Dinkins Student Union President Lane Bembrneek and ten members of his staff attended the Southeast Regional National Association of Campus Activities (NACA) Sept. 29-Oct. 2. It was held in Charleston, S.C. at the Radisson Francis Marion. Delegates from eight states attended.

"We went to many different kinds of programs that were designed to educate and motivate us," Bembrneek said. Meetings started at 8:30 a.m. with education sessions, which showed various ways to program committees and the value of a positive attitude.

Richardson raises funds

By TOM STEARNS

Richardson Hall's campaign for a new ice machine has run into financial problems, according to Richardson RA Barry Price. Price, who is in charge of fund raising for the icemaker, said, "The machine costs about $2,300. At present, we're about $1,400 short of that amount.

According to Price, the machine's list price is around $5,000. The state, however, receives a 65 percent discount. "It's a good deal," Price said. "And we're in desperate need of a machine. Our old one hasn't worked in years, and going to other dorms or public safety is very inconvenient."

Among the fundraisers planned are a campus wide room raffle. "We thought the raffle was a good idea," Price said. "We expected to sell $1,500 tickets or more, but so far we've only raised $400. We haven't raised enough money to pay for the room yet."

"I think one problem is that people don't realize the raffle is campus wide," Price continued. "Witness the efforts to sell the tickets. Anyone in any dorm can win. They simply sign up for the room and pay for it. That's a $600 value, for only a $1 ticket." Another fundraising idea is a dunking machine outside Richardson. "We raised $100, after we paid for the use of the machine," Price said. "The Raffle tickets will continue to be sold until Oct. 17."

"I think it's good that it's taking so long to raise the money," Price said. "I think the effort will make people appreciate it more when we finally get it, and maybe they'll take better care of the machine." Price said. "I think the effort will make people appreciate it more when we finally get it, and maybe they'll take better care of it."

Future fundraisers, according to Price, may include a car wash and a candy sales. "Residence life, formerly housing, started us off with a $400 donation," he said. "They would have given more when we finally get it, and maybe they'll take better care of the machine."

"I think the ice machine is important to the dorm," Price said. "It's little touches like this that make a dorm more than a place to sleep: it makes it a place to live."

Komkov receives national award

Viault leads study cade

By WENDI DEES

Winthrop College will offer a rare opportunity for students to learn more about the Soviet Union through the Studycade USSR ‘86.

Studycade USSR ’86 will visit sights of Leningrad and Moscow and also Soviet republics of Georgia, Armenia, and Estonia. Students will meet and talk with Soviet citizens who have interests similar to their own.

The trip will last from July 20 through August 9, and will cost $2,399, all inclusive from New York. Dr. Birdsall Viault, chairperson of Winthrop’s history department, will lead the expedition.

Viault led a group to the Soviet Union in 1981, in association with the Citizen Exchange Council (CEC), which is also coordinating Studycade USSR ’86. CEC guides, speaking both Russian and English, will accompany this year’s group throughout the trip.

Three or six undergraduate semester hours credit or three graduate credits, may be earned by qualified students. For more details, contact Viault at 323-2173.

Magic of Learning” airs

By LORI CASALE
TJ staff writer

“The Magic of Learning,” the television show created and produced by Dr. Glen Walter, associate professor, School of Education, will be back on the air this month.

It will be seen locally on WNST channel 30, Rock Hill and on WRET channel 49, Spartanburg.

“The Magic of Learning” is a program featuring outstanding teachers and innovative programs in South Carolina’s public schools. It combines videotapes of the teachers and programs in action with studio-attendence question and answer segments. The 30-minute show, hosted by Walter, is filmed at the featured school. The studio audience is comprised of parent-teacher organizations from these schools.

Walter created the show four years ago in hopes to counter what he perceived to be too much negativity public about teachers and education.

“I thought it would be nice if there was a program to emphasize what the effective teachers were doing,” said Walter.

