Senate meets to debate S/U policy

By B.W. GODFREY
J.T. staff writer

Committee reports on present legislation and new legislation concerning the schools S/U policy were among the topics discussed as the SGA Senate met for its third session at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Day Senator Rhonda Patterson introduced legislation that would allow students the right to S/U a class up to three weeks after it began. Presently, students have until Drop-Add to S/U a class. The recommendation passed and was sent to the Rules and Regulations Committee.

Life Committee.

Rules and Regulations Committee Chairperson Wendy Truitt reported that her committee didn't meet last week because of other commitments.

Student Life Chairperson Donna Chapa reported that the committee met last Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. Legislation presently before the committee was placed on hold for one week to allow members to study and investigate.

Only four members of the Campus Review Committee attended their meeting last week. The committee discussed charter, reported chairman Barry Newkirk.

Student Allocations Committee Chairman Kevin Lanier reported that his committee met last week to work on requisitions for student organizations presently before the committee. They are deliberating the allocation of approximately $27,000 to various organizations. Results of their deliberations will be brought to the Senate floor at the next session. Lanier requested that, "all of the groups requesting money would attend the Senate meeting or have a representative present."

Senate meets next Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. in Dinkins Auditorium.

"Usually memos are sent out to those organizations before the meetings," said Lanier.

Senate President Bryan Grant expressed disappointment at the low turnout of some of the committee meetings and encouraged senators to do better.

After a brief announcement concerning the upcoming United Nations mock debate and the fund-raising phonathon, Senate adjourned.

The allocations committee met for about an hour and half afterwards as part of their current effort to hammer out a successful compromise among the requisitions introduced by the many organizations seeking funds.

College may require language course

By WENDI DEES
J.T. staff writer

The modern and classical language department has recently proposed a foreign language requirement to the College of Arts and Sciences.

The foreign language requirement will be only for those students in the College of Arts and Sciences. It will consist of six semester hours, taken from the general requirements for graduation.

The Language Department recently sent out questionnaires to all faculty from the College of Arts and Sciences. The questionnaires will find out how the faculty views the proposal. They will be sent to the Curriculum Committee to be reviewed for a recommendation.

Security guard stabbed in apartments

By LISA BUJE
J.T. editor

A security guard was stabbed in Breazeale Apartments Tuesday. According to a police report, the incident occurred at 6:20 p.m. when Mark IV security guard Lorenzo Terrell was working his shift in the left shoulder.

When Thoms asked them to stop, one man stabbed him with a knife and the two subjects fled. They contacted Winthrop Public Safety. He was then taken to Piedmont Medical Center where he received five stitches in the left shoulder.

Winthrop Public Safety Chief Boe Williams said the incident is currently under investigation by the Rock Hill Police Department.

World food conference held

By B.W. GODFREY
TJ staff writer

The second annual World Food Day Satellite Teleconference was broadcast last Wednesday and received for the first time by Winthrop College, which participated in an electronic forum with 150 other colleges and universities in all 50 states to consider the world hunger problem.

Dr. Patricia Wolman, assistant professor of foods and nutrition and Winthrop's participation, Wolman has long been active in problems concerning world hunger.

The three hour broadcast originated from George Washington University in Washington, D.C. and featured a panel discussion with Peter McMinnor, administrator of USAID, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., Barbra Huddleston, chief of food security and information service of FAO and coordinator Winthrop's participation. Wolman has long been active in problems concerning world hunger.

Students at Winthrop College viewed the conference on a large screen television set up in the Springs Laboratory in Kinard. Those students that did turn out for the show were nutrition majors or students required to attend. Throughout the conference students constantly trickled in and out. "I wish more had come just to see what it was like," said Wolman. During the question and answer period participants did attempt to get through to Washington to ask a question but time was limited and the number of school making inquiries was large.

Newberry College was the only South Carolina school to get on the air with a question asking, "What impact has agriculture had on hunger in America?" Sarbanes called it "extremely positive and constructive."

Family planning and the Reagan administration, world hunger and the American farmer, how best to empower poor people and the role of women in developing countries were among the topics discussed. Since the members of the panel represented different interest and ideologies the majority of the questions received from the audience were asked.

Unfortunately, technical problems prevented the last hour from proceeding as smoothly as possible. The World Food Day and the teleconference were sponsored by a large coalition of private organizations concerned with world hunger.

Boston promoted in National Guard

By JILLIAN COFFIN
TJ staff writer

Felton Boston, mail center supervisor at Winthrop, received a promotion to Sergeant E-5 for the National Guard. Boston has been in the National Guard for five and half years.

Boston explained, "this promotion brings about a little bit more responsibility and puts me in more of a leadership role."

Originally from Miami, Fl., he has lived in Rock Hill for six years. His wife Linda is native to the Rock Hill area.

Boston said, "I have enjoyed working here at Winthrop for the past six years." Boston plans to stay in the National Guard for the next five to six years. He would like to move into different job titles preferably, intelligence. He plans to attend Officer School in Columbia.

Boston enjoys his work for the guards. Boston said, "We have a good unit and a bunch of good people in our unit. The South Carolina Guard has been rank highly in recent years."

Boston works for the Guard one weekend a month, and participates in two weeks of annual training. This year the training session will be held in Virginia. Boston is also a member of the Snapper team which he enjoys very much.

