Student life committee criticizes cafeteria

By B.W. GODFREY
TJ staff writer

SGA senators voiced student complaints to Epicure Manager John Simpson when he met with the Student Life Committee last Wednesday afternoon.

Roaches, menu variety and meal plans were among the topics brought up by the committee during the hour-long conference in Simpson's office.

Simpson took the opportunity to explain Epicure's future plans on campus as well as to address the questions asked by the committee. The conference was a joint effort between Simpson and Student Life Chairperson Donna Chapa who arranged it in hopes of providing students with a means to work closer with Epicure in improving the food services.

When asked about the lack of variety in the menu, Simpson went to great lengths to explain that variety was a definite concern to Epicure but that cost and present facilities were key constraints.

Pointing out the specials provided each week along with recent additions, such as the soft ice cream machine, Simpson said, “We have a good variety; we just have to follow the program.”

Simpson also explained that they have been holding receptions once a week in one of the dorms and reviewing recent student surveys in an attempt to provide menus students desire.

When asked about roaches and sanitary conditions Simpson said that the cafeteria was sprayed on a regular basis by an outside contractor hired by the school. He said that since the building was the school's, they were responsible for pest control.

The cafeteria was recently inspected by the Health Department as a result of a complaint lodged by a student. The complaint was the subject of a recent front page article in the Evening Herald. The department did find three roaches but as far as overall sanitation is concerned, the cafeteria received a rating of 96 from the inspection. So far, the contractor has sprayed twice and will return soon. Simpson says.

Interviewed later that afternoon, Vice-President for Administrative Services John Presto said that Dixie Exterminators had been hired by the school several days before the article in the newspaper. He also said that the exterminators and Simpson had sent most of last Thursday night (Nov. 14) moving furniture and fixtures spraying for bugs.

When asked about the recent rumors that Epicure's contract was up for renewal this year, Presto said that May 11, 1965 was when their old contract expired. Proposals from competing food services, along with Epicure's, would be reviewed in January, and he has already had inquiries from other contractors seeking the lucrative contract.

The school usually has between five to seven serious proposals to select from and that, “quality, service and price” were the main criteria, he said.

Bennett emphasizes freedom

By MONNIE WHITSON
TJ news editor

Every increase in black freedom increases white freedom, said Lerone Bennett Jr., senior editor of Ebony.

Bennett spoke to about 500 Winthrop students and Rock Hill citizens Thursday, Nov. 7 in Tillman Auditorium.

The Association of Ebonites, a campus student organization, sponsored “An evening with Lerone Bennett.”

Bennett also spoke on the topic of multi-cultural education. He said there are three main tasks in improving this problem: Mobilizing America for an educational crusade, doing something about the socio-economic forces that are destroying the foundation of black education, and achieving a new vision of education for everyone.

He said many times you can’t help the black without helping the white. “Martin Luther King freed more white people than black,” said Bennett.

He also said that racism is respectable again and that the dream the blacks represent is threatened.

He said being pushed toward desegregation, toward a black depression, said Bennett.

Bennett said that he was enormously impressed with Winthrop College and all the young people that escorted him.

“Our future is assured because of these young people,” said Bennett. “Throughout the lecture he emphasized that there is a difference between white and black freedom.

“No pedagogy can be truly liberated so long as it has as its central theme, the promise that the oppressor may depend upon the oppressor as its only role model,” he said.

In 1949, Bennett began reporting for the Atlanta Daily World, and became city editor of that paper in 1962. In 1963, he moved to Jet magazine. In 1964, he became associate editor of Ebony magazine, and since 1968 has been the senior editor.

He received his education at Morehouse College. He received a doctor of letters there. He also received a doctor of humanities at Wilberforce University in 1971, and a doctor of letters at Marquette University in 1977.

His challenge of multi-cultural education focused on the theme that some don’t believe certain people can learn.

“We have to confront this problem and create a climate of expectancy,” he concluded.

After his speech, Bennett received a plaque from Kappa Alpha Psi for his contribution not only to Ebony, but to excellence.

Herpes is controllable

By MAGGIE ZALAMEA
TJ staff writer

There are two types of the herpes virus. Type 1 is known as the cold sore or fever blister; type 2 is known as sores on the genitals.

"One can have a sore on the genital area and it doesn't necessarily have to be a herpes sore. A Pap smear of the sore must come to determine if it is caused by the herpes virus," said Barb Shores, Registered Nurse at the Crawford Health Center.

Symptoms that occur when a person is infected with type 2 of the herpes virus: fever, headache, muscle aches, fatigue, vaginal discharge, and painful, burning sores. The symptoms may appear anywhere from 2-20 days after exposure.