Beginning in April 1986, the weekly program will be aired state wide over ETV network. Walter hopes, too, that “The Magic of Learning” will eventually be aired on commercial television.

“We need to let the people see that there are outstanding teachers and excellent programs in our school system, that they are, in fact, creating the magic of learning,” said Walter.

“The more we can show the more the public can appreciate the fine teachers we do have,” Walter concluded.

A.T.S. entertainment rocks

By JILLIAN COFFIN
TJ staff writer

Mac Swygert, chairperson of Student Activities of DSU, said, “A lot of students are not familiar with ATS.”

Across the Street (ATS) is a part of the Student Union. ATS provides a variety of entertainment, ranging from rock and roll to comedy.

ATS features entertainment on Monday and Tuesday nights, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

“The entertainment provided by ATS is free to Winthrop students,” said Swygert.

Although beer and wine are served, Swygert stressed that, “ATS is not just open to the drinking crowd. It is open to all Winthrop students.”

Suygert said, “Our Jeff Williams makes the best popcorn around, and it is free.”

Byte, a Rock Hill band, is scheduled to perform Oct. 21-22. As a Halloween treat, a DJ will be featured Oct. 28-29.

Chip Franklin, a stand up comedian, will perform on Nov. 11 and 12.

On Dec. 2-3, ATS will host a Christmas surprise. ATS is located downstairs Dinkins. Anyone who is interested in student entertain ment or knows of any should contact Mac Swygert in the DSU office or call 2249.

“I’m open for any suggestions,” Swygert concluded.

Phon-a-thon raises funds

By SHANNON HENDRIX

The Seventh Annual Winthrop phonathon will be held Sunday, Oct. 13-24 from 5:45 to 9:30 p.m. at 302 Tillman.

The phon-a-thon, which began in 1978, grew into a major fund-raiser for the Alumni Annual Fund. Scholarship funds, library funds and professor endowments increase each year as alumni increase their activity in the Alumni Association.

This year's two-week phonathon will be held in the newly renovated third floor Tillman. Students and faculty raised $275,000 to restore Tillman. Marti Curran, alumni director, and Sharon Greene, assistant alumni director, hope to increase last year's pledges.

The Daniel Foundation of S.C. will award Winthrop College $275,000 to restore Tillman Auditorium if the Alumni Association matches it. More than 50 groups on Winthrop campus were invited by the Alumni Association to help in this year's phon-a-thon. Registration forms were distributed to each group's president. This helped the Alumni Association estimate the number of outside help they would receive.

Curran and Greene were excited about the variety of students that are helping this year. "The phon-a-thon gives a two-fold purpose," Greene said. "It gives alumni an opportunity to speak to a student about Winthrop today as well as ask for a contribution." Greene said that the phon-a-thon provides students to learn about the Alumni Association and all that's involved.

Each agenda begins with dinner at 5:45-6:15 provided by the Alumni Association. A training session from 6:15 to 6:45 p.m. to teach students how to telephone alumni, and how to explain the Daniel Foundation Challenge. From 6:45 to 9:30 p.m. students call alumni all over the nation and request pledges.

Competition will play a major part in this year's volunteer efforts. Kim Grant, volunteer chairman, has made it possible for all students to participate this year. Prizes will be awarded each night to the individual who raises the most money. The overall group winners will receive prizes which include $200 cash for first place, $150 second place, and $50 third place. Overall individual winners will receive a beach trip with condominium, second place winner receives $50 and third place $25. Anyone interested in the phon-a-thon may contact Curran or Greene at 2145.

Byrd elected to advisory board

Mary Jeanne Byrd, political science instructor, has been elected the first female chairperson of the South Carolina Insurance Commission.

The S.C. Insurance Commission is an advisory board to the insurance department. It sets rates for auto insurance (and other types), it licenses agencies and companies to sell insurance, and it examines those agencies and companies to see that they are fiscally sound and legitimate. "Our main purpose is to try to oversee and regulate the Insurance Department so that it is fair and non-discriminatory," said Byrd.