Boston said, "For me the National Guard has been great. I have seen more and done more in the National Guard."

Thomson/Tillman renovations planned

By LAURA DORAN
TJ staff writer

Thomson Cafeteria and Tillman Auditorium will be renovated after Jan. 1. A trustee committee will meet with five architects to choose who will do the project. $300 thousand will be spent on Tillman Auditorium and $530 thousand on expanding Thomson Cafeteria.

Thomson Cafeteria was originally designed to accommodate 3,200 students instead of the 5,000 students that are currently enrolled at Winthrop. The 1,000 seat Tillman Auditorium will be turned into a larger performance center to accommodate events too small to be held in Byrnes Auditorium. Additional changes include adding entrance and exit ways, improving acoustics, and redoing the stage.

Thank you

To the students of Winthrop:

I would like to thank all the students who attended my shows at ATS on Sept. 13 and 24. We had two great turnouts, and your enthusiasm was greatly appreciated. Not only am I grateful, but your student programming people are also pleased with the support you have given to the programs at ATS. It's not easy for a solo musician such as myself to achieve recognition in the midst of all the other activities around the school, but your support was very much appreciated. Again, thanks to all who attended my shows at your school, and I hope to see you in '86. Thank you.

The Rock Hill Chamber Orchestra will be in concert on Oct. 22 at 8 p.m. on Winthrop campus in the Recital Hall of the School of Music. The orchestra will be performing "The Overture to the Magic Flute" composed by Wolfgang Mozart. The Rock Hill Chamber Orchestra is under the direction of Dr. David Lowry of the School of Music. This is the third year of the orchestra which has developed into a 37 piece ensemble. The orchestra is looking forward to their performance and seeks your support as an audience. Admission is free for all School of Music-sponsored concerts and recitals.
Model UN gears up for anniversary

By MARK WOOD
TJ contributing editor

A recruitment party will be the first in a long line of activities that the Winthrop Model United Nations Secretariat will sponsor this year.

The purpose of the recruitment party, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 24 in Dinkins Auditorium, "is to publicize and recruit students to sign up for Political Science 220," said Donna Chapa, student coordinator of the Winthrop Model UN.

During this party, students can see how an actual debate is performed as well as have any questions answered about the club itself.

The debate will consist of Secretariat members performing a "mock" simulation of the kind of performance that would be expected of students taking PLS 290. Each Secretariat member will be responsible for a particular nation of the world and taking that country's respective view on the resolution discussed.

According to Chapa, one thing the Model UN attempts to do is appear realistic.

"We try to keep it realistic and as close to a simulation of the real UN in New York as possible," Chapa said.

Although the actual conference isn't until April 9-11, 1986, much of the hard work and conference preparation has already begun.

The Winthrop UN hosts 65 high schools every year. However, this year the outreach of the UN has been expanded from just South Carolina to the whole Southeast. For the first time in its 10-year history, the Model UN will possibly be hosting schools from North and South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and others.

The selection of schools is done on a "first-come, first-serve" basis.

This year, as in the past, the Model UN will be completely run by the Secretariat.

The Model UN Secretariat consists of 16 student volunteers as well as Chapa, James Dedes, secretary general; and Jean Kiser, administrative assistant.

Each student works on a particular committee in order to make sure that the conference is a success. This year's Secretariat is the largest in the Model UN's history.

"I think this is one of the best Secretariats we've had in years; they're working very hard and they have set personal goals and group goals for the conference," said Chapa.

The increased size of the Secretariat is not the only change that will be visible during the UN's tenth anniversary. For the first time, the PLS 260 class will be taught by Dr. Glen Thomas, director of the Center for International Studies.

There is also a chance that high school participants will be rewarded with a scholarship, although the amount and criteria has not yet been established, Chapa said.

The Model UN is funded primarily by the state with occasional funding provided by alumni gifts to the International Center. No funds are taken from tuition or other student expenses.

As the UN approaches its tenth anniversary, much will be stressed by Chapa and Secretariat members.

Chapa would like to see the Winthrop campus and student body get more involved with the conference. The Secretariat is also pushing for a broader range of publicity to other states as well as South Carolina.

But the first concern should be to make sure this is truly the "most successful conference in 10 years," Chapa said.

The Winthrop Model UN is unique in that it was the first in the United States to have college and high school students working together.

Chapa hopes that in the future the Model UN can grow and mature as a high school and college experience.

IFM attempts exchange

International Friendship Ministries, a Christian organization attempting to promote friendship between international students and Christian Americans, sponsored an international dinner Saturday, Oct. 11 in "ATS." The dinner was attended by approximately 35 international students and 50 Americans.

IFM was begun last year as a cooperative effort among evangelical churches within the area, according to Tip Frank, IFM coordinator, and Sunday school instructor at Faith Evangelical Church.

"Our aim is to get to know them (international students) through mutual dialogue and show through word and deed our faith in Jesus Christ," said Frank, who quickly cautioned that "we don't preach at them, but the Bible doesn't say don't share our faith. I just don't want to be late." Currently, there are 18 host families, and four host singles, drawn from predominantly fundamentalist churches, according to Frank.

