The Lantern, Chester S.C.- August 23, 1898

J T. Bigham
WASHINGTON. Dec., Aug. 19.—The politicians of both parties are afraid to express an opinion on the tariff question. This has been made plain by the withholding of the recommendations of the bipartisan joint committee to which Congress has appointed five committees to investigate the tariff. The committee, although it has no political direction, has made a study of the subject. It has considered the tariff as a whole and has come to the conclusion that it is not the proper subject for the consideration of Congress.

The cost of living is a matter of great concern to the American people. The government has been making efforts to keep the cost of living down, but it has not been successful. The government has been experimenting with various methods of lowering the cost of living, such as the imposition of tariffs on imported goods, the establishment of minimum wage laws, and the regulation of prices. However, these efforts have not been effective, and the cost of living continues to rise.

The government has been trying to lower the cost of living by reducing the cost of production. It has been experimenting with various methods of reducing the cost of production, such as the introduction of new technologies, the improvement of existing technologies, and the reduction of labor costs. However, these efforts have not been successful, and the cost of production continues to rise.

The government has been trying to lower the cost of living by increasing the supply of goods. It has been experimenting with various methods of increasing the supply of goods, such as the importation of foreign goods, the establishment of new sources of raw materials, and the increase of production. However, these efforts have not been successful, and the supply of goods continues to fall.

The government has been trying to lower the cost of living by reducing the demand for goods. It has been experimenting with various methods of reducing the demand for goods, such as the restriction of consumption, the reduction of imports, and the decrease of investment. However, these efforts have not been successful, and the demand for goods continues to increase.

The government has been trying to lower the cost of living by increasing the availability of resources. It has been experimenting with various methods of increasing the availability of resources, such as the expansion of foreign markets, the development of new resources, and the improvement of transportation. However, these efforts have not been successful, and the availability of resources continues to fall.
The Campaign Meeting.

Yesterday was a campaign day as the court house this morning being the meeting for the county. R. C. Caldwell, our candidate, introduced and introduced the speakers.

The first speaker was J. L. Glenn, the only candidate for auditor, who made a short address in opposition to higher education but thought the common schools were the department of education. He is an earnest advocate of fostering the common schools. He believes the people should have the right to decide whether the higher institutions should be established or not only vote it in but also vote it out if they wish.

The next speaker was Mr. B. A. Ragsdale, candidate for representative for Chester county, and who presented the ability to take care of the people over the country.

The last speaker was Mr. B. A. Regaudle, candidate for representative. While not opposed to higher education he had the feeling that schools needed the most attention. There is the want of the common schools of getting any benefits from the educational appropriations.

The three or four weeks may be divided into these three classes, viz: Those who drink to excess and others, and especially Mr. Martin, who had not the least intention to try to have the country live up to the people over the country.

The other party was Mrs. A. B. Blake, candidate for the office of auditor, subject to the recommendation of the party.

The above-named stallion will be shown during the fair, the same as the horses and cattle at the fair. The officers shall take place when they evacuate the city for the Mexican army and shall be returned to the Board of County auditors.

Officers and men included in the capitulation shall be supplied by the United States, according to the terms of capitulation, and they cannot be compelled to strike, and the United States must pay the cost of feeding and transporting the men and all other public funds shall be turned over to the authorities of the United States.

Sixth—This city, its inhabitants, and the officers of our governments, and all other educational establishments and its property of all descriptions, are completely disarmed, and the United States shall be the sole custodians of the public property.

We are authorized to announce that W. H. C. Govett, as a candidate for the position of auditor of the county government, is considered for the position of auditor of the county government.

The above-named stallion will be shown during the fair, the same as the horses and cattle at the fair. The officers shall take place when they evacuate the city for the Mexican army and shall be returned to the Board of County auditors.

Men Not Minions.

There is a note sounded by many of our weekly publishers. They clearly recognize that South Carolina is to have on its ticket the largest number of fitted men to fill the offices. For once men were above politics, but there is a great deal of the various offices to be filled. It is not a question of measures, but a question of the best fitted man for the office. A great deal of the story in the New York Herald and News is now:

"The only question before the people of South Carolina is the question of selecting the best men—best fitted for the office. It is a question of the various offices to be filled. It is not a question of measures, but a question of the best fitted man for the office."
