Success at the Postoffice at Chester
S. C. as second-class matter.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10.

Some of the senators in Washington stated that President Wilson was expecting to receive millions of dollars worth of presents in Europe. It is a surprise how low some high folks can get.

Herbert Hoover is spoken of as a possible candidate for the presidency and some one wants to know what ticks he will run on. Why the usual ticket, of course.

Like the small boy at the circus, baby is trying to see how far the balloon will be blown up before it will burst. And when it pops, what?

Sale robbers in Philadelphia find a safe which was difficult to crack carried off in an automobile to work on at their leisure. Some safe town.

A man who is working on a small razor and has a large family down here to look for investments. What?

The city council is not satisfied with the way health matters are being handled around Chester. The council states that it has supplied the Board of Health with the necessary funds but that it fails to note results.

We dislike to see any friction between these two able bodies but just how either of them can get our respect results under present conditions, regardless of the amount of money expended, is more than The News can understand.

The News has been contending for years that the sanitary condition of Chester would never measure up to anything like what it should be in all the city employed a man who has made a study of sanitary matters and the one who knows a germ when he meets it.

The News does not profess to know it all but not school boy knows that when you get sick you want a doctor, and not a shoe-maker. Any school boy knows, or at least ought to know that when you want sanitary matters looked after, you ought to get a "sanitary man."

The News also believes that at least seventy-five per cent of the citizens of Chester are heartily in favor of the city securing the services of a hygienist. Our present system is archaic and we ought to get away from it. The sooner the better for the people of Chester.

The number of mosquitoes the people of Chester have had this year is not enough to get away from them to hold an indignation meeting.

Health is irrefragable. Health is purchasable within reason. A community cannot progress unless its citizens are healthy. The question therefore becomes how the community can purchase health for its citizens. The News certainly does not believe it can be purchased under the present Chester policy.

The statistics show that over fifty per cent of sickness is preventable but you must use your pocket book and your head both in preventing sickness.

Just how much the "mosquito epidemic" will cost the people of Chester this year would certainly be a hard question to answer. However, we do not have any doubt but that the cost will be considerably more than the services of a hygienist.

RISE ABOVE OUR MOODS

While perhaps there is much truth in the contention that we cannot do good work unless we are in the mood for doing it, yet it is essential that we do not rely upon this fact solely as a guide to our true progress. "Genius must burn," we argue, before we are able to accomplish in our satisfaction the particular task which we may be faced. If genius does not burn, we argue further, we must wait patiently until it does. In other words we "acknowledge" our need to be creatures of our moods and frankly admit our inability to perform our duties in a worthy way unless we "feel" like working.

Naturally every one wants to be in a good certain condition that appeal to him but, nevertheless, life is so fashioned and the agencies of the moment are so arranged that we may not always choose the psychological moment at which to act. Many times we are forced to disregard our personal feelings and labor industriously at our posts when we would rather do almost anything else imaginable. Of course when a person's health is at stake, when after long months or even years of toil he feels the need of relaxation he ought by all means to take the needed rest and refreshment, not only for reasons of health but also to gather force and energy with which to continue at his post. However, health is not the only reason why so many persons fail to apply themselves zealously to the accomplishments of either their regular duties or their tasks which appeal to them more particularly. It happens that sometimes we get our hearts and our minds upon the attainment of some goal which seems far away when we first set out upon the quest. It may be that we lose courage after radiant advance, the promise may not seem so alluring from the "obstacles" appear in alarming proportions, or the doubts that begin to assail us will not be dispelled. At all events, we do not feel so buoyant as when we first undertook the task, and rather than surrender abruptly to the uneasy influences of the moment we try to save our consciences, by saying that we must wait a while until the right mood seizes us. When we feel equal to the task we shall take it up again, we say, and until then we must be content to drift a while even though our drifting takes us farther away than ever from the goal of our desires.