Frank emphasized, "We don't want to use the club as a platform to evangelize. We just want to share the faith and scripture."

Students interested in joining IFM may contact Tip Frank at 386-2862.

The next dinner is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 22, in ATS.

AIDS threat realized

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) is a viruses that can have had transfusions with blood or blood products.

AIDS is transmitted by sexual contact, needle sharing, or through blood. The risk of getting AIDS is increased by having multiple sexual partners, damaging body tissue during sex and sharing of infected articles.

The symptoms of AIDS come on slowly and are as common as those associated with any other virus," said Dr. Susanne Haselsie. Some of these include: excessive fatigue, fever, appetite and weight loss, swollen glands, diarrhea, reduced immune response to vaccines.

Presently there aren't any drugs available that have been proven to cure AIDS. "Eventually a vaccine for AIDS may be developed," said Dr. Susanne Haselsie. Some of these include: excessive fatigue, fever, appetite and weight loss, swollen glands, diarrhea, reduced immune response to vaccines.

Student directory, incomplete

By GENA WHITTE
TJ staff writer

The 1985-86 Student Directory published several students' home phone numbers rather than their campus numbers.

The telephone number of students come from a printout from Data Processing. According to the DP office, telephone numbers for all McLaurin residents were not available at the time the printout was sent to the PIO. The reason other numbers were not correct could be that housing assignments were not known or made after the printout was sent.

According to the PIO, no plans have been made for a supplement directory with correct campus numbers of students whose numbers are not listed.

Murals painted at Town Center Mall

By KAREN PARKER

Seven art students from Winthrop are painting murals at the Town Center Mall.

Mall Manager Dick Marlowe commissioned the murals to brighten up a dark section of the mall's interior. The design by Winthrop student Altressa Owens was created in Professor Wade Hogoboom's advanced design course in the spring semester of 1985.

Murals are approximately 20 feet high and 100 feet long. They have a tan background and use blue and green as principal colors.

six students who participated include Kim Fisher, Gary Banister, Todd Atkinson, Tish Guerry, Randall Wilhelm, and Todd Robertson.

Hogoboom, the art instructor at Faith Institute, said that housing assignments were not known or made after the printout was sent.

According to the PIO, no plans have been made for a supplement directory with correct campus numbers of students whose numbers are not listed.

Straitjacket restricting

By LISA BUIE
TJ editor

The modern and classical languages department wants to teach the class of 1990 whether it likes it or not. A curriculum committee is debating a new foreign language requirement endorsed by the modern language department.

This proposal that Arts and Sciences majors take six hours of a language with at least three hours on the intermediate level should be rejected.

First of all, advocates argue that students need exposure to a foreign language. This may be true, but many high schools all over the nation require completion of a language in order to graduate. Starting in 1989, South Carolina high school students must have completed two years in order to receive diplomas.

Therefore, high schools are exposing students to foreign cultures, and a college requirement is unnecessary.

Another popular argument is that students will not take a language of their own will because they are too lazy. This argument is also invalid. Students who do not elect to take language courses must take mathematics or puter science. Many students probably take these because the courses are more practical. They are not any easier than language courses.

Finally, advocates may argue that knowledge of a foreign language is essential to receiving a good education. However, if that is true, why single out Arts and Sciences majors? Why not give education and require them to take a language?

This proposal is not a sound one. It appears that it is merely an attempt to increase low enrollment and build the department's image. Prestige should not be the department's highest priority. Students' awareness of their own best interests should be considered first.

Perhaps the language department should concentrate on making their curriculum more attractive so that students want to enroll rather than putting a straitjacket on their options.

Editor says relax

By MONNIE WHITSON
TJ news editor

How many of you are victims of stress? Well, I'll tell you, I'm about stressed out! I'm so involved in school and extracurricular activities that I don't have time to breathe. Even when I relax I'm in a hurry. So what do we do about it? First we could talk to a counselor and find ways to attack our problem. Or we could go and totally stress-out and finally die of a coronary. I really don't wish to die, yet, so I may be saying a counselled soon.

It would really be helpful in seeing someone about stress, but we don't even have time for that, do we? So let's think of something ourselves. Maybe if you're involved in an activity that is not too important you could cease to become involved so that you have more time to concentrate on yourself and relaxation. Go somewhere nice to think, the Shack, for example. Just sit and relax, relax, relax.

You could even give yourself a stress exercise. Lie down and get comfortable. Now tense all of the facial muscles and hold for a count of three. Now relax these muscles and start on your back muscles. Then your shoulders, chest, back, arms, and so on. You might fall asleep, so make sure you're in an appropriate place. Try and relax at least 30 minutes a day. If you don't have the time, make the time. I'm talking about distress, not_eustress. Eustress is good stress. But distress is unhealthy. Look up both words in the dictionary for the exact meanings. I hope we can all learn to relax and find time to ourselves. It may take a little time, but time is well worth the effort. Remember less stress a day keeps the death-bed away.

Freshmen—not so bad after all

By MARK WOOD

Well, the verdict is in and I'm the most hated person on the Winthrop College campus. What an exciting thought!