After the initial infection, the virus enters a dormant stage. In August, administrators at the university in Jackson, Tenn., discovered Shores. In August, administrators at the university in Jackson, Tenn., discovered

Student dismissed for being too fat

NEWPORT, R.I. (CPS) - A former nursing student has sued Salve Regina College for $2 million, claiming the school expelled her because she was too fat.

In a complaint filed last week in U.S. District Court, Sharon L. Russell, 21, claims faculty members were "tormenting and harassing her," and that the college wrongly dismissed her last August.

In August, administrators sent Russell a letter saying she could not return for her fourth year of the nursing program because "she had failed to live up to a commitment she signed promising to lose two pounds per week," explains John L. Pelletier, Russell's attorney.

Russell, who refuses to reveal her weight, admits she signed the unusual document last December, when the dean of nursing demanded that she lose two pounds a week "or else," says Pelletier.

Russell assumed the "or else" implied dismissal, and she signed the document.

In October, 1984, Russell had promised the dean she would enroll in a Weight Watchers' program. "I told her I would go on a diet," Pelletier explains. "But toward the end of her junior year, when she was going out into the community, they began calling her an embarrassment!"

Faculty members repeatedly told Russell "obesity did not fit the image of the college," Pelletier says. Russell's letter of dismissal cites her failure to live up to the December agreement as reason for expulsion. It does not refer to any academic problems or inability to carry out her nursing duties.

Russell maintained a grade average of 3.6 at Salve Regina, however, Steven Snow, the college's lawyer, says Russell's weight, which he estimates is "probably in excess of 300 pounds," hindered her ability to perform various nursing duties, including CPR.

Pelletier, however, maintains Russell "certainly does not weigh even 300 pounds," and in fact has completed CPR courses more than satisfactorily.

Russell had been offered a job at Hartford Hospital upon graduation, but won't be able to take it because she will not graduate on schedule.

She will, however, complete her education at St. Joseph's "in Nursing," which is run by the same order of nuns as Salve Regina. But because many of her credits did not transfer, it will take her some time to graduate, Pelletier says.

Salve Regina insists Russell was expelled only from the nursing program, and that she is still enrolled at the college. In fact, the college offered her all semesters' tuition checks, just prior to her August expulsion.

Winthrop receives grant

By GINA WHITTLE

Winthrop has been chosen as one of 46 schools in the country to receive funding from the GTE Foundation Lectureship Program.

Paul Sanderfer, associate professor of chemistry, put together the information that was sent to GTE. Kevin McCarthy in the Grant Office sent in the proposal.

Sanderfer accepted a check to $25000 from the foundation for Winthrop. The purpose of the GTE program is to bring in speakers free of charge to inform people and the general public. This should increase awareness of human needs.

There are plans to bring in four speakers in the spring semester. The topics to be discussed are: Acid Rain and Global 1 Enforestation, Power Production; State of the Art and Alternatives, Cost Benefit Analysis of the State Environmental Issues and World Food Production and Outlook.

"The program is to focus on making the general population of the state more informed about issues that concern local, as well as worldwide, environmental concerns so that better decisions could be made relating to these issues," said Sanderfer.

Eddie Murphy promises college concerts (CPS) - Comedian and movie star Eddie Murphy closed out his controversial national campus tour last week in Texas, without recourse to sporadic protests that marred several visits, but with a pledge to do another campus tour in the fall.

Murphy played to packed auditoriums at Florida State, North Carolina, William and Mary, Michigan State, Rutgers, the State University of New York-Stony Brook and Purdue, among other schools, this year.

But Murphy's appearances at the University of Illinois-Urbana and Brandeis University TV specials make several references to catching AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) by being kissed or just in the same room.

As we see it... Action must be taken

In light of recent events on campus, it has become more and more apparent that walking alone is not as safe as it once was.

Several assaults and two rapes have occurred at Winthrop within the last year. The great volume of response we received in regard to a recent editorial proves that women on this campus do not feel safe walking alone at night, but at the same time feel that they have no choice.

I feel that it is time for the campus to unite in an effort to see that such incidents do not continue.

The Johnsonian would like to challenge college organizations to formulate their own type of protective services for students. For example, we believe that a great amount of potential for prevention lies in the hands of the fraternities. If each fraternity could set up a system in which a student could call the house and ask for an escort or ride on campus, it could possibly cut down on the number of girls walking alone at night.

Campus ministries and other organizations could form groups of their own and possibly have several students travel back and forth to functions together.

Another idea would be for each organization or club to form a phone list of people who could be called if an escort is needed.

