Miss Winthrop Pageant held

By DONNA CAPPs
TJ staff writer

The 1985 Miss Winthrop Pageant was held on April 20. The pageant was sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi and Zeta Tau Alpha. All proceeds went to P.U.S.H. (Play Units for the Severely Handicapped) and A.R.C. (Association of Retarded Citizens). Seventeen girls competed for the title.

The winner of the pageant was Diane Hutchinson from Charleston who was sponsored by Delta Zeta Sorority. She is a junior majoring in Fashion Merchandising. "I was shocked because it was the first pageant that I'd ever been in," Hutchinson stated.

Hutchinson explained that she has worked hard preparing for the pageant. Since spring break she has done aerobics, lifted weights, and worked on her tan. With the help of her mother she made the evening dress worn in the pageant and placed first in the evening wear competition. She also placed first in the swimsuit competition.

Hutchinson stated, "I plan to represent Winthrop College at different pageants and functions in the Carolina's. My first appearance will be at the Miss County Pageant on April 27." She expresses her gratitude to Pi Kappa Phi and Zeta Tau Alpha for all of their hard work on the pageant which made it a success. Hutchinson will go on to the Miss South Carolina/USA Pageant.

Susan Hunt, a sophomore music major from Woodruff, was the first runner-up. She was sponsored by Margaret Nance Hall. She was also the first runner-up in this year's Miss Rock Hill Pageant. "I enjoyed the Miss Winthrop Pageant more because I was more relaxed. It was more fun working with fellow students." "There is always that chance to be a finalist, but there is less a chance to be a first runner-up," stated Hunt. Hunt will go on to other pageants such as the Miss Rock Hill again, or the Miss Fort Mill. "If I were to have won and held the Winthrop title, it would not have just been for me but also for Margaret Nance," concluded Hunt.

The second runner-up was Susan Crawford, a junior history major from Green ville. Crawford was sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi. This was her first pageant. "It was a learning experience for me. It taught me how to deal with stress which can either be good or bad depending on how you handle it. It can be good because it can give you a lot of energy, but it can also be bad if you let it overwhelm you. This can paralyze you with fear." She thought to herself, "at least I placed." Since the pageant, Crawford believes in the saying whatever you want, you can get it if you try hard enough. "All of the hard work of Pi Kappa Phi, Zeta Tau Alpha, the contestants, and entertainers (all volunteers) benefited the philanthropies. P.U.S.H. and A.R.C. This says a lot for the people involved, it shows that Winthrop students aren't as apathetic as some believe."

The third runner-up was Janet Larkins from Rock Hill. Larkins, who represented Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, won the title of Miss Congeniality. Donna Herger was the fourth runner-up. Herger represented Phi Sigma Omicron Honor Society.

New assistant appointed

Dr. Maeberta Bobb has been appointed assistant to the president beginning July 1, 1985. Bobb will assist the president with internal and external college relations and will chair the year-long Centennial celebration in 1986.

Bobb, the daughter of Mrs. Carl F. Bobb of Newberry, is a 1963 graduate of Winthrop. She earned her Ph.D. from the University of Georgia at Athens and her Masters from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

She has taught at Coker College in Hartsville, the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, and in the Sumter public school district.

Bobb has been a Winthrop faculty member since 1972. She is currently associate dean of the School of Education. Prior to her appointment, she served as the interim dean of education and assistant professor of special education and health and physical education. She has also held the position as coach for field hockey and basketball.

Bobb was a Presidential Citation in 1979 from former Winthrop President Charles Vail, and in 1983 she received the Alumni President's Award for outstanding service to the Winthrop Alumni Association.

Bobb's appointment will accommodate the boarding students. McLaurin, which has undergone renovations to better accommodate the boarding students, McLaurin, which has been closed for this purpose for the past academic year, will reopen this fall.

According to Cynthia Cassens, Dean of Student Housing, the students who are presently living in Bancroft will be moving into Margaret Nance this fall. By doing this, Bancroft will then be vacant for renovations to begin. The completion of McLaurin will enable some students to relocate there and will also provide spaces for incoming freshman.

Upon the completion of Bancroft, Margaret Nance will then be renovated. Total completion should be expected for fall semester 1986. "We're really looking forward to having McLaurin open and seeing the people in Bancroft are really excited," Cassens said.

