Rising Senior Class Continues Election For The Year 1936-'37

Balle and McAlpine Chosen as Editor and Business Manager of Tatler
OTHERS NAMED LATER
Wright, Carroll, Cockfield, and Lake Are Selected Class Officers

Mary (Puckett) Balle of Laurens and Trish McAlpine of Union were elected editor and business manager, respectively of the 1937 Tatler at a meeting of the Junior Class, Monday at 6:30 in Main Auditorium. Mary Wright, and Lena Belle Carroll, "Kix" Lake, and Ann Walker Cockfield were elected vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and cheerleader, respectively.

Mary is Junior editor of The Tatler this year. She is also a contributing editor of The Winthrop Journal, vice-president of the Junior Class, and a member of the following organizations: Kappa Delta Psi (national honorary education fraternity), Secondary Education Club, Writers Club, Winthrop Literary Society, Debaters' League, I. R. C., and Pi Sigma Phi social club. She is an English major and has been "disappointed" several semesters.

Trish is assistant business manager for the 1936 Tatler. She has been a contributing editor to the "Winthrop Journal" for three years, was secretary of this year's Senate, and is a member of Phi Psi social club.

Mary succeeds Ora Belle Hicks as editor and Trish succeeds Eleanor Holton as business manager.

Mary Wright, of Shelton, is secretary of both the Student Government Association and Phi Upsilon Omicron and a member of Junior Forum and Lambda Phi Alpha social club. During her freshman year she was class secretary and May attendant; last year she was assistant secretary and treasurer of the Student Government Association and vice-president of Young Democrats.

Anna Belle Carroll, from York, has been class secretary for the past year, and May attendant last year and this year. She is a member of Beta Alpha, Secondary Education Club, and Phi Sigma Delta social club.

"Kix" Lake, from Beaufort, was during her freshman year, class treasurer, member of the freshman swimming team, and manager of the archery team. She is vice-president of Young Democrats and a member of Junior Forum, the Senate, and Pi Lambda Kappa.

"Liz" Walker Cockfield, of Lake City, was class cheerleader during her freshman and sophomore years, a May Attendant her freshman year, and a member of Junior Forum, the Senators, Thalia German club, and Beta Tau social club.

DR. WAY TO SPEAK AT VESPERS
Dr. William Way, pastor of Grace Episcopal Church, Charleston, will speak at Vespers, Sunday night, April 19, in Main Auditorium, at seven o'clock.

Infirmary Holds Unsuspected Attraction: Intoxicating Drugs

In an institution as large as our fair college, a great many unusual things are bound to happen. But one of the latest—that of getting drunk—in the infirmary—on cough medicine—captured the eye. There is one authentic case of this nature, and it was reported by several of our most such instances.

We, or most of us, at any rate, have had a bottle of that pleasant cherry-flavored cough syrup. When you first take it, it's just fine. But as you swallow the stuff, it burns all the way down. (Now, I ask you, what does that remind you of?) Of course, the directions say one teaspoonful every three hours; and that gives it time to wear off. But when you have a cough—naturally you are going to take a little more cough medicine if you think that will help any. That is exactly what one girl did when she was given

SPECIAL CHAPEL HELD FOR PARENTS' DAY

Dr. Phelps, Louise Howe, and Mary Stuart Mills Speak

Special chapel was held Thursday, April 16, at 12:30 o'clock for Parents' Day. Anna Marian Bushe conducted the devotional exercises.

Dr. Shelton Phelps delivered a speech of welcome from the college. Louise Howe, President of the Student Government Association, speaking for the student body also welcomed the guests.

Mary Stuart Mills spoke on "Why Hivets Parents' Day?"

Deo Manning, President of the Athletic Association, presented back "W's" to Mattie Eugene West, Rebecca Cook, Lorena Galloway, Katie Coker, and Virginia Harby.

Mr. Roberts had charge of the musical program.