In the past, various organizations have offered similar services, but none were ever fully utilized. We contend that the time for utilization of such services is now. Public Safety, though willing to aid students in any way possible, cannot be expected to carry students everywhere they want to go.

The burden of safety falls most heavily on the backs of students. We hope that through the suggestions made here campus organizations will see the need for action and make efforts to set up a system.

Rape

Dear Editor;
In reference to Mark Wood's article about girls walking alone at night, we are all like to answer your question. "How many stupid girls attend Winthrop College?" Due to the lack of available male escorts, at least three.

Do you think we want to walk alone, Mr. Wood? Certainly not. But a better question is: Do we want to get to our rooms at night so that we will be safe? Of course we do. How do you think we can accomplish this feat? Bing...we must walk, and if we haven't been with a group, we must go alone. Even when we are with a group, sometimes we aren't together for long. It's a little difficult to stay together when one girl lives in Mauldin, one lives in Bancroft, and one lives in Wofford.

All I would like to know is: Mr. Wood, is where do you expect these "stupid" girls to find these wonderful male escorts? Some of us who don't know a lot of guys at all are hard time finding such people. And giving you the benefit of the doubt, it certainly would be difficult for you alone to try and walk every girl home late at night.

Mr. Wood, we're not speaking off the cuff. We're not giving you a "what if" example. Right now there are three girls attending a club meeting that is lasting a little longer than expected. It is midnight, and we will all be leaving to go our separate ways to our separate dorms. If we were smart, we would probably be calling you right about now. But no, we are going to take one more chance. Besides, I'm not so sure you want to walk you home anyway. It seems to me that if you care so much about the safety of this campus, you certainly would never suggest that any male who sees a girl walking would ever "go up behind her and scare the devil out of her to teach her a lesson for her own good." How kind of you to take the time to teach stupid women lessons on safety.

Light and if you think that is an effective method of prevention.

You state that "life around campus didn't change too much" after last year's incident and since then, three other female on campus have been assaulted. You are blinded by the three victims' fault for not heeding the warning of the past. These women are not to blame for what happened to them. They were victims. Do you know what a victim is? Mark Wood? A victim is an innocent person who is physically and/or sexually assaulted through no fault of her own. "If some of you girls don't change... what do you mean? We don't lock ourselves in after 5 p.m. and get back out until 8 a.m., what do we get for it that you are saying?"

Mark Wood, and any other male would start to listen, until you truly understand the feelings of helplessness and lack of control until you can come up with a mature and compassionate solution, don't you ever again dare to judge women on the subject of rape.

Sincerely,

Paul Cunningham

Come out, come out

By MARK WOOD

TJ contributing editor

Come out, come out, wherever you are, Phil Lader.

If you don't, you could be replaced by me!

Seriously, the funniest thing I've heard was that a girl asked me if I was the one who dressed up as Phil Lader at Halloween. I was sitting on one of the couches when a girl asked me if I was the one who dressed up as Phil Lader at Halloween. I replied in the affirmative and she went on to tell me a most interesting story.

It seems as though a South American friend of hers, who is in her first semester at Winthrop, saw me in my Phil Lader get-up. With all of the "Hello, I'm Phil Lader" remarks, the student apparently became confused as to who I really was.

She related a short story even shorter, as I was walking to the cafeteria on Saturday afternoon. (Winthrop Day, for those of you who didn't know), the same foregone conclusion, and her friend saw me walking in.

"There's Phil Lader!" she exclaimed to her friend.

Of course, her friend had to BLECH!

Rape

Dear Editor,

This letter, I'm sure, is only one of many in response to Mark Wood's article "Just What Does That Mean?"

How dare you, Mark Wood, judge women at Winthrop College. We are not stupid. You have no way of knowing the circumstances that lead to a woman's walking around campus alone at night.

May I remind you that those women walking around campus are raped by men? Most men are considered "helpless." Do you, Mark Wood, know what is it to have your basic freedom of movement hindered by the fear of sexual assault or rape? If you did, then you would not be so judgmental.

You would be mad. You would be so angry at your lack of control over what happens in your own body that you would be writing this article, not I.

"When I see a girl walking around campus alone as late as midnight, I feel like going up behind her and scaring the devil out of her to teach her a lesson for her own good." How kind of you to take the time to teach stupid women lessons on safety.

Are you sick and misled if you think that is that is an effective method of prevention.

