Forum held
By B.W. GODFREY
TJ staff writer

President Lader and a panel of faculty members fielded questions from students during a student forum sponsored by the SGA held in Kirkard Auditorium Wednesday night.

Questions and complaints about security and lighting for parking lots, rude construction crews, cultural requirements and user fees for campus buildings were addressed among other things.

The auditorium was only 75 percent full. Attendance was way down compared to the spring forum sponsored last year by the Student Government Association and the presidential interns.

Jeff Mann, vice president for student life, was the forum moderator. President Phil Lader, John Presto, Athletic Director Steve Vacendak, Vice President for Academics Mike Smith, Public Safety Chief Bob Williams and Vice President for Budget and Finance Tucker Johnson were among the panel members who attempted to answer students' questions.

When one student asked why beer and tobacco ads aren't going to be carried on the new coliseum marques, Vacendak replied, "It was an attempt to use discretion." He emphasized the only source for purchasing beer and tobacco ads aren't benefits (renter), not everyone.

When questioned about the rudeness of some of the construction workers toward female students, Presto announced that three workers from the Bancroft renovation had been "given pink alpine" and that two other workers from the Phelps project were fired because of complaints about their behavior.

A fraternity member asked why building rent fees were so high. Mann explained that "the cost should be borne by whoever benefits (renter), not everyone as a whole."

When asked why Epicure is the only source for purchasing alcohol on campus, Mann replied that Epicure was the only contractor with a liquor license that was allowed to sell on campus, according to state law.

The forum continued until past 11 p.m. By then the audience had dwindled, and questions had been reduced to complaints about parking tickets. Mann adjourned the meeting around 11:25. Another student forum will be sponsored by the SGA and the presidential interns in the spring.

Search committee seeks Lader's successor

By VIOLETTA WESTON
TJ staff writer

The Board of Trustees appointed a presidential search committee to find a successor for Phil Lader who resigned as president of Winthrop College in July.

The committee, comprised of six members, includes Dr. Terry Peterson, Governor Richard Riley's representative on the board and committee chairperson, Dr. Gerald Persel, faculty representative, Brett Smith, SGA president, and Elizabeth Singleton. Merritt Wilkerson and Mary C. McElveen, three members on the board of trustees.

The committee is looking for someone with a distinguished academic background, successful administrative or business administrative experience at a senior level and dynamic leadership ability.

The committee is also looking for other qualities which include the ability to work successfully with constituents of the college including faculty, staff, students, alumni and friends. Lader's successor must also have effective communication and relation skills to work with the general public, state legislature, and the Commission on Higher Education.

Deadline for applications was Sunday, Sept. 16, 1985. At that time, approximately 150 applications had been received.

Peterson, chairman of the committee, was unavailable for comment, but Brett Smith, student representative, had this to say: "This (choosing a new president) is a tremendous opportunity (for the board) to elect more dynamic people here at Winthrop. I feel fortunate to be a part of a six-person committee who will make a decision which could change the direction of Winthrop. It's a good opportunity."

Changes in Safety policy made

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

New night clerks and stricter enforcement of campus policy are among the changes in the residence life office and public safety department in order to ensure the safety of Winthrop students.

Chief Robert Williams, head of Winthrop public safety, said recently, "We've been trying to keep an eye out for any potential problems, especially since the incident that happened in the apartments last year."

Williams was referring to a Winthrop co-ed who was raped in her apartment last spring.

"We felt bad about that incident," Williams said. "We had a very good record as far as incidents such as that happening, much better than the averages say we should have. And, of course, no matter how tight your security is, things can still go wrong. But still, we are trying our best to make sure things like that don't happen again."

While the public safety office to Griffin, is the night clerk in is taking extra caution in dealing the apartments. "There was not with incidents around campus, a regular officer in the apartments last year. There is now a staff writer is taking extra caution in dealing the apartments. "There was not with incidents around campus, a regular officer in the apartments last year. There is now a night clerk in the residence life office, formerly housing, is carrying added public safety, making sure no unauthorized students enter the building after hours. They also report unusual incidents to public safety.

