THE EASIEST WAY.

By Dr. Frank Crane.

An inmate of a state prison writes me that he is to take part in a debate on the subject: "Resolved, That America is hypocritical, and American profiteers and that America is for the capitalists only." He wishes me to give him some ideas upon the subject.

Ordinary sane business is the only sane mind of course the very statement of the question is absurd.

The majority of Americans are not hypocrites, profiteers, nor capitalists. Neither are they inhuman and Sunday school superintendents.

They are human beings. As such they will run good and bad, the same as the average scope of human beings in any other country. Perhaps a little better.

There are two kinds of statements which you may well doubt. One kind is the statement that any group of people are all good; the other, that they are all bad.

The poison element of the resolution that is to be debated in the state prison however is the intimation typical in America. That such persons that the hypocrites and profiteers are sons of God exist beyond doubt. But that they are exceptions and not the rule.

The average American is honest and wants to do the fair thing. Precisely as the average woman everywhere is decent.

The small mind when it gets overheated is apt to read its own ideas into the world. The man who has been betrayed by a woman thinks all women treacherous. If he has been swindled by a church member, he jumps to the conclusion that all church members are rascals. If he has been browbeaten by an employer, he concludes that all employers are tyrants. If he has been overcharged by a grocer, he assumes that all grocers are thieves.

This is not logic. It is a mild and common form of insanity.

Another statement in the resolution is that America is a capitalist country only. The absurdity of this, of course, is apparent to the average person.

For those who are below the average, it may be stated that the thing called "capitalism" is a good deal of a bugaboo.

The capital of the United States is not owned by a few rich men. It is made up of the savings of very many men in moderate circumstances.

Capital is a blessing. Without it there could be no civilization. The object of thrift is to make capital. The aim of every working man should be to become a capitalist. Whoever has saved a dollar and put it in the savings bank is a capitalist. Every healthy man is able to earn more than he consumes. If he saves his surplus and makes it work for him, he is a capitalist. And it is this surplus that makes the property of the country. Those in charge of the finances of great business sometimes do wrong; but, as a rule, they are quite as straight, as honest, and as public-minded as the man who works for three dollars a day.

Perhaps more so. For their position and their responsibilities enable them to see better the advantages of co-operation.

In conclusion, it may be stated that in all probability the inmates of the state prison are very much like the people of the outside. Some are bad and some are good.

CAN WHISKEY BE TRANS- PORTED VIA PULLMAN ROUTE.

Circuit Court of Appeals Will Pass on Case Instituted at Dillon.

Columbia, July 7.—An interesting case, involving the transportation of whiskey on a Pullman car from one state to another, is to be argued before the United States circuit court of appeals, which begins its summer sitting in Asheville Wednesday, the case being that of Henry J. Freyer, a Pullman car porter, plaintiff in error, against the United States Judge H. A. M. Smith, of Charleston, passed through Columbia Tuesday afternoon by his way to Asheville to sit on the court, though Judge Smith will not sit on the Freyer case, this having been argued before him in the district court.

Freyer was arrested at Dillon on October 10, 1918, by Constable W. C. Richberger, a state constable, and was charged with transporting liquor. Freyer was a porter on a Pullman car between New York and Tampa, Fla. The constable discovered some of the evidence against Freyer in the Pullman line closet, and a suit case containing twenty quarts was found under one of the Pullman seats. Still other bottles were found in the smoking room.

A verdict was found in the district court against Freyer, but the case was appealed on the ground that the liquor was being transported to another state, and that South Carolina was not its destination, and that he did not have any interest in it. The case in the United States district court was tried in Columbia. J. Walter Waring, assistant United States District Attorney, will argue the government's case in Asheville.

Youth, Today and Yesterday.

We are told that human nature changes very little from one generation to the other, and, basing our belief upon that fact, we can well understand that it has become a fixed habit with most middle-aged persons to disparage the conduct of the boys and girls of their time. We know how it is today, and how tempting it is to shake our heads and speak ruefully of the youngsters who for some reason do not act as we think they should. Perhaps if we, looking back to our own youthful days, we can easily recall being preached to by our elders on very much the same lines that we use in our sermons to the boys and girls of today. True it is that the youth of the present generation are by reason of the trend of the times far more independent and advanced in the ways of the world than their fathers and mothers were before them at the same age, but in spite of the forward spirit so commonly displayed it is not fair that we should condemn them without cause and often without justification. They are merely products of the time, and no one can question that the times are pretty well advanced. But at heart, notwithstanding their many failings as we see the latter we may rest assured that the young people are sound and not so very different from other young people of other days and generations.

