"Jack and The Beanstalk" "Robin Hood" Here Tuesday

Sue Hastings Marionettes Will Appear As Next Artist Course Number

INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN

"Puppet Capers of 1936" and "Puppet Follies of 1936" Added Attractions

"Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Robin Hood" will be presented here in the internationally-famed Sue Hastings Marionettes in Main Auditorium Tuesday, March 3, at 8 and 9 o'clock.

The marionette performance, in addition to the dramatization of the ever-popular "Jack and the Beanstalk," will include two short attractions: "The Three Little Pigs" and "The Puppet Capers of 1936," which is a group of gay song and dance numbers.

"Robin Hood" is a colorful production with musical accompaniment. The bold outlaw, surrounded by Little Jack, Jolly Friar Tuck, Alan-a-Dale, and the charming Maid Marian, will be presented in a number of episodes from the popular cycle of legends.

"The Puppet Follies of 1936" is a sophisticated revue of musical acts and comedy sketches, will also be shown at the evening appearance.

The Sue Hastings Marionettes, the largest and most active organization of its kind in the country today, have gained, in the course of twelve years before the American public, a reputation second to none in the field.

These little wooden figures have for years made coast-to-coast tours of the United States, playing in gymnasium houses, women's clubs, children's schools, churches, and colleges. They have performed for governors and at the White House. They appear at annual engagements at the Theater Guild, at Columbia University, and at other leading educational and cultural centers.

The puppets have not only performed in every section of the country and Canada, but last spring and summer made an extensive tour of England and Scotland, having the distinction of being the first American marionette company to be booked over there. Several trips have been made to the Virgin Islands where the company had the unique experience of playing for the leper colony there. The marionettes have also appeared in South America.

There are six hundred puppets in the extensive repertoire of the organization. No one of them is remotely the worse for the years of wear it has had. There is, in fact, one dancer who can boast of twelve years of kicking around and something over five thousand performances.

'SKIDDING' PRESENTED BY THEATRE GROUP

Battles of Judge Hardy's Family Waged in Three-Act Comedy

"Skidding," a three-act comedy by Aurais Rouverol, was presented by the Little Theater Tuesday evening, February 23, in Johnson Hall.

Against the middle-class background of Judge Hardy's living room, with its newly acquired period furniture, the major battles of life, political, domestic, marital, and social, were waged in entertaining succession. The ever-changing panorama of life, which for a while threatened the domestic happiness of Mrs. Hardy, was personified by Marian, her daughter, who was torn between love of Wayne Trent and her ambition to have a career in politics.

When the skidding in the matrimonial careers of the Hardys' two daughters, Myrna and Estelle, threatened the social security of the whole family, Mrs. Hardy did some kidding of her own to end skidding forever. With the judicious help of Aunt Milly, who, having missed the pleasure of a husband and home of her own, said, "It's far better to worry about the husband you have than the one you haven't," takes an old maid to appreciate a husband." Mrs. Hardy was successful in saving the love affair of Marian and keeping the marriages of the other girls from going on the rocks.

Mrs. Lavette Sillit played the part of the lovable Mrs. Hardy, Charles Spencer, Jr., was her husband, Judge Hardy, who was worried about the reformation and his family. Bill Robbins portrayed the part of Andy, the harem-owning adolescent son of the Hardys, from their husbands.

The young couple in love was played by Miss Orthen Steele and Bob Sims, who held out for "the principle of the thing," especially a woman's place in the home.

Halph Buddin was the grandfather of the household, and George Willis was Judge Hardy's political engineer No. 1.

The performance was directed by Mrs. R. I. Terry, who is production director of the Little Theatre group.

Between the acts Winthrop's string ensemble, under the directions of Professor Emmett Gore, played various selections. Coffin and waltzes were served by members of the group, Mrs. A. W. Huckle and Miss Helen Diller presiding over this phase of the affair.

'A MIDNIGHT FANTASY' STUDENTS ON PROGRAM PRESENTED IN CHAPEL OF HOME EC. MEETING

Two Selections Given By Miss Mims' Interpretative Reading Class

"A Midnight Fantasy," a skit, was given by the Mimses in chapel, Wednesday, February 24, at 12:30.

At the stroke of twelve by the old grandfather's clock, Miss 1936, Frances Roughton, and the dainty maiden of 1780, Dimple Thomas, stepped from their portals. An exchange of ideas took place. Miss 1920 denied the stately minut, Miss 1926 the modern dame. Music was furnished by Minnie Greene Moore, Elsie Plant, and Virginia Campbell, Minnie Greene played "Add Long Spies" on the organ, Virginia Campbell and Elsie Plant played "The Minuet in O" by Beethoven.

"The Patchwork Quilt" by Natalie Whitte Price and "The Minuet" anonymous, were read by Miss Florence Mims' Interpretative Reading class, composed of Mary Lou Simpson, Jean Brabham, "Dot" Thaxton, Mary Allen, Catherine Hunt Pauling, Clare Ormaling, "Wetzel" Creston, Marie Scott, Frances Lynch, Evelyn Lane-horn, Dorothy Ross, and Kathleen Anderson.