If we heed the stimulus of our example, however, we cannot find it more strongly emphasized than in the lives of the great men of other days, those men who accomplished something of this world and who made for themselves a place in the sun. A careful reading of the lives of such men convinces us that their capacity for work was enormous and that indeed some of them seemed to have labored most of the time. A striking fact is that they did not wait for the "mood" to work. If they were not already in the "mood" they simply worked themselves into it. They did not waste time in waiting for something that perhaps might never come; they went forward regardless of the influences of the moment and by their industry, their perseverance and their ability they attained their ends. The "mood" came to them at their insistence and they easily absorbed it, which is a much better plan than to wait for its chance appearance. We lose valuable time in waiting for things to come to us the better way is to go out and take what we are capable of taking, and in this day of opportunity, well directed effort may accomplish marvels.

Simply because a man is naturally able to work to better advantage at certain times and in certain conditions does not necessarily make him a creature of moods. It is his persistence which wins, not the passing influence of the moment, as much as the latter often aids at critical times. The one thing to be remembered is that the results of our work depend upon the character of our efforts; the nature of the one is reflected in the quality of the other. The great achievements of men in all ages have never proceeded from the mood of the moment; they are all the result of hard, efficient work. In some cases the products of genius in many others the natural outcome of what may be termed "slavish" efforts. The hope of gaining laurels for ourselves through the aid of our "moods" is foolish, boastful and unworthy of those who hope and expect to accomplish worth while results. Self-control is a necessary factor in our lives and it is through its efficient use that we most depend for assistance through the trials and perplexities of our working periods. If we exercise to the proper way we may be able at times to use our "mood" to our advantage and at the same time learn never to place our reliance upon them. We must not learn to wear them as badges of our ability; we must take what advantage we may have of their opportunities and risk and then through sound effort and sound judgment into the ranks of successful toilers.

Mr. Marlon Holcomb of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I got

Mr. W. F. Marion, cotton statistician for Chester county, reports 2,812 bales of cotton ginned in Chester county up to September 25th, this year, as against 2,552 bales for the same period last year.

A matter which received much discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the city council Tuesday was that of sanitary matters in Chester. Several members of the council served the Board of Health and it was even suggested that the council take over the health department. Council states that it has supplied the Board of Health with the necessary money, but that results have not been noticed. Mayor Westbrook stated that had been kept on the force to see whether or not the council thought it was necessary to have a health officer. He has to continue his services. Mr. Hood's term with the city expired on September 24th. The council thought the Health Officer should be able to look after the agreement with Mr. Hood was not renewed.

Ladies, wear Goswami front lace corsets. We fit them. The S. M. Jones Co.

The city clerk has been instructed to arrange with county auditor C. Fudge to write up the tax books this year for the sum of $40. This has been the custom of the city for several years.

See us before you sell your cotton seed. It will pay you. The S. M. Jones Company.

Mayor Westbrook yesterday stated to a reporter for The News that the council desired suggestions from the citizens with reference to the automobile ordinance, as published elsewhere in this issue of the News. It was suggested to Mr. Westbrook that the five physicians, whose offices are located "On the Hill," be allowed a certain parking place for their automobiles, and that this space be reserved for their use only. It was suggested that the space in front of Hough's Jewelry Store and the office of Dr. Abel will be suitable. Mr. Westbrook thought the idea a good one. This space is reserved for the physicians. It will include Doctors Cor. Malone, Miller, Young and Abel. The ordinance published today, which has only received first reading, states that it will be made for all cars, automobiles on Main street between the garage of Mr. E. D. Cross and Wylie street, on either side of the street. This will work a hardship on people passing through Chester who stop at the Carolina and it is hoped that council will take care of this matter so that people stopping at the hotel can have their cars near them while waiting in our city.

The News is forced to have out several items of local interest today on account of trouble with its line-type electric motor. The bearings in the motor burned out late yesterday evening and the motor was taken to Charlie for repairs, to be returned this afternoon.

Meeting Will Close Sunday. As is generally known, the city council meeting closes on Sunday next. Sunday evening, Mr. Smith's subject tonight will be "Reasoning the Whirlwind." Sunday morning, "The Potter and the Clay," and Sunday evening, "He Went Away" Monday Mr. Smith will deliver his famous lecture, "From Gypsy Tent to Palace."