Just when I thought that we here at The Johnsonian were not going to get a single letter to the editor, I found to my surprise that the freshman class has just a little more spunk than I ever imagined possible. But don't get me wrong, the news was a pleasant surprise to find out. I'd rather write such a terrible thing in the campus newspaper? Well, I'm here to tell you about Epicure. Well, I'm here to discuss the concerns among freshmen. Why? Because I hadn't seen anything in the way of behavior to make me think of the freshmen differently.

But the most important reason that I wrote the article was to see just what kind of people we had in the freshman class. I knew that I had seen the foolish actions of a select few, but I was convinced that there had to be some caring and concerned students in the freshman class.

I knew that the only way to find the truly concerned students was to put them in the same group with the unconcerned students. The good students would surely defend themselves and the "I couldn't care less" students wouldn't even pick up a paper. And, for the most part, I was right.

Now don't misunderstand me; I'm not apologizing for the article. If one had no responded to my last item I would have no reason to be writing this one. I'm just congratulating those students who were proud and conscientious enough not to let themselves get run over by an arrogant upperclassman."

As for the rest of you freshmen, would you please turn down the music? We upperclassmen are trying to study.

Letters to the editor

Brown visitor

Dear Editor:

In the Oct. 7 paper, Monnie Whitson voiced her opinion about Epicure. Well, I'm here to complain about something. I'm positive that the entire school is just about sick of the "food" we're being served, but I'm even more sick about the conditions it's served in.

Upon returning from Fall Break, my roommate and I rushed to unload the car and to make it to the cafeteria to eat before it closed. We knew that the later it was, the worse the food would be, and we never dreamed it'd be this bad!

The cake for dessert was celebrating its first birthday. It looked as though it'd been there since we left on Friday.

"That's okay," I thought. "I don't need dessert anyway." I was trying to be optimistic at that point. But then the bottom fell out and I began to wish I was at home with Mom's good cooking.

As the guy in front of me started to tell the cafeteria attendant what he wanted, a small roach crawled across the counter. The guy only asked the attendant who his little friend was, grabbed his plate, and walked out the door.

I'm sure that by this time, I was slightly pale green. I managed a smile when I said, "I want a plate, that's all. Just a plate."

One of the supervisors had noticed the insect and was in the process of knocking him off the counter. The roach, however, took a dive for the brown rice and I headed for the door, warning my friends near the end of the line as I went. The line quickly got shorter and we all headed for the salad bar. After catching a glimpse and a whiff of the lettuce, however, we decided to forget any attempts at eating anything that night.

Now, my mom has always told me to look for the good in things, so I'll go so far as to say that the water was pretty good. But man cannot live by water alone, and water is beginning to become the main course of my meals in the cafeteria. At least last year I could count on the salad bar, but now, no longer.

I realize, as I'm sure all of you do, that our opinions have not changed for one moment since the year "pseudocolle" for fresh-to-Epicure and the men only bothers. Mr. Wood, do but, I'm slightly angry con you really think that academic sizing I pay as much as I do for food and then I have to share it with roaches and no telling what else.

Maybe if the entire student should have no trouble obtaining body walked out of the cafeteria a job in Las Vegas or on a cruise and refused to eat until ship or maybe, even where you something was done, we'd get SOMEBODY'S ATTENTION!

Drinking isn’t main point

By LAURIE ANN DEDES
TJ sports editor

I would like to start my column by stating that I do not support alcohol and drug abuse. Several weeks ago, during the wrestling match at the coliseum I was approached by a member of the cross country team and was accused of supporting alcoholism because of a recent column I wrote. The column was merely suggesting that the dormitory with the most spirit be awarded a beer bash at the end of the basketball season. I am quite aware of the laws in this state on drinking. I never suggested that minors should drink. I certainly don’t connect having a beer with becoming an alcoholic. And I do support drug tests among athletes. As far as tailgate parties are concerned, whether you choose to drink or not is your decision. No one will rag if you don’t; this is not high school. The point I was trying to make (to decry the “true meaning”) is that in supporting athletics the student body needs to be unified. I don’t care if we go out and drink a beer before the game or have a prayer meeting and pray every ball into the basket. As long as we do it together! (The student body that prays together plays together??). That’s all I’m going to say on that.

Well, Winthrop soccer seems to be getting better. The Eagles now have a record of 5-6.

Last week the team won three of four matches they played.

The Eagles beat Barber-Scotia 7-0, Coker College 3-2 and Wofford 3-2. The only defeat was to Mars Hill College 1-0. Offensively this week, Winthrop is tied for second in the Big South. The Eagles have scored 2.11 goals per outing while Baptist has 2.33 goals per contest. Defensively, Winthrop is sixth allowing 2.44 goals per game. Campbell leads defensively allowing only 1.11 goals per match.

Winthrop’s Choco Gutierrez of Winthrop is sixth in the league in scoring. Gutierrez made four goals, six assists and totals 14 points. A man not listed among the top ten last week but surely will be is Doug Aldridge. Aldridge now has eight goals, one assist and 17 points.

Coach Jim Casada said, “We are playing better for longer periods of time than we were a couple of weeks ago. I can see a tremendous improvement in some of our players, and I feel very good about our progress.”

As of last week the volleyball record was 15-5 after the Eagles showed out strongly during the James Madison Invitational. Losing only two of six matches the Lady Eagles brought home the consolation trophy.

