Florence Dargan Will Preside At 1936 May Day Festivities

Florence Girl Elected May Queen at Senior Class Meeting on Wednesday

SELECTS MAID-OF-HONOR

Gwendolyn Coleman, Elizabeth Holt, Louise Howe, Josephine Hunter Senior Attendants

Florence Dargan of Florence was voted as a meeting of the Senior Class Wednesday, March 4. She has chosen Rosanne Howard of Florence for maid-of-honor. Gwendolyn Coleman of Darlington, Elizabeth Holt of Newberry, Louise Howe of Hendersonville, North Carolina, and Josephine Hunter of Orange, were elected by the class as senior may attendants for the 1936 celebration of May Day.

Florence Dargan was class treasurer and basketball manager during her Freshman year. She has been a member of the basketball team and swimming team for three years, a member of the Social Service Club, and a member of Theta Gamma Club, this year being its president. She was a May attendant during her Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior years, and was voted president in the Senior Class this year. She is a member of the Sigma Kappa Sigma social club, and is its standard representative this year.

Rosanne Howard has been a member of the swimming and basketball teams since her Freshman year. She is treasurer of Theta Gamma Club and a member of Beta Alpha. She is president of Sigma Kappa Sigma social club.

Gwendolyn Coleman is assistant business manager of The Johnstonian, social editor of The Teller, and a member of the Psychology Club, Wade Hampton Literary Society and Upsilon Tau Epistolian social club.

Elizabeth Holt is art editor of The Teller, business manager of the Magazine, President of the Young Democrats, and class representative in the Senate. She is a member of Tau Omega Kappa social club.

Louise Howe is President of the Student Government Association. She has been a college marshal, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, treasurer of the Winthrop Literary Society, member of The Johnstonian staff, and Secretary and Treasurer of Pi Kappa Phi. She is a member of the Pi Kappa Phi social club.

Josephine Hunter is secretary of the Standards Committee of Social Clubs. She was a member of the Choral Club and choral choir, and a May attendant her Sophomore and Junior years. She is a member of the Elementary Education Club and the Senate, and is president of Kappa Phi social club.

NEW JOURNAL WILL BE ISSUED SOON

March Issue To Include Stories, Essays, Plays, and Poetry by Students

Caroline Crum, editor-in-chief of The Winthrop Journal, has announced that the March issue will be published soon.

The issue will include two stories: "To Him Who Walks" and "A Soldier and a Gentleman" and a play, "Little Things."

There will be several sketches: "Sophistry" by Rose Riddick; "Death Has Two Hands" by Caroline Crum; "They Call Them" by Mary Louise; "Magdalena" by "Diaphan" Thomas; and "Remembrance" by Marguerite Zeigler. The essays are "An Art One Begins" by Annie Rosenbaum; "Rambling About Horses" by "Diaphan" Thomas; and "Whitstone" by Maryland Wilson.

"Theater Tips" written by Lois Young, and "Everybody's Gearing It" by Tirah McAlpine, are two features of the issue. The book reviews were written by Marguerite Zeigler and Lois Young. Evelyn Brock, Betty Carrison, Caroline Crum, Maryland Wilson, and Annie Weiden have contributed poetry for this issue of The Journal.

BASKETBALL GAMES TO BEGIN TODAY

Class Tills Begin Today; Will Last Through Tuesday

Basketball games that were postponed due to influenza will be played Friday, March 4, Monday, March 6, and Tuesday, March 10, at 4 o'clock in the gym.

Miss Frances P. Hoffman, assisted by "Big" West, chairman of the Basketball Club and the manager, Jerry Greener, Seniors, "Birdie" McCutcheon, Junior, Helen Maude Murray, Sophomore, and Ines Kelly, Freshman, have worked with the various class teams during the season.

The first game at 4 o'clock Friday will see the Seniors and Sophomores battling to the last minute of the game. On the same afternoon the Juniors will engage their sister class, the Freshmen, in the struggle for supremacy.

Monday, the Seniors and Freshmen will tangle up in their game while later the Juniors and Sophomores will vie with each other in the number of points scored.

Final Games
Final games will be played on Tuesday. Seniors and Juniors will engage in their annual game while the Freshmen and Sophomores will contend for their rights. These games will decide the winner of the basketball tournament and the cup will be presented to the winning team.

