CONSIDER THE HEN.

A well bred and well cared for dairy cow has been known to produce four times her weight in milk in the course of a year, and it is a record in which all well kept up milk satisfactions.

The Department of Agriculture has pronounced the good cow the greatest wealth producer on the farm.

But the state of Washington is boasting of a White Leghorn hen which laid no less than 335 eggs within 365 days. The cow must look to her laurels.

The hen had no vacation in the twelve months period. The hen took a month off, a day at a time, but the fact remains her performance no less creditable. Certainly the hen served the occasional surprise, if only that she might ease a throat weary by characteristic boasting of her accomplishments.

Three hundred and thirty-five eggs a year mean more than $8.80 at the average price to the producer reported by the Washington agricultural association. Under the circumstances, it is hard to blame any man for cackling, conceited though it may be.

The dairy cow and the corn-fed hog are all right, and deserving of praise and consideration as friends of man, but the hen counts too.

We have seen monuments to men who did less for their country.

SORRY BUSINESS.

The action of the education commission of the State Baptist Convention in deciding to abolish the Spartan Academy and divide its assets among four minor denominational schools of the State must be classified under the heading of "sorry business."

The action cannot be justifified upon any grounds, and we believe it will not meet with the approval of the Baptists of the State at large after they have considered it.

An astonishing and distressing feature of the matter is the current report that the commission's action was prompted by Spartan Academy and Limestone College, who, according to reports in circulation here for two weeks or more, have said they feared that the establishment of a large school or junior college in Spartanburg would wreck the older institutions. Friends of Furman and Limestone are said to have argued that Spartan Academy, if developed along the lines proposed and offering two years of college work, would cripple the older institutions by drawing away the best and most promising students from them.

It is true that the Junior and senior classes. If this argument was sound it places Furman and Limestone in a small and sorry light before the public and before the members of their own denomination.

We hope these reports are not true. We hope they are denied by the responsible spokesmen for Furman and Limestone, and we hope these spokesmen will show the report to be without foundation by urging the State Baptist Convention to repudiate the action of the education commission, and authorizing the development of the Academy as planned by its friends and supporters, the people who established it and have loyally supported it until now.

The Citizens believe the Baptist Convention will not approve the action of the commission. We believe the great Baptist denomination of the State will not sanction the violation of a contract based upon good faith and good morals in order to meet the unfair demands of overzealous friends of other denominational schools. The great majority of the Baptists of the State may be depended upon, we feel sure, not to do an unworthy thing after mature deliberation.—Carolina Citizen.

THE UNIVERSITY CONTROL.

The Yorkville Enquirer is not very far wrong when it declares that the political thought and action in South Carolina are now under the controlled by the University of South Carolina. The fact has for some time been very plain to those watching the trend of our politics. The Tillman political revolution in 1880 was a protest against the University's preference for the old South Carolina College. It remains to be seen if there will be another political upheaval as a protest against the present state of affairs.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

nounce Hon. R. O. Atkinson as a candidate for the office of Representative from Chester county to serve out the unexpired term of Capt. J.
L. Glenn, who has been appointed Solicitor of this district.

Friends of W. J. Reid, believing that he is exactly the type of citizen and business man needed at this time by our county and State affairs, tenderly nominate him as a candidate for the office of Representative from

A BUSINESS COLLEGE FOR CHESTER

Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, plans have been outlined whereby the people of the whole section may have the privilege of attending a first-class College in Chester.

Mr. R. P. McCall, owner of successful Business Colleges in Spartanburg and Asheville, intends to open a school here at an early date. Business interests throughout the whole section of the State of Carolina are continually calling upon these two colleges for competent help, and Mr. Cecil feels that by bringing a branch of his school to Chester, more young men and women will be able to qualify for these splendid positions. Graduates of the Chester School will have the advantages of the employment departments of the Spartanburg and Asheville Schools.

Specialized training in Commercial Subjects is the surest, sanest, most quickest way to "move your future forward" and get in line of success. Promotion, where you can go high, executive positions.

To assure this school, it is absolutely necessary that every one intending to enroll, write for particulars at once.

Peruvian Petroleum.

Efforts are being made to develop more extensively the petroleum resources of Peru. The known deposits of oil occur on very narrow strips of land between the foothills of the Andes and the shore of the Pacific Ocean. The oil is produced in the form of a thick, black, viscous liquid. It is of a high grade and is rich in asphaltum.

Developing into Monkeys.