They were defeated by Mansfield 12-15, 15-0 and hosting team James Madison, 6-15, 5-15.

Coatch Ivyester said, “I think we played well up there, but the competition was very tough. Other than Guilford, all of the teams were either NCAA Division I or II. We played well in our first two games, but had some problems against Mansfield and James Madison. I was proud of the way our team came back in the last two games and won.”

Last week’s offensive punch the Lady Eagles could generate as they were able to muster only one run in the next two games.

The Lady Eagles made the Lady Gamecocks 2-1 decision at the Coliseum on Saturday then dropped a close 6-5 decision at the Coliseum on Sunday. A split of games with Onandaga (N.Y.) Saturday and Sunday helped give Coach Frankie Griffin’s Lady Eagles a 2-4 worksheet, as they closed out their fall season.

The Lady Eagles went as down Onandaga with a 4-1 win on Saturday then dropped a close 6-5 decision at the Coliseum on Sunday. A week earlier, Griffin’s troops traveled to Greenville to participate in a round robin tournament at Furman. The field included the likes of Division I-A power South Carolina, UNC-Wilmington, tournament host Furman and Winthrop.

In their opening contest, Winthrop pounded the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington to the tune 19-0.

That was about all the offensive punch the Lady Eagles could generate as they are able to muster only one run in the next two games.

The Lady Eagles then ran into a buzz saw as they dropped a 7-1 verdict to South Carolina’s Lady Gamecocks. Next, on tap was the tournament host Furman. That game was a defensive struggle until the Paladins were able to come away with a hard-fought 3-0 extra innings win.

Coach Frankie Griffin was not pleased with his team’s offensive attack. “I’m really concerned with our offense. We weren’t very aggressive at the plate, and that’s something we’ll have to work on,” said the Winthrop coach. The Lady Eagles were also missing four starters from its lineup, either with injuries or prior commitments to other sports. This allowed Griffin to get a look at his freshmen. “This gave us an opportunity to work on some things, and to look at our freshmen,” said Griffin. The Winthrop mentor was particularly impressed with the play of shortstop Sandy Gillies and pitcher Laura Blackmore. “Sandy did a really good job filling in at short, she played strong defense, and did well offensively.” Griffin was equally impressed by freshman hurler Blackmore. “I wanted to see how Laura would do under pressure situations, and she did a real good job,” Griffin added.

J.V. cheerleaders chosen

By TODD HUTCHISON
TJ assistant sports editor

Last week the Golden Garnets and Winthrop Junior Varsity Cheerleading squads held their annual try-outs. The girls had many requirements they had to meet in order to attain a spot on the squads.

According to Chris Rowell, the cheerleading aspect of the try-outs had many requirements: “The girls had three required stunts with the option of an additional fourth stunt. They also had to learn a cheer we taught them with an additional two sideline cheers; a required dance; two jumps, with another optional jump; a self-made dance; and also a bit of gymnastics for extra credit didn’t hurt. The girls also had to meet a weight requirement of 118 pounds,” said Rowell.

David Hickman who headed the cheerleader try-outs said said the squad should be good. “We plan on working some with the varsity squad and dance team throughout the year,” said Hickman. People who made the squad are: Rose Collins, Meg Hammond, Terry Wood, Barbara White, Lisa Raines, Angie Anderson, Andrea Joiner, Jenny Hall, Deans Bell, Alan Hughes, Mark Case and Jeff Greggers.

The Golden Garnets dance squad also held their tryouts last year. “The girls had to meet a height to weight requirement while also learning a learned dance and making an original,” said Chris Rowell.

“I felt this should be an excellent year for the dance squad because of their sponsor. Carolyn Yonce, put a lot of time and effort this year,” added Rowell. Members of the squad include Beth Rutledge, Lori Land, Carla Huggins, Michelle Kelly, Tina Maggard, Melanie Eudy, Amy Ashworth, Vicky Wynn, Sonya Trammell, Lori Ann Francis, Mary Jane Kelly and Robin Perry.
Vacendak optimistic about future

By JEFF RUBLE
TJ sports writer

We all know that Winthrop athletics is on the rise but just where are we going and how are we going to get there? These are some pretty complicated questions and only Steve Vacendak, the man who stepped in the athletic department's door three months ago, can answer them sufficiently. He has shouldered a tremendous burden, transforming Winthrop College to the "big times."

Vacendak is a very capable person who could just about work anywhere he liked. So why does he feel like Winthrop's transition is such an intriguing challenge? He feels that the athletic department can be very beneficial to the school. He feels that it can increase exposure and make us visible to prospective faculty and staff. "A good team can create a lot of school pride and it can influence students to be less transient. In order to do that we have to go to Greenville on the weekends, maybe, with a good game for them to attend, like a Winthrop-Furman basketball game, the Furman students will come to Rock Hill."

Perhaps the most important goal that the athletic department can achieve is to be a vehicle of Winthrop's image to the public. Vacendak stated, "A majority of the public still thinks of Winthrop College as being a small, private college for education female school teachers. Obviously, we're not and a strong athletic program can change this image."

