and lodged. A groan went up from the crowd. The church seemed doomed for human hands could not reach that dangerous peak. The people stood in silent horror, watching. Suddenly from a little window on the side of the steeple appeared a man, who began to climb up towards the brand. They looked every second to see him fall to his death; he was attempting the impossible. Yet as if by miracle he went on higher and higher he crept. At last he reached and seized the brand and flung it clear of the beloved building, down to the church yard, harmless. A great shout went up, to be still instantly. Could he possibly come down safe? Must he live with his life for the church? They watched breathless, till he reached the window again and disappeared inside. Who was he? They searched one another's faces to see which of their avowed companions was absent, turned here in an hour. And then the church door opened—and a negro slave came out. The story says—heard it long ago as a child and afterwards in Charleston, at the foot of the tower stairs from the old sexton—the story says that when he stepped onto Charleston gasped for a moment, and then it cheered! And the mayor came forward and caught the black man's hand; and after the mayor came the crowd. The slave's master was among them; and then there he gave him the freedom he had so bravely earned."

Japan has a "Yellow Menace" as well as California and other Pacific coast states. During and after the war boom, Japanese employers imported coolies and operatives from Japan and China to work in their textile mills, mines and steel mills. Now the native Japanese workers consider the presence of this alien labor a grievance and their attitude toward these invaders is the same as the attitude of white labor on the Pacific coast toward the Japanese. Because of the California question the Japanese find it difficult to handle this matter as the cases are considered identical.

FINISH BUSINESS.
We are pleased to note that 83 carloads of members, representing a total of $12,600 have been shipped from Valdosta this season. This shows that the people of South Georgia have great vision and are knocking the boll weevil into a cocked hat. We can imagine neither decreasing, and collecting than the culture of the charming and incomparable cucumber.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Wylie Moore entertained a few friends at dinner at the Myers Park club last evening in honor of their guests, Miss Leroy Walshaw, of Camp Briggs, and sister, Miss Inez Walshaw, of Nones, Alaska—Charlotte Observer Saturday.

Considerable excitement was created Sunday afternoon about twenty o'clock when screams were heard coming from the county jail. Immediately a crowd began to assemble and it was found that the two white women who were placed in the jail some time ago, mention of which was made in The News, had disagreed and a warm fight was the result. The chief warden, who was on duty, was called in and the women were separated. The fight was not serious and the women were released. The fight was the result of a disagreement over a small matter. The women were released and the fight was not serious.

Fortunately there was only one person in the building at the time, and he had just a moment before the accident left the room in which the boiler exploded. If any one had been in the room, they would have had a slim chance of escaping personal injury as the explosion shattered the walls and split several necks.

Some say, the little town in the Isle of Man, still retains the chief as strong of voice and bell as ever.

Infant Fought Yesterday

While sailing in Sandy river, a few hundred feet above the city water works dam, yesterday about two boys found the body of an infant girl securely tied in a cement sack to which a rock had been fastened. For the purpose of sinking the body.

Sheriff Anderson and Coroner Gladden were notified and yesterday afternoon an autopsy was performed by Dr. H. B. Malone. It is stated that the condition of the little body would indicate that it had been in the stream for a couple of weeks.

The skull was crushed and there is considerable speculation as to whether this was done before the infant was placed in the stream or whether it happened afterward. The stream was very high last week and it is possible that the infant was placed a considerable distance above the point at which it was found and during the high water it could have washed down stream, and may be that the skull was crushed in this manner.

Officers have been working on the case but up to the present time have no clue upon which to investigate.

MUCH WATER DAMAGING EASTERN COUNTY CROPS

Kinston, N. C., June 11.—Additional rains have made the crop situation in this section the gravest in years, while farmers today feared further precipitation. Some localities today reported losses averaging more than one-third; others may suffer damage totaling 50 per cent. The electrical storms of the past week have been more numerous and severe than in years. Instances of stock being killed by bolts were reported. Fields were deep in water today, following a third heavy deluge within a week, together with a number of showers of ground-soaking proportions. Emergency drainage measures availed little, and the farming community turned helplessly to the weather man for relief, which the latter seemed loathe to grant.

FARM FEDERATION O. K.'s HARRIS WAREHOUSE BILL

Washington, D. C., June 10.—Approval of the bill of Senator Harris, of Georgia, to amend the Federal warehouse act to broaden the provisions for all agricultural products, was given Saturday by the American Farm Bureau Federation through its Washington representative, Gray Silver, in a letter to Senator Harris.

Mr. Silver said: "Your bill is of very great interest to the Farm Bureau, for the amendments which you suggest are necessary to a proper functioning of the warehousing and marketing of our commodities. I shall be very glad to help in any way I can the amendment and passage of your bill."

The Harris bill has passed the Senate and is now pending before the House committee on agriculture. Senator Harris has asked the House committee chairman for early consideration of the bill.

NEGRO RUNS AMUCK KILLS TWO, IS MOBBED

Philadelphia, Pa.—A lynching was narrowly averted here Saturday night when detectives, police and soldiers struck and instantly killed Glenn, a negro who ran amuck in South Philadelphia, from the hands of a frenzied mob.

Glenn ran through the streets shooting after he had been taunted by a group of children. One of the soldiers struck and instantly killed Bernardino Lamin and another fatally wounded Mrs. Ross Salom. Glenn was taken from two detectives and three policemen by a mob that tried to hang him to a lamp post, but was rescued by the coming of the reserves. He was so badly beaten up, however, that his chances of recovery were considered small.