Cynthia Cassens, dean of housing, explained, "We have a new security company, Mark IV new security company, Mark IV security, employing security officers in Richardson, Thompson, Rodkey and Breazeale, and Bancroft Annex. They are in charge of making sure no unauthorized students enter the building after hours. They also report unusual incidents to public safety.

Frankie Griffin, assistant director of housing security, said, "Mark IV has installed night clerks in the co-ed and male dorms. They are now duty from 11:30 at night until 7:30 the next morning. They perform the same task as the night clerks in the other buildings, which is to make sure only authorized students are allowed into the building. All hall offices are manned by students during the rest of the day."

One major change, according to Cassens, was the installation of fire alarm systems in the dormitories. "We have fire alarm systems in all the dorms," Cassens said. "We have not had any incidents since the installation."

Election results announced

By B.W. GODFREY

A runoff election is between freshman class vice-president candidates Tom Robertson and Randy Ardis. Thomson district candidates Wayne Harris and Frank Walters and Phelps district candidates Tracey Kericks and Missy Shelley. SGA election results were formally announced by Jeff Mann, vice president for student life, during the student forum held Wednesday night in Byr REHABILITATING.

Robert E. Lee is the new freshman class president.

Senator seat winners (by district) are: Robertson, Tom Robertson; Johnny Harp, Scott Welch and Hade Robinson. Woford: Susan Coltrane, Amy E. Wood, Becky Cameron and Carol Ann Hardy. Thompson: Kim Mitchell, Connie Contis and Clay Shill.

Runoff elections for freshman class vice-president and the two open Senate seats will be held Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Nine hundred and four voters turned out Wednesday or approximately 30 percent of the student body. The turnout was characterized by SGA President Brett Smith as "a bit above the average."

Pols in Thomson and Dinkins opened promptly at 9 a.m., as 110 final candidates competed for 50 seats and the freshman class executive offices.

Only day students could vote at the Dinkins polls and on-campus residents voted in Thomson.

At the desk of each poll a voter could examine the application of each candidate to help make a decision.

At the Thomson poll voter turnout was slow but steady in the morning and early afternoon, but increased during lunch and just before the polls closed. In Dinkins voter turnout was steady throughout the day.

Freshmen were voting more than any other class due to interest in the presidential and vice-presidential election according to an informal survey. When asked why they voted for the candidates that she did freshman Michel Mixon said, "I didn't know any of them, if I saw their picture on the application and I knew I voted for them. When asked if the campaign posters put up around campus influenced her, Mixon said, "I didn't pay that much attention to them."

Freshman Lynn Mosely "read what they said on the application" to help her decide. Freshman voters, unfamiliar with their candidates, relied heavily on the statements on candidates' applications and pictures provided to help to place the name with the face.

Both polls were closed promptly at 6 p.m. At 6:30 ballot boxes were unlocked and votes were counted. By 9:30 the results had been tabulated.

SGA officials arrived at the student forum at 9:45 p.m. after the forum had been in progress for 15 minutes.

Student Government

"The legitimate object of government is to do for a community of people whatever they need to have done, but cannot do at all in their separate and individual capacities."

Abraham Lincoln

Congratulations to all newly elected senators. Wishing you a productive and exciting year.

The Johnsonian staff
S.O.B. to offer seminars

By VIOLETTA WESTON
TJ staff writer

The School of Business Administration will offer a series of seminars beginning September 24. Titled Senior Seminars, the coordinator of the Senior Seminar Program says, "The programs are designed to give students help in making some very important decisions such as how to buy a home. Each session will be presented twice a week, two hours each day. The programs are offered on Tuesdays and Wednesdays every two weeks at 9:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. respectively.

The seminars will be very informal with a great deal of interaction with the instructors. The discussion leaders will be four local attorneys and Winthrop College faculty member Jerry Smith.

