ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

Bishop Capers Visits the Bloody Fields of the Recent Conflict. Wounded — Seven Years Ago.

The Sherman Review last week devoted the following paragraphs to an account of the late military operations in South Carolina.

Bishop Capers, the Bishop of North Carolina, visited the battlefield of Bull Run, July 27th, and the Federal works recently taken by our forces under the command of Gen. Butler. It is with a sense of deep gratitude and profound satisfaction that Gen. Capers is able to report the result of his visit.

In his visit to the battlefield, Bishop Capers visited the spot where the ironclad war-vessels are now stationed. He also visited the spot where the ironclad war-vessels are now stationed.

Bishop Capers was accompanied by Col. Parker, of the 5th Regiment, and Lieut. Col. Smith, of the 6th Regiment, of the 1st Division, and by Lieut. Col. Brown, of the 7th Regiment, of the 2nd Division.

NICHOLSON'S BIG FURNITURE STORES.

We sell more goods in one month than our competitors do in six months and are the only place in the community to buy goods. We carry a large selection of goods and are able to offer them to you at competitive prices. We do not advertise in the newspapers, but our prices are the lowest in the community.

NICHOLSON'S BIG FURNITURE STORES.

When a man must save every cent he can in order to make ends meet, he can't afford to be picky. We don't make prices that are too low for our goods. We sell them at prices that are fair to our customers and are willing to make a profit on every sale.

WORK ON THE CAPITOL.

The work in the state capital continues with the greatest activity. On Saturday the workmen working on the front portion of the building were busy completing the scaffolding and the futurs portion of the structure. Many of the workmen have been working on the front portion of the building and the ground work and the scaffolding have been completed. The work on the front portion will now be placed in position, and the walls in the background already will be advanced.
