The report that women have ears has been verified.

A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., reads as follows and should be of interest to people of this section as well as those of Georgia:

"Since the experiments of the State Board of Entomology have proven successful, and since the instructions this year to cotton growers of the State have demonstrated that cotton can be successfully grown under boll weevil conditions, and in abundance, a number of the most prominent farmer-members of the General Assembly, and with them some of the best business men, sense a condition in the early future which must be guarded against by the State, and the cotton-growers which is necessary for the successful operation of cotton farms, will be in the grip of a combine that will place the price of it beyond the reach of any agricultural enterprise."

"This year Georgia, through its State contract, has been able to obtain cotton at a price of 15 cents per pound, so long as there is any to be obtained, while other States are paying as high as 15 cents for it. That contract holds for this cotton year and, since there are only about half a dozen of the manufacturing plants, it is the consensus of opinion, based on recent developments, that before another year comes, around those half dozen concerns will have combined among themselves, and the article for sale will be at a rate ranging from 25 to probably 40 cents per pound next year."

News Items

Great Falls, S. C.,—Friday evening at the Regalite Theatre, the Bridgeway High School presented, under the supervision of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church, the opera "The Feast of the Little Lambs."

The house was filled to its capacity, and quite a number were standing in the rear. A murmur of happy surprise ran through the audience when the curtain rolled back and the first scene of the opera was presented "Pretty Little Lambs."

There were about forty characters in the opera. Leading roles were Miss Sarah Kennedy, a Japanese, Fugate Maid, Lillian Lamoreaux, James Edmunds and Clarence Lamoreaux, the Prince, with Miss Nannie Swearingen at the piano.

The opera was directed by Miss Sarah Kennedy, who was also the leading lady, and soprano in the chorus. The entire program was thoroughly enjoyed, but the audience was particularly pleased and thrilled with the Dance of the Fallows, the choruses and the songs.

Hands are Empty. "Up Her Sleeve," with Miss Kennedy the leading soprano, and the solo, "Woe is Me," by Miss Lamoreaux. The costumes, stage setting and selection of cast were strikingly appropriate, and the manner in which the entire program was presented and managed would have done credit to a professional theatrical troupe.

Mr. J. S. Edwards, manager of Republican Theatre, assisted by Mrs.
Wadsworth and Miss Grace, handled the crowd with expert ability, and the entire program was

lows, the choruses and the songs.

THE FUTURE.

Most men look into the future with a feeling of dread. Youth looks forward with hope and anticipation, but as the years creep by, life becomes more serious.

Youth paints a beautiful picture.
Age paints a picture of gloom. Especially if life's ambition has not been to give up the struggle altogether, because of the monotony.
It may be that financial troubles have come, that the home has been deprived of the head of the family, the power to earn the necessary money for the support of the family, and in that case his condition is pitiful in the extreme.

When a business failure comes early in life there is hope of recovery, but when the man has passed the meridian of life before ruining against the rocks and wrecking his business, it is little hope. He is too old to find a job in which he can recover. His friends, who in his youth would have loaned him sufficient capital for another start, look upon him as a failure and do not care to take a chance at losing their money. Unfortunately, man realizes that his time is short, and his recovery seems next to impossible. He is forced to adopt new standards of living, to cut expenses get along the best he can. If he gets another chance he is lucky.

Is it any wonder that there are so many physical and mental wrecks?
There is no wonder that so many are tempted to put an end to life, when troubles come!

There is an old saying: "While there is life, there is hope." If the unfortunate one is of the hopeful kind, he may come to the top again, regardless of age, and be of use to himself and to others.

Every man owes to himself periods of thought and study, in which to formulate plans whereby he may increase his income. He should do this in times of prosperity, as well as in adversity. It may serve to aid him in avoiding the wreck and in recovering his fortunes in case of adversity.

It is often advisable to think more in a physical way, and if we did it we would be wiser. We are made of matter, but brains are necessary, and in knowing how to use what we have we have less degree of success in life, whether we make a failure in some line of business or not. If we have the brain under control, and failure will appear weakness on our mental caliber. We will seek another opening; seek another level.

There is a place for everybody in this world. Some may be fortunate enough to find the proper channel at start, but many run aground and are forced to try again, and if they do not dwell too seriously on their first misfortune they will come out all right in the end.

Keep the gray matter working.
Let not failure in one line discourage you from trying something else, and if you are not sure far along the line you will finally settle into some thing adapted to your methods of thought and action.

