Freshman Closed Study Hours

Recently a bill to change freshman closed study hours on Friday night to quiet hours was introduced in the Senate by the freshman senator. The Senate passed this bill, and the Faculty-Student Senate approved it on a trial basis. The bill then had to be approved by the administration, where it was vetoed.

The reasons for the bill were to give the freshmen a chance to relax after a week of work and to decrease the strain an unlimited study period would put on the faculty.

A poll taken showed that a vast majority of freshmen welcomed the idea. Regardless of classes, students studied on Friday night unless they had a test or some definite assignment on Saturday.

Quiet hours would still allow any freshman to study as to study. When elimination of closed study hours would provide those students who wished to relax in the cafeteria or visit in other rooms. We think that the bill is a good one and that, taken on a trial basis, it is not unsound.

Smoking Hazards In Cafeterias

Questions have recently been raised as to why students are permitted to smoke in the dining halls.

The explanation offered by SAGA Food Services is that the lack of seating in the cafeterias made it difficult to enforce a total no-smoking policy, and that smoking a cigarette and a cup of coffee, they would sit down at least 15 minutes. SAGA says.

In the mean time other students would have been denied the opportunity to smoke. The students feel that this is unfair.

There is no great danger of fire in the Thurgood Hall because of adequate fire equipment and fire prevention provided. But there are definite risks involved in another matter. With the age of the building and the number of people who smoke, there is much more danger of fire there. It is only during exam week breaks that anyone would even think to go to the cafe. According to Bill Culb, Winthrop engineer, there are no definite laws against smoking in the cafeteria during meal times but there is a definite law against smoking during a dance since this is considered a public function.

During dances the room is very crowded and particularly at formal dances there is a definite danger. To stop all smoking in formal dances would be impractical. The few rules that are in force are treated with very inflammable chandeliers when they are cleaned thereby making them fire hazards.

Also, the need for some one to cut the cause to make sure that every hair is in place, is highly inflammable.

New Elections Procedure

A new method of selecting candidates for class offices will take effect for the first time this year. This new method seems to us to have several points of worth.

Under the new procedure, candidates will petition a vote of the students of the class. The students will then choose those among him. The class, the board then choose those from among them, a system that has been mildly run. As the method has been used in the past, a nominating committee was elected from the students of the class who felt most qualified.

Due to increasing numbers of students at Winthrop, it becomes difficult for members of the nominating committee to know all the qualified students in the class. Hence, we hear "They choose the same people over and over." We hope the new procedure will be successful in bringing a greater number of qualified candidates to the attention of the board.

Students must either petition the board themselves, or have someone else make the petition for them. We seem that only those who are willing to accept the responsibility of office will be in competition for candidacy. And since at least 10 per cent of the class must vote against any candidate, the board will know that they have the approval of at least 10 per cent of the class in the choice of a candidate.

The first of the year this procedure for selecting candidates was tried with some success. A special election of freshman class officers was held. The new students were not on campus, erred problems, in charge of election, a very successful election. Only one candidate was running for each office.

It seems to us that the new election methods should prove very successful. We want to point out that it is now the place of the individual student to ask for a candidate.

We feel that every student has a better chance to be chosen as an officer and we shouldn't be so concerned about anyone else that he or she should want to ask for a position. We should be doing this ourselves and we should take care of our own offices as the nominations committee.

Winthrop's CCUN Delegates Are Most Prepared, Informed

Two South Carolina colleges, Presbyterian College and Colgate College, were selected by the national Organization of Students for a post-graduate conference in New York City. These delegates were selected by a committee of three judges from the College Union of New England.

Last year the student body selected for the post-graduate conference was unable to attend the conference because of the problems of the Winthrop administration.

This year the student body worked hard to select a delegate. The delegate chosen was then invited to the conference. The delegate traveled to New York City and represented Winthrop to the best of his ability.

The delegate then had to return to Winthrop and present an account of the conference to his classmates.