As a result of the renovations the boarding fees will increase this fall. According to Dr. Skip Tuttle, vice president for business and finances, the total cost of renovating McLaurin will be approximately $4,000,000.

Film star visits Winthrop

By LISA BUICE
TJ editor

Rose "Andie" MacDowell never intended to become a star. The young woman from Gaffney simply wanted to get a Winthrop degree in special education so that she could work with mentally retarded children. Her college experience was just like any other student's in 1977. She lived in Richardson Hall, studied, and enjoyed good times with her friends. Little did she know that only seven years later, she would model all over the world and land a co-starring role in a major motion picture.

"I had no idea that I'd ever get as far as I have. At Winthrop I played Abigail in The Crucible, and I was absolutely awful," MacDowell said. "But I enjoyed the time I spent at Winthrop. It wasn't too big and everyone knew everyone else. I liked that. When I left I felt like I missed out on some things, though. I wish I could call from Paris and want to talk to everyone on my hall. It was great."

After attending three semesters at Winthrop, MacDowell went to New York to search for a job. "I felt really weird when I was in New York. I couldn't communicate. I was in a daze, and then I realized that the people were just Yankee; they were that much brighter than I was," MacDowell said. However, she soon learned to relax.

"I never had the confidence I needed at first. Stress put too much pressure on me. But I learned to develop that sense of self-worth. It's very important to have if you want to be successful. And a good agent doesn't hurt either," she said.

MacDowell co-starred as Jane Porter in "Greystoke-The Legend of Tarzan," although her voice was dubbed over with a British accent.

"I didn't know that they were going to do that when we shot the film. It was a hard decision for my director to have to make. I wish I could have done it. But I'm happy with the final product," she said.

I enjoyed doing the movie. The wild animals on the set were fascinating. I liked the elephants best. They were the most beautiful," she said.

"I'll be totally honest. It's a real ego trip to see yourself in a movie. You take your family and your friends and you say 'wow, that's really me up there.' It's so neat!" she said.

"MacDowell wants to continue modeling and eventually begin a singing career."

"Most of all, I want to have fun. I like to go to the movies; I enjoy taking care of my huge dog and being with my boyfriend, Craig Sheffer. I take my work very seriously, but I want to relax, read more and enjoy myself. That's important. I wish I could have done more of that when I was in college," she said.

Winthrop releases Tatler

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

The 1985 Tatler has been released. The theme for the 82nd issue of the yearbook is "The Nightly News." Elizabeth Johnson and Roxie Fogle were this year's co-editors. According to Fogle, "We tried to make this year's edition more student oriented. We added some new things to keep with that idea, such as putting the dorm photographs in color."

"Also," Fogle continued, "we did a section on the Greek houses, which has not been done in previous years. We also required all organizations interested in having a spot write a paragraph about themselves, telling who they are and what they do."

"We tried to make the cover more comical to go with the article emphasis on the students. We want them to feel that, although it is for the faculty and staff as well, it is primarily for them," Johnson said.

The new co-editors for next year are Patty Toepke and Margaret Patterson. "We plan to continue keeping the emphasis on the students, but we would really like to have their reactions to this year's edition. That way we can make next year's (Tatler) even better. Students should write us, or even better yet, join the staff," Toepke said.

"We felt, 'Why didn't we make this a yearbook students could be proud of?" Johnson added. "We know it has its faults, but we did our best to make this the best yearbook possible."

Cafe' renovation

By JEFF COLEMAN
TJ staff writer

Thomson Cafeteria will undergo renovations within the year of 1986. Skip Tuttle, Vice-President of Finance, reports that the renovations will mean an addition in serving lines and in seating capacity.

"The cafeteria was built to accommodate approximately 2,000 students per meal, but now that there's an extra 300-400 students, about 300 more seats will be added," Tuttle stated.

Plans for the renovations are tentative now. Tuttle reports, "The only certain thing is that the additions and renovations will take place."

"The Board of Trustees has authorized the administration to use meal plan funds to help make the improvements." Tuttle stated.

