ALLIES TO HELP HUNT SPIES

Secret Service Men From Abroad Here—Must Have United Work—Motorists, German Agents at Large in This Country, Cargy Secret Mail.

Washington, July 5.—More complete and efficient co-operation of United States Secret Service agents with those of European allies is recognized as the great problem that must be met in stamping out the spy ring.

While it was said today that operatives of the State, War Navy, and Justice Departments are co-operating with good results in running down active enemy agents, it was strongly indicated that much remained to be accomplished in a month. Long lines of people stand outside the stores waiting to buy coffee may already be seen.

The government has already taken extraordinary measures to deal with extensive unemployment, which is considered inevitable if the war lasts another winter and it becomes impossible to import needed commodities. In view of the situation in some quarters that Sweden's imports were not intended solely for the benefit of the United States, the press asked here B. T. Ryde, formerly minister of foreign affairs and now president of the Government War Trade Commission, for a statement. He said:

"Official statistics of Sweden's imports for 1916, which are now nearly complete, compared with the last normal year, and in many instances where our imports from the United States have been increased, the deficit caused by the decrease of total disbursements of our products to Germany, this year will not stand the test of examination."

"A paper recently declared that exports to Scandinavia and Switzerland rose from $115,000,000 in 1913 to $183,000,000 in 1916. Leading American papers have published similar statistics and asserted that the increase was largely due to the fact that Sweden had been exporting to Germany. This assertion will not stand the test of examination."

"The attacks upon American transports were the result of the war of spies is accepted generally in Washington without surprise. The salient of transportation is mentioned by the newspapers, was known to a large number of persons who witnessed the transportations from mobilization points in the United States to their departure aboard the ships. The ease with which information is transmitted is a fact that commercial measures to neutralize have offered little curtailment from Federal supervision. An attempt looking back, dispatch to a Dutch merchant might easily carry news of vast importance to the German."

Officials are inclined to discount theories of spies working in the government departments. Informants of direct value known to only a few trusted officials. Suspected individuals have been subjected to strict surveillance and information from public source among this class have been frequent.

Denials were general today that work of United States Secret Service operatives had caused disunion in the Cabinet. It was asserted that for some time the secret service had been working in complete harmony and accord.

LIFTS BAN ON AMERICANS

Germany Place Citizens of U. S. on Same Footing as Neutrals.

Berlin, via London July 5.—Virtually all restrictions and regulations to which American citizens resident in Germany have been subjected are removed through an agreement reached between the German Foreign Office and the military and police authorities. The agreement exempts citizens of the United States from reporting to the police and from observing the hours fixed for outdoor movements.

American citizens hereafter will be permitted to travel about Germany without being called upon to go through the laborious and slow-moving routine which has been the lot of the American citizen. The new agreement virtually places Americans on the same footing as neutrals, only such persons as are considered suspicious being excluded from the new privileges.

Chicago With Leaving Down Flag

Winnington, Del. July 5.—Aldrich Cordes, was today charged with leaving down and insulting an American flag. He was arrested by police.

It was alleged that he was in a building and was in a way. Cordes had been badly beaten. The Court said the facts had been established and the defendant was to be held for trial.

NEUTRALS MUCH WORRIED

Talk of Cutting Food Exports A Grave Situation.

Stockholm, July 6.—Washington advices of the last few days forecasting the sharp limitation or possible discontinuance of all exports to neutrals, caused anxiety in government circles and among the people generally. The situation is already grave and the prospect, pictured by news from America, renders it still more disquieting.

Provisions, it is to be expected, many factories in various lines are closed by lack of raw material. Others cannot continue production much longer. Bontine and peacocks make monthly exhibition. Leather is scarce and so dear that pair of ordinary shoes cost from $10 to $12. Automobile tires bring $400 apiece. The cost of living is steadily increasing. The stocks of coffee in the Kingdom will be exhausted in a month. Long lines of people stand outside the stores waiting to buy coffee may already be seen.

The government has already taken extraordinary measures to deal with extensive unemployment, which is considered inevitable if the war lasts another winter and it becomes impossible to import needed commodities. SHOCKED BY LIGHTNING

Two Lads Almost Electrocutd When Electric Light Bulb Felt Into Bath-Tub in Which Boys Were.

Union, July 6th.—Arthur Meyers, 13-year-old of the weaver room, and Boy Greer, 14-year-old son of Mr. E. Greer, superintendent of the weaver room, were today being sent to the hospital after being shocked and considerably burned and dazed, was not rendered unconscious. Young Meyers was found unconscious and up to several hours after his rescue, had not regained consciousness. The lads are next door neighbors, and were in the home of Sept. Greer, when the accident happened. Greer fears were entertained for the recovery of young Meyers, but some hours after the accident he regained consciousness and his recovery is now very probable.