Rogers D. Weikle, assistant professor of management and coordinator of the Senior Seminar Program, says, "The programs are a good idea. The topics to be covered are some things people need to know."

Weikle added, "This year's programs are on a trial run. The students are the ones who will determine how far it goes. But we hope to sponsor something like this every semester."

The seminars are divided into four different sessions. Each session will cover such topics as "Understanding the Basics of Contracts, Real Estate Agreements and Laws, How to Get the Most Bang for Your Bucks, and Will Estates, Family Law: How to Keep It All in the Family."

The instructors will also offer short topics and questions that should be time permit.

The School of Business Administration is looking forward to good turnover at the seminars. Weikle concluded, "I think we owe it to the students to offer a program like this. That way, students won't end up in debt once they are out of school, and they don't end up signing their lives away either."

The program is open to all Winthrop College seniors and any other interested parties.

Alpha Kappa Psi wins award

By JUDY ALSTON
TJ staff writer

The Alpha Kappa Psi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi Business Fraternity at Winthrop College was ranked number one in the nation and the Southeast Region on their performance throughout 1984-85. Carmen Alston, Scott Rhein and Roslyn Jeffcoat attended the National Convention held in St. Louis, Missouri on August 20-26, 1985.

Iota Phi Chapter is one of the nine chapters in the Southeast region to receive the award. The Southeast Region is the number one region in the nation.

Carmen Alston, first black president of the Iota Phi Chapter said, "We are very proud of this award since we are considered a small chapter. The Iota Phi Chapter currently has 30 members. The award is given based on a performance evaluation. Each chapter is graded by points for their performance throughout the year. When a chapter reaches 100,000 points, they receive national recognition. Points are based on the number of speakers, fundraisers, meetings, member, social activities, and business activities that a chapter features.

Alpha Kappa Psi is a professional National Business Fraternity with 146,000 chapters nationwide. Alston said, "Our purpose is to distinguish a business student and a better business professor relationship through our work with the School of Business and outside businesses." The fraternity helps with career day, and many fundraisers such as credit card sign-ups. They are interested in recruiting more members, especially second semester seniors.

Freshmen, sophomores, juniors and 1st semester seniors.

Open rush will be held on Monday, Sept. 30 in Kinard Room 111 at 8:00 p.m. All business and pre-business students are invited to attend.

In conclusion Alston said, "I feel that a lot of people don't recognize that AKY is a prestigious and valuable fraternity that has a lot of opportunities to deal with business and society."

Extermites featured

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

The Winthrop Theatre will open its 1985-86 season this week with Extremities, a character study of the relationship between attacker and victim. The show will run Wednesday, September 25 through Saturday, Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. in Johnson Auditorium.

Blair Beasley, director of the play, said, "Everything is going well, the sets are finished, the performers are ready, and everything will be completed by Monday. "It's an extremely difficult play to do, but I'm very pleased with the way it's taking shape."

One thing that makes the play difficult to present is its extremely violent and contains explicit sexual references.

Extremities is about a girl who is sexually assaulted in her home, defends herself to the point that she subdues her attacker. From there the main concern of the play is whether she will kill him," Beasley said.

"By this point she is as much an animal as she is. The remainder of the show deals with how she and her roommates intend to resolve the problem."

The reason we're doing this play," Beasley said, "is to expand our theatre offerings and deal with typical contemporary issues while at the same time presenting good effective theatre."

Tickets will be available Monday at Dinkins. Cost will be $4.00 to the general public and $3.00 to students at the door. Winthrop students can reserve free tickets at Dinkins Information Desk. Reservations must be picked up by 7:45 the night of the show they are reserved for.

Faculty should be screened

By LISA BUIE
TJ editor

What makes a good teacher? According to some students, a good teacher is one who knows his subject and can make his students understand it. Therefore, in order to make students understand, the teacher must possess a wide variety of communication skills. Naturally, the ability to speak in terms and language that students understand is paramount in the learning process. One would like to think that institutions such as Winthrop would consider that aspect when selecting professors. However, this doesn't always appear to be the case, especially in the math department.