Dr. Phelps Attends Education Association

Dr. Shelton Phelps attended a convention of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association held in St. Louis, Missouri, February 23-27.

During the convention the nation's school administrators considered the outstanding political and economic issues as they relate to school administration. Oratorical insight was made to present social problems, and the manner in which schools, through a re-vised and adapted curriculum, may help solve these difficulties.

Richard Dix and Irene Dunn to Star Tomorrow Night in Movie

"Singara," an RKO picture starring Richard Dix and Irene Dunn, will be shown at 7:30, tomorrow night, in Main Auditorium.

This dramatic romance has a novel story line, is well acted, and is colored by charming music, particularly Irene Dunn's singing of "Tonight is Mine."

Sympathy is with the two principals; but the supporting cast, consisting of Mary Boland, Edna O'Connor, and Andy Devlin, supply the comedy and add in developing the romance and drama.

International Relations Clubs Holds Conference Here This Week End

DR. KEENER FRAZER SPEAKS TO A. A. U. Discusses Sino-Japanese Question; Informal Reception for Delegates to I. R. C.

DR. KEENER FRAZER SPEAKS TO A. A. U.

Discusses Sino-Japanese Question; Informal Reception for Delegates to I. R. C.

Dr. Keener Frazer, of the history department of the University of North Carolina, addressed the members of the American Association of University Women on the subject of the "International Aspects of the Sino-Japanese Question," in Johnson Hall, Thursday afternoon, February 27, at 4:15.

Dr. Frazer pointed to the intelligent interest manifested today in international relations. The conception of the inter-dependence of parts of the world, said, was a conception of the twentieth century. One hundred years ago the United States would not be so interested in the Far Eastern question. Today Americans regard the situation with peculiar interest and concern.

Dr. Frazer showed how Japan and China regarded the Sino-Japanese question. Japan sees in China vast potentialities and makes this lack of governmental organization in China the basis for her aggression and the recognition of the puppet state of Manchukuo. China in stating her case, declares that the territory of China is after all the territory of a state existing under guarantee of international law. Japan in her aggression has violated the League of Nations covenant, Nine Power treaty, and Pact of Paris to which most of the members of the family of nations are signatories.

The Asiatic question, he further stated, aside from the economic situation is a question of security; of individual state action against international action. Toward this question, Dr. Frazer stated, the United States had manifested an attitude different from its attitude toward affairs in the Atlantic.

Dr. Frazer's next speaker looked to taking out of markets. This interest led America to cooperate with other nations. In fact America's policy of isolation is not stressed in the Far East. The interest of the United States is in the maintenance of her policy of 1921, in which she declared she will not recognize territorial changes brought about by aggression. The United States has seen in the Far East in the wedding of the materials of China, the forging of an economic weapon. An appreciation of Japan's power in the Far East has de-

One Hundred Twenty-one Clubs Send Representatives to Convention

WINTHROP GIRL PRESIDENT

Dr. Josef L. Kunz, Dr. Edgar J. Fisher Are Principal Speakers

One hundred and twenty-one International Relations Clubs in the Southeast district are holding a conference at Winthrop College, under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. This conference began yesterday and will end Saturday afternoon.

The principal guest speakers are Dr. Josef L. Kunz, lecturer in international law at the University of Toledo, Ohio, and Dr. Edgar J. Fisher, former dean and professor of history and political science at Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey; Miss Amy Hemingway Jones, Division Assistant of the Carnegie Endowment will also speak.

The officers of the Conference are: President, Miss Mary Virginia Prowden, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.; first vice president, Mr. Fleming Bonnar, Wolford College, Sparta, S. C.; second vice president, Miss Peggy Birch, Randolph-Macon Women's College, Lynchburg, Virginia; recording secretary Miss Adelle Stokes, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.; and treasurer, Miss Rachel Hay, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C. The faculty adviser is Dr. Warren O. Keith of Winthrop College.

The International Relations Clubs are group of students organized under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, in universities, colleges, and normal schools for the study and discussion of international problems.

The purpose of the Endowment in undertaking this work is to educate and enlighten public opinion. As Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the Endowment, says, it is not to support any single view as to how best to treat the conditions which now prevail throughout the world, but to fix the attention of students on those underlying principles of international organization which must be agreed upon and applied if peaceful civilization is to continue.

International Relations Clubs are organized in many countries in the world. There are 395 clubs at present in the United States and 156 in foreign countries. These include Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, all the British Dominions, and British Isles, the Far East, Iran, Iraq, Syria, Palestine, and Egypt as well as in ten countries in Central and South America.

Conference Opens Registration for the Conference began at 2 P. M. yesterday and during the afternoon there was an informal reception given by the American Association of University Women for the delegates. The Conference was formally opened at the dinner that evening in the Little Dining Room at which time Dr. Shelton Phelps, president of Winthrop College, made a short address of welcome.