An observer in the New York Evening Sun makes the prediction that the typical New Yorker is fast developing into a prehensile man—in other words, evolving back to the monkey. Car steps and subway straps are blamed.

Probably nowhere in the United States has the monkey, in the prehen-sile faculties of the human body been brought to such a technical perfection as in this city. Schooled from early boyhood in the art of grasping gripping, clinging, and sticking to street cars, buses and subways the typical New Yorker could make an excellent showing against the palm tree climbing natives of the South Seas, or the monkeys of the jungles themselves.

Stand near the City Hall in Park Row at the evening rush hour and watch the Brooklynites plaster themselves to the niches and crevices of Mayor Hylan's buses for the ride over the bridge and home. The levithans of the motor world draw up to the curbs already filled, but that is no detriment. The exception of the bus riders bears the single slogan—"There is no room for 'civility' or more." A half dozen men leap at the door, gain a two inch hold on the step, find an aperture along the sightline in which to curl their fingers, and the bus, loaded like an ant, jolts toward the wilds of Long Island. No bump is too severe to disturb the delicate balance of victory from the face of the riders as they cling to their perches.

Riders of the Fifth Avenue buses come to a close second in their acquired ability to cling, grip, grip, embrace, grab and clutch. Once on the rear platform of these uptown cursers they grip the hand rails with a grasp of iron and annals with care and carefully to the top as the bus starts and jerks through the traffic. Once on top they make their way hand over hand to a forward seat while the bus careens like a freight in a storm.

Patrons of Broadway surface cars of the open type are treated daily to feats of prehension as hurled and flung out from the curb in mid-dodge among taxis and trucks, and leap to the step in safety while the car speeds toward the Battery. But it is the conductors on these cars who have raised the art of clinging to an unequalled pitch. Clutching, gripping, and grasping, they go nimbly about as they do on the step collecting fares, for all the world like the al-mian swinging from limb to limb.

Confirmed subway patrons probably take third honors in the field of prehensile attainment. Packed in the cars with the density of bunched bananas they hardly need cling to all—merely lean. Latent instinct is too strong, however, and the natural hang suspended from the emailed hooks, swaying with every motion of the car.

Scientists who have observed the manifestations of the prehensile phenomenon in New York do not view it with alarm. New York, they state, is in no danger of being overpopulated by a race of human flies, despite the population's lifelong training in clinging with the hands and feet. The training has its practical value, and on a dark night, in the boudoir in tomerco coconut palms, the New Yorker would never stare, they declare. Remembering his training he could descend swiftly to the treerope and find food and assistance there.

Gets a Check for Gold Nugget.

J. D. S. Plyer, of Monroe, has received a check from the United States mint for $12,377 for the nugget of gold which he found on his farm just across the line in Lancyville on June 10. The find was made while he was looking for the time, and the statement made that for aught any one knew Mr.
Plyer was dreaming about the day when his find should lead to a mine which would make him a millionaire.

Everybody asked him about it and some who saw it had their doubts about it. But Mr. Plyer had none, and he took the quickest way to find out the truth. He got the First National Bank to send it to the mint for an assay.

He has not only received a report on it but has received a check for its full value. It seems that when gold is sent to the mint the custom is to consider it on deposit subject to instructions from the owner. If the owner wishes to have the cash for it, they send it to him, and the gold goes to the bank where Mr. Plyer resides. The bank says that the nugget was worth $12,377 and he could have the cash if he wanted it, he wrote him and told him to come the same time to him he might want the cash. And he did, and somebody in these parts will probably be carrying around five dollar gold pieces colored out of Plyer's pocket.

The tract of land on which the nugget was found embraces a hundred acres. It was bought by Mr.
Plyer last fall from George W. Crif-fer. On the 19th of June Mr. Ply-er was in the field where wheat was being cut, following the reapers, when he espied the gleam of gold.
It was on a ridge which runs along the adjoining tract of 113 acres belonging to Mr. E. Carnes. Mr.
Carnes is about as much excited over the find as Mr. Plyer, for he is sure

GET PEARLS FROM HERRINGS

Mumble Deans of the North Sea Said to Have a Value Not Hitherto Suspected.

A new kind of imitation pearl will shortly be launched, for which we have to thank the humble herring.
The process is secret, and has lately been investigated by a commercial mission from America which has been referring the Scottish ports. "Fish-scale" pearls, and the substance produced from them is called "shitin."