Now that we know why we are seeking a stronger athletic department, let's examine what entails a move to "the big times." The first step in moving from the NAIA is to prepare the coaches. This includes educating them in the rules and regulations of the NCAA and to help them to adjust to NCAA recruiting styles. The second step is "to redirect our priorities toward athletics." We have installed an academic monitoring program to help the athletes remain eligible, and to help them toward obtaining a degree. This redirection will help us to maintain the NCAA's standards.

The third and last step is to firmly establish each of the programs. This involves raising the attendance, increasing financial backing and increasing the level of performance. Vacendak has taken actions to insure that this step will be accomplished by soliciting advertising for the colleges, initiating a shuttle bus system for students commuting to the basketball games, establishing student seating on the front rows, starting a pep band and by increasing scholarships and recruiting budgets.

Now that we have examined the significance and methods of Winthrop's transition, we can sit back and say to ourselves, "No way, it will never work, we're not in the 'big leagues'." But stop, look back at the title of this article.

Vacendak stated, "I'm more pleased with my job today than I was the day I took the job. I'm so optimistic about the transition? "I don't think there's anything wrong here at Winthrop," said Vacendak. "We have everything we need to compete at a higher level. Our facilities aren't the best, but we have better facilities than most schools." Vacendak also felt that the all-around quality of the school will help attract studentathletes. "We don't have to be one-sided, we can offer a recruit a very agreeable atmosphere, a strong education and the chance to achieve his fullest potential in athletics." The last aspect Vacendak emphasized was the quality of coaching at Winthrop. "We have some very good, and will continue to meet high standards."

Does all this confidence mean we can just slide straight into the "big times" and start our own little dynasty? Vacendak said, "Of course, it will be tough at first, but as long as we don't try to be like someone else, then we'll be successful. We just need to try to be all that we can be."

Cross Country team headed for success

By JILL ZEIGLER
TJ sports writer

The women's cross country team came out on top of Pembroke St. University, Johnson C. Smith, UNC-Wilmington, UNC-Charlotte, and Faine College at the Winthrop College Invitational Sept. 28. Our ladies finished fourth overall out of nine competitors.

Denise Holliday put on an excellent show, coming in sixth out of 46 participants. She had a time of 19:51. For the women, Holliday were Michelle Diron in 22 with a time of 21:25, Genie Moore was 23 with 21:28, Laura Smith was 26 with 22:19, "Oyster" Clark was 29 with 22.50 and Dorothy Case placed 32 with 23:50.

The team came in behind Radford University, Campbell University and S.C. State. Comments Coach Charlie Bowers, "We didn't do as well as I wanted to at that meet. I guess we were down at the time." Despite the fact that they didn't do as well as he wanted, Bowers was still pleased with the meet.

The Oct. 5 invitational at UNC-Charlotte had 10 schools competing, with Winthrop coming out fifth overall. Brevard, Georgia St., and UNC were among the schools that finished ahead of us. Falling behind were Furman, Baptist College, Johnson C. Smith, Western Carolina, and UNC-Wilmington.

Coach Bowers was also pleased with this meet and was especially proud of the freshmen again, led our ladies way through.

Bowers said that this particular meet was "a very strong, competitive one. It didn't seem to phase Holliday, however, because she finished sixth out of 56 participants. On a 3.1-mile course, she came in with a time of 20:02. Other finishing were Michelle Diron at 24, with 21.57, Genie Moore at 26 with 22:11, "Oyster" Clark at 33 with 22.33, and Dorothy Case at 46 with 24:26.

Upcoming events for the ladies include The Citadel Invitational to be held on Oct. 19, and the Big South Championship hosted here at Winthrop on Nov. 7.

Bowers is very pleased with the way the women have improved over the year. He comments, "We are working very hard and are looking to finish second in the Big South Championship."

Boswell; on the run

By AARON ANDERSON

Clay Boswell, unshaven and smiling, sat down at lunch and read his Spartanburg Herald Journal. He was the 5'10", 140-pound cross country runner from Spartanburg S.C., still likes to feel close to home and subscribes to the newspaper.

Boswell is no newcomer to running, or to the media. He carried the Olympic torch through Andrews, N.C., during the 1984 Olympic Season.

When asked about the experience, Boswell said, "It was neat, although it was very uncomfortable. I was interviewed by two T.V. stations and all the papers. The excitement wore off after a while. It got me out of taking some exams, though."

This season is Winthrop's second with a cross country team. The runners are young too, having only one senior and no juniors. Each of the four freshmen on the team have competed against each other before in high school. Of the four, all of us have been on a state champion team. Because of the lack of experience on the team, Boswell concluded that, "We won't be as good as the year we will be the next three. As a team we're going to improve. This year's team is much better (than last year). There's much more potential on this year's team."

Coach Bowers agrees, "Experience is very important in college running. We plan on developing as a team. The potential we have for the future is enormous. Winthrop's cross country team is in a strong position in South Carolina."

Bowers had met Boswell when Winthrop was first trying to sign at Winthrop, we really made our recruiting year complete. We were looking for three or four of the top runners in the state. They got 'em. Three of the top runners in South Carolina are now freshmen at Winthrop: Clay Boswell, Eric Fearn and Jerry Robinson.