The commission meets once a month, or when necessary, and each member is appointed to the advisory board by Gov. Dick Riley. Byrd was the first woman appointed to the commission in 1980. At that time, members could serve an indefinite term. Now, members serve one six-year term.

She added, "It's an interesting experience for me. State and local government is my specialty. I have the opportunity to see how it works from the inside. This experience will help me make a better teacher."

Policy needs revision

By LISA BUIE
TJ editor

Can faculty make students attend class? According to Winthrop's student reference guide, they can.

The policy, which was passed at a faculty conference in March of 1980, states that students are not allowed to miss more than 25 percent of class meetings during that semester. If the student misses 25 percent or more of class meetings, the student will receive a grade of N, F, or U, "whichever is appropriate." In other words, a student who misses at least 25 percent and still makes an "A" will not get credit for the course.

This policy appears to be too high-handed. First, no one should be able to make someone attend class. Students are adults and should be considered responsible enough to make their own decisions concerning class attendance. Attendance policies belong in high schools.

Second, the policy is unfair to intelligent students. Most people who fail to attend class do not make passable grades, but what about those students who can still make outstanding grades even if they miss more than 25 percent of class meetings? If they don't attend and can make good grades, then they deserve those grades. If they fail the course, then that is consequence enough and an attendance policy is not needed.

A good idea to solve the problem would be to reexamine the current policy. Students with outstanding GP's should be allowed unlimited cuts as long as we take the time to keep their grades above a certain level. Not only would this provide incentives for academic achievement, but would also be fair to students who have no trouble making the grade. Granted, class attendance may have much to do with academic success, but it should be the student's right to decide if attending class is beneficial to him.

Cafeteria blues

By MONNIE WHITSON
TJ news editor

Let me just put it to you bluntly—I hate our cafeteria food. Most of it, that is. I do enjoy the steak-and-steam sandwiches, which they rarely serve. But I am sick of broccoli rolls, chicken salad, and stale-syrup chicken fillet sandwiches, which I rarely serve. And I am tired of the delicacies our cafeteria makes almost weekly. It's not so much that I hate it (because I can always eat out), it's the fact that I don't have to pay for it. If I didn't have to buy a meal plan I wouldn't believe me. But if we live on campus in a dorm we are required to buy a meal plan. It would seem so much easier and less expensive if we just paid for the food we ate. But no—we must purchase meals ahead of time—which is something I don't do.

Just think of it though—Eric's is a bundle on those students who don't eat. For example, a student pays about $400 for a 21-meal plan. He or she can use that money to buy as much food as possible. But doing this, he or she pays Eric's a bunch of money that he or she could use to make the food a little more appealing. And another thing—why don't our cafeteria attendants serve us with a smile? Even when my food looks pre-eaten (I smile and say thank you. The server just grunts at me. They must really hate their job. Maybe they should be writing this editorial.

I know there's nothing that can be done concerning meal plan purchases, because Winthrop has a contract with Eric's. So all Eric's has to do is pull out right under our noses.

I'm in the process, however, of developing a plan to take over Eric's. If we do, we can demand that Eric's stock his shelves with better food. And if they do, you can thank me.

Letters to the editor

Foremen

Dear ex-naive and aimless child,

In regard to your most recent letter to the campus newspaper in which you posed a few questions. Are freshmen the only people who litter? Are they the only ones who are so afraid that they are afraid of their own stupefied minds? Did you ever have the temerity to ask why those freshmen who do not like to eat in the cafeteria do so?

It is interesting to me that you mention the cafeteria attendants serve us with a smile. In fact, I have found that they serve us with a smile, a frown, and a sneer. They are certainly not the only people who like loud music and the only people who like to play their music loudly. They are also not the only people who like to smoke cigarettes.

So far this semester you have displayed a lack of respect for the institution. You should not say something nice if you can't say anything nice at all.