The story is told of a high church official who said that "before the war he had prepared a sermon of warning and rebuke to the irresponsible youth of his church. But the war came on, and he never delivered the sermon. The warning would have been out of place to those splendid young patriots who volunteered for foreign service for humanity's sake." We recall here in our own part of the country the doublets that were harbored in the hearts of some persons who did not believe that the young men, the boys just turned into manhood, would be willing to accept the high responsibilities placed upon them by the war. We recall also with a thrill of pride how these doublets were dispelled when our boys found themselves in the fray with all the ardor of their youth. Many of them had never known the meaning of responsibility, but the tragic war days changed many of our young braves, as we knew them, into men of action eager to do their part. The fox-trotter and the bridge hand dropped their frivolous and selfish so only brave men can into the hard training and discipline exacted of them. There was no doubt that after that upon the ability of the youngsters of six years ago to shoulder their responsibilities, and today with the grim realities of war but specters of the brain we must not begrudge them the careless hours of golden youth.

The boys who have grown up since the war, those especially who were not called upon to enter the service, are doing very much as their older brothers did before them. Why should we worry at the levity about us as long as that levity is within bounds when we know from such recent experience that the calls of tomorrow will be heard? Experience shows that somehow the irresponsibility of the present is always able to take up the cares and responsibilities of the future; he will put his shoulder to the wheel and do his part just as his predecessors have always done. The harm, scarum girls and boys of today had their prototypes in older generations even though the older folks may not be quite willing to admit the fact. To be sure, the wisdom was expressed in a different way perhaps, but that is merely because environment and the trend of the times exert so important an influence upon the growing youth. Only the other day a writer upon the subject declared that "the average of responsibility is just as high as it ever was," and if this be the case, and we have no just reason to doubt it, those of us who are anxious about the future of the care-free children of today may quiet our fears and preserve an even balance. Responsibility is always a check to wild spirits and forward actions, and the boys and girls who displease most by their general conduct in the careless hours of effervescent youth often prove towers of strength when the test comes.

We may have good reason to deplore the lower standards of today which permit conditions impossible in an older, and, some hold, a better period of existence, and to know that it is our duty to remedy such conditions and safeguard our boys and girls as far as possible, but on the other hand, we must leave something to the character and training of the young people themselves. The burdens carried now by the older generation must, as a matter of course, be shifted to younger shoulders in time. It may be that the latter will bear them better than we have done.

MEREDITH SAYS AMERICA IS FACE TO FACE WITH FAMINE IN FOOD STUFFS.

San Francisco, July 7.—America is in serious danger of a food shortage, according to Secretary Meredith of the Department of Agriculture. The nation is short some 4,000,000 laborers as the result of the war and the demand for manufactured goods. Hundreds of thousands of acres are not being planted, because the farmers cannot compete with the cities for labor at the prevailing prices of produce.

"The farms of the nation are running about 72 per cent normal because of the farm labor shortage."

Not only is there 30 per cent shortage in the supply of hired farm labor but work is hindered because of the late spring.

These are the solemn facts presented by the best informed man in the United States today. Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith, publisher of farm journals and a deep student of economic problems relating to production.

Secretary Meredith came to California in connection with his candidacy for president, but his plain talk before big groups of business men here have made a profound impression regardless of any political significance.

"What can we do to help the farmer?" asked the big manufacturer, realizing that not only their prosperity but the nation's soundness depends on the farmer's ability to produce.

Here in brief is Secretary Meredith's answer:

"First. Help the Department of Agriculture. Congress curtailed our work $2,000,000 this year, in spite of our savings amounting to $1,000,000,000 in animal diseases, new methods, and research."

"Second. Reduce the demands for the products of city labor, so the farmer can have the labor. It is better to wear our old clothes than be short of food next winter or the winter following."

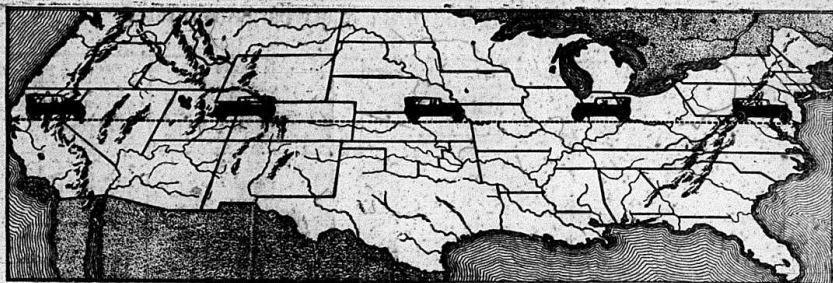

"Third. Help reduce the cost of distribution. If six men out of every ten are busy distributing what the other four produce then each of the ten can only have four-tenths of what each produces. This applies to the 110,000,000 people in the United States and it means that it's every man's business to see that there be no drains in his life, and that, as many as possible be put to producing."