All classes are urged to be present at the game to cheer their teams to victory. The cheer leaders will be present to lead the yells and songs.

Seniors who are out for basketball games are "Big" West, chairman of the club, Jean Greener, Manager, Aletha Briggs, Sara Beth Burnett, Rebecca Cook, Florence Dargan, Rosanne Howard, Eleanor King, Alice Kinross, Dot Manning, Louise Rogers, and Betty Swenney.

Junior Squad
"Birdie" McCutcheon, manager of the Juniors, has on her squad Helen Maude Murray, Andrea Bryan, Katie Coker, Lorena Colosky, Virginia Harvey, Nell Jackson, Vance Marlan Elice, Nell Martin, Elma Pearson, Martha Rice, Jessie Tesque, Catherine Umer, and Della Young.

Sophomore Squad

Freshman Squad

WINTHROP PROFESSOR RECEIVES BIG HONOR

Miss Cragwall Heads State Association For Second Time

Miss Sarah Cragwall, head of the Home Economics Department at Winthrop, was re-elected president of the South Carolina Home Economics Association, at the final session of the annual meeting held in Columbia on February 25. Miss May Shaw Gilliam, of the extension department of Winthrop College, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The membership of the association, which was headed by Miss Cragwall during the past year, is composed of extension workers, rural resettlement workers, and home makers.

Students Conduct Evangelistic Service

Pete Gillette and Felix Arndt, students at Louisville Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, are conducting a series of Student Evangelistic Services at the Winthrop B. S. U. room, Monday through Friday, March 2-6. These meetings are a part of the South-wide observance of Student Evangelistic Week.

SUE HASTINGS' CAST FITS PUPPET SHOW

Internationally Famed Troupe Presents "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Robin Hood"

"Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Robin Hood" were presented by Sue Hastings' troupe in Main Auditorium, Tuesday, March 3, at three and eight o'clock. The scenes in "Jack and the Beanstalk" were laid in the home of Jack, and in the home of the giant. The third scene showed Jackie tripping over the giant, and rich with his golden hair, and hen that laid the golden eggs.

Added attractions were "The Three Little Pigs," "Raggedy Ann," "Soldiers on Parade" and "The Circus."

Evening Performance
The first scene of "Robin Hood," the evening performance, was laid in Sherwood Forest. The second scene was laid in the courtyard of the sheriff's house in Nottingham where good King Richard banished the sheriff, pardoned Robin Hood, and pardoned his proposed marriage with Marian.

Additional features of the evening performance were the song and dance numbers: "A Bench in the Park in the Springtime," "Bringme in a Hammock," "The Child and His Cow," "Impersonation of Maurice Chevalier," and "Sons of From Harlem." Members of the company showed how puppets are manipulated by presenting "Saint George and the Dragon."

The manager of the marionettes explained how puppets are made in an interview after the matinee performance. All her marionettes are made and repaired in Sue Hastings' New York studio. The heads of the puppets are modeled in plaster of Paris, and are cast in plastic wood which looks like thick apple sauce. (Some marionette-makers use paper mache for this purpose.) The shoulders and most parts of the body are of wood. In fact, any part of the body on which there is stress and strain is of wood. The joints are made of cloth. The hands are modeled in wax and covered with silk. The feet, legs and arms are hand-carved. A minimum of five strings is attached to each marionette, two strings being attached to the sides of the head, one to the center neck, one to each hand, knee, and shoulder. More strings are added to make movements more facile.

For instance, the Hei-hen lady had two hip strings and two chest strings in addition to the minimum of nine strings.

Sue Hastings' marionettes have been playing for fourteen years. One company has visited England, Scotland, Alaska, and the Virgin Islands. Her marionettes have given performances at the White House. At present Sue Hastings has five companies, one playing in New Chicago, two in New York, one touring New England, and one playing in the South.

SENATE FAILS TO CONCLUDE BUSINESS

Students Move For Second Time To Complete Stated Topics

Winthrop College Senate reconvened Monday, March 3, at 4 o'clock at the call of the president, ending a recess of 10 days.

A committee was appointed to present a recommendation to proper authorities concerning the selection of college marshals. This committee consists of Helen Perrier, chairman, Jessie Tapp, Lucretia Daniel, and Ann Tilghman.

The Senate was recessed at 6 o'clock to meet again, at a date set by the president, in order to complete the business on the calendar.