This is exemplified in the fact that students have complained about a particular professor that they can't understand. This professor was hired in August before school started. According to the students, he doesn't speak English very well.

It appears that the administration only wanted to fill a vacancy when they hired this faculty member. They didn't care about who students could relate to.

In a problem solving class like mathematics, it is crucial that students concentrate on understanding formulas and solutions. If they must spend their time trying to decipher the instructions instead of the problems, then a new problem is created.

This is not meant to be a reflection on the professor or the current chairman, but rather on their superiors.

If professors were screened more carefully, the problem would cease to exist.

Pedestrians jeopardized

By MONNIE WHITSON
TJ news editor

Excuse me, but do you know what a pedestrian crossing is? You know, those two white lines running parallel across the road. These areas allow pedestrians to cross without having to wait for cars to pass. This means that automobiles must slow down or completely stop so that we, the students and other pedestrians, may cross.

But there's a slight problem, my fellow students. You're not stopping for pedestrians. You're not stopping and it makes me very angry.

I used to wait for you to drive by first, yes, you in that car, my fellow student, traveling about 35 mph in a 20 mph zone.

But not anymore. Now I simply walk between my two lines, minding my own business, white lines, while I'm sitting comfortably in the plush interior of my automobile - and you know what? I might not be responsible for my actions.

And then you see me walking slowly across the road with my head down, slumped shoulders, feet dragging behind, sweat pouring from my face - and what do you do? Speed up and attempt to splatter my body all over the road.

Thanks - thank you so much for your kindness and thoughtfulness. Thank you for the courtesy you have shown me so well.

Let me just tell you this - I don't forget faces. I know who you are. I might see you one day walking between your little white lines, while I'm sitting comfortably in the plush interior of my automobile - and you know what? I might not be responsible for my actions.

Boy, what a day

By MARK WOOD
TJ contributing editor

I just know that today was going to be a bad day. I got to bed late, I got up early, and I had to endure another boring philosophy class. But my problems really started when I picked up my State newspaper and saw former President Richard Nixon’s face on the front page. That was the low point of an otherwise imperfeet day.

Unfortunately, the tragedy did not end there. When I opened up the paper and saw the headline that adorned the top of page 6-A I nearly went into a state of comatose. The headline read, “Reagan consults Nixon about Gorbachev summit.”

State of comatose. The headline up the paper and saw the did not end here. When I opened the paper and saw the headline that adorned the top of the front page. That was the effect day.

Well, now that I’ve gotten all of this off my chest I had better go study for my religion test. See, I told you today was going to be a bad day.

The Board or Big Brother?

By JAMES BEdES
TJ advertising manager

“Censorship can make the world a better place.” “What?” “I responded as my roommate encouraged me to continue reading the advertisement. “Censorship can make your life easier. When somebody else makes decisions about what you can read, see and hear, you don’t have to think as much.” “Come on,” I said. Winthrop students don’t have to worry about things like censorship. Or do we?

Once upon a time, in a land called Winthrop, the Great Board of Trustees grew restless. “Let us build a marque and billboards in our beautiful coliseum to produce revenue for the athletic program,” they dictated. So it came to be. And the advertisers came forth and produced much gold to exercise their right to be seen. All except two. You see, the Great Board ruled that there shall be no tobacco or alcoholic beverage advertisements on our billboards. “But why not?” cried the seniors. “Those advertisements have always been in good taste!”

“Silence!” rumbled The Board. And there was silence. “That was easy,” said The Board. “Now what about those ads in that loathsome Johnsonian, and gun ads and beer lights in dorm rooms, and...”

Volleyball team Serves it up right

By LAURIE ANN DEDES
TJ sports editor

The Winthrop College volleyball team is shaping up in the Big South Conference. Although they have lost their last match/Clemson defeated them last Tuesday 11-15, 15-6, 16-14) they seem to have a fair amount of depth. Ginger Rowell seems to be the top server for the team with a 91 percent efficiency. Of 46 serves, Rowell has only four errors. She has served three times with a 71 percent efficiency. Rowell with 27 attack attempts has made eight kills with only six errors.