It is better to keep weather eyes on the future and think well before making the start. Start right if possible; but start something and keep it moving. If we are somewhere, and if the ship is wrecked, leave it and take another; but look forward with a hope and determination to win success, and at the same time let your mind revert to past experience as a guide and a guide and a warning against ventures that may end in disaster.

DAIRY COWS CUT FEE.
TILIZER BILL IN HALF.

Fear of the relentless boll weevil combined with the departure of the cattle tick on the arsenic route, induced E. C. McCutchen, of Bishop-ville, S. C., to establish a herd of Guernsey cattle. What the result has been was feebly compressed into a single sentence by this new recruit to the ranks of the dairymen.
"I don't know what would have become of me since 1920 if I had not had my herd of cows to bring me a regular income."

Mr. McCutchen now has a herd of 35 cows and sells his milk in Bishop-ville for 15 cents a quart or 50 cents a gallon. He can not say too much in praise of dairying, both from the standpoint of direct returns and the improvement of the soil. He thinks he spends less than half as much for fertilizers on his dairy farm, than he did before he established his herd.
Moreover, he says, not only benefits the current crop, but the effect of one application can be noticed for several years. Big crops of alfalfa are now grown on this farm with no commercial fertilizer, whatever, and in the fields of small grain there is a conspicuous line of departure between the part that was manured and the unmanured part.
He is now making more corn, oats, and wheat per acre than ever before and the growth of cotton is greater, but the weevil cuts the yield of lint.

On this 300-acre farm some mixed feed and wheat bran are bought, but most of the ration is home-grown.
Dependence is placed on pavine hay, velvet beans, corn meal, and corn silage. Mr. McCutchen has two other farms, one in the same county and one in Lee County, and he indicates that he is not down on all of them as the tick is gone for good. The cow, he says, brings in money daily; wheat and money.

SMALLWOOD SUITS ALL THROWN OUT

Watkins Dismisses Cases Arising Out of Railway Accident in Fairfield.

Winnsboro, Aug. 7.—Judge H. H.
Watkins of the United States district court has filed an order dismissing all of the suits brought against the director general of railroads, growing out of the deplorable accident at Smallwood, in August, 1919, in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Wray and young Eugene Mc-Carroll lost their lives and Arthur R. McCarroll was injured.

The automobile driven by Mr.
Wray was struck by a train at the Smallwood crossing and the deceased afterwards brought against the director general, who at that time was in control of the operation of the Southern railway. The suit for the death of Mrs. Wray was tried in Fairfield county and resulted in a verdict for the defendant, and the plaintiff thereafter abandoned the action in Fairfield county and brought suit in the federal court, one of the suits being for the pain and suffering of Mrs. Wray prior to her death.
On account of the prominence of the parties, there were probably no cases ever brought in Fairfield district which excited more public interest. Unless an appeal is taken by the plaintiffs, the decision of Judge Watkins means a final determination of these cases.

NOT SATISFIED.

Youth looks forward to the time when labor may cease and perfect comfort be born in the enjoyment of accumulated wealth. Practically every man, whatever his pining may be, at some period of his life builds "castles in the air." He could see himself in later years enjoying the fruits of his labor, his thrift and his self-denial. The picture was a sight to labor and study, but too often the mind was not equal to the desire.

In the quiet of his home, or while basking in the sunshine of a beautiful spring morning, the "castles" have been built upon a grand scale and furnished with magnificent adornments with all that a dreamy desire could wish. Resolutions were made and the future looked paradise.

The dream of youth, inspired by a spirit of hope and ambition is a delightful anticipation of long years of toil and self-denial may win the riches, but seldom is there satisfaction in the accomplishment.

The poor boy has become a rich man. He has a palatial residence, servants, automobiles waiting at the door to carry him wherever he may desire to go, a check book in his pocket in which he may write any desired amount; and yet there is something missing when the realization is not of kin. The youth looked forward to a life of ease and happiness in the enjoyment of wealth. He found the wealth and all that goes with it, but the anticipated satisfaction lacking. He may have the library that he longed for, the beautiful home and the delicious food that he pictured in his youthful dream, yet he is not satisfied. There is something lacking, and that something is within the man. He is not the same. He may have leisure to hunt and fish, to play golf and all manner of in and outdoor games, yet he longs for something that he has not and never will have this side of "the big divide."

