Winthrop A “Prison?”

An article appeared in a recent issue of the Charlotte Observer that, as a member of the public, I found quite disturbing. It bore the suggestive title “To the Agony of Prison.”

The Observer’s editor, in his own words, wrote:

To the Reader:

We hear you “To the Agony of Prison.”

Prison is the last place for a man who is not a criminal.

We hear you: “To the Agony of Prison.”

We hear you: “To the Agony of Prison.”

We hear you: “To the Agony of Prison.”

We hear you: “To the Agony of Prison.”

The editor goes on to describe the prison as a place of suffering and degradation, where the inmates are denied basic human rights and freedoms. He argues that the prison system is fundamentally flawed and that it should be abolished altogether.

The article generated a lot of debate among the readers, with some agreeing with the editor’s views and others disagreeing. Some readers pointed out that the prison system is necessary to uphold the rule of law and protect society from criminals.

The debate about the prison system is ongoing, and it is an important issue that affects the lives of many people. As a society, we need to find a balance between ensuring public safety and protecting human rights. The debate about the prison system is a good example of the kind of discourse that is needed to address complex social issues.

Free University Proposes
To Combat Dehumanization

By JoAnn Hammons

... Students have been systematically and consistently denied the opportunity to regulate their own learning process and to express their opinions through student government. It is because students have been denied these opportunities in Winthrop that the student government has grown... Of course, the first line of the FUND’s “dissemination of information to women” was to have the audience be exactly that; background information... The FUND of NURSE is also very much a part of the Free University and...".

Sanders Speaks
About Infirmary Committee Plan

Editor:

I write as a student to see if some students’ efforts to explain exactly what the infirmary committee is trying to do in reference to the Infirmary, I hope this will be adequate. This is a question of the Faculty-Student Committees and the Student Government.

As far as I can tell, the infirmary committee was appointed by the Student Government in cooperation with the Faculty to discuss the problems of the infirmary. The infirmary committee has been working on a report which will be submitted to the Student Government. The report will be presented to the Student Government for discussion and approval.

New Christy Minstrels Bring Vitality To Stage

By JANE MOLLISON

The New Christy Minstrels in agenerous and a laudable move, which brought a piquant variety and a much-needed variety to the entertainment today.

The group hit the stage with "Woke Up This Morning" the minstrel music, which marks the interesting parts of the group. The show was, however, the acceptance of more mature music with "Fool" and "Tell The Dancing Doctor," C. v. a. was saved by the strength of its stronger parts.

The group's madrigals varied between the usual numbers. While some of the costumes might have seemed a bit off color, they were funny and the audience appeared to take it all.

In all, the band showed their planning and interpreting全体员工contributing to the success of the concert. Additional participation was seen on fewer small stages and after a while the en- tire band even had to be asked to join in.

For their share the Minstrels were "Thank You, Mr. Wright" and "The White House" songs, along with "The Minstrels' Challenge." Their songs were varied and in three different sections for the performance.

At first appeared on stage the men were dressed in dark green uniform and they had the white shirts with bright green high-top dress shoes.

After the intermission the male singers appeared in the usual costumes and the female singers had on a combination of light and dark dresses.

Cast Begins Rehearsals
For Moliere Production

Anita Davis, Fran Garner, Mariette McFadden, Margaret Mowbray and Nancy Thomas have been announced as the leading performers in The Thalian Theatre production of "The Imaginary Invalid," Moliere's most famous farce.

Their roles will be portrayed by Frank Bryan, a local actor, and Frank Lathour, program director for radio station WTHM. William Daniel and David Gover, WTHM College family members, and Jim Runyon.

Mr. Miltz, the play was presented by John Harbert during the past year and several students and many of the summer school actors will be in the upcoming production.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 15, 16, 17, "A Doctor In Spite of Himself," Moliere's other major comedy and the greatest of the type, in which a doctor in a desperate situation disguises himself as a his own patient, to save his life.

Eventually, by means of a trick in which Moliere is disguised as an apothecary, Lucinde's speech becomes so earnest and sincere that he draws his knife, to kill the lovers. The sight of genuine emotion upon his face moves the audience to tears. The lovers are taken away to a home where, after several hiccups, the lovers eventually persuade Moliere that he is a doctor, and bring him to the master's garden.

The name of Lucinde's loved is revealed by a servant, a group of noblemen, Moliere is assumed to be a physician, and Lucinde to be his patient. The lovers are taken to a place of safety, and the play ends. The marriage of Lucinde and Moliere is in their hearts, but the audience never knows it.

University Student Experiences
"New Childhood" In America

(Edith's Note: This is a letter which, if written by a college student, would be thought provoking for Whisphead students in exploring their own American students.)

In America, there is a whole new language to learn. Frenchmen, for instance, have a word for "Y" that means "yes, but I'm not sure." It's a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely true.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "no, but I'm not sure." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely false.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "maybe." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely clear.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "I don't know." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely true.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "I don't care." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely important.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "I don't understand." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely clear.

There's also a word for "Y" that means "I don't care." This is a way of saying that what they're saying isn't absolutely interesting.

Library Assesses Increased Books

Dr. Joanna Harrer, head librarian at Upton's field high school, reported that the number of books at the library has increased significantly since last year. The library had 200,000 books in 1965, and this year it has 230,000 books. The increase is due to the growing interest in reading among students. The library is currently receiving 200 periodicals, according to Dr. Harrer.