Jan Hall

Dear Editor,

In the September 30 edition of the Johnnian, Mr. Mark Wood wrote an article entitled "Foremen-A Strange Breed." In this article he stereotyped all freshmen into a class of "naive and aimless children.

I think that this article is narrow-minded, biased and totally unfair to freshmen. The article attributed bad habits and appalling behavior to freshmen as if none of this behavior was exhibited by upperclassmen. He also suggested that freshmen attend a one-year "pseudo-college" before being admitted into a school with "normal students." These normal students being upperclassmen.

This idea of establishing a one-year institution is totally absurd. Everyone has been a freshman at one time or another. And freshmen learn by using upperclassmen as their role models. How can we learn if we have some upperclassmen? The sophomores at this three-year institution would not be sophomores; they would simply be second-year freshmen who are not freshmen anymore. Stereotyping freshmen as "naive and aimless children" is not the answer. Who is Mr. Wood to say that someone is naive? Is it not naive of him to suggest the idea of establishing a one-year school for freshmen? Isn't it naive for him to assume that all freshmen act and think the same way when he has apparently only studied the behavior of a few.

His implication that only upperclassmen know how to use the garbage can is ridiculous. Did he base this opinion on a night in Richardson or has this writer observed the behavior of all freshmen when in the cafeteria?

This whole article implied that freshmen don't know anything. Apparently the author studied the behavior of a few freshmen and then grouped the whole class into the same category. Well, I just don't think this is fair.

In the future it would be wise for Mr. Wood to direct his comments to the group of freshmen that he offended him. Hiding behind his newspaper column is not the answer.

Iris Branch-Freshman

First, Mr. Wood is correct in his assumption that our class enjoys music. We appreciate aesthetics, and although many of our classmates listen to Led Zeppelin, a good portion of us prefer the intellectual stimulation provided by the sounds of Ratt and Quiet Riot. We are sorry, however, that 40,000 decibel level at all of us do not listen to our music as a way to disturb Mr. Wood and all of the other upperclassmen he speaks for, but we do have one teenty, tiny problem with the validity of his complaint. Since most people (even upperclassmen) listen to their music either in the morning, afternoon, or at night, as Mr. Wood so aptly points out, and none of them seem to suit the schedule of the "busy upperclassmen," perhaps Mr. Wood would be interested enough to invent a new time zone especially for freshmen enjoyment.

Next, Mr. Wood correctly points out that some freshmen do litter on occasion. How horrible! But let us help your accuser... If the freshmen are the only ones to blame for dirty bathrooms, then, by all means, perhaps we should use the same for the littered whole campus or even the state of South Carolina. Certainly, no one else has ever left a little bit of trash behind. Shoot! While you're at it, go ahead and blame us for the pollution problem of the entire United States. Thank you.
Letters to editor

Mr. Wood brings up a grand solution to all of Winthrop's problems with the unruly freshman class by proposing a one-year "pseudo-college." This is the best idea we have ever heard. By simply eliminating the entire freshman class, he will do away with any inconveniences that we may cause them. Maybe next year Mr. Wood will propose to eliminate the sophomore class, and eventually he will be the only student at Winthrop College. I guess then Winthrop will be called the Mark Wood Institute for Jackasses. Good luck, Mark.

Waking up to physical fitness

By MARK WOOD
TJ contributing editor

It seems as though every time I try to climb into bed to get some sleep the phone rings. If it's not someone wanting to know what the homework assignment for news writing was, it's a wrong number.

But it never fails, and Saturday was just another one of those times. Just as I had started on a much needed afternoon nap, ring, ring went the telephone.

"Who could it be now?" I thought as I stumbled to the phone. When I picked up the receiver I mustered up all of my strength into a weak, but determination to answer with a not-so-convincing, "Yeah, sure." So I ended up making an appointment to stop by the center and give the whole idea a shot.