Y. W. C. A. CABINET MEMBERS APPOINTED

Mary Wright, of Shelton, Will Be Chief Counselor For Freshmen, '36-'37

Minna Stommer, president-elect of the Y. W. C. A. has announced her cabinet for 1936-'37 as follows:

Chief Counselor for Freshmen, Mary Wright, of Shelton; Religious Education, Julia Barrett, of Abbeville; Social, Nancy Beatty, of Anderson; Deputation and Public Affairs, Briggs Anderson, of Greenwood; I'andbook and Publicity, Martha Lang, of McCormick; Music, Elizabeth Cochran, of Greenwood; Sunday Night Vespers, Sarah Evans, of Andrews; Social, Margaret Reed, of Charleston.

Permanent Farm Relief Discussed By Debaters

"Resolved that the United States should have a permanent policy of relief to the farmers," was the question discussed at a meeting of the Debaters' League in Clio Hall, Wednesday afternoon, April 15, at 4:30.

Upholding the government were Grace Stucky and Louise Johnson; the opposition, "Dimples" Thomas and Virginia Walker; the back-benchers, Fayette Hilton and Mary Opt.

On a bottle of this medicine. Every time the patient coughed, she did the natural thing and took a sip. In a couple of hours she had finished the bottle. Feeling all right, she went to the office and helped herself to another bottle. It was long before she had consumed most of that, or maybe it was all of that bottle, and part of another one. At any rate, at six o'clock when all the sufferers who were physically able were called to the office to take their "temp's" taken, she could not make her legs do right. (She said she felt just fine though.) Mrs. Hamilton, noble lady that she is, came to the rescue in splendid fashion, and she had her "temp's" taken, and fed her tomato juice and, incidentally, she now coughs syrup.

Now the moral of this is—aw, figure it out yourself. M. A.

Dr. Shelton Phelps Welcomes Parents As Guest of Winthrop College Today

Winthrop College, its student body, its faculty, and all of us who are at the institution welcome to Winthrop its guests on this the first Winthrop College Parents' Day. It is our wish that the Winthrop parents see us all work and see us as we live daily. You are invited to go everywhere in the institution. You are our guests for the day and it is our wish to make you feel at home and to make this day as happy and as profitable for you as we

Winthrop Life Not What It Used To Be, Research Shows

Do you like Winthrop? If so do you like it well enough to send your daughters here in the years to come? There are ninety of us whose mothers did—and so, after the proper amount of experimenting with the trial-and-error method, the Einstein theory, Charles' law, and the philosophy of Winthrop, we divine that there are ninety Winthrop grand-daughters in our midst.

You, Monday why we mentioned Shelton just now? Then read a little further and put your doubts at rest. Be so sure to us who will first against the authoritative hand that only a Stone could have survived the Winthrop that existed in our Mother's day. Would you like to be "required to wear full uniform on the cars in traveling between the college and home, and also while at home on a visit?"

If this doesn't take you—consider the uniforms themselves. The "fatigue uniform," for best, antecedent our swaggers suits; and was made with leg-cotton flannels, a light collar with a black band, and a four-length, avenged, Mother Hubbard skirt. This was topped off by a fitted jacket with poppin' effect. "In this outfit," declares the catalogue of 1908, "the richest girl cannot be distinguished from the poorest."

Shirt-waists of percale with a small black pin-stripe were everyday uniform, while on Sunday the shirt-waist was of pure white lawn. No fancy collars or embroidery were allowed, and the gym suits were simple to the nth degree—they had divided skirts. A hump navy collar with large white buttons parading down the center featured the dress

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 1935

OUR WELCOME

It is with genuine pleasure that The Johnsonian, on behalf of the Winthrop student body, extends a most hearty welcome to all parents visiting our campus today.

This year marks the inauguration of Parents' Day at Winthrop College. By the inauguration of such a day, we believe that Winthrop has made a long stride toward bringing about a better understanding between parents and daughters.

By your presence here today, you have helped to make Parents' Day a successful and permanent thing.

WAKE UP!