You state that "life around campus didn't change too much" after last year's incident and since then, three other female on campus have been assaulted. You are blinded by the three victims' fault for not heeding the warning of the past. These women are not to blame for what happened to them. They were victims. Do you know what a victim is? Rape

Dear Editor,

I am the rape victim who you accuse of being stupid. How dare you even begin to attack me verbally for something which has to do with personal, and which you are so far from understanding. Every time I see a stocky built black male I am terrified beyond belief. What happened to me will take months of tears and nightmares to get over.

I wish to God that I had not been walking alone that night, and I advise everyone to be accompanied while walking day or night in all possible cases. As far as I am concerned, being escorted by a male to be protected, is who is to say that the male escorting you will not physically and/or sexually hurt you also. This advice is only for females. How many times have you, Mr. Wood, walked somewhere at night alone? So how you think you are immune to violent crime? If so, you are as naive as I myself used to be.

I was not at all impressed by your solution to the problem. If you think that scaring the "devil" out of a young lady who is walking alone at night is going to prevent her from walking alone instead of just making her angry, why don't you try tomorrow night.

I hope you take this time to thank Lisa Buie for her insight concerning this matter. Thanks for understanding.

Rape

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my agreement with Mark Wood's recent editorial. The situation of safety on the Winthrop campus has become the responsibility of each individual student, not just Public Safety.

Mr. Wood. Mr. Wood has seen the problem significantly increase over the last few months, as we have all, and he is trying to do a public service by bringing the issue to light and hopefully get some people to do a little thinking about it.

I truly hope that a W.A.R. (Women Against Rape) will soon be declared. I am willing to be on the front line.

Sincerely,

Paul Cunningham

Rape

Dear Editor:
I am not one who writes letters to the editor, but your recent issue titled "Just What Does It Take?" has prompted me to do so.

The rape issue of The Johnsonian serves me some comment. I take issue with your implication that girls get what they deserve if they are found in the wrong place at the wrong time. Your article directed blame for the crime of rape at the female population, generally, and at the rape victim specifically.

First, because of the recent rape on campus, I consider your writing on this issue to be uncaring and tactless. The last thing that a rape victim wants to hear is her case discussed in an opionated public forum such as yours. You may argue that such is the mark of good reporting. And it is. But what is the people to want to read about? It is an indication of an insensitive person. Placing blame on the circumstances surrounding a rape is not the source of solutions to the problem. Just what does it take to focus on the criminal and the crime rather than on the victim and those circumstances that are beyond her control?

You seem to recognize the fact that rape victims are not at fault; they do not "bring it on themselves." Instead, blame is placed on the time of night that the rape victim chooses to walk alone. Maybe they would learn a "lesson" if someone were to come up from behind and "scare the devil" out of them, as you suggest in your article. In any case, in presence, placing the blame for the crime on the victim and not on the criminal? Just what DOES it take?

There is another side to this story. A woman in today's society—the Winthrop Woman of the Future—finds it necessary to function alone. Her ability to assert herself, to take precautionary measures, and to protect herself are all part of the independence of the 80's. Here at Winthrop the library classes at eleven p.m. Some of the assaults that have occurred have been much earlier than this. So what do we do? We could call Public Safety. Our Public Safety officers couldn't possibly be everywhere at once, so come at the start of the year, every woman faced with having to walk across campus at night, whether she has been studying late, visiting a friend, or just out exploring by herself.

Well, we could at least stay out of dark shadowy places. The fog is just the one that prompted hanger low. The shadows of the this letter.

Basketball game

Dear Editor:
I'm writing in reference to the basketball game Monday night, Nov. 18. I'm a member of the Rude Crew and I was greatly appalled with the way our new Athletic Director Steve Vacedak handled the game. Last year we developed a tradition of throwing toilet paper on the court after we scored our first basket. This was the only time we did it during the game. Former Athletic Director Neilordon loved the idea. He even arranged a bus and meal to take us to an away game. Vacedak has a totally different opinion. He says someone could get hurt. Let's be real. When was the last time anyone cut themselves using toilet paper?

I'm speaking for the entire group when I say we are greatly upset with his actions. There has been much to discuss at the present time, but just imagine what it will be like if he continues with his present way of handling this situation. If the Rude Crew stops caring, it would hurt attendance greatly and enthusiasm even more. I hope Vacedak realizes his real mistake and puts the fun back into the game.

Sincerely,
Randy Graves

Attitudes

Dear Editor,
Recently I have noticed a disturbing fact here at WC. The general attitudes of most students is YUCK!! All I hear is complaints. Some might say it is reasonable, but do these people know how to smile and say something pleasant.

By no means am I anexception. I'm sure many friends are tired of me complaining about: "I failed the test that I need to graduate by the 2004." "How can I meet this girl? She's out of my league. Besides, she couldn't afford me." The list goes on.