When I arrived, I saw a lot of disturbing sights. Men with muscles so big that they had their own zip codes, could be seen in every area of the center. As I sat on the couch waiting, I saw hundreds of pounds of dead weight rise and fall accompanied by a symphony of grunts and "heave ho!"

Finally Mark came out to talk to me. He proceeded to show me around the club and ask me a host of embarrassing questions.

"Have you ever worked out in a club like this?" he asked.

"Are you following a regular exercise program right now?" he continued.

"Have you ever followed a regular exercise program?" By this time I was ready to leave. But we proceeded into the office where he hit me with the various member ship programs and their various prices. I used the worn out excuse—"But I'm just so busy these days!

"Do you have two or three hours a week?"

I was afraid he'd ask that one. By this time he nearly had me. At that time I had resolved myself to the fact that I was going to exercise whether I liked it or not. So I ended up signing up for the six-month non-renewable membership. I guess this means that I'm going to be exercising more now. But first let's get a little more sleep before the phone rings again.

Football

Dear Editor,

Winthrop's population is mainly gathered from people within the state of South Carolina. I would estimate that about 90 percent of the high schools in South Carolina have football teams that attract many local fans. The revenue of these games supports the other sports offered at those high schools. The games also generate enthusiasm from within the high schools.

Again I would like to thank Mr. Duke for bluntly stating the truth about how Winthrop can't attract more male students. I encourage all students who feel the same as I do to please act in some manner to get a football team at Winthrop College.

Keeping up the good work

By LAURIE ANNE DEDES

TJ sports editor

Well, gang, some of the results are in and Winthrop isn’t doing half bad. In fact, in some areas, we are doing excellently!

After a slow start, the women’s volleyball team pounded out five wins in their last six games. They now have a 6-3 record. The women finished third in the Chi-Fi-A Tournament at USC-Spartanburg where they picked up four of the five latest victories.

During the tournament, the ladies beat Catawba College 15-5, 15-4, USC-Spartanburg 15-13, 11-15, 15-10, Furman 15-5, 15-0 and Coastal Carolina 15-7, 14-16, 15-9. The Lady Eagles were only beaten by the College of Charleston, Lady Cougars with a score of 18-16, 5-15, 5-15.

The fifth win for Winthrop was against the Lady Tigers of Clemson who beat them earlier this season on home turf. The Lady Eagles invaded Clemson last week and beat them 15-13, 15-13, 15-12. As I predicted the ladies really turned the record around. They have shown a good deal of improvement since the start of the season.

In other sports, the men’s cross country team, led by Richard Golden, now has a 19-13 record. During the USC-Spartanburg Invitational, the men finished fourth out of nine other teams. Golden finished with the best time of 27:13 for the five-mile course. The Winthrop runners are Eric Fearn and Clay Boswell. Boswell, from Spartanburg, has recorded times of 27:41 (5 miles) and 27:38 (5 miles). Overall, in the last two meets, he finished 16 and 11.

Two freshmen who have surprised the Winthrop runners are Eric Fearn and Clay Boswell. Boswell, from Spartanburg, has recorded times of 22:33 (4 miles), 27:41 (5 miles) and 27:38 (5 miles). In the last two meets, Fearn finished 16 and 11.

While the volleyball and cross country teams are on the upswing, Jim Caruso’s soccer team is barely pulling out of its slump. The Eagle soccer team managed to break its losing streak by edging Francis Marion 2-1 on the Winthrop field. With one second left on the clock Ralph Carrero pounced on the ball and made a goal into the net and brought victory to the Eagles and an end to their three-game losing streak. Doug Aldridge scored the only other goal for the Winthrop team.

I have a feeling that this year’s team is making a turnaround. They are led by junior Ralph Carrero. Carrero has started five of five games with two goals, two assists and six around. They are led by junior Ralph Carrero. Carrero has scored the only other goal for the Winthrop team.

The team has five players, but eight are wanted. According to Doug Aldridge, this lack of players is not a big problem right now. Aldridge played in five of five games making three goals, scoring six points and having only five fouls.