Tonight Mr. Smith has a special message to deliver to the young people between the ages of 18 and 25. His subject as above stated will be "Reasoning the Whirlwind."

Sunday morning at eleven-thirty o'clock Mr. Smith will preach annual services at the tent. There will be no services, other than Sunday school, at the various churches in the city. Sunday evening at the usual hour he will deliver his farewell sermon to the people of Chester.

There is no doubt but that the present revival is the greatest in our history in Chester. Hundreds of people have gone forward and signified their willingness to lead Christian lives. There can be no doubt but that every man who has heard Mr. Smith has resolved to lead a better life.

The colored people of Chester are very grateful for the messages Mr. Smith delivered to them and regret that conditions are such that they could not get to hear him more often.

On the Gulf side of the Mexican American-owned wells, exceed 1,300,000 barrels a day of the six-inch British wells, a little more than 200,000 barrels a day, and of the four-inch six wells of Mexican and mixed ownership, a little more than 100,000 barrels a day. These are official Mexican figures rounded at the corners for easy reading. They clear up a popular error which ascribes a preponderance of Mexican oil holdings to the English. The actual facts are that American-owned companies hold thirteen-sixteenths of the entire oil production of Mexico, and more than six times as much as our coasins across the sea.

The actual proved capacity of the 299 wells is nearly double that of the entire 230,000 wells of the United States.

We own 204 of the 299 wells. The British own 60. Mexicans in association with Spaniards, French, Cubans and others (mostly residents of Mexico) own 26.

The proved capacity of the 294 American-owned wells exceeds 1,300,000 barrels a day of the six-inch British wells, a little more than 200,000 barrels a day, and of the four-inch six wells of Mexican and mixed ownership, a little more than 100,000 barrels a day.

A New Advance In Home Lighting

The New White Mazda Lamps Recently Announced Are Now Available for Every Use.

Fifty years have elapsed since incandescent electric lamps first came into practical use.

Following Edison's first practical lamp which contained a carbonized bamboo filament enclosed in a vacuum within a glass bulb...

In 1913 the MAZDA C lamp was marketed. This lamp which contains a tungsten filament enclosed in an inert gas...

These lamps are not only more efficient than MAZDA B lamps but avail the lamp public of very much higher candle-power incandescent lamps than were before obtainable.

The next great step forward was obviously the application of these high efficiency lamps to home lighting, and this has just been accomplished through a brand new lamp...

The appearance of the new lamp when lighted is distinctly pleasing, and the whole surface of the glass bulb appears evenly bright as though the light came from every part of the bulb surface instead of from the filament alone.

The new white MAZDA lamps are made in the 50-watt size only. The bulb is pear-shaped and tipless.

LAW BY THE LAWYERS.

Congress is in a position to sympathize with Napoleon Bonaparte, who in a moment of agitation said: "Lawyers! They make me nervous."

Lawyer Charles E. Hughes immediately fell upon this proposition as illogical, unjust and in direct conflict with the Constitution, which says (Fifth Amendment) that no person shall be deprived of liberty or property without due process of law...

Look! Here is the globe spread out flat before your eyes. See those stars? Every star shows where a U. S. Navy ship was on September 2nd, 1919. The Navy travels the Seven Seas.

Don't you want to see the World?

ROMANCE is calling to you! Strange and smiling foreign lands are beckoning to you. Shove off and see the world!

The red-blooded, hard-working, hard-playing men of the U. S. Navy.

Let's go to "parley-vo" in gay Pareel. See the bull-fights in Panama. See sur-fiding on the beach of Waikiki.

Pay behind the day you join. On board ship a man is always learning. Trade schools develop skill, industry and business ability.

Learn the lure that comes with the swish and swirl of the good salt sea. Eat well—free; dress well—free; sleep clean—free; and look—'em all straight in the eye—British, French, Chinese, Japanese, Spaniards, Egyptians, Algerians and all manner of people.

Shove off—Join the U. S. Navy. If you're between 17 and 35 go to the nearest recruiting station for all the details.

Come! Be a real man of the world. See it with