IN GREETING

The Johnsonian staff joins with the college authorities in extending a hearty welcome to the delegates and visitors to the Thirteenth Annual Southeastern Conference of the I. R. C.

We recognize the significance of the work done by so large a gathering; and we realize that Winthrop is indeed fortunate in being able to act as hostess to such an event. We appreciate the fact that perhaps our greatest benefit is derived from personal contact with students of other colleges.

We are glad of this opportunity to meet you; we hope that this conference will be profitable both in a business and a social way; and we hope to see you again.

OUR HOLIDAYS

One of the important questions coming up before the Senate last Tuesday was that one concerning holidays which, lately, has caused so much controversy among students.

It has been the custom this year to allow students to go home for a holiday provided they return by ten o'clock the night of the holiday. If the holiday occurred on a Saturday, the time was extended until ten o'clock Sunday night.

We realize that, where any rule is concerned, the administration always has an excellent reason for making it. We think that one of the reasons in this case must be the idea that classes would probably be disrupted if they were full of sleepy-headed girls who had gotten up at some unearthly hour of the morning to return.

On taking week-ends, all students are allowed to remain at home Sunday night, provided they return in time for classes Monday morning; very few of them do this. It stands to reason, then, that if they are allowed the same thing on holidays, the same large majority would return the night of the holiday.

Furthermore, we believe that, when a girl is old enough to come to college, she has reached the age of discretion, and should be capable of deciding for herself just how much sleep she can afford to lose. Also, if she has not proved herself discreet, her parents will realize it, and will compel her to return at the time that they think best.

This Collegiate World

Funchry, had Clyde Herrings, governor of our most litinate state, Iowa, is a bluff, straightforward politician. But like so many such Governor Herrings has to be approached with stealth and circumspection.

Well, beloved father: I have not a penny, nor can I get any more through you, for all things at the university are so dear; nor can I study in my code or my digest for they are all trated.

Moreover, I owe 10 crowns in dues to the process and can find no man to lend it me. I send you word of greetings and of money.

"The student hath need of many things if he will profit here; his father and his kin must needs supply him freely that he be not compelled to pawn his books, but has ready money to his purse, with gowns and furs and decent clothing, or he will be deemed for a beggar; whereas that man may not take for a beast, I send you word of greetings and of money."

Dear father, design to help me! Oreat my application for I send you word of greetings and of money.

Well beloved father, to ease my debts contracted at the uni., with the dollar, and to pay my subscriptions to the Bibliotheca and the herbar, I send you word of greetings and of money." Commenting that the letter "apparently shows profound study of classical style," the reviewer remarked, "The word hath nettled him to write, but it will be folly for him to try the dodge again."

Those who thought from the first that Eddie Cantor's offer of several thousand dollars for the best essay by a college boy on how to keep America out of war, was only a publicity stunt, are probably close to the mark.

A writer in the New Theatre Magazine interviewed Mr. Cantor on his proposal and the following conversation transpired:

Q: "What suggested the idea of the Peace Contest?"
A: "The United States get into war? Don't be silly."

Q: "How do you think America can stay out of war?"
A: "By my arm to the teeth."

Michigan's Collector of Internal Revenue has tied up the University of Michigan's football funds because he says they haven't paid $2,000 in taxes on general admissions.

Harvard University has rejected a $10,000 gift from Ernst Hanfstaengl, skip and pianist to Adolf Hitler.

Thought: The longest letters to home folks are usually written by the shortest college boys.

STUDENT OPINION

Katie Cooker:

In a school with a student body as large as ours here at Winthrop, it is surprising that more class spirit is not shown. That there is a great deal of spirit in our school is evidenced by the pep and interest that is shown at the Pop meeting every fall. It is a pity that we cannot keep up this spirit throughout the whole year, and give our class the support they need to function properly and successfully. How do we expect our class to come out on top when we do not accept any of the responsibility that is rightfully ours, and leave it to the officers of the few girls who are leaders to carry the entire load and do all the work? If failure are in some project next year, they are blamed when it is the fault of our entire class for not cooperating. The same is true with regard to our class teams. How can we expect our teams to play their best and put out every effort to win when the majority of these class carry very little, whether they win or lose—care so little that we do not even give them the support of our presence at the tournaments. We have the spirit! Why not show it! This is a time of the year when every class, especially the Junior and Seniors, has big plans ahead. Let's cooperate, show interest in our class activities, and make the work of our class successful!

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"The educated man has proved a constructive force and at the same time a conservative force in the state, a bulwark against the shallow cynicism and vain propaganda." Statesman Cranbridge Colby calls upon college men for straight thinking and steady influence.

"Today men are not employed because they hold a college degree, and society has been so used to the idea of spiritual values in the character of educated men. Many colleges have been reduced to a teacher's paradise, with the students looking only for good positions and social standing from their education." Clemens M. Crankston, President of Augustana College (St. Paul, S. D.), believes importance of college degree has decreased because colleges fall in spiritual and moral training.