The women’s tennis team is putting its best foot forward and working out hard, according to Assistant Coach Stephen Brown. They are presently doing the best job they can under the circumstances; they need three more players.

On top of losing players after graduation, both Carolyn Leake and Karen Roof are at present ineligible players. Spring however, both ladies should be in good standing to play.

The team has five players, but eight are wanted. According to Brown, this lack of players is not a big problem right now. Brown does see a problem in the spring though because the team is expected to have enough players by then.

At 6:30 a.m., most people are still getting their beauty rest, weakest showers, and when the tennis, but will be eligible and not the Lady Eagles tennis season comes around they ready for spring competition. The team is working hard and has three openings they now have permanently filled.

Although the tennis team is lacking players, they have not been discouraged or let down. Brown and the players realize that their game will definitely improve in the spring when they get three new girls coming in are sure to be behind. But hopefully, they will also be able to catch up in time for spring matches.

During the tournament the ladies beat Catawba College 15-5, 15-4, USC-Spartanburg 15-13, 11-15, 15-10, Furman 15-5, 15-0 and Coastal Carolina 15-7, 14-16, 15-9. The Lady Eagles were only beaten by the College of Charleston, Lady Cougars with a score of 18-16, 5-15, 5-15.

The team has five players, but eight are wanted. According to Doug Aldridge, this lack of players is not a big problem right now. Aldridge played in five of five games making three goals, scoring six points and having only five fouls.

That’s how the fall season stands so far. It’s not too bad for half-way through our first season in the NCAA.

Way to go, guys (and ladies). Keep up the good work.

The Winthrop Golf Association hosted a tournament on Saturday, Sept. 21 at the Winthrop Golf Course. Tom Webb, associate dean for student activities, led the field with a three over par 73 to win the low score honors. The remainder of the field participated in a handicap tournament with Anthony Foster, graduate student, posting an adjusted score of 80 to win with Mike Hammond, mathematics department, finishing second, and Mark McCarthy, finishing third. McCarthy also took longest drive honors with Hammond posting fewest putts 98. Kevin Bogle, alumni, took three of three wins closest to pin honors (holes No. 2, 11 and 18) while Denis Wright, associate dean for arts and sciences, won honors on 49.

The Winthrop Golf Association is open to Winthrop students, faculty, and staff, who enjoy the game of golf, regardless of skill level. WGA will host additional tournaments this fall. For more information, call the school of business, finishing third. McCarthy also took longest drive honors with Hammond posting fewest putts 98. Kevin Bogle, alumni, took three of three wins closest to pin honors (holes No. 2, 11 and 18) while Denis Wright won honors on Nine.

“Extremities” reviewed

By SUSAN WALTON
TJ staff writer

“Extremities” was a drama well worth the effort. I want to make it clear from the beginning, however, that I speak solely from a layman’s point of view. I make no claim of being a drama critic. I can only tell you my personal reactions to the play.

Before seeing “Extremities” I had heard all types of unusual descriptions such as “explicit language and violence.” Well, I must admit that my curiosity was aroused.

Now, after seeing the play, I can honestly say that all I heard McCullough and the both excellent was true and much, much more. What I was not prepared for was the high quality of the production or the seriousness of its theme. “Extremities” is a play that really must be seen to be understood. It is a classical portrayal of “survival of the fittest.” The victim of an attempted rape overcomes her aggressor and makes him a prisoner of her anger and revenge. In a twisted turn of events the innocent becomes the victimizer.

Kimberly Harne brought the confused and tormented “Marcy” to life right before the audience’s eyes.

Timothy Gardner did an exceptionally professional job in portraying the criminal and comic “Raul.” Linda Day and Charmaine I commend all those involved in “Extremities” for a job very well done!

Joynes offers services

Joynes Center for Continuing Education offers a variety of services to Winthrop faculty, students, the Rock Hill community and national corporations. Dr. Don Horst, director of Joynes.