The rear area adjacent to Thurmond will be beautified by the addition of a landscape plaza scenery complete with seats to give the area a better look. The area now looks mainly like a dumpster area. We want to give it a more scenic look," Tuttle concluded. The outside renovations should be completed by the end of 1986.
Billy becomes batty

By ROBERT JOLLY
TJ managing editor

At approximately 12:30 p.m. Thursday a rather strange occurrence took place on the third floor of Richardson. Brent Moore, John Thomason, Jeff Cope, "Buzzy", and several other third floor residents noticed a small brown bat near one of the stairwells.

One of the brave residents, Mike Minshew, approached the bat, was attacked and momentarily grossed out! "I saw the bat, and it looked dangerous. I went after it with a net and missed totally. I guess it scared him, and he flew onto my face," said Minshew.

Minshew was not bodily injured, and was able to help in the pursuit of the bat. The residents finally chased down and cornered the bat in room 332. "He was sweeping down at us, so I finally caught him with the net. I knew something important might come of it if I caught him," said Minshew.

The original danger is over as the residents secured the bat in a rat cage; however, the residents were then faced with the problem of what to do with the precarious creature. "I was gonna let him go in the cafeteria, but instead I'll probably just have a party and let it out the window. We named it 'Billy Bong Bat',' said Minshew.

Keeping the bat's health in mind the residents kept the bat in the dark, so to speak. "We have been keeping Billy in the closet, however, we did let it out to watch 'General Hospital' with us," Minshew said.

Students commissioned

By VIOLETTA WESTON
TJ staff writer

Graduating seniors, Doug Curly, Mark Lintner, and James Norris will be the first Winthrop College students commissioned for the Army on May 23, 1985 at Davidson College.

"I'm excited," said Lintner, "it's a big career goal you plan for when you enter. When I signed up (for National Guard), there were ten men, now there are three. It was a long, hard road, but we worked around it," he added.

Lintner, a History major, became involved because he wanted to fly. "The National Guard offered different opportunities with the best opportunity to fly," Lintner's choice was also influenced by Davidson and Winthrop colleges.

Norris, a Business major, got involved the summer before he entered Winthrop. "My father (also a member) took me to the recruiting office where I joined," he said. "It helped me mature and devote more time to responsibilities, because it's more demanding." he added.

After graduation, Norris will attend Officer's Basic Course at Fort Gordon in Augusta, Georgia. "Afterwards, I want to find a job as a programmer," said Curly.

Curly, also a History major, will be a platoon leader after he is commissioned. "I got involved through Winthrop's recruiting services. It gave me the opportunity to be involved in the military and to be a civilian at the same time. Since I have joined, I've become more confident. I also appreciate the commitment full-time officers have made for the Army," Curly said.

Will summer dreams come true?

By LISA BUE
TJ assistant news editor

Summer—that lazy, carefree time of the year for fun, whether it's making that perennial pilgrimage to the college Mecca of South Carolina, otherwise known as Myrtle Beach; getting that exciting internship or summer job; reviving old flames or sparking new ones; but most of all, to sit back, relax and dream.

For me, this editorship is a dream come true. When I first walked through these doors as a scared freshman, I knew that someday I wanted to be the editor. I also have some other dreams. Some are close to becoming realities in the fall and some are simply out of the question, but Winthrop would be a much more wonderful place if you picture the following:
- Margaret Nance residence hall will be stripped of the electric blue enamel in the hallway and renovated with plush carpet, new banisters, and a central heating unit.
- Epicure will have great food and a wide variety of ice cream flavors rather than vanilla in five different color combinations.
- The legal drinking age will be lowered to 18.
- The Winthrop athletic department will be run more efficiently.
- The "pits" will be paved.
- Winthrop guys will ask girls out on real dates rather than picking them up at The Money.
- The books I need will finally be found on the shelves of the Dacus Library.

I hope some of these dreams come true, just like I hope everyone else's do. But needless to say concerning some of these wishes, "Dream on!"

Fix that stupid sign

By MARK WOOD
TJ contributing editor

You know, I can't seem to have much luck at the ice cream stand in Thomson Cafeteria. You see, I always have my taste buds primed for a nice cup of heavenly hash or chocolate ice cream. So after tangling with what seems like a ten pound piece of baked (rarely fried) chicken, I walk over to the crowded ice cream bar. I look up on the flavor sign just to make sure at least one of my two favorites is available.