CELLS PREPARED FOR SUFFRAGISTS; WONT PAY FINES

Washington, July 6.—Eleven of the suffragettes who staged the Fourth of July demonstration in front of the White House tonight are occupying cells in the District Jail. They will remain for three days, having refused to pay the fines of $25 each imposed in police court today by Judge Mulhoney.

Superintendent Zinkham prepared in advance for the prisoners who were expected to be sent to the jail. The cells were crowded and there was no delay in accommodating the militants. Eleven cells had been placed on the little iron cots and new linens placed ready for the use of the suffragettes. While the matrons offered to waive the bail which is preliminary to the locking up of all prisoners, the militants were glad to take advantage of the cold-plunge after their long day in the streets.

TUESDAY, JULY 10.

There are now in our midst thousands of persons of American citizenship engaged in the publication in almost every important center in the United States of German newspapers which uphold in diverse ways the activities with which we are now at war, defending its worst practices and defaming our Allies; and there are also tens of thousands of American citizens, who buy such sheets and derive their ideas from them; while still a larger number are still promoting plots and intrigues intended to further German ends. How long will this be allowed?

The Mayor of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is coming in for a considerable amount of criticism due to the manner in which he has handled the listing of those who are suspected for the new army. This is a serious matter, and it is to be expected that some of the "friends" of some of those who are liable to conscription, on the exemption board, with the possible intention of placing them in a position where they will be able to evade the conscription. It really appears that the Mayor of this city is playing politics from beginning to end. However, business is picking up around his place of abode and we certainly hope the searchlight will be turned on the gentleman good and strong. A man who would make "political" out of the men who are to fight the battles of the country is not serving in the respect of a common-good.

The news that the government expects to commence the construction of 22,000 fighting air planes immediately should be received with pleasure by every American. Our government also expects to begin the immediate training of 100,000 aviators. Would that it were 1,000,000.

From press notices it appears that France and Great Britain together have established a "superior" in the air on the western battle front. They possibly can continue to produce planes and soldiers faster than Germany. However, their superiority of the air seems to be by a close margin. As we sit in the United States we have the opportunity of seeing the air war, and it is to be hoped that our government will be in favor of a resistance force of battle, and destruction from the air. Not only the German women and children to vacate the towns and cities and turn the airplanes loose, but positive instructions to end the war within ten days.

In a recent issue of the Philadelphia Ledger there appeared an editorial in which complaint was made of certain "unpleasant" conditions in certain sections of Philadelphia. In Friday's issue of the Ledger a communication appeared from a citizen, with reference to the editorial. One particular paragraph in the citizen's article struck us very forcibly and it is those Yankees who contend that the Southern people do not pay the negro labor enough money. We study this paragraph carefully (it would certainly follow why the negro does not receive more for his labor). The paragraph follows:

"On Monday morning about 8 o'clock I was coming down Samson street between Juniper and Third streets and one of the city's high schoolers was collecting the contents of barrels and other receptacles. The truck was on the south side of Samson street and the negro students picked up barrels, etc., on the north side of the street, stepping them through the air to the wagon. Thus some one-half ton of trash was being thrown away. The contents in the street raised a cloud of dust. This the wind scattered over every one passing. The contents of the barrels were in the street. The attention should

TELLS WHY HE NAMED KNISLEY FOR ANNAPOLIS

Congressman, Whaley, in Statement Explained Appointment of Charleston Boy.

Washington, July 7.—When his attention was called today to publications regarding the appointment of Andrew Ward Knisley of Charleston, to the Annapolis Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., first by former Representative McKelvie, of the Fifth district, and then by himself, Congressman Richard S. Whaley made the following statement when asked if he had anything to say:

"I had given the appointment to a young man and he declined it on the 12th of June by wire. The 13th of June was the last day on which the appointment could be sent in to the department for this entrance examination. The young man, Knisley, had been notified to report at the academy on the 13th of June. He had written me some time before asking for an appointment when I did not have one which I could give him. He had every reason to believe that the designation which he had as an alternate was bona fide. He had gone to a preparatory school and studied hard. He had passed the entrance examination, stood them, and successfully passed them. I found that he was a Charleston boy and that I had this appointment available. I was unwilling to disappoint him in his life ambition. Therefore, I gave him the appointment. I had been informed that the young man had declined it. He was a resident of Charleston, but it is understood that young men are appointed to the United States Naval Academy who do not reside and have no home in the district or State from which they get their appointment, and the department overlooks this in order to have the vacancies filled. Doubtless young Knisley knew or had been informed by word of mouth that he had confidence, when in turn had gained their knowledge from the department, that this course was customary and recognized. I believe the young man was really of no moral turpitude, and will make a good officer and reflect credit on the appointment. There is no officer serving in the navy today and many a boy in the academy who has never been in the district from which he was appointed."