"I am in hearty accord with you when you say we should encourage youth to express itself on matters of education, business and government. I have observed that youth's lack of practical experience is frequently compensated by idealism and sense of justice. Today, more than ever, we need the stimulus of a youthful approach to the serious problems that confront our country." President Roosevelt approves a youth essay contest.

"Neither will we ever compromise our opposition to having 'free speech' mean that a man can do as he pleases under the university's protection, sneer at religion or bring in political propaganda."

Coffin Nails

Kentucky Kernal has provided us with these statistics: A cigarette is two and three-quarter inches long. The average smoker consumes approximately 15 cigarettes a day or over three feet of cylindrical tobacco. During a college student's days of higher education he smokes enough cigarettes to stretch 10 miles, were they placed end to end. Over the course of 40 years, a cigarette fiend puts into smoke enough tags to stretch from Lexington, Ky. to Cincinnati.

Over a period of four years, the girls in one sorority alone smoke enough coffin nails to reach from Lexington to Washington, D. C.

Tolerance

Broadminded friend: "If my son makes good in college, it's hereditary; if he doesn't, it's environment. I always believe in looking at both sides of every question..." Then there was the mother who: "Son, do I smell to becom on your breath?" "Yes, mother." "Well, you'll have to stop going out with those girls!"—The Davidicans.

Conservative?

The ideal university of Utah man wears striped clothes and loud socks, and wears them when they please a conservative dresser as "most popular man."

BLUE SPECTATOR

The wonders of a wonderful weekend just over—and...The Spectator was started to see that over two hundred of its campus-loving students stayed here all week-end. The Spectator also felt a tingle of wonderful stupidity creeping on simultaneously with Spring.

"We wonder from whence came the energy to use such an alliteration?" Anyway, our radio news reporter tells us that recently the husky, young girls in British colleges objected to homework, insisting that work during class periods is entirely strenuous enough. Would that Winthrop were in England! But they tell us we must see America first!

We noticed that Little Rogol seemed to be greatly interested in one of the "Jones boys" who chanced to meet on the Wir-trop-bound bus Sunday night. Uh-huh! Jones is camped again! And "Sir" Johnson is staying home to keep his writing a boot? ... Mamma Kennedy is getting literary-minded, too. Even in her sleep she is bound to mutter, "Gather ye rosebuds while you may—"

At least, so says Ora Belle. The Spectator deeply sympathizes with "Little Audrey" for it seems that her popularity days are over and in their place are the "picture-words," "mood-motions," or what-have-ye? First our class is molested by "all lang," then little Audrey says a visit, and now we spend our time wigging the fingers of one hand directly over the wigging of the other hand with the explanation that "rain, rain, makes the green grass grow."

Life on first floor Stata is made all most unbearable by the continual ravings of Lena Reid and Mary over Clemens Fred and Georgia George. Even our last nichols have gone as much money and still they rave! And they aren't all... Nobody could bear place Guy Lombardo played Monday night in any of the Winthrop parlors for the ravings of the girls who spent the week-end in Lounsbury.

With the Rock Hill network and up with the Rock Hill network, Tuesday's Jewelry Store seems to be broadcasting from a short wave radio station. On Monday announcer Joe Moore introduced to his radio audience the much-famed trio composed of Sudee Booth, Mary Crawford Cox, and Ruth Stewart, who sang "Ride to My Lull," and at the request of the Rock Hill Fire Department "Music Goes Round and Around."

One of our Citadel friends writes that the "guy who wrote 'Stone Walls Do Not Fall' has sung 'Ride to My Lull,' and at the request of the Rock Hill Fire Department 'Music Goes Round and Around.'"

Joe Jones stayed over until Monday night and we notice she has a black eye. Now what can we make of that? And then there was the Freshman who insisted on making puns... Sunday night in the parlor this freshman and her date were heard to carry on the following conversation: He: "I'm going to put my arms around you." She: "I'll be held if you do!"

"The girl wearing Lucy Blue is heard to murmur every word about her to Ernest and the grand week-end. She does wish those pictures they made would hurry and arrive. Mother: Don't tell your secrets in the presence of the reporter!"

And there was the lovely girl who juggled a bottle of ink around all morning because she had a head. In the last camp, she found out she'd left her fountain pen at home. "Kiki! Kiki!" ... takes Lab Riggs to inquire "Who is this Berta Bitters?" "Bigger! Did she come up here?" ... And Jean Moss says she's not used to boishness she doesn't know exactly how to manage... And we hear that Mary Stuart's picture will appear on the University's League page as the Goddess of the Glassbury Leap!

Week-end of Feb. 22: Through a ghastly mistake I don't go home for the holiday. Watch everyone go with a sinking heart; then square my shoulders and tell myself that I am quite sufficient unto myself. Remotely by friends and room mate, can spend a beautiful week-end getting acquainted with my friend Thoughts and string out my Secret Soul. In the meantime I repair to Sandifer's for solace. Fmd the place deserted save for a couple of confirmed old stagers and one who has been here a fortnight all—there is no one to like-sized-eyed to their gulps and witticisms, and gasp in awe as they fix their shoulder pads.

