A NEBRASKA WHEAT TOWN WHEN THE GREAT RIVERS TO MOVE.

The shortage of railway cars has been one of the tragedies of the great wheat-growing sections of the West, both following the harvest of last year and the harvest just past. The coming of the "empty" means life and prosperity to the little shipping centers no less than to the nation at large.

One who has never been in the wheat belt of western Nebraska and northeastern Colorado can even imagine the activity a community assumes when word is passed along that the wheat-growers are available to carry the grain to market.

The cars sent in during the night. Early the next morning the roads leading to the towns are a mass of trucks carrying the grain. The trucks gather on the ways of the local country roads, and many trucks loaded with a half dozen of the trucks gather on the ways of the local country roads, and many trucks loaded with a half dozen of the trucks gather on the ways of the local country roads.

Word of the cars' arrival is spread to farms far from town by farmers who take care in the morning to stop at the stores for their weekly shopping visit, and the trucks become more numerous during the afternoon.

The pop-pot or the exhaust from many trucks migrates to a prevailing wind that is for all the world like the dense heard in a busy hive of bees, each bee coming in for its share of the honey.

Shipping dots, they gather in unnumbered groups about the general offices, and the postoffice to discuss the new-born hope that some kind fate will compel the railroad to let them market the full harvest of wheat this fall.

A lessening of the tension that has been noticeable during the weeks of waiting for cars and an opportunity to cash in on their year's labor are felt by all. Faces that have been down or grim in the weeks of waiting carry a broad smile and a gleam of hope.

The regular flow of wheat from raiser to consumer has started. It is a relief to the wheat-grower community it has been throughout its whole being by a single thing as the arrival of cars. One sees it in a factory, one sees it in a store, and one realizes more surely and more certainly the justice of the farmer going to almost any length to secure the means of his livelihood.

The annual here of the golden river of grain seems to have started at last in the Big Springs community and with a combination of plenty of cars, still and efficient communication will carry the grain to market.

C., which was solemnized yesterday evening at 6 o'clock in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Allen, on York street. Only close friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present for the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. B. Ray Riddle, pastor of the Presbyterian church, at Lexingtonville.

Mrs. Warlick is the daughter of Mr. John W. Dunovut and is one of South Carolina's most accomplished and popular young women. Mr. Warlick is a prominent young business man of Newton and is associated in business with his father in the manufacturing of cigars. The young couple left after the ceremony for an extended northern trip after which they will be at home in Newton.

Many out-of-town guests from various sections of the Carolinas were present for the wedding.

Advances on the 1921 crop of cotton will be made with extreme caution.

Very little cotton is being sold on the Chester market these days and the little that is being sold appears to be done by people who have made obligations which are coming due and the cotton is being sold to satisfy the obligations. We understand some people do not even want to sell any cotton to satisfy their debts, which is not exactly the proper thing to do. We heard a farmer express the matter in a very business-like way a few days ago. He said: "The farmer has made an obligation which falls due it certainly is as little as he can do to call on the man or bank whom he owes and make satisfactory arrangements about the debt. I am one farmer who knows that other people have debts which must be paid as well as myself and they cannot pay them unless they get the money. I don't believe in holding cotton at the expense of some one else. Pay your debts and then sit down on the balcony of your crop until the horn blows," he said.

SAVE TIME AND LABOR

In the present age there is no excuse for a housewife to depend upon the old-style iron and stove in order to iron clothes. The old-style is slow and is very hard work.

Ironing at its best is a tiresome job and such being the case every one should have an Electric Iron in the home, even for the little jobs that come up almost daily. The cost is very small, so why do without such a convenience?