The artificial pearls are treated with this preparation, and the result is said to give not only the exact phosphor-ous glow found in real pearls, but the same variety in tints. The North Sea herring have proved themselves the best for this purpose.

If this discovery proves to be a reality exact imitation—so exact, that is, that even experts will not be able to tell the difference—what will happen to the genuine pearl?

Will people still pay huge prices for merely looking at the pearls are over without gaining any real advantages of glow and appearance?

Meanwhile, the imitations are getting so good that one lady is reported to possess three necklaces—the genuine one, the valuable imitation, and a third less valuable imitation which she wears perpetually, lest the better imitation should be stolen!—Detroit

HAVE MANY CURIOUS HABITS

Negritoes of the Philippine Mutilate Themselves in Belief That It Makes Them Beautiful.

Many of the Negritoes of the Philippines point their front teeth, but not by filing them, as is commonly supposed, says the Detroit News. A chip of wood is held behind the tooth to be operated upon and the result is a hole in the place in such a position as to slant across the corner of the tooth and make a sharp line in the place of the hole chips a piece from the tooth.
The opposite corner is similarly operated.

The Negritoes are generally considered to be the true aborigines of the Philippines and are recognized as distinct from most other numerous tribes of the islands, and their intelligence is of an exceptionally low order. They ornament their bodies with scar patterns, produced by cutting the skin with sharp blades of bamboo, and rubbing dirt into the wounds thus formed in order to infect them and make them fester. Men frequently shave the crowns of their heads "in order to let the heat out."

Hunt Egypt's Secrets.

Mightier than the pyramids in its power to guard the secrets of ancient Egypt is the Nile, but when the explorers of the Metropolitan museum return to their work at the pyramid fields at Luxor, they find the Nile so prepared to match the strength of scientific curiosity against that of the great river. This was learned from Albert M. Lythgoe, curator of the Egyptian department at the museum.

These fields at Luxor include the pyramids of Amenemhat I. and Soos-trix I. the founders of the powerful twelfth dynasty, under which the middle kingdom rose to its maximum glory. These pyramids mark the place of Egypt's second great historical period, as that of the eighteenth dynasty, to which Tut-Ankh-Amen belonged, marked the height of the third.

United States Public Lands.

United States government during the last year has turned over to private ownership of the 12,000,000 acres of public lands through issuance of patents giving them complete ownership, according to figures compiled by the general land office of the Interior Department.

The act equals the acreage conveyed in the states of Connecticut, Delaware and Maryland. Titles were valued at $6,822,000. Acres of public land have been thrown into the hands of private owners of the World war have had preference in filing applies.

Everybody knows the quality and it's 15¢ and worth more.

SALE NATIVE OF CHESTER

Fred Sale, noted College Baseball pitcher, is Native of Chester.

To Pitch Here Next Saturday at Chester Fair Grounds.

A matter of considerable local interest and one that probably very few people are acquainted with, is the fact that Fred Sale, University of Georgia pitcher, who pitched for Chester, his first-time Saturday at year born in Chester May 2nd, 1902. He is the youngest son, of Capt. and Mrs. Thos. B. Sale, of Atlanta, Ga., former residents of Chester both of whom are pleasantly remembered here by many friends.

Capt. Sale is one of the oldest passenger conductors on the Seaboard Air Line Railway and passes through Chester several times each week.

Fred Sale, who is now twenty-one years of age, is sought after by professional baseball clubs all over the country. For the past two years he has pitched for the University of Georgia and has made the all-south team both seasons. Young Sale has the enviable reputation of having pitched a perfect game of baseball. This game was against the University of Virginia. He pitched the entire game and let his opponent down without a hit, without a run and without a man reaching first base.

Young Sale has been engaged to pitch baseball for Chester and, according to the plan, is to pitch two games each week, one on Saturday and the other on Monday. On next Saturday Chester folks will have an opportunity of seeing this native Chesterite on the local grounds and The News feels safe in predicting that a record crowd will be at the game.

Sale has refused many flattering offers to play professional baseball, saying that he prefers to finish his education at the University of Georgia, preparatory to taking a medical course. He has been ambitious to be a doctor all of his life and those who know him well are predicting that with his energy and personality that he will make one who will establish a record in the medical world.

Remember, Fred Sale, the boy who was born in Chester and who remained here until he was seven years of age, and who has the record of being the only native of Chester to pitch a perfect game of baseball is scheduled to pitch for Chester at the Chester Fair Grounds next Saturday.

Contentment is laziness.