Return to the requested school. Walk down a corridor and my footsteps echo hollowly. Find myself walking on lip-up listening vainly for a sign of life. Finally find one manly sagging-backed cat, who waves his wip of tail discreetly at me, and stages by. His starting at my bare toes motions send outside my window for moment. Then the utter silence begins to seep into my ears and seethe inside my head. Not a murmur nor a whisper penetrates the thick, still vacuum surrounding me. I think, dear heaven, if only I could hear one inhuman plunk from the neighbors' banjo-club, one human discord from their thrats I could forgive them all past and future trespasses!

Somewhat the week-end comes to an end. I read parallel and open three new charge-accounts. The Room-mate is astonished by the ardor with which I embrace her.

Tell everyone I had a lovely weekend, and really didn't want to go home. Feb. 24: Did I actually laugh for the neighbors' return?

SOCIETIES DISCUSS LITERARY TOPICS

Three Literary Societies Hold Meetings on Monday Night

The three Literary Societies held in their society halls at 6:30 Monday night, February 24. Different topics were discussed by each society.

"Regio Poeta" was the theme of the Curry Literary Society meeting. The introductory talk was made by Annie White, who spoke on "The New Negro in American Literature." Anne Fitz, president, discussed the life of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, and Grace Steuber read some of his poems. Myrtle Wallace told of the life of Countee Cullen, and read selections from his work.

Anna Fitz, president, was elected to represent Curry Literary Society at a convention to be held soon at Wake Forest, and Nanette Wilkerson was chosen to be the alternate.

"Will Rogers" was the subject of discussion at the meeting of Wade Hampton Literary Society. Jessie Teague talked on "Will Rogers as a Humorist"; Emma Grant, "Will Rogers as a Movie Actor"; and Dorothy Rogers, "Will Rogers as a Writer."

After the meeting an editorial written soon after his death, paying tribute to him as a moralist and as a potent influence in the recent campaign for cleaner morals.

"Twentieth Century Poets" was the subject of discussion at a meeting of the Rock Hill Literary Society. Ora Belle Hucks talked on the life and poetry of Sara Teasdale. Florence Richburg discussed the works of Robert Frost, and Cowdery and Sara Evans read two of his best known poems: "Stopping by the Woods on a Snowy Evening" and "Birches." Briggs Anderson made a talk on John Massfield, after which Ada Evans read his poem written in honor of King George V.

After the prepared program Margaret Reid, Mary Belle, and Marguerite Zeigler discussed current literary topics of interest, including the novel, "Hangover—1936," which was written by a member of the Duke University Senior class.

Speaking of strict schools and college regulations here are a few to think about: Students of Martha Berry College in Georgia may dance only twice a week and on Saturday, may not have radio in their rooms nor enter into competitive athletics with other colleges—Campus Comments.

What night? What's so unusual about this? We admire young Vincent Kelley, who, when he registered at the University of Nebraska, offered 1,000 pennies which took him seven years to give. The registration fee weighed 23 pounds.—Maryland Diamond-Club.

FACULTY OPINION

MEN AND WOMEN

Thomas W. Noel: The one question that I have been asked over and over again during the past two years is: "Do you find that there is any difference between teaching commences to men and women?" Frankly I do not believe that commencing education is at all matter of sex but merely a question of individual interest.

For several years we have followed the practice of giving an intelligence test to all commencing freshmen. We have used the same test here that we formerly used for men and transfer as we can tell the groupings into high, medium and low IQs are substantially the same.

For final examinations in beginning accounting we have used the same type of examination for both with no marked difference in the results. In our opinion the girls do the mechanical side of their accounting a little better but in the reasoning power the men perhaps show a slight superiority. In the advanced accounting we believe that the men students are superior, however, we are checking our opinion just now by having one of our professor friends give our final examination to his men students for the purpose of comparison.

In the divisions of the girls, with regard to case compare favorably with the men. However, when we press them for the law behind the case the results are not quite as favorable. We attribute this to imitation. Contrary to our expectations the women in the law classes are not as argumentative as the men. Women apparently take more copious notes but do not seem to use them to any better advantage.

In insurance we do not see any apparent difference in the scores. Insurance as such is not usually taught as a subject in the college school of business we cannot make any comparison, however, we say without hesitation that the women are better typists after one year's course in typewriting than are the men.

One undergraduate publication describes the perfect stoic man as one who holds the penny so hard he puts a permanent wear in Lincoln's hair.

Negro Scientist Uses Lowly Raw Material To Achieve Success

Peanut Shells And Potatoes Produce Valuable Articles

(By Associated Collegiate Press)
Tuskegee, Ala.—From wood shavings he has made synthetic marble. From peanut shells he has made insulating walls for houses...