There is no excuse for indulgence in wastefulness, no matter whether your native land is at war or not. It is the duty of every citizen to practice economy. To economize does not mean that you should map out every penny you make, but that you should manage your affairs without loss or waste. There is a small "wastefulness" to which Germany has harked the United States.

There is no use to argue the question why not admit the coin? The "elective" draft law makes every man within a certain age limit, to his own satisfaction and that of the army, against the war are usually the ones who prefer the "volunteer" system?

Particular attention should be paid to the waste of food. This is one of the prime factors in waging a successful war. The young men who are hungry they will not do much "letting".

The present indications are that our farmers in the section of the country, will receive a good price for their cotton this fall. Within a very short while the Chester County Cotton Association will be in session.

EDISON AT WORK ON WAR MACHINES

Washington, July 7.—In his "hat" in the upper right-hand corner of the building, Mr. Edison is working night and day on important matters for the navy. There was a meeting here today of the navy consulting board, of which Mr. Edison is chairman and which he did not attend.

"Mr. Edison never does attend," said Secretary Daniels with a smile. "He's too busy."

Criticism at a Test

There are very few persons who can stand criticism. Indeed, it is often been called the test of a good nature. Why this should be is largely explainable by the fact that human nature, as a rule, is inclined to be a law unto itself. We are all the time exalting self, unconsciously perhaps, but that we do so is evident in many of our dealings with others. It is easy to think ourselves right, but common sense should tell us that we cannot be right all the time, try as hard as we may. Of course, when a person is sincere in his determination to improve, an opportunity which is particularly engaging his attention he welcomes that kind of criticism which will help him, and is able to stand it even though it stings to the quick. Unfortunately, however, we are not always ready to be criticized. We are, and consequently we resent criticism, much but which, it is needed, perhaps, but not wanted. There is something innate in the human breast which makes us very confident of our own position. In any matter which is being discussed: Indeed, we cannot conceive that we may be wrong, and we are willing to put our opinion against the world's. We may be sincere in our belief that we are right and yet we may be wrong all the time. It is in such conditions, however, that we chafe under adverse criticism, sometimes to such an extent that we lose our temper—and fail to make our point.

The nature that can stand criticism is probably an exalted and carefully balanced one, especially in the case of conflicting opinions. It is like being to a hurt conscience to see the quiet way in which a person now and then receives the bitterest criticism. Such action is a reproach to the critic in many ways and an encouragement to others to strive to reduce their own opinions as to regain the balance which they have perhaps lost. A great deal depends upon our mental poise; indeed, the man who is evenly balanced is the man who is thankful for wholesome criticism and, as a rule, turns it to good account. There are so many persons, unfortunately, however, in this age of the world, and so many persons wandering around loose, as to feel, without the power, to apply their talents to a special and that it is almost impossible for them to attain that special poise which is necessary for their own welfare. It may be that the average person is not able to so systematically his working forces as to make them accomplish the greatest degree of good in the least time and with the least effort. That is a gift which is not common to all men, but it is one which may be developed if desired of course men of nervous temperaments will find it somewhat harder to gain and to keep control of their mental forces under any and all conditions. But this is just what such men need most of all. They cannot hope to accomplish the height of the good of which they are capable if they do not preserve an even balance. While they may resent criticism in general, however, it is such temptations as these which need wholesome criticism more perhaps than any others. We are all of us in the same boat, however, as far as the "be" because there are few persons who do not give way to their nerves on occasion and allow them to have the upper hand for a time. Perhaps those of us who are affected in this manner become our harshest, but at the same time, our best critics. If we only would. We are willing to take from ourselves much that we will not take from others, and if we are once able to see our faults, we are also able to see the faults of others. We are willing to take from ourselves much that we will not take from others, and if we are once able to see our faults, we are also able to see the faults of others.

JOIN THE RED CROSS

By joining or assisting the Red Cross Society you help the wounded soldiers and help them to keep down disease in the army.

By keeping our soldiers well you help win the war.

The following will give you an idea of the sickness in previous wars.

In the Mexican war 6 died of disease to 1 from wounds. In the Crimean war France lost 10 men by sickness for every one killed. In our own Civil war 2 died from disease for each one shot. During the Franco-Prussian war 12 Germans died of sickness at every one killed in battle. But modern hygiene was so far advanced at the time of the recent Russo-Japanese war that the world was startled by the fact that for the first time in the history of armies there was only one death from disease for every 2 men who died fighting. In the present great-war sanitation is working on a super-scale, and modern hygiene is rapidly cutting down the excessive death rate.

The better the health of our army the sooner we will win.