"The cities outside the packing centers have enough meat in their limits for perhaps four days. Flour for a few weeks, and fruit and vegetables for one day. You can see how vitally the welfare of the farmer affects the city dweller, and how soon a shortage of production on the farm will begin to pinch the pot in the kitchen."

5 Times Across the Continent On One Set of Tires

Cole Aero-EIGHTS! Average! More Than 15,000 Miles on Original Tire Equipment Besides Increasing Gasoline Mileage 50% for Cars of Their Capacity and Power

Tires never have to be taken into consideration by the owner of a Cole Aero-EIGHT. The original equipment outlasts every expectation. That is one reason for the extremely slow depreciation of the Aero-EIGHT. Its remarkable economy in the use of tires and fuel and the sturdy dependability and continuous improvement of the mechanism with use cause it to gain in service and utility as time goes on. It retains its original value indefinitely.

The Cole Aero-EIGHT was, the first car to negotiate uniformly under all conditions of travel upwards of 15,000 miles on tires—5 times the distance across continent on its original castings. Besides, it affords fully 50% more mileage per gallon of gasoline than is ever expected of a car of its capacity and power. Owners of Cole Aero-EIGHTs understand the significance of aero-type construction as it is revealed to them in the performance of their cars.

Miles Per Gallon of Gasoline Under Ordinary Conditions of Travel.
Cole Aero-EIGHT Tourer, driven by F. C. Lyons from Baltimore, Md., to Indianapolis, Ind., 16.5 m.p.g.
Test run through traffic on main road, gallon of fuel at Indianapolis, Tenn., showed net savings as by H.C. Rogers, member of staff Memphis, Tenn., 19.8 m.p.g.
Official record of Cole Aero-EIGHT set in Angeles to Yosemite Highway Run finished with perfect score. Distance 264.6 mi. Gasoline mileage 17.8 m.p.g.
Through snow drifts, mud and generally bad roads from Feb. 19 to Feb. 22, on tour from Los Angeles, to Spokane, Wash., in winter. Eight covered and driven by Carl Phillips, Spokane, Wash. Distance 435 miles. Gasoline mileage 15.5 m.p.g.

We will take pleasure in explaining the advanced features of construction embodied in the Cole Aero-EIGHT and to point out its many exclusive improvements.

The county memorial hospital, of Abbeville, opened its doors to patients on July first, which the Abbeville Press and Banner says should be a red letter day in the history of Abbeville county.

In concluding the article with reference to the opening of the hospital the Press and Banner says: "Dr. Nardin, an ear, eye, nose and throat specialist of Anderson, Dr. Robt. Abley, Dr. Thomas and Dr. Rakestraw, of Chester, were the visiting doctors who attended the opening exercises. Dr. Rakestraw has been secured to do the major surgical work for the hospital and just how well he appeared qualified for the work was expressed at the exercises yesterday by a small boy of the city to whom the doctor was pointed out as being the man who would handle all the various knives, saws, hatchets, shapers, etc., which were on display in the operating room to remind you that you were in an ambulance palace. This lad with his hands in the pockets of his khaki trousers gave Dr. Rakestraw a thorough inspection from head to foot and then calmly and seriously remarked, 'He ought to be a good operator, he looks like a butcher.'"

COAL PRIORITY

Business Declared to Be Threatened With Destruction—Representatives of Industries Ask I. C. Commission to Modify Coal Shortage Order.

Washington, July 8.—Declaring their business to be threatened with destruction, representatives of nearly a dozen industries today asked the interstate commerce commission to revoke or modify its order requiring railroads to accord preference to coal mines east of the Mississippi river in the assignment of open hop cars.

Speaker after speaker, at the commission's open hearing on the order, declared his business was being thrown out of work unless the order was rescinded or modified. There were no indications, however, that the commission would make any change in the order, which was issued two weeks ago for the purpose of relieving coal shortages throughout the country.

Industries protesting against the order included those manufacturing or dealing in crushed stone, cement, sand, gravel and lime, and also general building contractors. The testimony of their representatives, the commission heard Daniel Willard, chairman of the advisory committee of the Association of Railway Executives, who declared that priority service favoring the more essential commodities was necessary to relieve the present freight congestion. No suggestion for the modification of the order was made by Mr. Willard who, on the contrary, urged cooperation between shippers and local car agents' committees for shipment of freight on the return movement of the cars to the mines.

Mr. Willard, however, told the commission that he did not believe it would be necessary to "wholly curtail the movement of any particular kind" of business. He suggested that shippers seek to eliminate delays in car movement, that they load the cars to the maximum capacity, and that they forego the re-shipment of cars. The problem is complicated, said Mr. Willard, to make available sufficient equipment more effective.

FOR COUNTY DIRECTOR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of County Director, subject to the result of the Democratic primary, and will appreciate the support of the voters of Chester county.