Janet Dykton appears to be the most outstanding player on the court. Her stamina and concentration during these early games will prove fruitful for the team later on in the season. Her service efficiency is 90 percent. Of 29 serve attempts, Dykton has had three service aces and only three errors. Of 71 attack attempts she had 21 kills with only 11 errors.

Melinda Eubanks has accumulated a 91 percent serve efficiency. Out of 35 serve attempts Eubanks made only three errors and has pounded two service aces. Of 22 attack attempts Eubanks had 11 kills with two errors.

Hazel Turnbell continues to pace Winthrop as well. From 33 serve attempts she's had only four service errors. Of 54 attack attempts she has made 15 kills with only seven errors.

Winthrop has one of the youngest teams in quite sometime due to freshmen being played more. Winthrop has started with a 1-2 record which is not typical of the team. But don't cancel them out. Last year the ladies were at 2-5 in the beginning and finished with a respectable 28-15.

Head Coach Cathy Ivester is concerned about the team's slow start but says that the teams they have lost to are Clemson and Appalacian State. These are both Division I teams and have established ball clubs with heavy recruiting programs. Remember, this is our first year in the NCAA and it's going to take time to be recognized as a major competitor in the league.

The team has improved from their first game. Although they lost Tuesday their performance was the best I've seen them play. Of 71 attack attempts she had 21 kills with only 11 errors.

The best that I can say is that the volleyball team is looking good, especially against the competition of this season. It's new and refreshing. It will also make the team into the NCAA and get to play the major teams. It's a true test of performance, and pushes them to their fullest limits.

Winthrop's team of trainers is under the direction of Dr. Joe Kinney. The students who make up the respected team of hard workers, that help to make sports activities possible here at Winthrop, are as follows: Larry Baker, sophomore; Tom Burns, graduate; Katrina Eure, sophomore; Julie Johannas, freshman; Scott Mosely, graduate assistant; Cheryl Purser, freshman; and Reenae White, freshman. These students devote an enormous amount of their time to learn training techniques. Katrina Eure said, "In order to be certified, we must first work a total of 1800 hours. Sixteen hundred of these hours need to be spent in the training room, and the other 200 hours need to be applied to covering the practices." Being a trainer is a no easy task and requires a particular character.

Kinney said, "In order to become a trainer, one needs to be a hard worker, love the work, and have no desire to get rich!"

To most people the trainer is invisible only when a player gets hurt during a game. Head trainer Kinney said, "During the game they watch and react to any situations that might occur. However, the majority of the trainers' work is done before and after the game." The name of 'trainer' goes back to the Dark Ages, according to Kinney. He said, "A more accurate title would be 'athletic therapist.'"

The student trainers are taught bandaging techniques, first aid and conditioning and reconditioning procedures.

Trainers keep athletes fit

By TRISH McKITRICK
TJ sports writer

A basketball game is in the last few minutes of the first quarter. No one has scored when all of a sudden our star player surprises everyone (maybe even himself) and catches the rebound from our opposing team. As he was running with full intentions of a dunk to our basket, an opposing player somehow gets himself tangled up in our Eagle's legs. Our Eagle ends up flat on his face. However, from out of nowhere, quick as a flash, one of our trainers are there and ready to determine the seriousness of our Eagle's discomfit. Winthrop's team of trainers is under the direction of Dr. Joe Kinney. The students who make up the respected team of hard workers, that help to make sports activities possible here at Winthrop, are as follows: Larry Baker, sophomore; Tom Burns, graduate; Katrina Eure, sophomore; Julie Johannas, freshman; Scott Mosely, graduate assistant; Cheryl Purser, freshman; and Reenae White, freshman. These students devote an enormous amount of their time to learn training techniques. Katrina Eure said, "In order to be certified, we must first work a total of 1800 hours. Sixteen hundred of these hours need to be spent in the training room, and the other 200 hours need to be applied to covering the practices." Being a trainer is no easy task and requires a particular character.

