COLD WAVE COMING

Says W. F. Hooper, National Weather Prophet.

The Dutch Prophet has made his annual winter forecast on date of October 3, from Columbia. Of general interest and general interest is the prediction of a real cold wave and plenty of rain during the winter.

It is probable that it is an incident that the long distance which (you please) have made the same discovery in forecasting the general relation of this period—September 24—of the weather which is to follow during the winter, and also by close observation of the winter statistics...

Precipitation will be abundant during the winter. It will include at least four snows more than ordinary character which will prevail south and east of the Blue Ridge mountains...

I made the forecast that the precipitation for the winter will be approximately 10 inches in the South Atlantic states. It had reached 42 inches in New Jersey county on September 11th.

Prost is due around October 16, (containing the 10th) to mean the day absolutely that it will be killing frost. New conditions confront the "Dutch Weather Prophet" in the peculiar relations which exist between the sun and the atmosphere...

MAXIMS HANDED DOWN ARE FACTS

Department of Agriculture Changes Superstitious Into Scientific Data.

Washington, Oct.—The problem of making agricultural superstitions into scientific data is being studied by experts of the department of agriculture, who declared that many old maxims handed down from father to son for generations are not really superstitions at all, but helpful information discovered by keenly observant persons.

Everybody has heard some of the old maxims. They deal with every variety of agricultural operation, from planting, for instance, never was done by the forefathers of the present generation except at the time of the blossoming of the blackberry bushes. When the catkins had formed by the male trees, was a sign that the planting time was past.

Now, the department of agriculture declares that there is a basis for the old maxims. It has been found that some of the old maxims were actually correct in the past, and that some others were not.

What has been done for wheat by the farmer for several centuries is now being done by the scientist. The farmer is being taught to plant wheat at the time when it will produce the most wheat.

WILSON CANNOT RESUME DUTIES

Grayson Relieves That President Must Have Long Rest—Bulletin No Notable House Says There is No Chance of His Resuming Duties.

Washington, Oct. 12.—While President Wilson, is believed by his physicians to be on the road to recovery, the process will be slow and tedious. The President, it was reported today at the White House, must rest himself to great advantage of the physicians' orders to remain in bed, but a change of a relapse has passed.

Dr. Almiral Grayson, the President's personal physician, and the other medical staff of the White House, have been very busy since a week ago, continuing to confine them to their beds. It is necessary to have to treat bottles twice a day at the White House, although the President is believed to be improving.

Dr. Grayson and the other physicians have been busy with the "standing pat" on their bulletins and will not even comment on the Friday crop of rumors concerning the President that spring up overnight.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14.

The ordinance which was published in "The News" last Friday, and which has only received final reading by the City Council, states that "No automobile or other motor vehicle shall be stopped in the middle of a street except to allow another vehicle to cross its path or except of the regular stops required by ordinance. Provided, that these rules shall not apply to automobiles or other motor vehicles which are actually discharging their business." We think this is a good point. There is no reason for a person stopping his vehicle in the middle of the street and blocking and obstructing congesting traffic. If it is necessary for one to stop, let him hunt a parking place. However, this is a motor vehicle age and it is becoming greater every day, hence we see why our council should restrict motor vehicles to keep moving and allow wagons or buggies to stop in the street while the driver discusses the highest cost of living or the cost of high living for a couple of hours. A drive through the business section of Chester, especially on busy days, will reveal that numbers of people in wagons and buggies have a habit of stopping "square" in the middle of the street and "messing" things up in general.

As previously stated, we think council is doing a wise thing in keeping the automobiles moving but we also think they ought to go a step further and keep wagons and buggies moving. In other words, keep the middle of the streets open for the people and we will not have so much congestion and so many near accidents.

Mr. Clarence Pogue, Editor of the Progressive Farmer, in discussing the labor question, says as follows: "Last but not least, both labor and capital must be brought to realize that all rights rest upon duties, and that no man can claim his rights until he has first performed his duties. And the first social duty of any man, no matter whether he is a laborer or capitalist, is to love his neighbor as himself, and to love right, justice and humanity more than self."

"Capital must indeed be made to recognize the right of labor to a fair wage, and a fair share of the earnings which are the joint product of labor and capital." But at the same time, labor must be made to realize its duty to give up honest day's work for an honest day's wage, and to take wage money he deliberately refuses to earn in full is no better than a common thief.

"It is only along these lines of old-fashioned honesty and common sense that we can look for any permanent solution of our labor problem. And since this problem as we said in the beginning—now threatens the welfare of all of us, it is the duty of every citizen not only to try to reach fair and sane conclusions for himself but to try to educate his fellows into just and generous thinking about the whole great issue."