However, the complaints I hear from other students appear worse. "This food stinks." "Where's a parking place?" "She exams next week- oh, dog poop." "Rain, rain, rain, I hate rain." I could also use examples pertaining to registration, housing, the infirmary, the new, personal favorite Public Safety or should I say Public Nuisance.

Do me a favor. Smile; call your mom, tell her you love her and remember it can't get worse.

T-shirt contest

Dear Editor,
In regards to the Phelps dorm t-shirt contest held last October, I am totally disappointed I was not included in the entire thing was handled.

I drew an idea for the contest, handed it in to my RA and waited for results. Well, as time passed I started hearing bits and pieces from different friends who are involved in Hall Council, etc. but not one word from anyone on the t-shirt committee. I must have liked my idea and were probably going to use it for the t-shirts.

Well, I continued to wait for some news, but nothing. Then today I received concerning the ordering of Phelps t-shirts. I went straight to the office to see what the hell was going on and decided to see that the RA was clearly and obviously mine, but the drawing was mine and furthermore, my name was on it! I was outraged to say the least. My questions are: Where was my phone call saying, "Susana, you won, but we need you to alter a few things?" Who actually won the contest? The person who tampered with my design?? And who gave them the right to take my name off of the picture??

I'm terribly disappointed and I shake my head at someone's lack of responsibility. I'm almost sorry I submitted a design. I didn't know a lawyer and a copyright were required when designing (and submitting) a dorm t-shirt. I just hope that this dorm decides to have another t-shirt contest they will have a committee of honest, creative students who would never think of running another bogus t-shirt contest.

Did you miss it?

By LAURIE ANN DEDES
TJ sports editor

Well, gang, I was pretty impressed by last Monday night's ball game. (No, not the Redskins and the Giants; I already figured the Skins would win.) Actually, I'm talking about the Eagles' opening game against the Irish Nationals! Hey, guys, we won! We lost to them last year and the year before in Ireland. Not this time though! The final score was 74-68. The Eagles didn't let the Irish get ahead at all during the game.

There was a good bit of student support, not as much as I would have preferred but, hey, it's a start. The Rude Crew was out in full force. (Hey guys, you really gave Hutch a hard time because he had to sit with the Irish. Hey, that's P.R. work - it makes the bad look good!) I saw some Pikas, SAEs, TEKEs and Sigmas. Where was everyone else? OK, challenge time! I'm challenging all of the sisters and brothers of the Greek organizations to come out to the Jan. 13 game in your jerseys. If you don't, you're wimps, case closed. Also, I don't want to see any more Auburn, Carolina (North or South), Clemson, Alabama or any other school shirts other than Winthrop at our ball games. Have some respect! I hope they don't let you in the Coliseum; you're the REAL traitors. I think the bookstore needs to have a sale on Winthrop t-shirts so maybe some of you people will go get one!

Anyway, if you didn't go you really missed some jam up playing. Fred McKinnon was awesome as usual - the whole team was fired up!

I didn't know we had a band! That's fantastic! Is this a permanent part of Winthrop basketball? I hope so; the music really adds to the whole atmosphere! So did the dance team and cheerleaders. The dance team got new uniforms this year. If you guys didn't go you missed these little off-the-shoulder numbers. They were a little short for my taste, but the Rude Crew seemed to enjoy them.

I can understand now why the cheerleaders won all the spirit awards that they did at cheering camp! They didn't stop for one second! How Randy Jackson does all of those consecutive back flips I'll never figure, but it was fantastic.

They really kept the cheers coming and they have a whole new line of cheers and stunts!

If you didn't go to the ball games this past week then you missed the band, Fred McKinnon, Allen Washington, the cheerleaders, your friends, the T.V. cameras from WBTV during the Classic; you missed it all! You're now clueless as well. (My editor won't let me use expletives anymore.) But I bet you'll come to the next game to get clued in, won't you?

Moody dedicated to coaching

By TODD HUTCHINSON
TJ sports editor

"I like the challenge of coaching. The ability to show and touch a player and watch it result during actual game time," said Roxanne Moody on what attracted her to coaching.

Moody, the women's assistant basketball coach, comes to Winthrop after three years at Wake Forest University at the same position. A graduate of Wake Forest with a sociology degree became a coach at the urging of Head Coach Wanda Briley, then the coach at Wake Forest.

"At first I had some regrets about coaching, but now I don't. I wasn't really sure if it is what I wanted to do. Now I have come to love coaching," said Moody.

Moody said, "I like the part of working with the players. On a personal and team level watching a person or the team develop is the best part."

On the best part of coaching Moody said, "I like the part of the actual driving to scout is the worst part of coaching," said Moody.