Kinney said, "In order to become a trainer, one needs to be a hard worker, love the work, and have no desire to get rich!"

To most people the trainer is invisible only when a player gets hurt during a game. Head trainer Kinney said, "During the game they watch and react to any situations that might occur. However, the majority of the trainers' work is done before and after the game." The name of 'trainer' goes back to the Dark Ages, according to Kinney. He said, "A more accurate title would be 'athletic therapist.'"

The student trainers are taught bandaging techniques, first aid and conditioning and reconditioning procedures.

A trainer's number one job is to prevent an injury. "Each trainer is assigned to a particular sport and is to help provide preventive care to athletes. They check to see if a player has a problem before - if so then he would be taped," said Kinney. However, if an injury does occur then "the trainer's job is to treat and rehabilitate," said Kinney. The trainer is not a doctor and is limited to what he can do for treatment. "If the injury is serious, then we are responsible for getting the athlete into qualified hands," said Eure. Dr. Hafele is the team physician and is on call during all games.

The trainer's job isn't restricted to just treating an injury or restrengthening the muscles; he is often faced with emotional or sociological problems to handle. Athletes, by their very nature, tend to develop tensions. The trainer is in an excellent position to help ease or even prevent such tensions. Kinney said, "Trainers basically stick to a single team in order to get to know the players. The trainer's job is one that requires tact and a certain amount of abruptness."

The right word spoken at the right time can often resolve a situation that could develop into an unfortunate circumstance. David Wood, a cross country runner, said, "My experiences with Winthrop trainers has been very positive, they always give 100 percent."
Gutierrez lands job

By TODD HUTCHISON
TJ assistant sports editor

With all the new changes in the '85 Winthrop athletic department, the men's basketball team added a new graduate assistant to go with their remaining staff. Glenn Gutierrez comes to Winthrop after playing ball at West Liberty State in West Virginia. Gutierrez, a native of Williamstown, West Virginia, played four years at West Liberty with his last three seasons as a starter. He also served as team captain his senior year while making the West Virginia North-South all-star game. While at West Virginia Gutierrez earned a business administration degree with a concentration in business management.

Gutierrez learned about Winthrop through former grad student, Jeff Burkhamer. Burkhamer, a former high school teammate of Gutierrez, is now the assistant coach at Baptist College. Gutierrez said, "I wanted to get into coaching when I worked at a few summer camps one summer. I also felt coming to Winthrop would help me in other ways. I'll be able to establish good business contacts and also start under a good set of coaches here at Winthrop."

As far as Winthrop Gutierrez felt, "I'm still feeling my way along so far. As I learn my responsibilities I'll be able to contribute more to our system."

"I feel I should help with scouting and bring enthusiasm. This will probably be because I'm close to the players' ages so I think they'll be able to relate to me easier," said Gutierrez.

About the players and staff, Gutierrez said, "I have a good feeling about the players and the staff. The players have a good blend of experience as well as a good recruiting class." About the staff, Gutierrez said, "Working with an established coach such as Coach Gordon is a real learning experience. Coach Mims and Roberts should also help me with their knowledge of the game."

Netters get new coach

By JEFF RUBLE
TJ sports writer

As Cid Carvahlo loosens up with the team for an early Tuesday morning workout, he motivates a few players to crawl off the bleachers and join him on the court, telling them, "The spring is the fun part, now is the hard work." As one of the players who walked by, he jokes, "tell them he's crazy."

Crazy or not, Carvahlo, a 1982 graduate of Winthrop, has returned to his alma mater to coach the 1985 version of the Winthrop Eagles. Carvahlo comes to Winthrop after coaching for several years with the parks and recreation system. Upon making the move, he responded, "I could probably be making more money working in a country club, but I enjoy teaching at a higher level of competition."

