FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

SMITH LACKED NERVE.

Practically all of the voters of South Carolina, except possibly those who have come into their majority during the last year or two, are familiar with the Senatorial race between Smith, Blaise, Pollock and Jennings. It will be recalled that both Pollock and Jennings stumped the entire State and before the people the record of Coleman Livingston Blaise. In this election Blaise was defeated and Smith was elected.

The voters will recall that Smith's battle was fought vigorously by Pollock and Jennings and Smith did not have the nerve to hold a Blaise record to the people.

In mentioning the incident, The Columbia Record says:

"Just a few years ago, the peopery Pollock and the redoubtable and big-hearted Lang Jennings (whom God bless and preserve to a future of usefulness to his State), were doing a secret service on every stump in South Carolina from which Ellison Durant Smith shrunk. The only possible beneficiary of this historic contest was Ellison Durant Smith. Did he expose his previous fingers? Not so you could notice it. Did he adventure a benefit to his 'corporation'? Never! Pollock and Jennings did all of that—and 'God bless 'em for it! In that year, Ellison Durant Smith was a beneficiary as he was always, and as he will be always; if the people of South Carolina will stand for him. He never had the guts to fight his own battle then, and his alliance now with the influences from which he had to be protected in 1914, by men who had nothing to gain but the love and respect of their fellow-citizens, is a confession of his dishonesty. Which needs no emphasis from us."

In an advertisement Senator R. D. Smith says in part: "South Carolina will not surrender to the white key interests." Senator Smith offers in the advertisement that Geo. Warren is being backed by the white key interests, wherever they are. Every South Carolinian who is acquainted with George Warren knows by his private and public life that he is a prohibitionist. Every college mate of George Warren in Clemson college, knows that there is not a higher toned gentleman in the State than George Warren.

While The News has supported George Warren in his candidacy for the Senate it has, admitted the facts used by Senator Smith until now, the eleventh hour, he shows himself up as a liar, over his signature, to attempt by false statements to make the good name of a good man. The News is more than obliged to know that Senator Smith would attempt such tactics in order to gain support South Carolina in the United States Senate.

Press dispatches indicate that cotton mills not in this section of the country, but throughout the New England States are closing down, while some are running on short time, due to the fact that they are unable to secure orders for their goods.

No one can blame the cotton mills for curtailing production when they have no market for their goods but the fact that they are running, on short time does not mean that the world can get along without cotton goods and the farmers should not become excited over the incident. They should hold on to their cotton until they can get a profitable price for it. The market for cotton goods will pick up sooner or later. The world must have cloth.

The Department of Agriculture has issued a report in which it is stated that at the present time conditions indicate that South Carolina will make over one and one-quarter million bales of cotton. The American Cotton Association showed some time ago that there was no dependence to be put in the government report of the cotton crop. The whole business of expected cotton production seems to be purely guessing and is usually high enough to raise the price of cotton to drop. The farmers of this country have a helping hand in the American Cotton Association and it is to be hoped that they will take advantage of the opportunity now offered them and support the organization to the last man.

Fred Sam, a Syrian, died early Wednesday morning at the Chester Sanatorium, from the effects of a bullet wound in the head, inflicted by himself last Sunday at Winthrop.

It is stated that Sam was despondent over financial affairs which was the cause of his act.

Wins Over 24 other American Tractors in Economy Test

It won the first place in the famous International Tests held near Lincoln, England, in a competition based on the fuel consumption per 100 pounds drawbar pull, the only logical method of comparing tractor efficiency. The E-B 12-20 Tractor operated with the least amount of fuel in heavy wet clay and in medium light loam.

A steady pull of 3600 pounds was sustained at plowing speed, which was greater than that developed by any tractor of equal rating. It took 4000 pounds drawbar pull to skid the drive wheels. This made the relation of weight to drawbar pull 90 per cent efficient—a record not equaled by either wheel or crawler type.

The fuel saved in a year by this tractor means a substantial profit. Let us demonstrate to you why the E-B 12-20 Tractor is a miser on fuel.

HELD IN WINNSBORO.

Fort Mill Women Have Humiliating Experience.

A story of humiliation to which women in this section are seldom subjected was last night told The Times by J. J. Denton, employee of Mill No. 1, of the Fort Mill Manufacturing Company. In describing with him was the experience of his wife, Mrs. Coon Ayers, of Winnsboro, and Miss Katie Dulin, of Fort Mill.

"My wife," he said, "is a sister of Mrs. Ayers as is Miss Dulin. Several days ago they received word from Mrs. Ayers, who was living at the Winnsboro cotton mill with her husband, to come to see her, the message alleging that she was critically ill. In company with Bud Dulin, her brother, and his wife, my wife and Miss Dulin left at once for Winnsboro, but upon reaching that town they learned that Mrs. Ayers was not ill. Bud Dulin and his wife returned to Fort Mill at once, but my wife and Miss Dulin remained in Winnsboro with Mrs. Ayers, as she had told them that it was her intention to return with them to Fort Mill as soon as a favorable opportunity developed for her to get away from her husband, whom she claimed had mistreated her.