Edgemoor Safes Are Robbed.

There was considerable excitement early last Saturday morning at Edgemoor when it became known that three safes in the village had been broken into and robbed during Friday night.

Robbers entered the Seaboard section house where they secured sledge hammers and bursted the safes in the Seaboard station, another in Hamilton's store, and another in the store of W. C. Nunneley. It is stated that they secured something like $175 from the three safes.

Officers in Chester were promptly notified and Sheriff Anderson and Deputy Howe went to Edgemoor. Suspicion pointed toward two negroes who were seen loitering around Edgemoor Friday and investigation revealed the fact that the station agent at Catawba had seen two negroes board a train there early Saturday morning. Officers at Monroe and Hamlet were notified and when the train pulled into Hamlet the officer made for the negroes. One of them whipped out a gun and but for the quickness of the officer would probably have shot him. The officer floored the negro and during the scuffle the negro severely bit the officers' finger. Bystanders assisted the officer and the negro was locked up. During the scuffle the second negro made a hasty retreat and has not yet been heard of.

Mr. W. H. Hamilton, of Edgemoor, and a special officer of the express company, and Deputy Howe went to Hamlet in Mr. Hamilton's car for the negro and upon their return, after night, when nearing the Catawba river in Lancaster county, the negro leaped out of the car, handcuffed, and made his escape into the darkness.

The officers had placed a curtain upon the negro side of the car and as previously stated, had him handcuffed, but notwithstanding this the negro took a chance and leaped over Mr. Hamilton's head, into the road. The car was running about 15 or 20 miles an hour and, of course, had to go some little distance before it could be stopped. Evidently the negro did not get hurt when he jumped and before the officers could get back had made his get-away into a large patch of woods.

From information it is evident that these negroes are wanted in several towns throughout the country for robbing safes and with a good description of one of the negroes it is believed that he will be caught in the near future.

AMERICAN HOSPITALITY.

Joseph Conrad has brought back with him from America some of those reflections which always make us a little uncomfortable, for he has travelled with an emphatic voice the opportunity of seeing this native of hospitality. In no aspect is there a greater difference between American and English society than in this matter. Some one said once that when an Englishman visited America he found not only the clubs but the houses open to him.

When the American visited England the hospitality might be returned by an invitation to have lunch at a club, which, having been comfortably certain that he had paid his debt and that nothing else could be expected of him. There have been other lapses when Americans had returned to America with a certain politeness, "He came over here and we gave him the best of our best of time." And then he went home and he wrote a book against us.

What is the real explanation of the difference between the two countries in this respect? No doubt it is very largely due to the kindliness and cordiality of the American. If anyone visits his country who has ideas, or a reputation for possessing ideas, the American will spare no trouble to study that man on every occasion which may arise. "We have no such curiosity, and a good deal of beating of drums is necessary to persuade us that any one of unusual caliber is visiting us. It is not something to the old ideal of hospitality: it is a new country! May there not be among Americans some subconscious memory of the old days when hospitality was the first duty of every man, woman and child to every one passing by that house? We have lost even

APPEALED TO THEIR HUMOR

Theaters Unable to Appreciate Shakespeare's Characters Arrived in Modern Garb.

In Birmingham, England, the other day an experiment in dramatic art, intended to prove that Shakespeare's plays were greater than any representation of them ended in a ludicrous fiasco. What the experiment proved was that, unless the characters are garbed according to the accepted traditions, the "humor" and situations created even by the master mind of the world's greatest dramatist have no power to impress a modern audience.

The play chosen for the purpose was "Cymbeline," staged in a country that never existed. Therefore, instead of the characters, they were free to garb the characters in any way they pleased, and so the characters appeared in the modern dress of the present day.

A company of scholarly actors had been assembled to play the parts and all other stage traditions carefully attended to. But Shakespeare in a tuxedo failed to get across. The audience saw only the funny side of the unexpected costumes and laughed at the most dramatic incidents and tittered at the actors' most poetic and inspirational utterances.

Which seems to confirm the attitude of the motion-picture producer—that dramatic art appeals more to the eye than to the intellect.—Los Angeles Times.

TO HAVE SUCCESS IN LIFE

Charles M. Schwab Names Qualities Which It Is Imperative One Must Possess.

"If I were asked to name the most important things that lead to a successful life," Charles M. Schwab is quoted in The Business Woman as saying, "I should say, first of all was integrity—unimpeachable integrity. No one can ever do anything of great value in life, and have the confidence and approval of his fellow men, or be successful in his undertakings with other business people, if he does not have the reputation of being a person of honor and integrity. This is the very foundation of a successful life."

