How to Fight The Boll Weevil

According to experts, the best time to fight the boll weevil is in the fall, and the most effective system of fighting is to grow cotton under conditions favoring the weevil’s reproduction. The boll weevil subsists exclusively on the cotton plant. He doesn’t eat anything else at all. If cotton is eliminated as a food plant, the remaining cotton fields and leaves, and even the tender twigs, will be his one food. It does not hibernate until after the cold weather, generally the twelfth of November or later.

In this way, one pair of boll weevils have a potential breeding capacity of 12,900,000 a year, including the offspring of their offspring, the importance of every precaution in the fall is readily apparent.

Only one thing can be done before spring to thwart the boll weevil, that is, to destroy all cotton stalks, AND DO IT NOW.

Choice Cuts — and Others

Have You Any Money in Utilities?

Of course you are interested in the fact that your company needs more or less money to operate. Properly invested, utility capital is the most secure type of investment available. And whether or not you had thought of it, the utilities are responsible to a very large degree for your physical comfort and well being. Therefore, you are interested in living GOOD service.

But aren't you interested in other ways? You are a depositor? Do you carry life insurance?

"A study of the data compiled from the 1919 Social Security Act, there were 68,243,437 life insurance policies in force in this country representing approximately $30 billion of outstanding insurance. More than $300,000,000 of the assets of the insurance companies of the country are invested in electric light and power securities. Upon the stability and worth of these utilities—and therefore upon the stability and prosperity of the insurance companies to a very considerable extent. Therefore, every beneficiary and every heir to an estate which is a beneficiary under one of these policies has a financial interest in the welfare of utilities."

This wide variation in the price of various cuts from the same side of beef is caused largely by demand for the tender cuts. The others are, of course, just as good, but they are not as popular. The price of the forequarter cuts alone is enough to induce many people to buy because of cheapness. Even though certain cuts tell for relatively high prices, other cuts, due to low demand, sell so low that our profit from all sources over a period of five years averaged only a fraction of a cent a pound.

It is competition between consumers for the choice cuts that keeps prices for those cuts relatively high, as equalizing demand in local parts of the carcass would benefit producer, packer, retailer and consumer. Our average wholesale selling price of all product,

Colds and Headache

For years we have used Black-Draft as our family cold and headache remedy. We have found it an excellent cure for colds and headaches. We have found it in our family for a number of years and have never been disappointed.