From the lowly sweet potato he has made 118 products, among them flour, starch, library paste, vinegar, shoe polish, ginger, ink, rubber compound, coccolite compound, molasses, and caramels...

Born in a rude slave cabin in Mississippi about 75 years ago Dr. Carver does not know the exact date he began his education with a Webster's blue book speller...

The aging Negro's versatility is remarkably demonstrated in fields other than science. Dr. Carver is an accomplished artist, and is especially skilled in painting flowers...

His work in agriculture and chemistry. Dr. Carver has been able to serve his race in many ways. He is an expert cook, and recipes originated by him are used today in leading hotels throughout the country...

"When you do the common things of life in an uncommon way," Dr. Carver once said to his students, "you will command the attention of the world." In that sentence lies the secret of his own achievement.

Winthrop Students Prove Popular

Despite the cracks persistently made at Winthrop girls by members of the opposite sex about being superior, know-all, etc., (Oh, she's a Winthrop girl! She knows—or thinks she does, at any rate), the popularity of Winthrop girls is no negligible thing and is on a decided upward trend...

CAMPUSIN' AROUND

The Life of a Freshman
Punished from a High School's ranks With the knowledge of a king And not a worry on his mind— Why he knows everything!

"Now, son, there are usualy colleges. Why don't you there? You'll have everything so quiet and nice All the whole long year."

Knowing not his future life,
Knowing not his fate,
Fallen for his 'siber's words
He enters the College gate.

Before he knows what it's all about
He's in a close-packed room
Connecting with a polished plank—
Or possibly a broom.

His dignity a mangled mass,
His flesh all sore and red,
He marvels at this slaughter house
To which he has been led.

"A nice warm bath and then to sleep—
Oh boy! This takes the knif!"
Alas! Alas! He knoweth not
The danger of his life.

For stamping up the stairs in crowds
Palmettos well in sight,
The upper classmen make a call
To live up the night.

Blood curdling cries of "Freshman!!"
Ringing in his ears.
He kneels and sends to Heaven
His fervent, pleading prayers.

He never knows who's next to come,
No idea of the place.
Most always—just two pairs of pants—
No reason—just in case. —The Gamecock.

Of Course
A book entitled, "Man, the Master," has been published recently. Fiction, of course—Crow's Nest.

If a Student . . .
If a student studies, he's a bookworm. If he doesn't, he's a fat. If he flunks, he's unlucky; if he passes, he's a cribber. If he knows his lesson, he's a smart aleck; if he doesn't, he's a dumbbell. If he has ideas, he's a crack; if he doesn't, he's a mumbler. If he spends his money, he's a spendthrift; if he doesn't, he's a tightwad. If he's quiet, he's a high-batter; if he's sociable, he's a pain. If he talks, he's a chatter box; if he doesn't, he's an oyster. If he's religious, he's a fanatic; if he's not, he's a heathen. If he dies rich, he's a skintight; if he doesn't, he's a pauper. Now I ask you very confidently—Which are you?—The Spectator.

And then there was the smart young lady who was in very much of a daze from lack of sleep and decided to turn her days into nights and sleep an afternoon or two away.—The Spectator.

In 1930 college fraternities owned houses valued at over $75,000,000.

The number of Junior colleges in the U. S. has increased from 25 fifteen years ago, to approximately 600 today.

For 5 years Lynn "Bliss" Hull conducted the Steamship Service from Santa Catalina which daily brings students to St. Mary's College at Moraga, Cal. For five years Hull spent the daily hours from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. in easy relaxation. In 1934 "Bliss" awakened to a golden opportunity, asked permission to enroll as a special student, and started to devote his lay-over hours to class work and study. Today he ranks on the highest honor roll with a B-plus average and has refused several promotions from his road in order to complete his education.

Finally
Let you forget, my dear, we said
'Twinkle is sure; and even though
Tomorrow finds a flash that's dead
And love that's flown . . . 'tis better so."

We drank a toast to Eros then
And watched the sunset from the shore . . .
We lived our life that might-have-been
Before the dawn. Why ask for more?

(I stole a moment, but the theft
Of moments gives me little hurt . . .
Was up-rough on my favorite shirt!)
—The Gamecock.

The Junior Collegian tells of a student at Columbia University who, unable to be awakened by his alarm clock, concocted a "Rubie Goldberg" arrangement. Gym-Cracks

"Shoot . . . Pass . . . keep moving" . . . and similar expressions may be heard in the gym any afternoon. This is the last week of practices before the tournament.

"Six" West chairman, is making final arrangements for the games, which will take place Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday, 2nd, 3rd, and 5th. They will begin at 4 o'clock. Come on out-back up your class team—and enjoy watching those exciting events!

Visitors from York, Lancaster, Great Falls, and Rock Hill, who came up to see the basketball games of the Catawba district tournament last week were very interested in Miss Hammett's Modern Dancing classes. It was entirely new to most of them.

Although about 800 girls went home last week-end the "gym" was very popular with the remaining 300. Seen there Saturday:

Beattie Fuller, Joe Seagle, and Bert Marsh, playing table tennis . . .