I was surrounded by Public Safety officers who were noticeably subdued and were standing in front of the Winthrop Police Captain. Minutes later the Captain, after a 15 minute argument, told me to return to my dormitory.

"What do you mean you 'ain't got none neither?" I screamed at the top of my lungs. "I've just about had enough," I berated. I am a fellow student who has been a frequent customer of Thomson Cafeteria. I have never received bad service.

I can only take so much abuse, but poor grammar and personality by the flavor ice cream I prefer, but anyway, I asked the enthusiastic attendant politely for a cup full of heavenly hash, and mind you I'm not without a certain amount of flexibility (I would think that infernal sign was my first mistake. I should have trusted that the signs at the ice cream stand was accurate, but the "dedicated" employee in charge of updating that sign should be sacked immediately. I don't think it's unreasonable of me to expect those flavors advertised on the sign to be in the bin. But anyway, I asked the enthusiastic attendant politely for a cup full of heavenly hash, and mind you I'm not without a certain amount of flexibility (I would have been satisfied with chocolate). After I asked him for the heavenly hash, he said, "We ain't got no heavenly hash." My blood began to boil.

As I gritted my teeth I calmly (and still politely) asked for my alternate flavor, chocolate. Now I've been told by some that I'm droll, that I lack originality for liking chocolate ice cream. Now I never really thought anyone would try to judge my character and personality by the flavor ice cream I prefer, but anyway, back to the tragedy. So I gritted my teeth and asked for chocolate and once again the jovial employee let out a sigh and said, "We ain't got no chocolate neither." Well my friends, let me tell you something. I can only take so much abuse, but poor grammar from an unpleasant ice cream attendant is simply unbearable. After such abuse I was forced to retaliate.

"What do you mean you 'ain't got none neither?' I screamed at the top of my lungs. "I've just about had enough," I berated. I am an individual who has always been treated fairly. I have never received bad service.

"What do you mean you 'ain't got none neither?' I screamed at the top of my lungs. "I've just about had enough," I berated. I am an individual who has always been treated fairly. I have never received bad service.

I can only take so much abuse, but poor grammar and personality by the flavor ice cream I prefer, but anyway, I asked the enthusiastic attendant politely for a cup full of heavenly hash, and mind you I'm not without a certain amount of flexibility (I would have been satisfied with chocolate). After I asked him for the heavenly hash, he said, "We ain't got no heavenly hash." My blood began to boil.

As I gritted my teeth I calmly (and still politely) asked for my alternate flavor, chocolate. Now I've been told by some that I'm droll, that I lack originality for liking chocolate ice cream. Now I never really thought anyone would try to judge my character and personality by the flavor ice cream I prefer, but anyway, back to the tragedy. So I gritted my teeth and asked for chocolate and once again the jovial employee let out a sigh and said, "We ain't got no chocolate neither." Well my friends, let me tell you something. I can only take so much abuse, but poor grammar from an unpleasant ice cream attendant is simply unbearable. After such abuse I was forced to retaliate.

Officer's behavior

Dear Editor,

On Sunday, April 14 approximately four a.m. I was driving some friends back to their rooms. Two of the four needed to be left off at Phelps. I began up the one-way horse-shoe driveway noticing a Public Safety car at the exit of the drive. The Public Safety car had pulled up ten feet into the drive facing the wrong way. The officer was talking to three boys. At the top of the driveway I let out two friends. After seeing them get to the door of Phelps, I continued down the drive towards the parked Public Safety car pointed my way. The opposing car blocked the exit of the drive, so my two passengers and I waited for it to back out of the way. The officer was still talking to the boys from his car.

After a moment I eased toward him about five feet. The other car did not move. I waited and then eased closer another five feet. Still the Public Safety officer gave no signs of moving. My passengers and I became irritated so I again eased forward. I waited and waited for him to move. He did not. I figured if the conversation was serious enough the officer would have gotten out of the car to talk to the boys, but he remained in the car.