Outside of coaching Moody enjoys racquetball, reading and taking long walks.

On Winthrop, Moody commented, "Winthrop has a great deal to offer. It has a strong academic reputation plus a solid athletic program. It has a great facility for a school of its size plus a beautiful campus. Plus with Vacendak and Briley we have people who are recognized which should also help."

"I really don't see any drawbacks to Winthrop. Possibly the few drawbacks about Winthrop being an all girls school, but that can be fixed by saying Winthrop is co-ed. While also making Winthrop known could hurt," said Moody.

Winthrop victorious over Irish

"The intensity of American players is far greater than it is in Europe. The officiating is also much tighter in Europe..." - Fran Ryan, Irish Nationals Coach.

By DAVID McCallum
TJ staff writer

Winthrop began its era in the NCAA Monday night Nov. 16 with a 74-68 exhibition win over the Irish National squad.

The Eagles, who never trailed on the night, scored the first 10 points of the contest with forward Fred McKinnon tallying eight of his 20 points.

The visitors from Ireland finally got on the board with 16:53 on a Michael Smith three-point play. Winthrop built the lead to 11 on three occasions, the last being at 24-13 on Jon Bowman's basket at 5:32. Winthrop Coach Neil Gordon was pleased with his squad's performance saying, "We played well tonight, Bowman and Washington did a good job on the boards, and Fred McKinnon had a good shooting night."

Smith, who went to school at USC-Spaldingburg, helped the Nationals cut into the Eagles advantage by pumping in 16 points in the opening half. He got the Irish Nationals to within four points at 34-30 on a jumper at 1:31 left in the half.

Freshman Greg Washington's baseline jumper at 1:17 left in the half gave the Eagles a half-time lead of 36-30.

The second half, both teams were red hot as the Irish squad shot well over 70 percent, and the Eagles hit 66 percent of their shots going 16 for 23 from the field.

The visitors were able to get within four points on several occasions, but were never able to get any closer. The Eagles were able to match the Irish Nationals point for point over the first six minutes of the second half.

Junior Teddy Haupt dropped in 11 points in the half, mostly on long-range bombs, and finished with 17 points.

Gordon says that Haupt is going to be a big asset for his Eagles.

"Ted's going to help make us a good ball team. He makes things happen on the court, and he does many things well," Gordon said.

Winthrop opened its biggest lead of the night of 12 points: 61-49 on an excellent backdoor pass from Shawn Wise to Washington with 6:56 left in the game, and at 63-51 on a Wise lay-in at the 5:06 mark.

The Irish Nationals were able to get back into the game behind the shooting of forward William Miller, who poured in 21 of his game-high points. The scrappy Irish squad cut the lead down to four, 72-68 on Liam Lavelle's jumper with 24 ticks left on the clock. Bowman ended any dreams of an Irish comeback with a lay-up with 15 seconds left.

Fran Ryan, the Irish National's mentor, says the weeks of rest and travel coming up is beginning to get to his squad.

"We've played a game every other night we've been here, and the travel is beginning to show on the players," said Ryan.

While also stating the style of play between European and American basketball is very different.

"The intensity of American players is far greater than it is in Europe. The officiating is also much tighter in Europe, especially guards, which has hindered how we've played over here," Ryan said.

Winthrop's Gordon, in his final season at the Rock Hill school, believes this year could be a good one for his Eagles.

"We have an excellent chance of being a good team. The four seniors returning gives us the nucleus of a good team," Gordon said.

Gordon says the season should be an exciting one.

"I think we have an exciting team, and with the excellent student support, it should be a fun year," he concluded.

Lucille Godbold could probably be considered as one of Winthrop's greatest athletes.

In 1928, Winthrop will celebrate its 100th birthday, and it brought to mind to do a story on the athletic accomplishments at Winthrop.

Sure, there are many things Winthrop sports can be proud of in its 100-year history: the start of intercollegiate athletic competition in 1928, while Winthrop was still an all-girls school; the beginning of men's sports and the first men's basketball team in 1977; the building of a new coliseum to house the athletic department; Charlie Brunner becoming Winthrop's first All-American in 1960 and 1961; and the big move to the NCAA ranks in nine short years.

However, one could say the greatest accomplishment occurred in 1922, when Winthrop was known as Winthrop College. The South Carolina College for Women. During this year, a young woman from Estill, S.C. captured six medals in the first-over Olympic competition for women in Paris, France.

Lucille Godbold, who as a student at Winthrop in 1920, had set two world records. The first was in the 100-yard hurdles in a time of 15 seconds flat, and the second in the basketball throw when she tossed the roundball 89'10". In 1922, after she had graduated, Godbold returned to the campus to train for the Olympic try-outs.