Three hundred and fifty thousand students will walk out of their classrooms next Wednesday at eleven o'clock in a nationwide anti-war strike.

But it is rather jolting to think of the earnest activities of a great body of students in contrast to our peaceful indifference. There seems to be nothing in common, for instance, between the students of Vassar and those of Winthrop.

Why are we indifferent to the conflict outside our walls? Is the world we meet in a year or two so pleasant that we need not concern ourselves with the attempts to change it?

We must become aware of the modern world's problems. Attempts at their solving do not necessitate a chapter of Future Gold Star Mothers or an anti-war strike, for these movements are only trends in ideas.

An Open Letter To Would-Be Johnsonian Reporters

As I sat in my comfortable room on the second floor of Bancroft Hall, and quietly, but effectively, took the halcyon by one-out-of my head, I firmly resolved to spare other footloose but ambitious fellow students the agony of trying to write a feature for The Johnsonian.

Now when I was a happy little girl and used to hear the grown folks talk about Journalism, I visualized myself in the role of a reporter: I would get wind of a robbery (not 10 cents gone from the right-hand side of some dresser-drawer). I would immediately grab myself a bottle of gin and set to work getting delightfully interested.

Instead, what do I get? Nothing but disheartenment. The only authentic part about this whole racket is the hard-boiled editor—and even she is minus the proverbial cigar.

Oh, you're beginning to think I have the right to be heart-broken, the right to have lost all faith in mankind; in short, the right to be cranky—do I stand on the rest of this world's law. The editor walks up to me (cock).

that I had nothing to do with her—she walked up to me, and with a commanding voice says: "Write a feature." This is a mild sort of persuasion to get along with. I didn't say anything except a mildly pleasant "Yes, I thought: I'll look around and see if something suggests itself for a feature. If it does, I'll think about it; go to sleep and dream over it; make up and write an outline. Finally, when I find myself with a good deal of spare time on my hands, I'll write it up. I suddenly realized around to catch the last words of the editor (the villainess in the heart-winning drama): "By the way, JOHNSON. And, preferably, something pertaining to Parents' Day."

I'm not really trying to clear myself, but I ask any sane, clear-minded person: How can one be brutal enough to write a feature on Parents' Day? I'm not really trying to clear myself, but I ask any sane, clear-minded person: How can one be brutal enough to write a feature on Parents' Day? I'm not really trying to clear myself, but I ask any sane, clear-minded person: How can one be brutal enough to write a feature on Parents' Day?

This story has an allegory I want all you would-be Johnsonian reporters to get.

DR. FRENKEL'S SPEAKS TO MANSIONS. Dr. Frenkel will address the Masses at a meeting at the Andrew Johnson Hotel on Wednesday, April 25, at 8 o'clock.

BLUE SPECTATOR

Easter past—bunnies and Easter eggs gone—sorrows completely withered—but "sweet" memories lingering. Didn't the dining room look attractive Sunday morning with a nest of vari-colored eggs on every table. Thanks to the Freshman Cabinet.

Tuesday night as soon as "Engaged" signs were distributed, one girl wrote on the reverse side of one: "Miss Pearson wants to be (see other side)." and then had the nerve to send it to Clemson!

Annle Ruth Mills threatens to commit suicide by jumping out of a third floor window if anyone brings "a nice" in her room.

Sunday night Belle Ray Tillingshat entertained North by playing "Taps" on her prized so-called "bugle."

Mary Sheldon is very fond of the convention that the history department always has on the week-end. It appears they even give her inspirations for poetry!

Sarah Adams received a box of Whitman's candy and a card and still she couldn't understand "why marines don't send oranges"

Carolyn Morris has returned after sipping an exchange teaching, but she insists that her condition is undesirable.

The Ladies of the Press are especially glad that Virginia Hant has returned yet. By the way, did you read the "Society Section" in Sunday's State? Maybe that accounts for something.

Has it occurred to anybody that the president of the Rising Senior Class, and the new editors of The Tattler and of The Johnsonian are all from Laurens?