MANY ATTEND I.R.C. CONFERENCE HERE

Convention To Be Held At Auburn Next Year—Bobbie James, Corresponding Sec.

Approximately two hundred delegates from colleges of eight states attended the Southeastern International Relations Club Conference held at Winthrop, February 27 through 29, under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment.

Dr. Josef L. Kuzel, lecturer in international law at the University of Toledo, Ohio; Dr. Edgar J. Fisher, former dean and professor of history and political science at Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey; Miss Amy Hemmingsway Jones, division assistant; and Miss Ursula P. Hubbard, were present as guest speakers from the Carnegie Endowment.

The conference was formally opened at dinner, Thursday night, in the little dining room. Welcomes were extended the guests by Mary Virginia Floviden, Student President of the Conference; by Lucretia Daniel, President of the Winthrop I. R. C.; Mr. Arthur Huckle, editor of The Evening Herald; and Mr. Edwin Carothers, Mayor of Rock Hill. Miss Jones replied to the welcomes.

Following dinner, a reception was held for the guests in Johnson Hall. At the supper Mrs. D. B. Johnson greeted the guests, who were then introduced to the receiving line, composed of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Keith, Miss Jones, Dr. Fisher, Dr. Kuzel, Mrs. Don Matthews, Miss Mamic Gulleid, and Miss Eliza Wardlaw. After the reception, Dr. Fisher spoke in Johnson Hall Auditorium on "New Thinking Necessary for Peace."

After breakfast on Friday morning, Dr. Fisher again spoke on "Can Europe Be Saved?" Following his address, the delegates broke up into five round tables which were as follows: "Adjusting the Economic Conditions Which Engender Imperialist Wars," led by Virginia McKeithen; "Economic Internationalism," led by Bobbie James; "Neutrality," led by Rachel Ray; "Sanctions," led by Frances Holland; and "Latin-American Questions," led by Lucretia Daniel. Immediately after the group discussions, the delegates assembled in the auditorium for a report on the findings of each panel. The conference was then adjourned until after dinner.

ED. ASSOCIATION TO HOLD CONVENTION

Fiftieth Annual Meeting To Cover Thursday and Friday March 12-14

Dr. W. D. Magginn, of Winthrop College, president of the South Carolina Education Association, announced that the Fiftieth Annual Convention of the South Carolina Education Association will meet at Columbia, Thursday through Saturday, March 12-14, 1938. Junior members of the association from Winthrop will attend this convention.

Among the speakers at the convention will be Governor Olin D. Johnston, Miss Agnes Samurison, President of National Education Association; Dr. George B. Counts, of Columbia University; Dr. Maysie Southall, of Peabody College; Dr. Evelyn Conant, of DePaul University, and Mr. Cameron Beck, of the New York Stock Exchange. Teacher problems will be discussed at departmental meetings. Special features of the convention will be the commercial exhibits and the All-State Teachers' Chorus.

Twenty-eight colleges from nine states send delegates to the South Atlantic Speech Tournament which began yesterday afternoon, which began yesterday afternoon. The tournament was originally planned by delegates, orations, readings, and impromptu, extemporaneous, and after-dinner speeches.

The South Atlantic Speech Tournament was organized six years ago by Professor Edwin Fugate, of North Carolina State College. Mr. Fugate, after acting as president for three years, was succeeded by Professor Albert Keiser, of Lenoir-Rhyne, who is now completing his third term as president. The tournament was originally designed for only North Carolina colleges, but during the six years of its history, it has expanded to include colleges of Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Pennsylvania as well.

Registration for the conference began yesterday at 12:30. The first two rounds of debate were held yesterday afternoon; the first after-dinner contest was held last night. The third and fourth rounds of debate, and the second after-dinner contest were held this morning. The tournament will proceed this afternoon with impromptu, extemporaneous, reading, and men's oratorical contests. The fifth and sixth rounds of debate will be held tomorrow; and decisions will be announced after dinner Saturday.

Colleges represented are as follows: Clemson University, of Florida; Wake Forest College, of Pennsylvania; Appalachian State Normal, Atlantic Christian, Catawba, Guilford, High Point, Lenoir-Rhyne, North Carolina State, Queens-Chloro, Wake Forest, and Western Carolina, of North Carolina; Carson-Newman, King, Maryville, Tennessee State, and Tusculum, of Tennessee; Georgia State and Piedmont, of Georgia; Shepherd State, of West Virginia; Morehead, of Kentucky; Virginia State, of Virginia; and The Citadel, College of Charleston, Erskine, Furman, of South Carolina; Furman, of South Carolina.