He may have a camp in the beautifully located beside some crystal lake, where the trout and the perch sport and seem to invite the festive lure of the sportsman; he may "ship" the waters and he may "chuck the bug," and he may hook a fine fish, but he will require time and skill to land; he may enjoy the relaxation of the moment, and he may still greater enjoy telling his friends of the beauty of the catch, the hard-fought battle for liberty, and he may invite these friends to dine with him and enjoy the nicely cooked trout or perch; yet when the meal is over, the stories told, and the guests have departed there is a heaviness

His early home may have been a humble cottage, a farm house, or even a cabin in the woods, from which he went as a boy to make his fortune, and his present magnificent dwelling filled with all the modern devices of convenience and utility; yet that freedom and satisfaction that he strove for seems to be as far away as ever.

The fact of the case is that we were not made to sit around and do nothing. He lives, longest, the best and the happiest who continues to exercise his powers to the end. His happiness lies in functioning and not in idleness.

Four College Boys

A group of college boys arrived in Chester today and are taking subscriptions to Pictorial Review, the well known and widely read woman's magazine, to defray their college expenses for the coming year. We hope you will give these representatives a few moments of your time when they call on you and let them explain the merits and advantages of their special offer.

This offer is in reference to the Pictorial Review Patterns, which are sold by our store. These Patterns are simple, accurate and ever so easy to follow. We carry at all times a complete stock of them as soon as issued. The young men:

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

I hereby announce that I am a candidate in the Democratic primaries of South Carolina, for the nomination for Representative of the Fifth Congressional District for the 68th Congress and I take this opportunity to thank the people of the District for their loyal support in the past and to say that I shall endeavor to deserve their support and confidence in the future.
W. F. Stevenson.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
I am a candidate for re-nomination as a member of the House of Representatives, for the first district of South Carolina, and I

Towns in South Carolina and throughout the country whose electric lights and power are furnished by steam plants are having a hard time in securing the necessary coal to keep their plants going, owing to the continued strike of the coal miners. It has become necessary for the government to take charge of the situation and divert coal to those places where there is a scarcity. This is another one of the cases in which Chester and other sections of the Piedmont are fortunate in having water power companies which furnish our lights and power. Still some people want to put an extra tax on those companies who have developed our water power and who are giving us a service which cannot be had with steam plants.

Open cotton bolls were brought to the News office this morning from the farms of Mr. Robert Franz and also Mr. James H. Giffin. Some are of the opinion that there will be considerable cotton to pick within two weeks. The weevil infestation is very heavy in some sections of the county and many farmers are putting up a hard fight, while others are apparently taking it easy. The weather for the past few days has been ideal for the farmer, but the weevil man is now predicting rain. This will greatly increase the infestation and those who do not make a hard fight the balance of the season will no doubt make a very little cotton. The News has kept a weather record since the first of June and with one exception, the rains of this season have been as good as could be wished to raise cotton under weevil conditions. This applies to lands south of the City of Chester as well as to the City of Chester and there is no way of keeping a record of the entire county.

A surprise to many friends was the marriage of Mr. Charles B. Ferguson and Miss Letta Grant Sunday morning, July 29. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Thompson at the residence of Mr. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson is one of Chester's grocers and has many friends throughout the county. Mr. Ferguson for several years has been one of the accommodating and efficient operators at the local telephone exchange. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for Hendersonville where they will spend several days.

The most amusing part of the political campaign meeting in Chester last Friday was the speeches of Messrs. Eubanks and Winter, both of whom are running for Attorney General against Mr. Sam Wolfe, who now holds the office. Both Mr. Eubanks and Mr. Winter are well known men and for some time were dragging along with the campaign in a slow way. Newspaper men told them that they ought to get out and "step into them" and get their names in the headlines. Eubanks was told of Winter's connection with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and that he rode on a railway pass while serving as a member of the legislature. With this information in their hands, they proceeded to attack the record of Winter. The next day the name of Eubanks appeared conspicuously in the newspaper, and then Winter turned fire on Eubanks. He says that the only thing Eubanks ever ran was a "hot dog stand" in Horry county, while Eubanks terms Winter as the Duke from Monck's Corner. Both of these candidates are now hot after each other and are expected to see last night's fight in the campaign party from day to day to be a very important job for the newspaper reporters and they are also expected to get out and "step into them" and get their names in the headlines.