"Another important thing is loyalty. Be loyal to the people with whom you associate at the start. Make your employer feel that you are sincere with him; that you are going to promote his interests; that you are going to stand for the things he represents; and that will reap you a richer reward. Loyalty above all!"

"Be friends with everybody. When you have friends, you know there is somebody who will stand by you. Lead a life that will make you friendly and friendly to everyone about you, and you will be surprised at what a happy life you will lead. These things secure opportunity. That secured, there comes the need of good judgment, which is one of the prime requisites for enduring success."

Tobacco Will Hurt You

The mellow and cucumber breeze, the striped little pest now causing pains of disappointment and rage in the hearts of gardeners, amateur and otherwise, is an anti-tobacco leaguer. He hates the weed, so fight him with nicotine or tobacco dust, says the Department of Agriculture.

If the just be sprinkled over the young plants the beetles will seek moisture elsewhere. Also they will depart if the plants be given tight rolls of mosquito netting until they grow big and strong enough to fight their own battles. If these measures are adopted by an entire community, the numbers of the enemy will be greatly reduced or exterminated "cured" and catnip leaves enjoyed by and by, says the department.—Science Service.

Within Bounds

A young man set out for the first time to get orders in the west of England. At Plymouth he met an old commercial traveler, who asked him how he had got on.

"Pretty good," he replied. "I was insulted at every place I visited."

"That's strange," said the other. "I have heard the reverse of that."

"I have had my samples flung into the street; I have been taken by the scruff of the neck and pitched downstairs; I don't deny that I have been rolled in the gutter, but insulted, never!"

Health About Gone

Many thousands of women suffering from womanly troubles, have been benefited by the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic, according to letters we receive, similar to this one from Mrs. J. V. I began improving, and it cured me. I know, and my doctor knows, what Cardui did for me, for my nerves and health were about gone."

60 YEARS SEES SLIGHTLY GAIN IN POTATO YIELD PER ACRE

As potato growers, we are still in the "small potato" class, if we are to judge our standing by the gain in the average production per acre made in the United States in the last 60 years. Statistics gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture during the last half century show that the average production per acre during the five-year period, 1918-1922, was 98.7 bushels. Our grandfathers did almost as well 50 years ago, producing in the five-year period, 1873-1877, an average of 94.5 bushels to the acre. In other words our ability to grow potatoes has improved during these 56 years only enough to raise the average production by 4.4 per cent.

From 1868 to 1888 the average yield decreased steadily until it was but 74 bushels to the acre. Since that time the average yield has been steadily increasing until it is now the highest it has ever been. A number of reasons for the decline in yields during the first half of this period are given by the department, the most important among them being the ravages of the Colorado potato beetle during the early period of its invasion of the eastern United States, the financial depressions of 1877 and 1893, which brought about a well-marked decline in Agriculture in New England, New York, and other heavy potato producing areas, and a gradual depletion of soil fertility.

This downward tendency has been checked by a number of factors which have helped to increase the yield and average production per acre. Some of these beneficial factors are the influence of the agricultural experimental stations, agricultural colleges, and the United States Department of Agriculture, through experiments, demonstrations, and extension work; the influence of the Bordeaux-mixture treatment in the control of fungous diseases affecting the potato; and the development of special potato-growing sections where the average yield is often from two to three times the general average for the United States.

Recently more attention has been given to the production of better seed by growers who are making a specialty of producing certified seed and seed of high quality. The use of high-grade seed, says the United States Department of Agriculture, would increase the return from potato crop of the country by many millions of dollars. Good seed is one of the determining factors in the production of maximum crops of potatoes.

"Built Me Up"

"I USED Cardui for years and it did me more good than any medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. M. C. Ragsdale, of Fort Towson, Okla. "I used to suffer with womanly trouble that weakened me until I was a mere shadow, nervous, and could not sleep. I did not feel like I could live."

"It seemed that nothing helped me till I heard of Cardui and began to use it. It strengthened me and, as 'twas recommended to do, I regulated and built me up till I was like another woman."

"If you are weak, run-down and feel that you need a tonic, take Cardui, the woman's tonic, the tonic about which you have always heard, the tonic that helps weak women regain their strength."

Cardui acts on the womanly system and helps relieve pain and discomfort due to female ailments.