The Winthrop faculty and students proceeded to raise funds to send her to Mamaroneck, N.Y. for the trials. While in New York, Godbold broke her own American record for the shot put. The New York Herald said that Godbold was the best woman athlete in the college ranks at that time.

After Godbold had made the team, the school's faculty and students again raised money, and she was sent to Paris. Godbold did not disappoint her faithful fans; either, as she brought home six medals, including two gold medals.

Godbold won her first gold in the shot put by besting the world record by an incredible six feet. The second one, which was not recognized internationally because Americans only competed, was in the hop, step, and jump. She finished second in the basketball throw, third in the javelin throw, third in the 1000-meter run, and fourth in the 800-meter run. The second-place finish in the basketball throw was also not recognized internationally, because only Americans competed.

Although there have been many athletes in Winthrop's sports history, Lucille Godbold has earned a spot in the annals of Winthrop sports.

Winthrop sports show to air on cable

By JILL ZEIGLER

Winthrop, did you know that we have our very own Winthrop Sports Show? Well, now you do.

The show is produced by Sam Copeland, Winthrop's sports information director. Copeland also serves as the show's co-host along with Senior Mickey Sabella, a communications major.

Others involved in the production of the show are Director Buddy Fields and Chief Engineer Tom Bender.

Winthrop Sports Show focuses mainly on Winthrop athletics. This segment of the show called "Athletic Director's Corner" is hosted by Steve Vandenak and gives in-depth interviews with faculty members as well as executive members. Producer Sam Copeland feels that this segment is used to cover other college activities. The show also covers statistics on players and team standings, along with some human interest features.

You can catch the show every Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. on Cable Channel 2 and if you miss it, the same segment is shown on Thursday mornings. If you want an update on what's happening in the sports world, Winthrop is the place to be.

Although most of the show is dedicated to Winthrop's just a little insight into athletics, about 10 minutes out campus activities - time into the of the 30 televised are set aside Winthrop Sports Show!

Weiss is optimistic about season

By TODD HUTCHINSON
TJ sports editor

"The main reason I came to Winthrop were the people, campus, college, an established coach, and a good business department," said John Weiss.

Weiss, a sophomore from Gainesville, Ga., has been on the Winthrop basketball team the last two years. Weiss, a guard, feels he should see some playing time this year.

"We currently have a strong backcourt, but I feel I should get considered for some playing time. Last year was a learning experience for me and hopefully I can turn that experience into more playing time," said Weiss.

"This should be a good year for the team. We will be looking to capture the first Big South Conference Tournament Title," Weiss said about the team outlook.

He added, "A definite strength will be our shooting. We also should rebound well. Also, our blend of experience and youth should make up a good team."

Weiss said, "We could use some more overall height. The only thing this team lacks is an 'enforcer' type player."

As far as his personal strengths and weaknesses, Weiss commented, "I need to work on my ball handling as the season progresses while I feel I shoot pretty well and can rebound for my size."

A business major, Weiss said, "Finding time to play basketball and getting your school work done is hard. You just need to get your priorities straight."

On the future here at Winthrop Weiss commented, "The team should get stronger in the future. Personally, I'm excited about playing in Winthrop's first N.C.A.A. Division I game. As for the new coach, I hope we can get a good coach, but for now the team's goal is to having a good season in Coach Gordon's last year."

Salaries rise slowly

(CPS) - The average salaries of college and university administrators went up six percent in 1984-85, topping last year's 3.7 percent increase, an annual survey reports.

But the increases lag behind the eight to ten percent hikes of recent years, and women's and minorities' salaries continue to trail the average pay for men and non-minorities in most of the positions surveyed by the College and University Personnel Association (CUPA).

Academic and external affairs administrators got the highest increases (6.5 percent), while administrative affairs officers got the lowest (5.5 percent).

The CUPA survey, which reports salary figures for 99 administrative positions at 1,500 schools nationwide, shows medical school deans again earned the highest average salaries of all higher education administrators.

This year they averaged $99,953, up from last year's $98,000 and $86,700 in 1984-85.

Deans of dentistry, the second highest paid administrators, averaged $80,942. Hospital medical center administrators, the third highest paid officials, averaged $80,000.

Rounding out the top five are law school deans at $77,800 and chief executive officers of systems, who averaged $70,700.

The five lowest paid positions are student housing directors, $24,800; chaplains, $24,900; news bureau directors, $24,500; student health nursing administrators, $21,500; and bookstore directors, $21,000.