Boswell has been running cross country since high school. He had a lot of experience, Boswell says, "The excitement of just being good at one thing instead of average in lots of things... It's the thrill of competition."
RSA to attend SAACURA

For the best estimates there are 28 million people who have at least one alcoholic parent. “Extremities” in the upper-class experience low self-esteem, feelings of being different and a great difficulty in expressing feelings to others. There is a great deal of anger stored inside a teenager with an alcoholic parent. They feel that they were forced to grow up too soon, having many adult responsibilities. Children of alcoholic parents seem to suffer the effects similar to those of post war earthquake victims; this is known as “post traumatic syndrome.” A small minority have also experienced physical and sexual abuse,” commented Hamilton. Children with alcoholic parents have many problems establishing and sustaining happy relationships. They either avoid people from getting too close or become extremely close and dependent on others. Depression is another major difficulty among children of alcoholics.

Research shows that those with alcoholic parents are more at risk to develop compulsive disorders, such as alcohol and drug abuse and gambling and eating problems. They are also more prone to suicide,” said Hamilton.

NSW is a group which meets on Fridays at 1 p.m. Discussions will last for about an hour. During these sessions information about alcoholism will be given. “Most people believe that somehow they are responsible for their drinking problems; we will work at showing them they have no control over this alcoholism,” Alston said.

Extremities” to enter competition

By TOM STEARNS
TJ staff writer

The Winthrop College theatre department will present the play “Extremities” at the upcoming American College Theatre Festival. The play, which ran Sept. 25-28, will be performed at the College of Charleston Nov. 15. “We’re already back in rehearsal,” said Blair Beasley, director of the play. “We’re changing a few things, but the basic concept will remain.”

“The College of Charleston performance is the first leg in the ACTF competition,” Beasley said. “We’re competing with Clemson University, Coastal Carolina, and the College of Charleston for an opportunity to go on to the regional competition.”

Beasley pointed out that the schools not be competing against each other. “We’ll be competing against the ACTF’s standards,” he said. “There does not have to be a winner. Any of the schools could qualify for the regional competition, all four could qualify, or none at all may be chosen. Our hope is that we will be chosen to go on to the regional competition.”

If the play makes a good showing at the regional competition, the next level would be the national competition. That competition will be held this next year at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. The Center sponsors the event along with the U.S. Department of Education.

In order to cut the costs of the trip, a special benefit performance will be held in Johnson Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 12. “Tickets will be $4 for the general public and $3 for Winthrop students,” Beasley said.

“Research shows that those with alcoholic parents are more at risk to develop compulsive disorders, such as alcohol and drug abuse and gambling and eating problems. They are also more prone to suicide,” said Hamilton.

Adult Children of Alcoholics is a group which meets in Winthrup on Fridays at 1 p.m. Discussions will last for about an hour. During these sessions information about alcoholism will be given. “Most people believe that somehow they are responsible for their drinking problems; we will work at showing them they have no control over this alcoholism,” Alston said.

Despite the show’s mature subject, Beasley said there were no adverse reactions to the play. “Those who didn’t want to come simply didn’t come,” he said. “There was ample warning of the show’s subject and content. Those who did come appreciated the play. But as far as adverse comments, there have been none.”

Tickets for the benefit will go on sale the week of Nov. 5. For more information, contact Chris Reynolds at 2171.
Center helps alcoholics

"When we say alcohol and drug abuse, we do not necessarily mean dependence," said Dee Hamilton, counselor at the Crawford Health Center.

Abuse refers to an excessive or inappropriate use of a chemical substance, which interferes with some area of one's life. Chemical dependency occurs when one becomes psychologically and/or physically dependent on some kind of chemical; the chemical becomes the center of one's life.

"Drug and alcohol abuse can usually be controlled with a little effort," said Hamilton. A person who is chemically dependent must seek professional help. "Black outs, which are short periods of amnesia, should be taken as warning signals. Black outs are most common among alcohol and downer users," said Hamilton.

"It is extremely difficult or almost impossible for a person to realize they have a dependency problem. When the problem is pointed out to them, they usually deny it," commented Hamilton. It is very important that people realize that to be chemically dependent, one does not have to use the substance every day; weekend users may have problems, too.

When asked why she thinks there is such a big problem with alcohol and drug abuse, Hamilton stated, "We live in an alcohol oriented society; one out of every nine people is an alcoholic. It is especially hard on college kids. There is a lot of pressure involved in a college environment."

"If a person thinks that they have a dependency problem, they usually do," said Hamilton. Hamilton encourages anyone who needs help to go to the counseling center. Counseling sessions are totally confidential. Individual counseling is also available for anyone who is trying to help a family member or friend with a dependency problem.

Adult Children of Alcoholics is a group which meets once a week. Anyone with an alcoholic parent is welcome to join these group sessions.

Chemical dependency can be overcome; it is fairly easy to treat. I feel very optimistic about it," concluded Hamilton.

"New Girl" postponed

By ROBERT JOLLY
TJ managing editor

Nearly a year ago, ABA Productions Incorporated filmed the movie "New Girl" on Winthrop College campus. The film was to be released in February 1985. However, because of editing delays, the premiere has been postponed until as late as this winter.

