ONE CASE.

The examination officer turned to a lady in his chair, and prepared to hear modest talk of poverty and distress, as the stout, red-faced lady about the door and pulled her way across the room.

"Good night," she said, "my man has been drawn, and I've come to see about it. He is accused of claiming a pension on the ground of supporting an old and feeble man and child. The honest goodness, that triflingascal couldn't support a sucker like that! He had four teenage boys, and he done a lick of work in the five year we been married, an' I ain't had a stitch of clothes I didn't work an' earn. He take tramp all day, cause the government an' complain that he ain't never had no luck, an' he ain't even got no man to go to for support for a better offender. I've kept him in chains, an' smoke tobacco, an' cleaned up after him an' nursed him when he was sick, an' over a drunk, and served and attended an' mended for him, with many a word of thanks, an' now I've worn out of him. I've had a plenty of sorrows, but if I never seed another thing like this, I want you to take him an' send him to Germany, an' either make a man of him, or let him plan ship to shipwreck. I'd that an' if he comes back to me in a coffin, I'll burn it, I'll burn him dead, an' send the folks, dat's what I want, an' that's what I'll do. I ain't quarrel with you, but if that law says, 'see-see-see,' I'll do it. My frame ain't beat up, but I'll be hit low for the Germans to pull me off my feet, done for me, an' I'll be in a Fountein like the Ark."

The Difficult Task.

The easy task is seldom beneficial. It results to special effort. The accomplishment and soon become merely a matter of course. It does not call into being the better part of our nature, but only the average standard of achievement. It is the task that requires constant attention, vigilance, endurance, patience and high courage that give us moral fiber and bring forth the best that is within him. Every difficult task accomplishes a man's self-worth, and is a step up the ladder toward his development as a citizen. That condition of life which requires for its solution a constant work and better results than that which confines its activities only to the furtherance of selfish purposes. It is impossible for any man to do good work if he is actuated solely by the desire to add to his material wealth. It is no use carrying only ourselves and work for our selves when our tasks are easy and heavy, and it is so hard to think that others and work for others who duty's call is hard and wearying. But it is our response to the latter that we unconsciously find the true measure of our character and our true strength in our uncertainty, why, whether or not we are to become strong or weak forces in the community, in which we live.

THAT MOST OF US WANT TO OBTAIN. BE- CAUSE WE CAN ONLY MASTER LIFE'S LESSONS IN THE SCHOOL OF EXPERIENCE. IT DOES NOT MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE HOW LONG WE LIVE, BUT IT DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE HOW MUCH INTELLIGENT EFFORT WE PUT INTO THE SOLUTION OF OUR INDIVIDUAL PROBLEMS. BUT IT DOES MAKE A VERY GREAT DIFFERENCE, HOWEVER SHORTLY WE LIVE, HOW MUCH KNOWLEDGE WE OBTAIN THROUGHOUT OUR LIVES.

The study of life has many other important achievements than the health and well-being of the body. It is the study of the things that are to be done, and the things that are to be avoided. It is the study of the things that are to be done, and the things that are to be avoided. It is the study of the things that are to be done, and the things that are to be avoided.

THREE LITTLE GASOLINE

Five Out of Eight Darlington Dealers in Course Short.

Darlington, Sept. 14.—W. H. Morningstar, chief of police, this morning said a visit by all of the gasoline stations in town and made a test of the measures of gasoline with the result that five out of eight, but the stations were found to be selling gasoline short; from one pint in five gallons to a pint in one gallon. The parties who have been selling short measures have been doing so, it is believed, as a result of a shortage of supply. It is thought that the police this morning, however, put them on notice that their pumps are liable to go wrong and that in the future they will have to make tests more frequently.

The Unneutral Neutral.

All the European neutrals have been of more or less service to Germany during the war, though none of them apparently has gone so far as Sweden in unneutral activities. To some extent this has been inevitable. The issue has been so sharply drawn by Germany's own acts of savagery that neutrality itself has become almost impossible. Sweden, it is not only that they have admitted that this country was drawn into the conflict, the Swedish people have admitted that their neutrality was so well-nigh impossible. The Scandinavian neutrals, Holland, Spain—each has suffered from German unneutrality. None may have been in a position to reach this destruction of life and property; submission may have been the best policy. But can now hope to escape the effects of that policy by protesting there was no other to take. For the sake of the European neutrals, but that in doing so they have made themselves accomplices of the Power which injured them. Sweden, perhaps, is alone in her breach of faith and honor. But her neighbors have been of value to Germany as bases of supply, and more than this, their despatch have gone beyond the bounds of ordinary duty of a neutral to trade with a belligerent. That is why there is to be no strict an embargo on exports to them from America.

A larger question than this, however, is involved in the disclosure of the actual conduct of the Swedish Minister at Buenos Aires. As the case stands, the Allies would be simply justified in breaking off diplomatic relations with Sweden. There is no imaginable excuse for what appears to be the deliberate treachery of the Swedish Foreign Office. At the same time a reputation by the Swedish people of the acts of their officials would so far as prevent such dramatic action. It is clear, however, that Sweden cannot have the status of a neutral if her Government persists in its present course. She has been of more service to Germany as a neutral than she would have been as an ally. But now, unless she regards her neutrality better, she must be judged as a enemy or ally. Considering her generally pro-German attitude, she is more likely to become an ally. If Germany's aggressive policy, but for they have gone that far that the world's convictions.

Holland and Denmark are too upon the side of the Allies. If either needs no demonstration. On the other hand, it is not proved from the German side that Germany would not have been doing so, as they that Norway were not in the same position of neutral. The question of the United States for that part of her territory for keeping her out of the Swedish struggle from its neutral.
