4-17-1964

The Johnsonian April 17, 1964

Winthrop University

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/thejohnsonian1960s

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/thejohnsonian1960s/61

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the The Johnsonian at Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Johnsonian 1960-1969 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact bramed@winthrop.edu.
Student Vote Defeats Honor Code

The last chance to save the honor code at Winthrop was lost Monday night as students voted to reject the new honor code proposed by the Johnsonian. They may still vote to reject the present code, but it appears unlikely.

The Johnsonian proposes a new honor code which the editors believe to be a stronger code.

"They seemed to have had a reevaluation of the basic premise. That is, there was more talk about the spirit of an honor system and the reason for it.

"Although she said that "There had been some time for a decision. Brandon Ford, past president of Senate, believes that the vote shows that many voters had not been able to vote."

"Many students appreciated Thursday's question to students about the proposed honor code. They welcomed the opportunity to express their views."

"There were three ballots that did not vote on the present code and another system is present," said one student.

Board Announces Editors, Managers

The Board of Student Publishers for the Winthrop Shakespearian Theatre Group has named the editors and managers for the Winthrop Shakespearian Theatre Group.

The editors and managers for the Winthrop Shakespearian Theatre Group are:

- Editor-in-Chief: Ben Reynolds
- Managing Editor: Rachel McLean
- Business Manager: Alex Brown
- Production Manager: Emily Johnson
- Technical Director: David Taylor

The Winthrop Shakespearian Theatre Group is a student-run organization that produces annual productions of Shakespeare's works.

New Officers Installed

All new elected student officers of the campus-wide organization were installed during a recent meeting of the student body Monday night.

The new officers include:

- President: Maxine Caldwell
- Vice President: Johnstown Johnson
- Secretary: Emily Johnson
- Treasurer: Rachel McLean
- Student Senate Representative: Alex Brown

The new officers will work to promote and support the Winthrop Shakespearian Theatre Group's activities.

Shakespearian Theatre Group To Present 'Hollow Crown'

"The Hollow Crown" will be presented by members of the Shakespearian Theatre Group in the Shakespearian Theatre Group's spring series of plays, beginning with an April 7, 7:30 p.m. performance. The play is directed by Emily Johnson, the group's president.

The play is set in England during the reign of King Henry V. The story follows the rise of Henry V to the throne of England, and his subsequent military campaigns against the French. The play is based on Shakespeare's original plays "Henry IV, Part 1" and "Henry IV, Part 2," and is considered one of Shakespeare's greatest tragedies.

"The Hollow Crown" is considered one of Shakespeare's greatest works, and is a fitting choice for the Shakespearian Theatre Group to present. The group has a long history of producing high-quality Shakespearean plays, and "The Hollow Crown" is a perfect example of their talent and skill.
Emory Newspaper Editorial
Gives The Perfect Squeal

[The Other Column]

The JOHNSONIAN
WINTUB COLLEGE

[The Other Column]

Carefully He Lived Before Big Exposure

[The Other Column]

by ROD THOMAS

George walked carefully into the old, but large and fine-looking room on the ground floor. The man who had been the most important person in it since it had been built had been his father. He had only been three years old when he had been allowed to walk into the famous old room. He had been very happy to find the room filled with pictures of his father and his grandfather, and the little boy had been about to begin to tell them about his own adventures when his father had suddenly said, "You must be silent in the hallway unless you have something important to say."jf

George had been the only child who had ever been permitted to walk in there. He had always been allowed to do so because his personal appearance had made the old man believe that he was capable of understanding. George had not been the only child, naturally, but his father had always been the only one who had been allowed to walk in there. The old man had always been certain that only the best boy could be trusted with the secrets of the family. And George had always been the best boy.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been certain that he was right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been
certain that he was right, but now he was also
certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been
certain that he was right, but now he was also
certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had
always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been
certain that he was right, but now he was also
certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had
always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been
certain that he was right, but now he was also
certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had
always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.

But now he was going to walk into the room to see if his father had been right. He had always been certain that his father had been right, but now he was also certain that he was wrong. He had always been
certain that he was right, but now he was also
certain that he was wrong.

And now he was going to walk into the old, fine-
looking room again, this time to see if his father had been right in his choice. He had always been certain that he was the best boy in the world, and he had
always been certain that he was destined to be the most important person in the world. He had always been certain that he was the future king of the
world.
It was a simple question: how long would you need to get that second wind.

Just two seniors, Enterprise High School’s Hedy S. Sikes and Douglas High School’s Karen H. Fuchs, were in the running for the position of Winthrop Archivist.

Miss Iva Bishop, Winthrop Archivist, Feels No Regrets After 42 Years

By VANDERLE MILLER

Iva Bishop has been the archivist at Winthrop College for over 42 years. She recently announced her retirement and was honored by the College.

Bert Powell Announces Meeting
Of Sophomore, Junior Teachers

All Winthrop junior and senior teachers clerking for teaching certification are asked to meet with principal of the department of education, Dr. Bert Powell, director of guidance and placement, at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 4th.

The meeting will be held in the Main Building at the College.

WASHINGTON D.C.

WASHINGTON D.C. — The House of Representatives this morning passed a bill to provide $10 million for the construction of a new building at the National Museum of the American Indian.

The bill, sponsored by Representative John D. Dingell of Michigan and Senator Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, provides funding for the construction of a new permanent home for the museum.

The museum, which is currently located in the Department of Interior building, will move to the new facility when it is completed in 2023.

The new building will feature state-of-the-art exhibits and interactive displays that will provide visitors with a deeper understanding of American Indian culture and history.

The project is expected to take approximately five years to complete and will involve extensive planning and coordination with the National Park Service and other federal agencies.

The museum currently attracts over 1 million visitors each year and is a popular destination for tourists and educators.

In addition to providing a permanent home for the museum, the new building will also allow for the expansion of educational programs and outreach initiatives.

By GRETCHEN ROBINSON

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Obama has announced a new executive order to promote access to affordable and high-quality health care for all Americans.

The order, titled "Affordable Care for All Americans," aims to reduce the number of uninsured people and increase access to health insurance.

The executive order directs federal agencies to work with states to develop plans to expand Medicaid coverage and improve the quality of care for low-income individuals.

The administration has also called for a reduction in waste and fraud in the health care system and for increased transparency in the insurance industry.

The plan is expected to save $3 billion within the first year and will be implemented over the next five years.

The order also requires all employers to provide employees with additional information about their health care options.

The administration is expected to release a detailed implementation plan in the coming weeks.