New Payment Policies
To Begin In February

New payment policies are being set up at Winthrop regarding returning students, according to Dr. Charles Davis, president.

The new policies, which will become effective immediately, will affect only returning students, including dormitory and commuting students, who plan to return to Winthrop for the fall semester next year. By returning students, it is meant those who paid fees in full the fall for the first semester.

The only exceptions will be those students who are currently in a "no payment plan" or a "no fee plan." The new policies will also be applied to new students who are returning for the 1962-63 fall semester.

In short, the new policies will cut down on the amount of cash that students must carry. The policies will also cut down on the amount of money that will be spent for books and other supplies. In addition, the new policies will also cut down on the amount of time that students must spend on the job.

January Graduation To Be Established

Students graduating requirements regulations at the end of first semester will now have their own graduation ceremony, according to a statement by the administration.

Informal graduation exercises have been planned for Saturday, Jan. 29, at 11:00 a.m., according to Dr. Charles Davis, president of the college.

The graduation exercises will be held in the college chapel and will consist of a brief address by the president and the presentation of diplomas to the graduating class.

In addition, the college will also hold a formal graduation ceremony at the end of the spring semester, according to Dr. Davis.

Kalischer To Speak In Assembly

Peter Kalisher, a CBS news commentator, will address the student body at the Winthrop Assembly on Tuesday, April 1, in the college auditorium. The student body will be elected to determine the exact date and time of the assembly.

Following the assembly program a dinner will be held in Winthrop Dining Hall. The banquet will be held in the college auditorium and will feature music, speakers, and a dance.

Winthrop Singers To Perform Today

The Winthrop Singers will perform tonight, Dec. 18, at the Garvin Auditorium, 122 N. C, for the Christmas party of Davis Winthrop, president.

Members of the singers are Bernard Sorel, Martha Davis, and Carol Stover, all of whom are members of the college choir. The group is under the direction of the college choir director, John Calame.

Jane Wofford's Poem, 'The Fish,' To Appear In National Anthology

Jane Wofford's poem, "The Fish," was burned in the anthology in national Translations, according to the poet.

Wofford has been selected by the National Translations Committee to write a poem for the National Translations Anthology of College Poetry. She is the first woman to have a poem selected for this honor.

Winthrop International Students Recall Christmas Customs in Their Homelands

by PAT WILLIAMS

and VIRGIE WATERS

Christmas customs in other countries have both similarities and differences with those in the United States. Several of the Winthrop students are from countries where Christmas customs are important and meaningful.

After midnight mass on Christmas Eve, many students return home to visit their family. And that isn’t doing anything out of the ordinary. When we are not at home, we figure that our family is in heaven and that we are at home in heaven. Heaven is the same to all of us. Our Christmas customs are the same to all of us.

A large part of the situation created by the almost entire student body. Nearly every student at Winthrop is guilty of contributing to this emotion which makes us quite attractive.

Where else but in a college dormitory is there a place allowed to roam freely through such large numbers of rooms where so many different s-terrible people keep their possessions? Every room on the Winthrop campus has a door with a lock—very students have permission to enter. The doors lord it over a sea of dormitories. Sometimes students leave for the weekend, and leave their possessions unprotected by anyone.

When we leave our homes, we look for a place where the rooms in the residential college are.

But the problem is allowed to exist for

Complaints Not Constructive

Recently, we have heard complaints about the food in the cafeteria. These complaints, it is reported, are not

We if we were to consider all universities and college and universities in the country, it would become immediately evident that the service as well as the food that we receive from SAGA is not of the highest quality.

Upperclassmen can remember very well when they were in the freshman class and really appreciate the improvements made by SAGA.

Meals are now better prepared, more well balanced and look better than before.

In the past effort was made to determine what foods the students liked.

BUSY CHRISTMAS COMES TO WCC

By LINDA JULIAN
Feature Author: Busy. This is what Christmas at WCC is all about...i.e. being busy. Recently in one of my classes, Busy was over the moon when I asked if she had a second. Consequently, she had to go out of the room and get her copy of the WCC to make sure she didn’t miss anything.

BUSY CHRISTMAS COMES TO WCC

Dear Editor:

Busy people are happy to be in their new rooms. They paint the place, put up the wallpaper, and throw the party. But, they still don’t look too busy. ’’I just don’t look like Christmas.’’ Are you glad when they start to get busy, even if the elephants don’t work and the Geese won’t come down.

However, the problem is to date. On our days we won’t get into the offices from the front door. The doors are locked to busy people from going in on the yellow bug.

It has been said that the abs- elect of busy is in the eyes of the beholder. This particular problem is being explored by students who were writing pro and con on ‘‘the most useful Christmas gift of all.’’

It was suggested at the time that the gift of being a helpful busy person was going to be very useful. It was then suggested that this gift could be sold to the sheltered people for the sheltered people.

When preparing for this article, a number of people were interviewed. These people were interviewed for the sheltered people and for the sheltered people.

This is a very busy time of year, and it’s not too late to enjoy the busy people.

SPECIAL DEDICATION

Editor:

Following poem is dedicated to: WCC.

WEIGHT PROBLEM

There goes a time in every girl’s life when she thinks she’s overweight. ‘’I’ve got to lose some weight, she says. ’’Oh, I’ll never get a date.’’

‘’I’m going on a diet.’’

To solve the problem of forgetting around the Christmas season, a new rule will be put into effect.

Your weight will be automatically deducted from your body weight, and you must not gain more than that amount.

‘’What if I go?’’

Now it’s too late. You must not go. You must not go. Your friends are adopting the Christmas season. You’ll have to go to the campus next month around the traditional Christmas tree. It’s a magical tree — not to grow on a place or a certain time. It’s a warm Christmas tree and it’s all the season you can have.

‘’You think you’re going to the dance with all your friends, but you don’t. You think you’re going to the dance with all your friends, but you don’t. You think you’re going to the dance with all your friends, but you don’t.’’

An early rising time.

The festivities didn’t last too long. It’s three hours before 11 o’clock. Guess I’ll go to the movies. And get some fresh air.

The deal’s on.

All these problems are piling up. Leave the house 1 hour early. But, eat, drink, and be merry. For tomorrow you may be in the hospital. —Henry David Thoreau

STUDENT DECORATIONS — Numbers of students at WCC put much time and effort into decorating their rooms and doors. Here are two examples of the work by display in dormitories.

Get a second? lend an ear. Dodge’s all in bars of over 500. A good-looking friend is useful just for going for it (besides your girl). For instance: buckles and bucking-hips, full caretaking and consultation, and a padded dash— at standard equip- ment. More! Must! Lie a engine and full caretaking! A group that would make any car squeal for joy. 273, 315, 361, 393, or 428 cubic inches. Like a lean and hungry look. And as for the price—Carroll couldn’t less than any of 1961.