The following is an excerpt from The Greenville Piedmont of Sunday, April 14, 1935. Men were taboo, and Mrs. Shumale simply couldn't believe it when I told her that there is now on the Winthrop campus a guest house where the young gentlemen are entertained for the week-end and allowed to see the young ladies both at social functions at the college and are allowed to take them into the city for a show and dinner. She agreed with me that "Time Marches on."

DEAR JUDY

Think I'll put in a special beforehand request for flowers instead of candy next year. I know the simple process of inhaling perfume from the vicinity of the left shoulder couldn't possibly make me as sick as an unthinkable amount of candy. At least that's my hope for you—perhaps I get the idea I could get anything!

I'm struggling to discover, invent, or institute some other holiday between now and May 12th, which so unaccountably comes right jam in the middle of the week. At least we'll have May Day with Junior-Senior to keep us up on the ways of the world!

You'd think these seniors who've been exchange teaching would have that "I'm-the-teacher" look, but to my surprise they quite match and agreeable—I think they're job-conscious.

Easter excitement is hardly over, and now half the place is energetically dashing around with its parents. These freshmen and seniors are plenty lucky to have the first Parents' Day as they're doing all the writing in this hook-up. How about a response now and then?

Love, FRIBILLA.

Those who heard Amelia Earhart last January will no doubt recall the following statement which we now find in the column "Modern Thought" in "The Spectator" (Mississippi State College for women):

"An automobile traveling at 45 mile an hour is extremely dangerous. Any one wishing to go faster should get in to the air for safety's sake."

What Do You Think?

This little trunk-sitting affair is still an indoor sport, but just a trifle less favorite. P. of 1st P. finds that many of the modest inmates do not cherish being quizzed for you personally.

P. of 1st P.: Rose, what do you find is your item of biggest expense? Where does most of your money go?

P. of 1st P.: Too bad—better luck next time.

Rose: Yeah. It was a good idea anyway. Victim Number 2: Helen Perrin.

P. of 1st P.: Say, Helen, what do you consider the item of biggest expense at Winthrop for you personally?

Helen: Oh me—I guess I'm supposed to make a clever answer.

P. of 1st P.: No—just the truth. Helen: O. K. Ice cream, I'll say. Preferably Biltmore and of a caramel nature.

Victim Number 3, Ora Belle Hicks (After an attempt to evade the question): Food, of course.

P. of 1st P.: And why?

Ora Belle: Well, I just rarely ever go to the dining room and after all people do eat occasionally.

Victim Number 4: Marianna Tyler. P. of 1st P.: And what do you spend most of your money for?

Marianna: Do you mean why do I need so much money?

P. of 1st P.: No, for what item? Marianna: Hosiery, I guess.

P. of 1st P.: Why, I wonder? Marianna: I don't know. My stockings just have a way of wearing out in the heels.

Victim Number 5: Dena Newman. P. of 1st P. (wearily): What do you find is your item of greatest expense at Winthrop?

Dena: Keeping up with my debts.

P. of 1st P.: Well, that's something. Victim Number 6: Lib Kerhues. P. of 1st P. (renewing enthusiasm): Hello, there. What do you guess is your item of biggest expense at Winthrop?

Lib: Food, by all means.

P. of 1st P.: Why?

Lib (with an inordinate glance): Oh, just a little peculiarity of mine.

P. of 1st P.: Mine or mine's? Lib: No matter.

Victim Number 7: Iva Bishop. P. of 1st P.: Just off hand, Iva, where would you say that most of your money goes?

Iva: Into safe-keeping for old age. And may we congratulate her—

Diary of a Maid in Uniform

Dear Diary: Have you missed me in these past long weeks—these weeks which have made great empty spaces in your inside, my little unweaned brain child?

No, the gods have smiled once more and I may try again to nourish you from my adobe.

It won't be hard for you to catch up, D. Diary. I can just take a typical day and label it.

Any of Every Day From Feb. 27-April 15.

