Raebeck Relates Saga Of 'My Youthful Adventures'; Or, 'How To Become A College Professor The Hard Way'

By KAY FIELD

"One can only be movin' man in win' "--so the well-known adage has it. But don't be fooled by the title of the book, "My Youthful Adventures." The book is not about the adventures of a man named Thomas Bailey Raebeck, but rather the adventures of a man named Thomas Bailey Raebeck, who happens to be a professor of history at Winthrop College.

Mr. Raebeck was born in Fredonia, New York, and spent his early years in Brooklyn when he was "just a little boy." He left the city of Brooklyn at the age of 18 to go to college, this time "just a little boy."

He then went on to become a professor of history at Winthrop College, where he has been teaching for more than 20 years. He is known for his love of history and his ability to make history come alive in his classes.

"My Youthful Adventures" is not just a book about Thomas Bailey Raebeck, but also a book about the importance of education and the role of the teacher in shaping the minds of their students.
Need For Graduate Information

This has been a year of beginnings on the Winthrop campus, and Dr. Hampton N. Jarrell has laid the model for the future of the school. We have heard the facts that he hopes to see on our campus in the years to come. It is the hope of Dr. Jarrell and his students that this dream be made a reality.

Traffic Snarls: A Plea For Courtesy

"We were in a traffic jam at Johnson Hall and that's why I'm late," said the student who ran late. Despite the fact that several students were late, it is clear that the problem is not just with the traffic, but also with the lack of courtesy.

College Papers Show Divided Opinion

On Debating Question Of Red China

The current debate on the question of Red China is a hot topic on campuses across the United States. Many students are divided in their opinions, with some advocating for a strong stance against Red China and others supporting peaceful coexistence.

What We Live By

Dr. Jarrell mentioned his proposal, which stated that the school would be open to all students regardless of their background.

Emmy Cunningham

"We have a great diversity on our campus and it is important to make sure that all students feel welcomed and included."

Quotable Quotes

"Black Friday is a day when we are all interconnected in our desire to buy things."

Racial Prejudice: Quo Vadis?

Prejudice is a word that creates a lot of discussion in the South these days. It is a word that is used to describe the integration of schools. Although no one doubts the importance of integration, there are times when it seems to be more of a burden than a relief.

Seven History Majors Reach 'History Haven'

Seven new major numbers were introduced into the University's history society, the Alma Mater, a group of men engaged in the inquiry of history.

The initiates are Barbara Ann Brey right, Harriet Jean Carol, Elizabeth Brandon Coffman, Barbara Jean Jones, Elizabeth
Lewis, and Mary Jean Lewis.

In order to be eligible for the initi-tion, they must have attended twelve hours of work and have a sound average in two of their remaining courses.

Women in the ranks are Barbara Ann Brey, president, Miss Kathleen Brey, vice-president, Barbara Jean
Jones, secretary, and Mary Jean
Lewis, treasurer.

Miss Helen Brey is in charge of the society.

Jointly sponsored by the history
faculty, the society is a group of students organized to promote the advancement of knowledge in the history of the world.

Now that they shared a mystical snowman, Peu Hump and the rest of the galaxy, a Whittier native, decided to have a joint celebration. Peu's parents, Ruth Hump, entertained the two and some friends at a birthday dinner at the Rock Hill restaurant. Later in the evening, the guests, including John Spencer, Pat Hump, Bob Hump, Susan Hump, Debra Edwards, and Steve Theriot, joined the group in the house for a lengthy and enjoyable time.

Campus Activities Usher In Christmas Season: Gaity And Seriousness Combined

By JANE' HUNTON

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly...

Amid the rush of students before the Thanksgiving holiday, certain events occur that allow a special atmosphere. The halls of the administration building was decorated with garlands and wreaths, and the Christmas tree was lit with colorful lights. Students were seen wearing festive clothing, adding to the holiday spirit.

Since then, there have been several events on campus, including a concert in the library, a Christmas play in the auditorium, and a community dinner at the civic center. The evening was filled with music, singing, and stories, creating a warm and inviting atmosphere.

Come To Ready

This year, as in the past, Whittier students at Christmas celebration. Many students were seen wearing festive clothing, and there was a sense of camaraderie among them.