"Saturday morning, August 28th, that opportunity seemed to present itself and the three women left for Rockton, two miles south of Winnsboro, expecting to take the train there for Fort Mill. Learning that Mrs. Ayers where they were hired, a transfer to take them to White Oak, a few miles north of Winnsboro, to board the train there instead of at Rockton. When they reached White Oak they were arrested by the sheriff of Fairfield county upon a warrant sworn out by Ayers charging them with an attempt to poison him. All three were taken back to Winnsboro and held by the sheriff until Friday, an investigation by the Fairfield authorities meanwhile having disclosed the fact that the alleged attempt at poisoning was a frame-up by Ayers to get even with his wife and her sisters because she had made up her mind to leave him.

Mr. Denton said he made the foregoing statement to The Times to clear up a possible misunderstanding of the unfortunate experience of his wife and her sisters. The Fort Mill Times.

WARREN CALLS SMITH.

Neither Senator Smith nor his friend, District Attorney Weston, have denied that Mr. Weston has been a visitor to ex-Governor Blaise's office during the campaign of a short while prior to the sending out of the famous Blaise letter. Will Mr. Weston now deny that he was visiting Blaise's office or that he went there in regard to this particular letter?

Will ex-Governor Blaise deny it? Will Mr. Weston deny that it had been many years since he had been to Blaise's office, if he had ever been there, or engaged him in conversation?

Will ex-Governor Blaise deny it? Will Mr. Weston or Senator Smith deny that the letter signed "Cole" was typewritten by persons representing one or the other of them?

Will ex-Governor Blaise deny it? Will any of the parties above mentioned tell the people who had the envelopes addressed that carried the letters and at whose expense?

Will they of them tell the people who furnished the stamps for the letters?

Will they tell the people who furnished the list for them? Mr. Weston has denied that he is Senator Smith's campaign manager. Probably not, but he will not admit that he holds public office today through the influence of Senator Smith and that he is now actively supporting his candidacy for re-election.

Senator Smith denies he is in collusion with ex-Governor Blaise to bring about the defeat of Mr. Weston. Let's look at the facts. He has admitted that he received a letter from ex-Governor Blaise dated August 6, in which Blaise tendered him his support with authority to use the letter, that he replied to it August 9, accepting the ex-Governor's offer and thanking him for it. The Blaise letter to his supposed friends was dated August 18, but was not mailed until some days later. Mr. Weston has not yet denied that he was in Blaise's office between August 18 and August 31, and during the time of the mailing out of the letters, and he dare not do so. Those are admitted facts. If they show collusion, let's let the people know.

Warren's defeat and Senator Smith's re-election, what do they show?

Boldridge, of the City Health Department, was very much damaged last night on York street when Captain Boldridge drove it into a Buick roadster belonging to Capt. The accident happened during the heavy rain and pass another automobile he drove in to the Buick roadster, which he did not see. The Buick was also damaged but not so much as Capt. Boldridge's car.

Will ex-Governor Blaise deny it? Will Mr. Weston or Senator Smith deny that the letter signed "Cole" was typewritten by persons representing one or the other of them? Will ex-Governor Blaise deny it? Vote For Mauldin

I am very proud of the large vote given me in the primary on August 31st, because that vote was the reward of the clean campaign I conducted. I do not want the office of Lieutenant Governor, not any other office, if to obtain it I have to employ other than the fairest and cleanest methods.

Though born and raised in the populous Piedmont section of South Carolina, I never appeared to any sectional feeling, and any insinuation to the contrary is absolutely false. My opponent continually and adroitly drew that line by insinuating that I was doing so. The proof that I was drawn for him is that every low county county want for him, while the Piedmont counties, as usual, divided.

Though a member of as many fraternal orders as my opponent, I never listed these memberships in any literature I distributed, nor referred to them in any speech or private conversation during the campaign; nor did I wear any insignia of any of them. I would scorn to ride into office on fraternal order membership. I respect too highly my membership in the order which have admitted me to their ranks to seek to use them as stepping stones to office.

I did mention my service as a soldier in the Spanish-American and World Wars, not because I thought this double volunteer military at the call of my Country qualified me for civic office, but because it was a guarantee of my patriotism, and because one of my opponents often said on the stump, that other things being equal, the voters ought to cast their ballots for any office, to give their preference to the man who had risked his life in the uniform of his Country.

Are there other things equal between myself and the opponent with whom I run over the second primary? I have had legislative experience, and he has not, and unless the governor should die in office, which God forbid, the service of Lieutenant Governor is wholly legislative. I was elected to the Legislature from Greenville County from a field of 21 candidates, by the largest vote ever given a candidate for that office for Greenville County. Being a farmer as well as a lawyer, I knew the needs of the farmers and could serve them in the Legislature with my knowledge of law. I was so helpful in warehouse legislation that the farmers composing the warehouse association of South Carolina invited me to make the race for Lieutenant Governor in 1918, which I would have done had not my service in Europe that Summer made it impossible.