Winthrop's representative in the contest are as follows: debates, Mary Gullman, Rachel Ray, Virginia McKeithen, and Frances Holland; extemporaneous, Bobbie James; impromptu speaker, Virginia McKeithen; orator, Marguerite Zeigler; reader, Jean Sellers; and after-dinner speaker, Marguerite Zeigler.

PHI J SPONSORED RECENT TOURNAMENT

Fourteen Students Win Prizes Donated By Local Merchants In Tournament Saturday

Mamie Catherine Ritchie, Mary Hart Dargan, Bet Bardin, Mae Mac Bridges, Annie Grace Sellers, Chelise Russell, Mary Jane Childers, Louise Johnson, Ann Marie Backus, Carolyn Brown, Marguerite Sanders, Julia Warren, Mildred Pettigrew, and Sara Anthony were the prize-winners in a game tournament sponsored by Phi Upsilon Omicron, national home economics fraternity, on Saturday evening, February 28, in Johnson Hall.

These prizes were donated by the Smart Shop, Peoples Beauty Shop, Bass Furniture Company, Phillips Drug Company, Sellers Drug Company, Floods Dry Goods Company, Friedharts, the Rock Hill Hardware Company, Marie H. Gould, and Belza.

Patricia Wise, Rose Nell Milling, Pearlanna Tyler, Finkle Webb, and Evelyn Hildreth composed the committee in charge of the game.

Mary Wright was in charge of the floor show which included several songs by Mae Mac Bridges, and dancing by Mamie Catherine Ritchie. Refreshments were served at the close of the tournament.

WINTHROP AS HOSTESS

We've been having a great many visitors on our campus lately; and the whole atmosphere seems to have been changed. Perhaps the visitors were not the only cause that has brought about the relaxing of tension, but they are certainly a part of it.

It is always a pleasure to be hostess to people with whom one has something in common; and one surely has something in common with the college students who are and have been our guests during these last few weeks.

Contact with other colleges is doing something for Winthrop. It is keeping her in step with the activities and interests of students and colleges all over the East; and it is showing her herself through new eyes.

Winthrop students are beginning to take stock—in the best possible way. Through the eyes of outside students, they are looking again at things that have been taken so long for granted; they are re-measuring and re-grading this, that, and the other institution, activity, or custom on the campus.

With this inventory process comes a stock of new ideas and a renewed enthusiasm for what can be at Winthrop.

Visitors are a pleasure; they certainly are benefactors to Winthrop. We wish we could have them more often—not only as delegates to conferences, but as individuals who are our hostesses at other colleges and whom we would like to entertain as our guests at Winthrop.

A PLEA FOR THE MINORITY

Last year, the college reinstated the two-year commercial course, after an absence of several years. Academically, this course has proved a success. In the undergraduate's life, however, the result of this action is yet to be determined. The second-year two-year students do not fit entirely into the machinery of the college organizations. They are not plain sophomores, although they are roughly classed with this group. Neither are they seniors, and entitled to senior privileges—yet, since they are not ordinary sophomores, it does not seem right that they should be treated as such.

In the fall there was much talk concerning whether these students should be allowed to wear Winthrop rings. It was finally decided that they should not. We think this decision wise. The wearing of a class ring is generally accorded the privilege of a college graduate. Most colleges do not allow anyone lower than the senior class to wear these rings; and the occasion on which the class wears these rings for the first time is made somewhat of a celebration. For this reason, we feel that the two-year students, who are awarded only a certificate, should not have rings.

The next question to be considered is whether these students should be allowed to attend Junior-Senior. Since we, as Seniors, have waited for four years for this occasion, we do not think that the two-year students, who certainly are neither Juniors nor Seniors, should attend our Junior-Senior. We firmly believe, however, that the two-year students should be given a separate banquet, the details of which to be arranged along similar lines of the Junior-Senior.

Further recognition to which we believe these students entitled is separate classification in The Tatler. Any other classification, we believe, is erroneous.

We are heartily in sympathy with these students of the minority. Since they are special students we feel that they should be given special privileges, modified in keeping with the fact that they are two, and not four-year students.