Hammed in Environment.

is a self-evident truth that unless a person travels or at least finds himself in conditions where through intercourse with men from other sections of the country, he is very likely to become narrow in his attitude toward life. As he continues to revolve in a more or less restricted circle he will naturally wear into those circles which will give him a very narrow and limited outlook. He must get out of his shell of going the same round the same monotonous way day after day no matter how disciplined he may be to do this just at first. If he gives himself time to think he will find that his narrowness of view is the same (some routine of duty) and all pleasures cannot develop that it is him. He must reach at times into other fields and give his soul the opportunity to expand and his mind the chance to stretch itself with refreshing benefit to it. It may well be argued by certain men who have for years been engaged in the study of the history of their people that the conditions of their lives do not permit them to take chances with themselves. They argue that they have to do as they please, but that they require constant attention, and that to leave their work even for a short time would play havoc with their work. They never think that by giving themselves a chance to get out of their narrow environment and to have something of the spirit and the life that characterize others that they would be worth more both to themselves and to their employer. It is the forward look that counts and that is impossible of achievement unless one has had the opportunity to "experiment" a little in the outside world. Monotonous routine seldom, if ever, inspires a man to big deeds. The very nature of his work probably and certainly the manner in which he believes that he is compelled to perform it, restrict his vision and as soon finds himself in the somewhat embarrassing position of being cut off from the world which he is supposed to be a factor.

Hammed in environment affords few persons the chance to progress. Perhaps now and then some rare soul is able to push through the barriers into daylight, but the majority merely exist in hopes of a better day. There are men in our community today, we venture to say, who seldom, if ever, permit themselves the luxury of even a short holiday of the kind they so much need. They may be where they have the chance to rest and relax and in this way to gain a new lease on their physical health. That this is not to be despised is unquestionable, because good health, after all, the foundation upon which most of our life is built. But, such men are in more need, even if they do not realize it, of mental relaxation as much as they are of physical such relaxation, in fact, shall take their minds far away from their work and the more or less hard conditions of their lives. They need new environments, new viewpoints, new ideas, new lines of thought, new hopes, new ambitions. Such are not to be obtained simply by a short rest away from the desk, but are found mainly in the large centers of the country where conditions differ widely from those at home, where business methods, and business results point the way out of the wilderness of "self acknowledged defeat," and where people play a hand at their play as they work hard at their work. A man, however, who has followed the same deadly routine for years is likely to have his convictions too deeply rooted to transplant into new ground, but even so there is one quality that rarely dies in his breast, and that is his love of adventure. Why, then, do not men, regardless of their condition, take the dare just for the spirit of the thing and fare forth during some holiday period with their determination to gain, newer, and broader outlooks upon life? It will not be like hunting for the pot of gold; they will get some return for their efforts, a return, indeed, that may serve them in good stead at perhaps a not too distant future.

We may not always be able to provide hammed-in environments for a certain time, but the man of action, the man with brains and nerve and the desire to get ahead with push behind him, after a while and come out into the twisted, bigger life that is to be had. As he comes back bringing with him something of the spirit that sways men in other conditions of life and makes them do big things and live big lives he will help in no small way to widen the horizon for those he left behind. At least his efforts will not be in vain, for he will have outgrown his own narrowness of spirit and of view point, and to that extent at least widened a better influence upon his times.

The Wonderful Soil Improver

Sow it in your corn and cotton at the last working, and next year you can plant these two crops on the same land and make big money. It is considered worth $20 to $30 per acre in increased production and improved mechanical condition of the soil.

The Hot Hustler Racket

D. E. ESTES, Prop.

Killed at Hickory Grove.
Edward Childers, while, was killed on the streets of Hickory Grove last Saturday evening by a negro named Mitchell Meek. The killing was done with a pistol wrested from the hand of Policeman Lanier and Meek made his escape by threatening with the pistol "he was thought to follow."
It appears that there had been complaint against Meek for carrying a pistol, and when he showed up in Hickory Grove last Saturday, Policeman Lanier undertook to investigate the charge by putting him under arrest. Meek claimed that he did not have any pistol, and declared that he would not be searched. Policeman Lanier seized hold of him and when Meek offered resistance, Childers came to the aid of the policeman by seizing the negro by the leg. In the struggle Policeman Lanier struck Meek with his billy, and as he drew his pistol out of his pocket with his left hand, Meek by a quick move, got hold of the weapon and shot Childers.

After the shooting the negro, with a threatening flourish of the pistol, began to run and was getting away unmolested until Constable Moffatt McKnight emerged from a store and began shouting at him. Then, the negro stopped and returned the fire, which continued until both weapons were empty, and after which Meek continued on up the street in the direction of Blacksburg, with a number of people following, but a little reluctant to close in for fear of the other pistol that he was supposed to have acquired.