Those interested in joining the National Guard are requested by Capt. J. B. Westbrook to meet at the Opera House Friday night at eight o'clock. School-boys are especially asked to attend. Men living in the rural sections are desired as much as those living in town.

Wanted—Hustling young man at The Chester Laundry, 11

For Sale—Good touring car, at a bargain. See J. Lowry Guy, Chester, 28-29-25.

PAYS TRIBUTE
Rev. White, of the First Baptist Church, of the City of Chester, has just closed a Most Successful Meeting in Our City.

The most remarkable revival that Chester and Chester county ever experienced came to a close last Sunday evening when the Reverend "Gypsy" Smith, Jr., preached his last sermon on the subject: "And He Went Away." This revival, which lasted for thirty days, swept the whole county and was the means of bringing the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ in all its beauty and saving power to the attention of thousands of people not only in this county, but in the surrounding county as well. Hundreds have made their first public decision for Christ and hundreds have recommenced themselves anew to the work of God in this world in His churches. There has been a great moral and religious awakening in people's consciences have been quickened and stirred; and their hearts have been touched.

Rev. Mr. Smith is one of the most remarkable, if not the most remarkable evangelists it has been my pleasure to hear. He appeals to the heart and convinces their reason; but he never in all the services of the meeting took advantage of anyone by stirring their emotions without first convincing their reason. He's fair and above board in the methods he uses to bring men to decision. He gives a clean-cut, definite sermon on the subject; and this invitation is given in all the power of his experience of conversion. He knows just the kind of message his own personal personality.

Mr. Smith is a man of great experience. He is in the trade sense a work-follower, having travelled to round the world three times. He knows all in all angles, He is a brave man. Right across the human heart can only be strength-ened and soled and the needs of the soul can only be met by a personal witness. He preaches this gospel of Christ in power, knowing "wherein he believed." He knows that the only way to reach the masses is to get his message across. His message is bigger than any method and Mr. Smith knows this. He does not use coarse nor vulgar language. Never once in all the sermons he preached here did he abuse or use any vulgar expression. He is above all this. He dignifies and glorifies the ministry of the Word. No man who preaches his message with a deeper respect for the Gospel and reverence for the Christ. He appeals to men's intellect and reason and then to their hearts for the definite decision. He is a man of deep culture and the learning that not only comes from books but from life's experience as well. His presentation of the gospel message is graceful, without quibble or apology. His personality is winsome and gracious, the very embodiment of good manners and breeding. One knows him to like him and then to love him.

I believe him to be called of God to the work of an evangelist. He has stirred this town and the surrounding community to the depths. Not only has he preached his power, but he has gone into the stores and offices and on the streets and into the homes to win the people to Christ. Old scores have been settled and the people have become conscious of their relationship to the God of heaven before. The splendid spirit of co-operation has been created and I pray that this spirit may continue in every phase of our community life. The power of prayer has been demonstrated beyond the shadow of doubt. The deep belief of the people in the power of prayer has been stirred and awakened to action.

But I would not forget, in connection with the work and the preaching of Mr. Smith that for weeks the Christian people had organized for this "Gospel" movement, and were praying for a great outpouring of the Spirit in our midst. Never have I ever seen such a spirit of co-operation in any phase of our community evangelical demonstrations of our city. Not a word of criticism did I hear. Every one was helping to make the meeting a great success and we were benefited for our work and prayers beyond what we expected.

God has been gracious to us. Let us conserve the wonderful spirit of this revival and let us make Chester the center of the religious life of our county. It was Mr. Richard H. Edmonds who said in a recent editorial of "THE MANUFACTURERS' RECORD": "What this country needs is not fashionable, gayety, but a revival of religion." Chester has had such a revival and what we have seen and heard here we hope will be the same experience of the whole nation.

We are happy and we have been tremendously blessed by Mr. Smith's presence among us. May God speed him in his glorious work and give him health and strength for the labors of the days to come.
Rev. L. MCB. White.

FROM A LAYMAN.

Upon being asked by The News to contribute an article in connection with the "Gypsy" Smith meeting which closed in our city last Sunday night, Mr. A. M. Aiken, sent us the following:

You ask for my impression of Gypsy Smith and the great revival meeting he has just closed. I find it difficult to adequately express just what I think. I must say first that I am happy and my heart rejoices to know that so many who thirty days ago had cold, indifferent and heavy hearts are now singing glad songs of their way, and telling the story of wonderful things for the first time in their lives. Thousands of hearts have been lightened and brightened, sins have been acknowledged, wrongs have been righted, and strong, red blooded, courageous men have come out and stood up for Jesus. This is the stand of no weakling but that of a brave man. Right across the line I decided "it was time for me to face about, and to strive to live a better life. It has been a struggle, for the first time in what way I loved and lived."