ABIGAIL CLOSES BATTLE OF WITS

"Winthrop's brilliant columnist," or "Little Abigail," as her contemporary of The Citadel has named her, is tired of this contention which began as a battle of wits, and has evolved into a friendly bickering with wit-wit. Our good friend of The Citadel seems to be at a loss—not for words, but for argument. His merely paraphrases or quotes directly the statements of the columnist whose work he pretends to admire so greatly.

Since there is no argument left, it seems to her both childish and absurd to continue in this battle of words. No further personal mention of The Citadel nor of The Bull Dog will appear in The Johnsonian.

Movie News
More movie news and this time from a foreign country:
The latest luxury cinema to strike Paris is the new MacMorris. The Junior Collegian reports that film fans pay an entrance fee of 25 cents, which includes seeing a picture and eating a free snack. During the film hours pass plates of sandwiches and French pastries. If we had that opportunity here, we'd be dining room would have plenty of its diners.

Columnist at Ohio State University re-quotes the Columnist paper which relates how a professor of English received an essay which had been copied directly from a book. The professor announced that if the student guilty of plagiarism would see him after class, his name would not be divulged.
When the class was over, he found five Edgely students waiting for him!

FACULTY OPINION

Prof. E. I. Terry—
One of the deepest impressions that I have received during my six years of teaching at Winthrop is that a majority of the first-year students—I should say a very large majority—need a considerably greater amount of individual instruction and helpful advice on how to study the particular subjects they are pursuing than they are now receiving, and more than it is physically possible for the present teaching staff to give them.

This problem of the adjustment of freshmen to their new environment, both academic and social, is of course not peculiar to Winthrop, nor to any one section of the country, but perhaps is a little more acutely evident in those colleges where most of the students have received only a few years of preparation for college instead of twelve.

What is the best solution of this problem? I do not pretend to know, but will offer a few suggestions that I believe point in the right direction, and which may at least arouse some interest and discussion among students and alumnae.

I think that the first step should be the adoption of freshmen dormitories— I suppose that with our present enrollment the two largest dormitories would house most of the freshman class. But the dormitory system itself would be of no avail without a corps of "tutors," as we may call them for want of a better name. In each freshman dormitory there would be a large common or study room, where the tutors would assemble during study hours to meet any students who might wish to come and have some difficulties explained or receive some help over hard places. In addition the tutors could make many appointments with individuals or groups to meet them at other times than during the evening study hours. They could also assist the regular teachers in many ways, and could, when necessary, go over with students the corrected papers of written tests and explain the mistakes.

How would these tutors be selected? I suggest the following plan, also a better one may be proposed. The tutors might be given the official designation of Winthrop Teaching Fellows, and each year the Administration would offer a number of fellowships (as many as necessary) to certain students of the senior class who had done high-grade work in different departments. One student, for example, may have majored in mathematics, one in modern languages, another in history, and so on. I can believe that it would soon be regarded as a highly desirable honor to receive one of these fellowships. The material compensation could not be high but, including board and lodging in the dormitories, should be at least equal to that which a young teacher could expect to receive in a public-school position. Many of the recipients of these fellowships would naturally be students with the ability and inclination to pursue further study in the subject in which they had majored, with the object of fitting themselves for college teaching. For this purpose they should find their experience as assistant instructors at Winthrop to be invaluable, and they could probably at the same time arrange to do some work toward a master's degree.

How many teaching fellowships would be required? The optimum number would have to be determined by experience. For a freshman class the size of the present one I would say it would lie somewhere between twelve and twenty. The expense to the College of sustaining these fellowships would not be very great as such things go, but might well be the insuperable obstacle for some years to come. That of course would be a problem for the Administration and Trustees to wrestle with, and would no doubt depend ultimately on appropriations unless an endowment for fellowships could be secured. Who knows but that sometime a very wealthy Winthrop alumna, in memory of her departed husband (or an alumna's wealthy husband in memory of his beloved wife), may provide such an endowment if the alumnae are quite fit sufficiently.