Winthrop's new coach originally came to Rock Hill from his home in Sao Paulo, Brazil, to play tennis. During his career, he was the top player for the Eagles. Though he now spends much of his time teaching, he still competes quite often. He is now ranked in the top ten in the state in men's singles and doubles and, with one of his local Rock Hill students, is ranked number one in the state in mixed doubles.

Carvahlo, through his playing experiences, has developed a blue-collar attitude toward fall workouts. "My philosophy is that the harder you work during the off-season, the better you will be during the regular season, both physically and mentally." Working hard is exactly what the team is doing these days, waking up at 6:30 in the morning for four-mile runs followed by strenuous workouts and, later in the day, afternoon sessions. Carvahlo estimated, "We now have around 12 guys and five girls but we haven't made cuts yet and we are expecting more girls to come out soon." He went on to say, "So far I'm very pleased. If they play like they showed me they can yesterday, then I think we can be very good this season."

Eagle Odyssey not a good one

By SHARON HIX
TJ sports writer

The Winthrop Eagles scored four goals over King College, and they had 11 more shots on goal than their UNC-Asheville opponent. Ralph Carrero had one goal and two assists by his name, and Choco Gutierrez, Doug Aldridge, and Frank Wagner each contributed to the Eagles' scoring. THAT is the good news. Now, the rest of the story...

King College scored six goals creating a loss in overtime, 6-4, and UNC-Asheville scored a goal on a penalty kick, making the third loss for the Eagles this season. 10. Back Alex Herrera is injured as is goalie Bryan Crip- ps, and one has to wonder what will happen as the season progresses.

With three tough matches down, the Eagles are taking a week to re-group before their next match. Forced to play with 10 players for the second half of the UNC-Asheville match, due to Winthrop goalie being ejected from the game on a penalty, the Eagles continued to dominate play despite the fact that they never seen a team dominate the play so much, and still lose games like we have," commented a Winthrop player.

Gerald Hendrix resigns position

By JILL ZEIGLER
TJ sports writer

Gerald Hendrix, tennis coach here at Winthrop for the past five years, officially resigned Friday. Hendrix has decided to make a major change in his career by moving from coaching men and women's tennis to bio-chemical research. He will take on his new job at the school of medicine at East Carolina University. Hendrix is being replaced by Cid Carvahlo, a former student and tennis player here at Winthrop.

When asked how he felt about suddenly leaving the players in the hands of a new coach, Hendrix said that probably would not affect their upcoming performances. "Since I'm resigning early in the semester, there won't be a big effect on the players," commented Hendrix. "They'll have plenty of time to get used to Cid's coaching."

And that they have Carvahlo runs with the players Monday through Friday, beginning at 6:30 in the morning.

This seems to encourage the players more. Comments freshman player Roberto Oliver, "He stays on the court with us constantly during practice and he runs with us every morning. It's good motivation."

Other players feel about the change. "I think that Carvahlo is really serious and involved, but also takes time to know the players and understands their own capabilities. Player Gonzo Pena says, "He doesn't just coach the players, he cares about us too."

With Gerald Hendrix on the move, the tennis teams have not put a hold on their practicing or serious approach to tennis. In fact, the team seems even more ready, thanks to the new "motivator"—Cid Carvahlo.
Career Week to be planned

By ROBERT JOLLY
TJ managing editor

The program will include seminars, guest speakers and displays to promote career awareness for all students.

Masone, who has been with the placement office since December 1984 and director since July 1985, said, "The purpose of this program is not only to make students aware of business and school opportunities, but to let businesses and schools know we do have well-educated students open for positions."

The daily activities will be held in Dinkins Student Center, and the evening events will be held in Kinard Hall. The Student Affairs building will act as the center for the program.

Resume and interviewing seminars will be held on Monday and Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Included in this time are several guest speakers, including Masone. On Wednesday, local school districts will set up displays for students. On Thursday, businesses, government agencies and non-profit organizations will set up displays.

The evening programs will feature several speakers in Kinard. Dr. Bill Wells, director of counseling, has been confirmed as one of these speakers.