I struggled on and praise be to God I succeeded in changing my manner of living, and now at the close of this glorious season of brotherly love I am overjoyed that the Lord has made easier for me and that so many of my friends and fellow men are happy and that peace has come to so many hearts.

Mr. Gypsy Smith is a wonderful preacher. He is in a class of his own as an Evangelist. He is thoroughgoing and in love with his work. His personality attracts people, and his influence upon all classes is uplifting. I have never seen a man who gets more real enjoyment out of one herd of Holstein cows, or one bull. This herd consisted of six registered cows, two registered calves, and six high grade cows. The registered cows are well bred, and several have advance records. The herd cost $2,900. I considered this a very good buy.

J. D. Clark, Richland county, Tuesday, D. D. Elliott, dairy specialist of Clemson college, was with me working on six. Planned three sires and one dairy barn. The farmers are beginning to realize the great need of livestock in connection with other farming to keep the fertility of the soil up, and they are gradually turning to some form of livestock to do this.

T. M. Cathart, Williamsburg County, Have talked more fencing this week, and the farmers are planning to put more "iron" under fence. Some are beginning to realize that the bull weevil is a close at hand while the great majority are sitting idle waiting to see what will happen. Some say it'll all be fake and there is no such thing as a bull weevil, while others say it can never cross the Santee swamp.

A. E. Schillster, Dorchester county, Up to this date, I have inoculated over 1,000 hogs and have had exceptional results. In one case on Charles Heaton's farm, there were two hogs to show signs of cholera and so all of the hogs were inoculated with the exception of these two and three others that could not be caught. These three contracted the disease and died, but those that received the inoculation are in healthy condition.

A. B. Carville, Abbeville county, We have just completed a series of 11 meetings which were attended by 150 of the county's best farmers. The people are becoming more interested in livestock in every way, some getting in to dairying, others in to the raising of beef cattle and hogs. I am getting more calls in regard to calves, alfalfa, guinea, pastures, etc.

F. H. Calvin, Charleston county, This entire week was spent in Fairfax, Va. In an effort to select cows. On the farm I saw and bought a very nice herd of Holstein cows, and one bull. This herd consisted of six registered cows, two registered calves, and six high grade cows. The registered cows are well bred, and several have advance records. The herd cost $2,900. I considered this a very good buy.

In discussing the bill weevil with Mayor J. B. Westbrook this morning, a reporter for The News suggested that the Farmers get a man who is well acquainted with the bill weevil territory, both before and after the territory was invaded, and have him come to Chester to address the farmers and business men of the county along the bill weevil line, during fall week. Mr. Westbrook said he thought it a good idea and recalled an address made by former governor Manning here a few years ago. At that time however, the weevil was not so near and the people were not so concerned as they probably are this year. It is said that the weevil was south of the Savannah river today he has arrived in Richmond county, or the county of South Carolina.

The Seaboard Passenger Station. The following dispatch is from Washington and is dated October 31st: Construction of a Seaboard Air-Line passenger station at Chester in the near future depends on the outcome of negotiations now in progress between the railway officials and the United States railroad administration concerning the general financial position of the Seaboard according to statements made today by Senator Dial by T. C. Powell, director of capital expenditures in the office of Director General Hines.

It is agreed, and particularly by the Seaboard officials, that Mr. Powell will be in charge of the new station. The authorization of the new station has been deferred. Mr. Powell said, simply because certain questions regarding finance were unsettled and it is believed a definite answer can be given within a few days. Senator Dial has given information to this effect to Col. Arthur Gaston, chairman of a committee of the Chester chamber of commerce, which was recently given a hearing, at his request, by the railroad administration.

Representative Stevenson has also been working on this matter.

A New Advance In Home Lighting

The New White Mazda Lamps Recently Announced Are Now Available for Every Use

Fifty years have elapsed since incandescent electric lamps first came into practical use. During this period incandescent lamps have undergone constant improvement. To the layman this advance is probably not extremely striking because lamps of today resemble lamps of older years in that both contain a filament enclosed in a glass bulb. The likeness, however, stops there, as almost every feature of the MAZDA lamp of today has been changed or modified.

Following Edison's first practical lamp which contained a carbonized bamboo filament enclosed in a vacuum within a glass bulb, came improvements in the making of the filament through the use of cellulose instead of bamboo, improvements in manufacturing which secured a more complete vacuum within the bulb, changes in the shape of the bulb, etc. Then came the Gem lamp—still retaining the carbon filament, but treated by a special process which made the lamp a much more efficient illuminant. Finally after thorough experiments the metal filament tungsten lamp was produced, and close on its heels the MAZDA lamp containing a filament of tungsten. This lamp marked a new era in electric lighting as it gave to the public a lamp which produced three times the light of carbon lamps for the same light bills.