Manage to arrive at breakfast five minutes late with hair still besoured and pajamas bulging beneath my skirt. Either pass the Dean's table; or, a few runny eggs, and depart.

Before each class hold a debate with self whether to attend class and make a serm, go to the infirmary with nervous disorders, or take a cut. Zero seems the least evil. Spend day doting benign climaxes to avoid professors' eyes. Resolve to take afternoon off and catch up on all back work, including parallel.

After classes the need for study seems much less pressing. Feel that I could use a little gaiety instead. Repair my run-down to the drug store in search of it. Find only acres of people eating sandwiches and indulging in fancy-turning between bites. Look over the assortment of local alibis, and leave in disgust after carefully sipping my return.

Return to school in time to abstain from supper, which I gave up for Lent—and other obvious reasons. Spend all study-period watching the clock, waiting for class-time. Then, at last, bedtime is achieved. Set alarm clock for an early hour in hopes that I'll get up and study.

Sleep. So you see, dear Diary, you haven't missed much. Of course there have been a few slight variations, but they're none of your business, you D. Diary.

We add our endorsement to the following clipping: From The Development: "A professor who comes into a class ten minutes late is rare. In fact, he's in a class by himself."

Y. Cabinets Discuss '36-'37 Organization

Members of the old and new Y. W. C. A. cabinets held a joint meeting in Johnson Hall Library, Tuesday, April 15, to discuss the organization of the "Y" for 1936-'37. April was designated as the month for training the new officers. Reports of "Y" work during the past year were given at the meeting.

With his eyes he would softly caress her. Her love for me daily grew lesser. In his class she got "A". So I'm going today. To murder a college professor.

Clipped from somewhere.

For the benefit of those would-be popular females we offer the following data guaranteed to bring results, according to the University of Saskatchewan report— Never get intoxicated in the presence of a man. Avoid signs of jealousy. Make no mention of other girls in conversation. Learn to walk. Steer clear of sentimental subjects—they have an aroma of marriage. Do not dye your hair or paint your fingernails bright red. Learn to cook and don't be afraid to let men know you are handy with egg beaters and muffin pans.

Student Pals With Turkish President

Rochester, N. Y. (ACP)—Morris Schindman, a University of Rochester Junior, is a great and good friend-by-correspondence of Ghazi Mustapha Kemal Pasha Ataturk.

And in case you don't know who Mr. Ataturk is, he's the President of the Republic of Turkey, and he's been bombarding Schindman with pamphlets, magazines and books about Turkey ever since Schindman sent a request to President Ataturk for material for a thesis he is writing on Turkey.

One of the real eye-openers Schindman received was a bound copy of a speech the President had delivered on international affairs—a speech that required five days for complete delivery and a translation of which covers 724 printed pages.

And Turkey's Minister of the Interior sent him a letter which closed thus: "If you talk with me more material in the preparation of your work, will you kindly let us know about it?"

Dr. W. D. Maggins Gets Start In Life As Curator of Horses

"Probably the first money I ever earned—if I earned it—was for the care of my father's driving-horses and saddle-horses," said Dr. W. D. Maggins when questioned by a reporter as to how he made his first spending money. "My father," he continued, "had a large number of horses, cattle, and sheep. Usually among the horses, he had a good saddle or driving horse. My special chore was to care for this one horse or to see that others cared for it."

Quered as to the amount of money he received, Dr. Maggins replied, "The amount of money I earned was not too much, but it was a fairly good motive for effort. There was an increase in the amount as time went by."
"How did I spend my money?" Mr. Maggins repeated. "I only know that I did not invest my early earnings in a gold letter some of a rare book. I was just a perfectly normal boy, and I probably spent my money for candy—and for peanuts and pink lemonade," he added.

Others placing in the contest were: Virginia Smith, of Winthrop Training School, second, and Jane McMcMasters, of Winnsboro, third in declamation; Arthur Thrallhill, Bobby Garrison, and Alice Hollis, of Winthrop Training School, second, third and fourth, respectively in debating; and Phillip Wilmet, of Hartsville, second, and Alfred Reynolds, of Rock Hill High, third, in extemporaneous speaking.