In closing I wish to refer to the subject of freshman dormitories. In addition to promoting scholarship (as a part of the fellowship plan), I think that other advantages would ensue. It should tend to generate and promote throughout all four years of college life a desirable degree of class solidarity and class spirit, and as Miss Katie Outer stated in the Student Opinion column of last week's Johnsonian, class spirit and the proper support of class teams and activities are woefully lacking at Winthrop. About twenty-five years ago President Lowell, soon after becoming president of Harvard, inaugurated the freshman dormitory system there, although the plan was opposed by many members of the faculty. President Eliot had apparently never favored freshman dormitories.

STUDENT OPINION

Virginia McCue—
Rarely a day passes but that someone is heard to "down" Winthrop. There's really no reason for this lowering on such a large scale. We all concede that Winthrop is no "paradise spot of the world," nor either is it such a "boogaboo." Just stop to think of the numerous advantages Winthrop offers to its students. If you can't get along here don't admit it—the fault is likely yours and not that of the college.

Oh lady, though your love enravels my heart
And whets my wild desires with purple passion,
Oh lady, though your glance is like a dart
That wrecks my mavor-faire in hectic fashion.

Oh lady, though there's laughter on your tongue
And in your face a scintillating gleam,
Oh lady, though your deft carous has hung
To me a disarray for proper grammer.

A-y lady, though your tender tech-nique thins
My envious and prevents my nerves from dozing,
And lady, though I love you like the dickens—
There's just one detail that keeps me from proposing:

Altho' you fill my rapturous heart with joy,
My head rebels and classically hollers.
"Of course," you love your lady-love, but has she got at least a hundred thousand dollars?"

DIFFERENT

Something different in the way of a feature story appeared in the February 21 edition of the Yankee Pioneer Times which is published by Mrs. Margaret V. Smith. It seems that Yesser has something unusual in the way of an eccentric resident, and the scathing reporter from The Pioneer Times office got the low-down on his eccentricities. The resident promised his bride on their marriage day, 31 years ago, that he wouldn't shave! He has kept his promise for 31 years and the reporter states that the gentleman's hirsute adornment undergoes a trimming process regularly which keeps him looking trim and neat.

GIRL SCOUTS MEET

Girl Scouts met in the gymnasium, Saturday afternoon, February 29, at 5 o'clock. After a short business meeting, members of the Girl Scouts tried to identify the various trees on the campus by the buds.
But President Lowell put it thru, and after sufficient time had passed to give the system a fair trial, all opposition vanished, and those who had opposed it frankly admitted that they had been mistaken. The plan has worked admirably at Harvard.

DR. MAGGINIS IS INVITED TO SPEAK

General Assembly Passes Resolution Inviting State Teachers to Visit House

Members of the General Assembly of South Carolina have adopted a joint resolution inviting Professor W. D. Magginis to speak to them, Thursday, March 12. The legislators have also invited the delegates of the State Teachers Convention to visit them during the two days of the meeting. The entire resolution is as follows:

"Whereas, the South Carolina State Education Association, numbering approximately one thousand (1,000) members, will hold its annual convention in Columbia on Thursday and Friday, March 12 and 13, and

"Whereas, it is contemplated that the South Carolina General Assembly will also be in session on those days; and

"Whereas, the General Assembly is anxious to extend to the Teachers of the State every consideration and courtesy possible during their stay in Columbia, now therefore

"Be it resolved that the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, does hereby invite the teachers in attendance at said convention, their officials and friends, to visit the State House and the Halls of the House of Representatives on the days said convention will be in session.

"Be it further resolved that the President of the State Education Association, Professor W. D. Magginis, be and hereby is invited and urged to address the two Houses of the General Assembly in joint session assembled at 11 a. m. on the morning of March 12.

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the President of the State Teachers' Association, one to the Executive Secretary of the Association, Mr. J. F. Coates, and one to the proper official of the Associated Press."

Rock Hill Aviator Speaks In Assembly

Mr. Bob Bryant, aviator of Rock Hill, was guest speaker at the assembly held on Wednesday, March 4. Mr. Bryant told of the record flight he made in the "silver plane" from Rock Hill to Miami, Florida, on February 18, accomplishing the record for five over planes. The Rock Hill aviator flew six hundred and seventy miles in nine hours and thirty-five minutes as compared with the former record of five hundred and fifty-one miles in the same time.

Mr. Bryant in telling of his flight stressed the economy and safety of aviation as compared with other means of travel.

Meditations
As we heed love
She thinks us stars 'n' smudges.
At the dance
She thinks us angels 'n' steps.
As she studies
She finds that art awl
She can't learn Ohms.