The program is open to all students regardless of class or major. Masone said, "These companies will be looking for students with good writing and communication skills."

"We have a number of businesses recruiting on campus. We encourage students, especially seniors, to check into us," said Masone.

Alcorn to perform

By LORI CASALE
TJ staff writer

Ken Alcorn, mime, will perform at Dinkins Student Center on Thursday, October 3. He will “create illusions from air, tell stories with movements and express ideas, philosophies and dreams.”

Alcorn has been performing for college students for about five years. He also plays at clubs and for charity organizations, such as the New Jersey Hunger Project. He was the Master of Ceremonies at the Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy in 1984.

At Winthrop, Alcorn will perform two 45-minute shows, between which there will be a brief intermission. The program, which consists of many short scenes with a musical background, will be held on the first floor of Dinkins. It will start at about 11:45 a.m. and will be free for everyone.

DSU hopes that the time and location of this show will allow for college students for about five years. He also plays at clubs and for charity organizations, such as the New Jersey Hunger Project. He was the Master of Ceremonies at the Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy in 1984. Student activities.

Circle K helps others

By LORI CASALE
TJ staff writer

The Circle K Club is in its second year at Winthrop College this year. Circle K, sponsored by the Rock Hill Kiwanis Club, is a service organization through which college students can help both their communities and their campus.

Winthrop's Circle K received its charter in the fall of 1984. Last year's main project was helping the Children's Attention Home. Members painted rooms in the home and also took the children on several outings.

"I think we did very well last year, considering that we were a new organization," said Charles Way's Big Brother - Big Sister and Eddie Beaver-Hamilton added "Everyone is very enthusiastic," said Hamilton. "I really like helping people and I get this same feeling from others at the meetings."

Some projects planned by Circle K for this year include: Becky Hamilton - President, Denise Morton-presidential, Eddie Beaver-treasurer, Kiwanis and Circle K treasurer, and Dr. Houk professor of reith and human sexuality at Winthrop College. Circle K officers for 1985-86 include: Becky Hamilton-president, Charles Camp-vice president, Denise Morton-secretary, and Eddie Beaver-treasurer.

Circle K officers for 1985-86 include: Becky Hamilton-president, Charles Camp-vice president, Denise Morton-secretary, and Eddie Beaver-treasurer. Kiwanis and Circle K advisor is Dr. Houk.

Students interested in helping others are encouraged to join the club. Circle K club meetings are held every Tuesday at 8 p.m. in room 230 Dinkins. All interested students are welcome.

"We have a lot of members interested in this program," said Becky Hamilton. "We'd like to be part of it this year," said Hamilton.

The club presently has 23 members and is hoping more students will join.

"We want to grow," Hamilton said, "so that we're able to help even more people in our community."

Circle K will have a booth at Halloween Happening to help raise money for projects.

The first lecture, which was held in Dinkins on Sept. 16, was conducted by Stanley Graham, who counsels teenagers at the "Male's Place," a family planning center in Charlotte.

Graham's speech was about the different responsibilities males and females have in a relationship. He covered topics such as the consequences of premarital sex and the different types of birth control.

The second speech was given by Bennett, a professor of mental and human sexuality at Winthrop College, on September 17.

About 12 students attended the lecture. When asked why they attending the event, Bennett replies, "The interest is there, but sex is a very sensitive subject."

Bennett's topic of discussion was rape. He covered everything from what kind of person is more likely to be raped to clearing the myths about rape.

"People are not well informed; therefore, there is a lot of misconception," says Bennett.

The last day of this series of events was asked for a student discussion group. Led by Eddie Bright, president, and Ed Thomas vice-president of the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity, the group of students discussed issues concerning abortion and homosexuality.

Considering the turnout, Bennett said, "It was worthwhile to those who came." When people hear the word sex, they think they know all they have to know, says Ed Bright.

"Even if many didn't attend this event it is good that people are made aware of the fact that this kind of thing is being sponsored," Ed Thomas comments. "We all feel very strongly about it," says Bright.