With filming and editing complete, the film has been handed over to Com World, a distribution company out of Orem, Utah. Debra Lawrence, associate producer for "New Girl" said, "As far as we are concerned, the movie is finished. We have now turned the movie over to a distributing company for final testing. It is up to them as to when the movie will be released; however, there will be a preview in 60 to 90 days." The preview will be screened in Charlotte, Columbia, and Rock Hill.

ABA's Charles Ison, best known for creating the Barbara Mandrell series, other TV shows, and major movie releases, made his directing College.

Helen Thomas spoke to AAUW on women's rights

By ALLAN C. JENKINS
TJ staff writer

Helen Thomas, UPI White House Bureau Chief, was guest speaker at the 60th Anniversary Celebration luncheon of the Rock Hill chapter of the American Association of University Women held Oct. 5 in Thomason Hall.

Thomas spoke for 45 minutes on her career covering the White House for United Press International, commenting on each administration she covered. Thomas has covered every administration since President Kennedy's.

Thomas was critical of the Reagan administration's record on women's rights. "Women have not fared well in this administration. Witness the ouster of Margaret Heckler, for instance," Thomas said. "There is a certain atmosphere in the current administration, it is satisfied with being an all-white stronghold."

Thomas also criticized the administration for its lack of positive communication with the press. "The president's advisors, if they could do it, would just not allow press conferences to happen," Thomas said. "Since we don't have a parliamentary system, the president doesn't have to answer to Congress, and he only answers to people on election day. The press must ask the hard questions, and, for the good of democracy, the president must answer them."

Thomas urged women, especially women recently graduated from college, to keep striving for equal rights. "I'm damned mad we didn't get the vote until 1920; we still don't have full citizenship, because we still don't have equal rights," Thomas said. "You women on campus should go to your fathers, and pressure them to pressure the legislatures of this country to give you equal rights, and then when you graduate, you pressure your legislatures."

The Rock Hill chapter of the AAUW was officially chartered in 1925, with 32 members representing 23 colleges and universities with their degrees, according to Judi Gustafson, immediate past president of the S.C. Division of AAUW. The group carries out a variety of activities aimed at advancing the status of women, including political activity, Gustafson said.

This year's state legislative agenda for the AAUW calls for equal pay for work of comparable worth/value, preservation of the individual's right of free choice in matters of reproduction, regulation of handguns, raising the drinking age to 21, and comprehensive family life and sex education programs in grades K-6, among other proposals, according to Gustafson.

Gustafson said the greatest barrier to equal rights for women was apathy on the part of recent college graduates.

"We're concerned that too many women who are college seniors or recent graduates are not aware that the relative ease they have in finding a job after graduation is a direct result of the gains made in women's rights over the past two decades," Gustafson said. "If they choose not to strive to continue those gains, then they'll find their lot will not improve during their lifetime."

Membership in the organization is open only to women who have received a bachelor's degree from an American accredited college or university. The Rock Hill chapter currently has 100 members, representing 50 colleges and universities.

This is the official examination schedule for fall semester. Examinations may not exceed 2 1/2 hours in length. Legitimate conflicts are defined as follows: more than one scheduled exam per period; more than two scheduled exams per day; more than three scheduled exams in any four consecutive periods. A student with a legitimate conflict will receive written notification from the Registrar's Office. The instructor involved also will be sent notification of the conflict. Students are responsible for resolving conflicts directly with the instructor by November 11. Personal conflicts such as Christmas travel plans and work schedules do not warrant a change in examination times.

Abuse program offered

By LORI CASALE
TJ staff writer

Winthrop's School of Education received an $80,309 federal grant to be used for a child abuse awareness and prevention program.

According to Dr. Susan Smith, assistant professor of education, "most of the money will be used to expand 'Housewise-Streetwise', a program designed to teach children how to handle difficult and threatening situations."

The program is aimed to help prevent children from becoming victims of physical and sexual abuse and to offer emotional support to children who have been abused.

With the grant, Smith, who initiated the "Housewise-Streetwise" program at Winthrop last year, plans to offer instruction in 23 South Carolina school districts. Nine districts participated last year. Representatives from each district will attend the training program hosted by Winthrop Oct. 21-22. These representatives will return to their districts with instructional kits, films, and props and will train fellow teachers. As a result 300 third grade teachers will be able to conduct the program in their classrooms.

"Everyone is very optimistic about this," said Smith. She added out of 13 schools, 22 abused children in Rock Hill alone came forward and asked for help from their guidance counselors.

"Now that we're able to expand the program, imagine how many more troubled children we'll be able to help," Smith said.

Some of the money from the grant will be used to expand Winthrop's phone friend program, designed to reach troubled or lonely children by phone. The program, an after-school help-line, assists children in grades K-six, who come home from school and have no supervision. Phones are operated by Winthrop education majors as part of their course work.

This year, more than 300 calls were received and approximately 3,000 have been received since the program began last year.

"Most of the calls are from kids who are bored or lonely so they call Phone Friend to talk to college students," Smith said. Smith said she hoped to see the program become statewide.

"This program is one that really benefits the community," said Smith.

The program will include the following speakers: Jayne Crisp, author of the original "Housewise-Streetwise" study; Jay Elliot, a Columbia lawyer who will speak on the legal issues of child abuse; and Bill Hammond of the South Carolina Criminal Justice Academy, will speak about law enforcement efforts dealing with abused children.