My opponent in the most general terms says that he is in favor of labor. I was the only candidate who made specific declarations satisfactory to labor and fair to capital. I did this at the first campaign meeting in Columbia and at a number of other meetings during the campaign. I have never been a corporation lawyer, and have always been supported by the votes of the working men of my county. They knew I am their friend because I have proven my friendship to them.

I have not been a factionalist and have not appealed to any factional feeling or prejudice in this campaign. We can never have the needed harmony in South Carolina if the division of the past are to be perpetuated. I determined the votes of today. My opponent preached harmony on every stump, and yet so far as I am able to observe, is the only candidate in the state campaign who has sought to profit by reviving the bitter factional antagonisms of the recent past.

I want the vote of every white Democrat, regardless of his past factional line-up.

OSCAR K. MAULDIN

To the Voters of Chester County

I carried Chester County by 200 votes. I wish to thank my friends for making such a magnificent showing. I appreciate their friendship, their loyalty, their support. I urge them to stand fast and firm. I made a champion, I made no flaccid suaves. I invoked no special prejudices. I wished to be elected by all the people and to represent all the people, irrespective of class, conditions or previous political affiliation. I said that on every stump. I still say it. Be sure and vote on Tuesday. Look after my interest. I am depending on my friends. I believe they will respond. I ask those who did not vote for me before to do so now.

RETIREMENT FOR AGE

(By H. Addington Bruce.)

All over the land are men and women holding various public and private positions who know that, at a certain time in the not distant future, they will be automatically forced to retire to private life because of having reached a specified age.

How many of them, I wonder, have given any thought to the question of how they will occupy themselves when the inevitable time of their retirement comes?

Not a few of them, I am sure, are rejecting the idea that they will then not have to occupy themselves at all. They look forward to spending their declining years in a well-earned, effortlessness. To this end they have year by year been laying aside a part of their earnings.

One is loath to undergo, them. But the plain truth is that a wholly effortless leisure is usually a wretched leisure, and is besides a leisure dangerous to the health of body and mind alike.

It is, in fact, a commonplace of everyday observation that again and again former officeholders, when they retire, "at the age of 65, soon after their retirement, fall away. This even when they have seemed both mentally and physically vigorous at the time of relinquishing office.

The natural assumption is that without knowing it, they have worn themselves out by devotion to duty. In a certain percentage of cases this assumption no doubt is sound.

But unexpected breakdowns also come to quibblers whose public duties have never made any particularly exacting demands on them. Yet, freed from all work, they speedily collapse.

Study their histories and it will generally be found that they are devotees of the effortless leisure life. At all events, they are people who have gone into retirement without taking care to provide a substitute for the work which has so long given them mental occupation.

And, no matter how old one may be, occupation of some sort is to be maintained. It is to be maintained.

That is a psychological truism, so that those who can afford to ignore it. Least of all can those who afford to ignore it who have been accustomed to do a definite work and to do it with regularity.

Wherefore the wise officeholder confronted with the certainty of ultimate retirement at 65 or 67 years of age, will make it a point to develop some special interest or interests outside his work.

He will cultivate a hobby of some sort—music, art, literature, golf, if matters not what—so interesting to him that he will be able to devote himself to it enthusiastically when his working days are done.

Otherwise retirement is pretty sure to mean for him boredom and discontent, and may further—magnifying aches, pains, and a general ill health seemingly inexplicable, but actually due to an inactivity against which nature revolts.

What Senator E. D. Smith Stands For And What He Has Done In Congress

"No man dares question the war record of South Carolina's Senior Senator, E. D. Smith, during the war emergency."

He is the greatest authority on cotton; and cotton production in the United States Senate today. His advice and utterances on cotton are closely watched by Wall Street. So much so that the cotton gamblers and speculators of the North are fighting him for his advocacy of the cause of the Southern white farmer, and labor in general.

SOME OF THE THINGS HE HAS DONE:

He is the author or the exponent of:

The Cotton Futures Act, passed by Congress regulating the grades of cotton and restraint on the cotton gamblers and speculators.

The cotton farmers and truck farmers are indebted to him for his untiring effort in having inserted in the Federal Reserve Banking Act as a basis of credit cotton warehouse receipts.

Nitrate of Soda is essential to the farmers of this State. His untiring work along with others brought this product to the farmers during the war at cost, and released abundance of nitrates as soon as the armistice was signed.

He fought for the Federal Land Banks and had one of these banks located in our own state. He fought to restrict undesirable foreign immigration to keep down competition from the low classes of Southern Europe in the cotton mills and industrial establishments, so that the native workman would not have his wages lowered. LABOR WILL STAND BY HIM.

WHAT SENATOR SMITH IS:

He is South Carolina's most influential and experienced man in Congress today. He becomes head of the great Agricultural Committee of Congress by reason of the recent defeat of Senator Gore, of Oklahoma.

He is the only Simon Pure farmer in the United States Senate, and the only representative of the Southeastern States on the Agricultural Committee of which he will be the head.

If South Carolina wants an influential man in Washington, Senator Smith will be re-elected. A vote cast for him is a vote cast for the best interests of the entire South.

Senator Smith will be elected next Tuesday, because it is to the best interests of South Carolina to re-elect him.