"The increases in most administrative positions were higher in public schools than in private schools," reports Carin Luke, CUPA publications' managing editor.

But the higher increases don't necessarily mean higher salaries, she cautions.

Public medical school deans, for example, earned $96,408, while their private school counterparts made $125,000.

As in past years, the biggest discrepancies were between the salaries of male and female administrators, and salaries of minorities and non-minorities.

Women's average salaries were less than men in 87 top administrative positions. Minority administrators earned lower salaries than non-minorities in 96 positions.

This is the official examination schedule for fall semester. Examinations may not exceed 2 1/2 hours in length. Legitimate conflicts are defined as follows: more than one scheduled exam per period, more than two scheduled exams in any day, and more than three scheduled exams in any four consecutive periods. A student with a legitimate conflict will receive written notification from the Registrar’s Office. The instructor involved will be given notification of the conflict. Students are responsible for resolving conflict conflicts with the instructor by November 11. Personal conflicts such as Christmas travel plans and work schedules do not warrant a change in examination time.

Sexual harassment —

"Unless a professor is removed (by disciplinary action of the university) from the classroom, we (the department) can’t be in a position to say ‘You can’t teach,’” he says. Students also are asking schools to expand their definitions of sexual harassment, sometimes to include students harassing students.

At Penn, where in a September survey one in three female students said she’d been sexually harassed on campus, the debate reached a fever pitch when President Sheldon Hackney dismissed the survey’s results because they included "peer harassment." "It’s confusing to equate jokes, gestures and leers with than 15 percent of the schools may even trivialize what is a very serious issue.” Others disagreed. While a leer or a rude joke, or having someone look at your chest instead of your face is not physically harmful, they can be mentally and emotionally harmful and they can stop an individual from pursuing a particular career or opportunity,” former Penn student leader Amy Lyman says.

Although many schools leaders rarely enforce them, Campbell reports. In her national survey, Campbell also found that two-thirds of all schools now have procedures for letting students complain about harassment.

But it also showed that less than 15 percent of the schools have conducted surveys to measure how much of a problem they have.

After hearing from gay organizations, Murphy made a public apology several months ago, saying he was not anti-gay and "did not mean to offend anybody" with his material.

Since then, the comic has eliminated or softened most of his gay jokes, says Robert Wachs, Murphy's co-manager. It didn't stop some protestors on the current tour, however.

Brandeis demonstrators, for example, taunted Murphy into declaring on-stage that he wouldn't donate his appearance fees—protestors said it was $60,000, but Murphy's agent won't confirm or deny the figure—to the Boston AIDS Action Committee.

"He" he said to the protestors request, adding, "Besides, it's only $30,000."

about long lines in the cafeteria, Simpson said during the conference that there was a limited amount of seats available and that students would end up standing around holding their trays.

When asked about the possibility of including hamburgers in the soup and sandwich line and having the line stay open longer hours and on the weekends, Simpson said it would be cost prohibitive.

The committee also complained that some employees weren't following all sanitation rules. A number of suggestions were voiced by the committee on behalf of constituents. Simpson took note of them all and promised to look into them.

When explaining the meal plans, he said it was important for students to realize that the 10 and 15 meal plans were pre-paid and that some students were running out of meals towards the end of the week. He said he was trying to get students to tell when they were about to come up short so they could plan their meals better.

Tape on nuclear war shown

By KAREN LEE PARKER
TJ staff writer

The Winthrop college Campus Ministry presented a videotape entitled, "From Trinity to Star Wars: A Conference on Nuclear War" on Thursday, Nov. 14 at the Wesley Foundation.

The video, produced by the Union of Concerned Scientists, was shown following a short film depicting the results of a first strike, and an introduction by Victor Weisskopf said, "Nuclear weapons are the greatest danger humanity has ever faced."

The video showed how missiles have become more dangerous throughout the years. Both the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. have at least 50 times the amount of nuclear weapons that are needed to destroy each other, because today's missiles have multiple warheads and are faster and more accurate.

In addition, the video had panels of renowned authorities on the subject of nuclear weapons. Cities all over the country were linked via satellite and were invited to call in questions. Inquiries came in from San Francisco, Chicago, Amherst, Atlanta, and Dallas. Panelists included Dr. Paul Braken of Yale University, Sen. Albert Gore, Jr. (D-Tenn.), Dr. Henry Kendall of the Union of Concerned Scientists, and former Secretary of Defense, Robert McNamara. Some of the questions asked dealt with terrorism, the use of nuclear arms, second and third world countries and nuclear winter.

Pat Blaney Bright, WCCM Associate Minister said, "I wish everyone had been able to watch the video."