In addition to dealing with students, the Rock Hill community and national corporations, said Dr. Don Horst, director of Joynes. “Our master space calendar” is at Joynes, and it is used to coordinate all activities on campus. The regular classroom assignments are a few that use the facilities at Joynes. Businesses use the center for professional seminars and training activities for individual businesses, said Horst. How he said that businesses who are impressed by the students, faculty and the campus donate valuable contacts for fund raising.

News” to help Winthrop professors realize to what factors students attribute their failures in classes.

Modaresi investigated this situation during the fall semester of 1984. He gave questionnaires to 607 Winthrop students in randomly selected courses. The questionnaires asked students to rate ten different statements that attributed factors to the cause of the students’ failure to either external or internal factors.

Modaresi reported that students usually blamed themselves, which would be an intrinsic factor, far more than they blamed external factors regardless of the conditions involved with the course.

He went on to report that the times students did blame the external factors, the blame varied with how they perceived the course and the instructor. Modaresi concluded the article by telling teachers that they should try to make their students like them better and to let students know that they do care if they learn the material.

Anyone wanting to read the article should go by Modaresi’s office, which is located on the first floor of Thurmond, to receive a copy.

Gov. Riley and Spratt discuss hazardous wastes

By ROBIN ADDIS
Special to the TJ

Gov. Richard Riley and Congressman John Spratt will be on campus Oct. 17-18 in conjunction with Piedmont Medical Center. It will present a conference entitled “Responsibility Management of Hazardous Wastes” at Joynes Center for Continuing Education, according to Dr. Don Horst, director of Joynes.

The United States generates 250 million metric tons a year of toxic wastes, and South Carolina has one of two licensed dumping grounds in the Southeast with one million pounds already buried there. Horst said that the conference will address these issues, as well as encourage informal exchanges of information between state and local officials, key business leaders and interested citizens.

The overview of the problem with toxic wastes and the state and federal regulations concerned with it will be given by Dr. Winston Porter, Williams, who is an assistant administrator for solid waste and emergency response of Environmental Protection Agency on Thursday night.

Joel Hirschhorn, senior associate of the office of technology assessment, will begin Friday by speaking on the varied dimensions of the problems of hazardous waste. Linda Grier, staff scientist, Toxic Chemicals Program, and Environmental Defense Fund, will briefly discuss the regulation of hazardous waste under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

Risks in landfill disposal of hazardous wastes will be the topic of a panel discussion at 11 a.m. Lynn Cooper, chairman, S.C. Chamber of Commerce Technical Committee on Environmental Affairs, EPA; Hirschhorn; Grier; William E. Stilwell, vice president of Chemical Service Group, EXXON Landfill, Pinewood, S.C.; Robert Malpass, director, Bureau of Solid Waste Management, Department of Health and Environmental Control, Julie Jordon, executive director, National Conference of State Legislators, Denver, Colo.; William Want, professor of environmental law, George Washington University and University of Maryland will participate.

Following Governor Riley’s speech at 12:30 P.M., the alternatives to landfill disposal will be addressed. Dan Becker, legislative director, Waste and Toxic Substances Project, Environmental Action (Washington D.C.); Al Bullington, president, ABCO, Spartanburg, S.C.; John Dickinson, chairman, N.C./S.C. Unit, Waste Engineering Section, EPA; Hirschhorn; and Want will participate.

The final topic of the two day conference will be “Superfund” which was established in 1980 to react to toxic disasters like Love Canal in New York and Times Beach in Missouri. The Associated Press reported that funds will dry up for that program Monday, Sept. 30. Thomas Devine, director, Waste Management Division, Washington IV, EPA; Grier; Dan Becker; Hirschhorn; Robert Malpass will discuss this issue and plans for continuing “Superfund.”

Closing remarks will be made at 4 p.m. by Spratt. Those people planning to attend must register by Oct. 11. Cost is $50.

Professor publishes article