Results of the contests for members of the Freshmen Debaters' League were as follows: Jean Sellers, first, and Catherine McCollum, second in declamation; Marie Boone, Margaret Tidmarsh, Ruth Benson, and Amelia Verous, first, second, third, and fourth, respectively, in extemporaneous speaking. Ruth Benson, Marguerite Tidmarsh, Jean Sellers, Helen Bryant, and Marie Boone, were the five best debaters in order of individual scoring.

Anne Tighman was first and Catherine McCollum, second in after-dinner speaking; and Marie Boone, first in the impromptu contest.

Participating in the contests and discussions of the Model League Assembly were fifty delegates from eight schools. The schools represented were Sumter, Hartsville, University High of Columbia, Winnsboro, Winthrop Training School, Rock Hill High, Charlotte, and Camden.

Male Students Like Sports Section Beat

(By Associated Collegiate Press.)
St. Petersburg, Fla.—(ACP)—Although male students are markedly superior to co-eds in knowledge of the world's affairs gained through newspaper reading, they still favor the sports section and the comic strips, to judge from results of a test given at St. Petersburg Junior College.

With a score of 82 out of 100 as "good," those taking the test averaged 41.5.

The president of the International Relations Club, in his talk, named Hamilton Fish, Jr., and Robert M. LaFollette, as the diplomats who proposed the Anglo-French plan for settling the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Archibald Rutledge Subject of Discussion

Archibald Rutledge was discussed by the Phi Kappa at a meeting at 9:30 Monday night, April 12, in Johnson Hall. A letter from the poet thanking the club for a letter to The State was read.

Poems by Caroline Crum, Ora Belle Spivey, Estelle Weedon, and Maryjane Wilcox, were presented to the group.

Dr. R. L. Wiggins read several bits of contemporary verse, after which the club discussed current topics.

Students Participate In Anti-War Strike

(By Associated Collegiate Press.)
New York.—(ACP)—More than 250,000 students, high school as well as college, are expected to answer the anti-war strike call at 11 a. m. on April 22, according to Joseph P. Leah, executive secretary of the American Student Union.

"In addition to an impressive sponsoring committee, we are confident that the strike will be supported on local campuses by wider, more inclusive strike committees than we have ever before been able to rally," Leah said.

The first student strike against war was held in 1934 and sponsored by the National Student League for Industrial Democracy. It was supported by 25,000 students, but the next year saw 175,000 demonstrating in nearly 200 schools and colleges.

The current war scare in Europe and internal factors such as the huge 1936 military appropriations will bring an even greater increase this year, backers of the strike predict.

Katharine Hepburn in "Alice Adams" To Be Shown Here Saturday Night

"Alice Adams" starring Katharine Hepburn, is a story of millions of girls—shop girls, laundry workers, stay-at-home-ugly ducklings—who dream grand dreams and while dreaming are continually faced to face with all the unmaking, practical necessities of life as they really live it.

This picture, based on Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer Prize novel, "Alice Adams," is being shown in the State Theatre Saturday night, April 18, at 7:30. It is an RKO production with Fred MacMurray, Fred Stone, and Evelyn Venable supporting Katharine Hepburn.

"Alice Adams" is the story of a young woman, told against the background of a turbulent domestic drama. For Alice, daughter of an ailing father and a nagging mother, plans to attend a party "passed up" by every boy in town, but being confident that somewhere her Prince Charming awaits, she goes with brother Frank—to become a dowried wall-flower as he prefers to be called—she is a party-going attendant. Arthur Russell comes along; her heart skips a beat or two as the man of her dreams dances with her. Then comes the beauty of shy courtship.

The inspired efforts of the cast and the heart-warming characters of the Booth Tarkington original go to make up a picture that, according to critics, "even 'Morning Glory' and 'So Let Your Love Be' by Ora Belle Hicks, was awarded second prize."

