THE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE STUDENT BODY OF WINTHROP COLLEGE

VOLUME X NUMBER 3
ROCK HILL, SOUTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1937
SUBSCRIPTION, 50c A YEAR

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY IS CAMPUS SPEAKER
Mr. Jim Randolph, formerly of Iowa State College, visited Winthrop Monday.

"There is something in college students that makes them unique," said Mr. Jim Randolph, speaking to a large assembly of students in Rockefeller Auditorium on October 21. The speaker, who was guest lecturer for the evening, is national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in the United States.

Mr. Randolph said that every person has within him something unique, something that he should be proud of being. "Each of you," he said, "is a unique individual, a person who has a right to be proud of who you are. You should try to be a good person, and I am telling you, for your own good, that you should be proud of who you are, that you should be a unique individual."

The session continued until 10:15 P.M.

WORK ON '34 TATTERS PROGRESSING RAPIDLY
Virginia Anthony, Editor, Announces First Pay Day—500 pictures made

Virginia Anthony, editor-in-chief of the Tatters, announced that work on the 1934 edition is progressing rapidly. The photographs, Designer and Decorator, have been making good progress. About 450 pictures will be ready by next week to complete the 500.

Regretting for the Tatters will be this week the resignation of Frances Meeker, who laid down the plaid guiding these people. She is going to the University of Tennessee. The first pay day will be held this week, October 18th. During this time, the students may pay all or some of the cost of their Tatters, which may be made into a complete book in a few days.

Marie Dressler Figures In Tense American Epic—"Tugboat Annie"

The war story Marie Dressler has played in a truly American epic, "Tugboat Annie," will be shown at the Winthrop Theater Saturday night.

"Tugboat Annie" is a story of the seamen, Marie Dressler's sailing life in the Osage Canal, and her relations with such seamen as O'Brien and Sons, and Bob. With such a story, Marie Dressler's acting abilities and her ability to hold the audience to the last breath will be shown in a truly American epic.

The show is a picture of the seamen's life, and the story of Dressler's life as a seaman, as well as the story of the seamen's relations with the women in their lives. It is a story of the sea, Marie Dressler's life on the sea, and the story of the women in their lives.

Marie Dressler's acting abilities and her ability to hold the audience to the last breath will be shown in a truly American epic.

IN TOUCH WITH THE WORLD.

1916—a year of change, offers many events of vital interest to everyone, especially to the young people who live in the civilisation which is being developed today. In our own country, prejudices are being broken; economic, social, and literary changes are rapidly solidifying.

In other countries, the struggles for freedom arepwting governments change economic conditions which we cannot understand, and these have an immediate influence on us.

The new century is rapidly being filled with sweeping changes. It is not well to dwell on the past with the development of American thought is full of life and learned through those years. We may live better in the new civilization because of our understanding of it; and, indeed, we may improve civilization by understanding and influencing results from a careful study of the changing conditions.

In the last Republic of September 9, 1916,精致于 one very short time in which we have been taken.

Our thanks for kind words. Recently we received an encouraging word of commendation from some of our readers about the State. Nothing does much for the morale of those who endeavor to publish this newspaper as an expression of approval. To those who have done so, we express our thanks.

THE BLUE SPECTATOR

Who would you try to sell this book to? Would you try to sell it to men? That's impossible. The Slate is quite the wrong color for that. But try to sell it to women? If you can make them feel that you have written a book for them, that it is a book which is designed to meet the needs of their daily lives, and that it is written by a woman who understands the trials of women, then you have a chance. But why should you try to sell it to women? Why not to men? The Slate is written for both sexes, and will be of interest to all who read it.

Miss Samantha Says......

Every store Tuesday, Mr. J. G. McDonald, has his regular orders coming in. I think I may have something especially to report this week. It is the pit to the car that will be among the most interesting of the week.

I am a champion young man, tall and slender with a black mustache, who can make a world's record for his weight and his height. I am a champion young man, and I am not afraid to be seen in the city but I am afraid of being seen in the country.

Samantha was telling me that the history majors were such a wide variety of interests and had such a wide variety of places to go. I can imagine what it would be like for me to be a part of this.

So the next Monday, Mr. J. G. McDonald, was a very dark, rainy day, with a strong west wind. I was out on the street with a hand-painted sign advertising a wedding gift.

I am delighted to see new ways of doing things. I think there are many of them are to be the gift, and that they are to be the gift. I think there is something different in being a gift-washer.

Thursday while all the others were busy in the library. As I was walking through the hall after a quiet day, I came across the sign which led me to the library. I made sure that the sign was correct before I went in.

"If it were not, certainly that woman would not like the sign to the store, " said the man. "I want to go around getting your sign?" he said.

"Not that I mind," said the man, "but I think it would be better if it were different."

"That's right," said I. "It would be better if it were different."

TELEVISION TATTOO

An important discovery has been made in connection with the novelty of "tattooing" television sets.

Experts have found that by applying a special protective film to a television screen, the "tattoo" marks can be prevented from appearing on the picture tube.

The film is made of a special material that absorbs the light waves and prevents them from reaching the viewers eye.

This discovery has opened up a new field of possibilities for television advertising and could revolutionize the way we watch our favorite programs.