At this time one of my passengers noticed that a second Public Safety car had come up the drive and soon would be behind me. I, on the other hand, had only noticed my rage of this idiotic game the first Public Safety was playing. I honked my horn and shifted my car into reverse. I began to back up and one of my passengers told me there was a Public Safety car coming around behind me. I began to stop when I noticed blue lights flashing. Officer Mullinax, driver of the first car, pulled up beside me and jumped out of his car as if he were after me. He asked me why I was out in front of Phelps at this hour and said I shouldn't be blowing my horn. I couldn't believe Officer Mullinax was so absurd as to imply that there are curfews for driving on campus and sounding the horn. I had no idea that I would be cross-examined for merely dropping two friends off at their dorm. I told the officer I was needed to do you to move, but you didn't. He snapped, "All you had to do is back up."

First of all, I couldn't back up because I was being blocked by a Public Safety car which pulled in behind me before Officer Mullinax flashed his blue lights. Secondly, he was asking me to break the law by illegally backing up thirty feet, around a sharp turn, lined with cars, and down a hundred foot stretch, as opposed to his backing up ten feet.

I don't consider that an equal ratio even if he is a Public Safety officer telling me to do an unsafe act. I told him that this was ridiculous. He was breaking the law and then asking me to break the law. It makes me wonder why any other frictions Officer Mullinax has committed just to keep from inconveniencing him.

Officer Mullinax's attitude throughout the "interrogation", I found, was far too aggressive. I think he should find another way of taking out his aggressions. If he became infuriated because of what I did, I would hate to be caught for something I was guilty of.

I think something should be done to correct Officer Mullinax's behavior (that borders on harassment) and ideas of law and safety.

Lader leaves

Dear Editor,

I am truly concerned about the incident which happened at the Academic Awards Banquet held April 17, 1985, at McBryde Cafeteria. I am speaking about the appearance of President Phil Lader.

Dr. Smith introduced him and he walked up to the podium, gave his speech about how glad he was to be able to attend this function and by the end of his speech President Lader turned and walked straight out of the door. Now don't you feel that someone who talks so highly of academies like Phil Lader should have stayed and listened to the awards just as everyone else did?

I know he's the President of the college and has many responsibilities, but I believe that he should be spending a little bit more time at Winthrop College and a little less time striving for governor of S.C. which most of us know he won't achieve in the next-election.

Sincerely your friend Phil,
Anna K. Hopkins

Former students to perform

Two former Winthrop students will perform on "You Can Be A Star," see on the Nashville Network on May 1 and May 3. Pam Baldwin and P.J. Brunson represent the Carolinas with two performances of original material on the show, which is a country equivalent of "Star Search."

Pam has received such honors as second place in the Professional Western Roundup in Columbus, S.C. which is a profession talent search for country performers. P.J.'s creative efforts have been noted in several songwriting contests such as the American Song Festival's National Lyric Competition, and a regional country songwriting contest sponsored by SESCA in Greenville and Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Pam and P.J. made their debut last summer in the finals of the WSGC Great Country Talent Hunt at Carowinds. Before they became a duo, the two performers pursued separate careers as professional musicians for over seven years. They each performed with various groups throughout North and South Carolina.

While not performing Pam works as a security guard for Neighborhood Rangers in Columbus, S.C. P.J. lives in Charlotte and is employed as a technical writer for Burroughs Corporation. She is also pursuing a graduate degree at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Both graduated from Lugoff-Elgin High School.

Baldwin played with the band "Sketches" and also performed solo. Brunson has played in the bands "Daydream" and "Phantasy." Both performers have appeared at ATS.

"It was many things; a scream, a foreign experience, but most of all, it was a real class act."

What is the deal?

Have you seen the Coliseum and lake area lately? Like since the tailgate party and fireworks display last Friday? It looks like a deserted landfall. We open up our facilities to the public and they trash the place. So-called "adults" don't even have the courtesy to clean up the mess they make. Instead, the physical plant (more on them a little later) has to do it and so far even they haven't. And the rest of you students aren't any better. I'm the one cruising the lake in the light blue convertible Mustang with the blond hair. I'm the one on the passenger's side watching you alos guzzle your beer and then throw your beer cans into the lake and on the ground. You know who you are. Just remember - I've got that 35mm camera strapped around my neck and a picture is worth a thousand words and I NEED all sorts of interesting pictures for the sports page and the coliseum and the lake are MY territory!

Speaking of the physical plant, aren't those guys supposed to be taking care of the golf course? Have you seen the golf course? My "on campus source" pointed out to me Saturday during the baseball game that it has really gone down hill in the last five years.