Marjorie M. performing on the rings "with the greatest of ease" . . .

Evelyn Martin and Mary Johnstone (visitor on our campus—upperclassmen will remember her!) very engrossed at badminton . . .

Harriet Cookfield at aerial darts and shuffleboard . . .

Recreational sports are rapidly gaining in popularity. A club will get under way soon.

The Senior majors, "Dot," "Ellie," "Diddy," "Cheeks," Betty, and Beck, are getting ready for their trip to Knoxville, where they will demonstrate recreational sports.

So says a De Paul freshman, probably telling his date how it felt to be collegiate. "Before I came to this campus I was one of the most conceited men you ever saw. But since my fraternity has knocked some of the conceit out of me, I am one of the best men in the pledge class."—Tower Times.

At Indiana University part of a psychology class is standing up throughout the lectures while the rest of the class is seated; and the "stitches" and the "stammers" are being watched to see which group makes the better grade average. Think what future classrooms will be like if the "stammers" win!—Los Angeles Junior Collegian.

Canadian Scientists Form Gruesome Club

Toronto, Ont.—(AOP)—Even more grimly than the famous Civil War veterans' "Last Man" club, members of which met annually to drink a toast to their dead comrades, until one was left, has been organized by a group of Canadian scientists.

In the distant future a medical paper will be published by an old scientist in which he will give the cause of the death of twenty-nine of his colleagues.

Dr. O. H. Best, Professor of Physiology in the University of Toronto, revealed the strange pact in the course of a recent speech.

Thirty research workers in the School of Hygiene have an annual physical examination. They examine each other and from each other they draw a sample of blood which is chemically analyzed.

"The idea is," explained Dr. Best, "that the survivor will write a paper on what caused the deaths of the others."

MR. W. K. LAWLOR SPEAKS ON SPIDER

Discusses "Black Widow" Variety at Open Meeting of Science Club

Mr. W. K. Lawlor, who is connected with the United States Public Health Service, State Hospital, Columbia, South Carolina, gave a lecture on "Black Widow Spiders" in Johnson Hall Wednesday afternoon, February 26, at 4:15 o'clock. Mr. Lawlor illustrated his lecture with lantern slides. He was a guest of the Purpess and Scapel Clubs.

The first part of the lecture dealt with the countries in which the spiders are found. According to Mr. Lawlor one may find them throughout any country. They especially inhabit dimly lighted places such as the corners around the roofs of trees, under stones, and basements.

In describing the "black widow" spider, Mr. Lawlor pointed out its distinctive color markings—red spots. Both the male and female are about an inch long, have a seven-sided globose body, from one to eight eyes, four legs and venom apparatus.

The life cycle of the spider varies according to environmental conditions, but rarely does one live two years. Although each female constructs usually four or five eggs, each of which contains 600 eggs, from which only about three spiders develop into adults.

This fact is due to their cannibalistic nature. All of the spiders devour members of their own family. Six months are usually necessary before the spider is completely matured. After the fourth molting the spiders seek dark places as their homes.

Food is secured by insects being trapped into the coxax, cross-crowns of the spiders, which are usually stretched across corners. The spider covers the insect trapped with strands of silk which prevent its escape, and then injects the deadly poison into his victim.

In concluding his lecture Mr. Lawlor stressed the need for the acquisition of a sound knowledge of the symptoms of the bite of a black widow in order that harmful surgery might be prevented. The confusion with acute surgical conditions and the application of harmful remedies cause many deaths. Although the pain may be intense Mr. Lawlor pointed out the fact that the mortality rate caused by the "shoe-bite" spider was relatively low.

Literary Magazines Permit 'Faulty' Speech

Do you want to say "I am ill which makes me nervous"? Or right ahead, since you're in good company. Such, at least, is the conclusion drawn as a result of the research project carried out last year by an advanced grammar course taught by Dr. Paul Wheeler. Mentors such as "American," "Atlantic Monthly," "Nation," "Outlook," and "Scribner's" use expressions of this type, and after all, who could ask for better models?

But that's not all. It appears that there's even some doubt about the strictness of "None are going." Twelve authorities contend that it is disputable, and one even maintains that it is plural. And even the number of "everyone," "everybody," and "neither," which has brought forth so many prologistic sighs from so many conscientious teachers, is a moot question among authorities.

"It is me," is not so bad as we've been led to believe, either. Five sources label it "disputable," which means that it is not so good as saying "I" is not without feeling guilty. But, according to the result of Dr. Wheeler's project, don't confuse "I" and "me." It's absolutely unforgivable, since it's the one problem studied which all the authorities agree on as being wrong.

One last word of warning: Memorize this article and quote it at psychological moments.