Forecasting the Follies

"And the music goes down and 'round"—and the show goes on. Come and see those desperate dances and big bold pirates. Save your nickels and get ready for a real Broadway Polka conducted by Winthrop College on the 25th. Absolutely original dance steps executed by the latest tricks in Freshman Sophomore, and Junior classes. And the songs—ah nice cherics—the songs are superlative. Well, anyway they are good.

SOCIETY ANNOUNCES NATIONAL CONTESTS

Camel Pen Company and The Advertising Age Offer Big Cash Awards

Beta Alpha wishes to call to the attention of all commercial students two contests: one on marketing and the other on advertising.

To the student sending in the best solution of the marketing problem of the Camel Pen Company of Orange, N. J., the company will award a first prize of $100.00.

Camel Pen Contest
The contest, which will continue until May 1, is open to any student who has had a course in marketing. The second prize is $100.00, the third, $50.00, and the next ten places will each receive a Camel pen and pencil set.

The judges of the contest are Prof. Hugh E. Agnew, of the Department of Marketing at New York University, Mr. F. C. Kendall, editor of "Advertising and Selling," and Mr. E. W. Spaulding, secretary of the Camel Pen Company.

Advertising Contest
For the best essay on "The Economic Value of Advertising," written by an undergraduate student, "The Advertising Age," a national newspaper of advertising, will give a cash prize of $50.00 and an all-expense trip to the 1934 convention of the Advertising Federation of America, which will convene in Boston June 23 to July 2. The second best essay will be awarded $100.00 in cash and the third best, $50.00. The writers of the ten next best essays will receive $10.00 each.
The contest will be open until May 15.

Further Information Available
Anyone desiring to enter either of these contests may receive further information and material from Elizabeth McDonald, Box 854, or Mr. Roy A. James.

Women 'Muscle In' On Physical Education

If statistics mean anything, future members of the feminine sex will be every bit as strong as men.

According to Betty C. Dailey, supervisor of physical education for women in the University, 450 co-eds took advantage of the opportunity to enhance their physique by adding a few extra inches to their muscles.

General gymnasiums were preferred by 100 of the girls, while 50 went for swimming like suits for a sack of flour. Folk and tap dancing claimed 51 dilatants; modern creative dancing, 47; and archery, 40.

Other activities patronized by the co-eds in the order of their preference included tennis, volleyball, body mechanics, riding, and life saving.—Boston University News.

Food Posters Will Be Exhibited Here

"Food Paths and Palaces" will be exhibited by a series of posters at Winthrop College, Saturday, March 7 through Wednesday, March 11.

The posters were prepared by a committee of State Home Economics Association with Miss Ruth Lee Williams as chairman. The exhibit was shown at the meeting of the association Saturday, February 28, and will be shown again at the State Teachers Meeting Thursday and Friday, March 12-13.

MANY ATTEND I. R. C. CONFERENCE HERE

representatives from each club gave a report of the work done by their club during the past year. Following the club reports, the delegates from each state then assembled for a state meeting to select a nominee for the Model League, which was held Saturday morning.

The annual I. R. C. banquet was held Friday night. At that time Marguerite Ziegler gave a toast from Winthrop College to the delegates. Lucretia Daniel presided over the banquet.

Dr. Kuna spoke Friday night after the banquet on "The American Problem of Neutrality." Following his address, the Conference resolved itself into a Model League of Nations Assembly to elect a president from the state nominees, and to establish the agenda for the next day. Charles Moran, of the University of Virginia, was elected president. "Sanctions" and "Imperialism" were the topics placed on the agenda.

The first order of the day on Saturday was open discussion of sanctions and imperialism at the Model League. This discussion closed with an address by Dr. Kuna.

Following Dr. Kuna's address, the clubs held their annual business meetings at which time the plans of meeting and the officers for next year were decided upon. Auburn College, in Alabama, was selected as the meeting place for 1937; and the president, corresponding secretary, and treasurer will automatically be elected from the Auburn I. R. C. Other officers elected were as follows: first vice-president, Martha Nan Walling, of Randolph-Macon; second vice-president, Robert Weeks, of Mississippi; and recording secretary, Bobbie James, of Winthrop.

Members of the string ensemble, and sextette furnished music throughout the conference.