So, I decided to have a little look. Don't those guys ever seed or fertilize the course? I've seen greener things crawling around on a plate of cafeteria food. There are no greens out there! I don't see how anyone can play ANYTHING out there.

Another "on campus" source also tells me that the golf team does not even play out there. Instead they play at some country club. We've got the facilities. Why aren't they taking care of them and using them? Something just doesn't click with all of the money this college pulls in it can't cost that much to take care of a golf course.

Speaking of golfing, the Tenth Annual Dickins Open was last Saturday. Taking the honor this year was Dave Nielsen with a 4 over par 74. Risher Brabham, Dennis Wright and Mark McCarthy finished respectively with 78's. Mark McCarthy won the fewest putts competition while Randy Cato and Randy Gregory won closest to the pin competition on holes eleven and eighteen. Congratulations guys! Heard you all had a blast.

I went to the tennis match on Saturday afternoon also and there weren't a whole lot of people out supporting the men's team. They were playing Armstrong State, and when I left they were looking pretty good. Hey girls, they're kind of cute, you need to be out by the courts giving that student support!

I also skipped out on the baseball game on Saturday. I arrived during the fifth inning and we were behind by three! That changed, and we beat Coastal Carolina 9 to 8 Way to hustle guys! Thank you, Mr. Bieseker, for the ice water! Pat Flood, it's good to see you out of the hospital. Coach Gordon, good to see you out supporting the baseball team. It's sort of strange to see you without a coat and tie. My inside sources tell me you may be the star of the next press conference.

Anyway, if you students say you're bored around here on the weekends, and that's why you go home, evidently you aren't looking too hard for something to do here! There is plenty! Never a dull moment!

Well, just as I start taking over the sports page it's time for summer! I don't know about the rest of you, but I plan to go home and get a little healthy.

I thought I'd start running and take off a few pounds! You should too; it's great for the cardiovascular system.

Well, gang, have a great summer - take it easy and - remember, friends don't let friends drive drunk. And Nielde... I'll be talking to you in the fall... maybe!

On a night filled with American patriotic feeling the Russians, Ivan and Nikito Koloff started the wrestling event held at Winthrop Coliseum on April 16. With the crowd chanting U.S.A. U.S.A. in the background the Russians defeated their opponents in convincing style. Much to the displeasure of the crowd the Russians escaped the match unamused by the barrage of ice, Coke cups, and American fists.

The next wrestler from the "Legend-of-Doom" was noted William "Superstar" Billy Graham. With a vast display of "Karate" Graham beat his opponent but not without a disturbance. Graham's arch-rival Jimmy "Boogie-Woogie" Valient showed up and disturbed the flow of the match. Graham soon overcame his opponent with a vice-like full nelson that made his opponent submit to the punishment.

The "Nature Boy" Buddy Landell was next to take to the squared ring. Although he had blonde hair, real wrestling fans wouldn't know that the real "Nature Boy" is Ric Flair, who was reported to be on hand. Landell beat his opponent after a tough match.

Climbing out to "Born In the USA" by Bruce Springstein, Don "Mr. USA" Kernodle showed why he is one of America's favorite wrestlers. After getting out of a slow start Kernodle gained a victory when "clothesline" his opponent off the ropes.

Next was TV title match between Rock Hill's own Buzzy help of Paul Jones and Superstar Billy Graham. The Barbarian threw the "Boogie-Woogie" man and open cut on his neck. The irony is that Valient was hurt by his own old Lady which Jones and Graham held while the Barbarian threw Valient into the ring. Valient was then rescued by Magnus T.A., Dusty Rhodes, Buzz Tyler and a host of other wrestlers. Valient who lost a lot of blood, was rushed to the hospital after the match.

Next the match was won by Superstar Billy Graham and his partner The Barbarian. The match was over when the Barbarian and Graham decided to inflict punishment on their opponents. The match ended when Magnus T.A. used his famous belly to belly suplex to gain the victory.

Nikita Koloff again proved his domination. Koloff finally gained the win with a body slam after pressing his opponent over his head.

The next match was won by Superstar Billy Graham and his partner The Barbarian. The match was over when the Barbarian and Graham decided to inflict punishment on their opponents. "Old Lady" (his trusted axe-handle) the Boogie-Woogie Valient came out to the help of the defeated wrestler.