Waldorf Freshmen Contribute Boners

Forest City, N. Y.—(AP)—Freshmen at Waldorf College here have invented a lot of new facts for scientists and educators. Recent examination answers revealed the following new facts:

- 1. Shelly unfortunately died while drowning in the Gulf of Lehigh.
- 2. DIDO means the same, and is usually represented by Dido marks.
- 3. Romeo and Juliet are an example of an heroic couplet.
- 4. Milton wrote "Paradise Lost"; then his wife died and he wrote "Paradise Regained."
- 5. Keats is a poet who wrote on a great run.
- 6. Robert Louis Stevenson got married and went on his honeymoon. It was then he wrote "Travel with a Donkey."
- 7. Robinson Crusoe was a great singer who lived on an island.
- 8. A yodel is the way people talk to each other in the Alps.
- 9. Rural life is found mostly in the country.
- 10. A corpse is a dead gentleman, a corpse is a dead lady.

"Phi U" Sponsors Game Tournament

Phi Upsilon Omicron, National Home Economics Fraternity, will sponsor a game tournament Saturday night, February 26, at 7:30 in Johnson Hall. Tables for the tournament may be made up by any number of people, who may bring games such as old maids, monopoly, parched, anagrams, or dominoes. Patricia Wade, Rose Nell Miller, Marjorie Webb, "Ducky" Webb, and Evelyn Rhoads composed the committee to which application for a table may be made. Prizes given by the merchants of Rock Hill will be awarded to the winner at each table.

Contestants may begin playing at any time after 7:30 during the evening. A floor show will be staged, and refreshments will be served after the regular picture show in Main Auditorium. Dancing will also be a feature of the evening.

A fee of fifteen cents will be charged each student participating in the tournament. Students may wear "out-of-uniform" clothes to the tournament.

Forecasting the Follies

As life would put it—The Follies this year are definitely a "Go" place. What with a cast of two aspirants to stardom, one a Kluge that can play any part from Hamlet to Romeo to Quisano, and a "Strip" that plays the "Age of Innocence" equally as well as that of a dope-fiend!

The latest upset is that there are two professional dancers, with leads in the choruses and, in truth, one under study of Fred Astaire. (I dare not doubt the veracity of that statement)—all in a musical revue that is consistently entertaining as well as salubrious.

Inter-Class Games Played Next Week

Basketball games will be played between the four classes in their annual tournament at the Peabody Gymnasium, March 2, 3, and 4, at 4 o'clock.

Seniors will engage the Sophomores in their first battle of the three-day struggle. The Juniors will tangle with their sister class, the Freshmen. Both these games will be played on March 2.

The second day of the tournament the Seniors and Freshmen will match their strength, after which the Juniors and Sophomores will play.

Final games of the tournament will be played between the Seniors and Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen. These games will determine the winners of the basketball tournament, and the cup will be presented to the team who wins the championship.

Seniors who are out for basketball are Sta West, chairman of the club, Janet Green, Section manager, Aletha Briggs, Sara Beth Brumette, Rebecca Cook, Florence Dargan, Rosanne Howard, Eleanor King, Alice Knezer, Dot Manning, Louie Rogers, and Hetty Sweeney.

Freshman Cabinet Gave Party Recently

Members of the Freshman Cabinet held a party at the shack We'uesday afternoon, February 26.

The following committee chairmen were appointed by "Frank" Webb, chief freshman, to entertain the cabinet: Edna Baile, chair; Ann Tiplaghan, refreshments; and Frances Zemp, entertainment.

Miss Mary Neusner, field secretary for the Alumnae Association, chaperoned the group.

Music Club Studies Women Composers

"Women in Music" was the topic discussed at the meeting of the Music Club Tuesday, February 26, in Johnson Hall.

There was a reception for guests. This morning, February 26, Dr. Fisher spoke on "Can Europe be Saved?" The audience then broke up into five round tables, the subjects of which were "Adjusting Economic Conditions Which Engender Imperialistic Wars," "Economic Nationalism versus Economic Internationalism," and "Latin American Economic Problems." Each round table was presided over by a student chairman with one of the visiting speakers or faculty members acting as adviser.

This afternoon Miss Jones, who has been in close contact with students throughout the country for many years and is a well known participant in the International Relations Clubs Conference, will conduct a meeting for the discussion of the club work and problems, at which time delegates from throughout the country for many years and is a well known participant in the discussion, Miss Jones is actively interested in club in foreign countries and well informed on national and international problems, having lived in France and Germany and traveled widely in Europe and the Orient.

Guest speaker Dr. Kuzm will be the Carnegie Endowment guest speaker on "The American Problem of Neutrality" following the banquet this evening. The delegates will then attend various informal gatherings.

On Saturday morning a second round table will be held after which the delegates will meet to decide on next year's meeting place and to elect officers. The Committee will also give a luncheon Saturday when brief summaries of the round tables will be presented and Dr. Kuzm and Dr. Fisher will give their impressions of the round tables they have attended.

Dr. Fisher is a distinguished international lawyer well known both in Europe and this country. He has spent several years in the United States and Canada as a Rockefeller Research Fellow in international law. He received his Doctor's degree from the University of Vienna and later studied at the Universities of Paris and Louvain.