In 1913 the MAZDA lamp was marketed. This lamp which contains a tungsten filament enclosed in an inert gas was a marked advance over the MAZDA B (vacuum lamp) as the latter was an improvement over the carbon lamp.

These lamps are not only more efficient than MAZDA B lamps but also the lamp public of very much higher candle-power incandescent lamps than were before obtainable.

The one advantage of the MAZDA C line of lamps, up to the present time, has been that it was not practicable to make these lamps in less than 15-watt size. These lamps have therefore been of the greatest value to industrial and commercial applications, but were not suited to use in the home with the type of shades or reflectors in general use for residence lighting.

The next great step forward was obviously the application of these high efficiency lamps to home lighting, and this has just been accomplished through a brand new lamp, very recently announced, and now obtainable from National MAZDA lamp distributors.

The new lamp, known as the white MAZDA lamp is of high efficiency. MAZDA C construction, the filament being enclosed in a white glass bulb, which softens and diffuses the light. The bulb is translucent rather than transparent and is dense enough so that the lighted filament is not visible through the bulb.

The appearance of the new lamp when lighted is distinctly pleasing, and the whole surface of the glass bulb appears evenly bright as though the light came from every part of the bulb surface instead of from the filament alone.

The new white MAZDA lamps are made in the 50-watt size only. The bulb is pear-shaped and tipless. These lamps are ideally suited to every home lighting use—for table and floor lamps, center fixtures in living and dining rooms, for kitchen, bath room, nursery, library, sewing room, basement or garage.

 Officer Moody at Bamberg Files Fatal Shot
 Bamberg, Oct. 11.—H. W. Moody, chief of police of Bamberg, this evening at 7:30 o'clock shot and instantly killed Kirk Antley, a former negro soldier, on one of the principal streets of the town. The dead negro's home was in Orangeburg county. Apparently under the influence of liquor, Antley made himself particularly obnoxious to many people here this afternoon and he shot the negro.

WHERE POTASH IS NEEDED

There is much difference of opinion among farmers and fertilizer manufacturers as to the need of potash on certain crops and soils. This is particularly true in the states west of Alabama, where the use of fertilizers is neither so general, nor so extensive as in the territory east. We think it must be conceded that such inconclusive evidence as we have makes it extremely doubtful if general field crops are sufficiently benefited by applications of potash to make its general use profitable. It is true that this evidence is not very extensive, and in many cases it is far from convincing, but on the whole we think it sufficient to show that anything like a general use of potash in the territory west of Alabama would probably be unprofitable, especially at present prices.

On the other hand, there are many who firmly believe that potash should be used on many soils and for quite a large variety of crops; while some believe it is necessary in a fertilizer as nitrogen and phosphorus. In most cases this belief is not based on any definite experimental evidence, nor on a close or careful observation. It is merely a "belief," probably largely due to early impressions, received when our knowledge of needs was even less complete than at present.

Our experiment stations yet have much work to do in determining just what soils and crops are benefited by potash and which are not benefited enough to make its use profitable.

During recent years, since potash has been high priced, cotton has seemed to suffer much more severely than formerly from conditions which are popularly called rust. Most of these troubles are probably not rust; but however this may be, there is a general belief that much of this trouble is due to a lack of potash. We think it very doubtful if many of these diseased fields of cotton would have been greatly benefited by potash, but there is some evidence to show that in some cases potash does seem to prevent some of these troubles. We think that probably the tendency of certain varieties to disease and to the loss of their leaves, and certain soil conditions, much more likely to be the cause of the troubles reported than a lack of potash in the fertilizer.

But our knowledge regarding the whole question of the use of potash is incomplete and indefinite. The experimental evidence and the opinions of so-called authorities are conflicting and confusing. It is not difficult to find experimental evidence and what should be regarded as authoritative opinion for or against the use of potash on almost any crop and on almost any soil type. Our Southern experiment stations still have a large and difficult task before them to furnish us more definite fertilizer information, and unfortunately the prospects for the farming getting this necessary information in the near future do not appear especially encouraging.—Progressive Farmer.

"Virginia-Carolina tobacco tastes better!"

24 nations come to Virginia-Carolina for the best cigarette tobacco

Five times more Virginia-Carolina tobacco was smoked in cigarettes last year than all the imported cigarette tobaccos combined. Only the better taste of Virginia-Carolina tobacco can account for this.

Any cigarette is a better cigarette by the addition of Virginia-Carolina. But a cigarette made of Virginia-Carolina tobacco alone has a zest and a relish that no cigarette of mixed tobaccos can have.

To prove this—smoke a Piedmont cigarette. Piedmont is straight Virginia-Carolina.