WINTHROP LIFE NOT WHAT IT USED TO BE. RESEARCH SHOWS

(Continued From Page One) uniform which was "capped off" by a black beaver hat. The total cost of uniforms was not to exceed $25. (In three days, uniform coats were $450.) The catalogue also contains this information: "Each student is expected to provide herself with a gossamer, umbrella, and overboots. . . A wrapper may be permitted for wear in the sleeping apartments."

In 1885-86 Winthrop numbered 325 students, some of whom were permitted to board in town, as the only dormitory, Naace Hall, accommodated only 250. The infirmary was not built until the summer of 1894, but, as the catalogue confesses, "there had been no great amount of illness among the students except for an epidemic of measles last season."

In case you'd have survived even this—there are still more nuts for you to crack. Extracts from dormitory regulations (1) "Pupils will not be allowed to receive visits from men, whether cousins or not." (We wonder about brothers?); (2) "Notes, bouquets, or any other form of communication or marks of attention to boarding pupils from persons outside of the college are absolutely prohibited;" (3) "Visitors are not admitted to the private apartments of students unless by special permission of the matron. Calls are not allowed to interfere with college duties." No wonder the older generation doesn't understand "bull sessioning"; (4) Parents are requested not to send boxes of eatables, except fruit, to their daughters. They are productive of excess sickness and loss of time, and will not be delivered, if sent, except at Christmas.

The fare will be of such quantity, quality, and variety that it will be entirely useless to supplement it by boxes. (Here's the only time when we wish the Winthrop of the Present lived up to the Winthrop of the Past!); (5) "A part of each Saturday must be spent by pupils in regulating their wardrobe, repairing clothing, and such-like duties." (Goodbye to the Saturday spree!); (6) "Correspondence with young men is forbidden unless by the permission of the girls' parents. Suspicious letters will be returned by the college authorities to the parents for investigation." (Aaa! for the poor "ret" letter!); (7) "The young ladies are allowed to visit or receive only on Saturday and Friday afternoon. No visitors at all are received on the Sabbath"; (8) "Students will not be permitted to leave the college grounds oftener than once in two weeks, and then only when accompanied by teachers, except to attend church on Sunday. Students are required to attend church twice on the Sabbath."

Perhaps you're wondering how many holidays and week-ends these girls broke away from such iron-clad rules. For the benefit of the inquisitive—Winthrop gave but four holidays a year—one day at Christmas, Thanksgiving, Washington's birthday; and Winthrop's birthday; and even then the girls could not leave the campus. The catalogue confides that this was to "prevent the serious demoralization and loss of time to the students and the disorganization of the college work always consequent upon breaking up the school within three months after the opening of the session. . . . After return, the students are often unfit for school duties for some time from the effects of dissipation while at home." Ye gods! Who could blame them if they did disregard Winthrop's year and do you wonder that we call the survivors "Stots"?

WOMEN'S EDUCATION DISCUSSED BY DEAN

Gildersleeve Cites Reasons Why and How Far Girls Should Be Trained

(By Associated Collegiate Press) Milwaukee, Wis.—"Should girls be educated? If so, why, and how far?" This pondered Barnard's famed Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve in a discussion with trustees, faculty and guests of Milwaukee-Dowser Seminary last week.

Answering her own questions in the talk she called "Making Life More Interesting," Miss Gildersleeve summed up her views with the remark that she believed the primary reason for giving college education to women was to make life more interesting to their families.

"When there were candles to be made, and such home occupations," she said, the more women in the house the better. Madmen would be welcome. But madmen suits are not so welcome now—just to sit by the fire and be supportive."

This, Miss Gildersleeve declared, indicated that women should develop their own abilities to work and play well in the field of psychology, medicine, Chinese painting, or badminton.

Dean Gildersleeve emphasized that with the ever expanding field of government there is ample opportunity for women in civic life. Women, she said, have more leisure for politics than have men. In the field of human relations a college education is valuable, the speaker said, because—she cited statistics—college educated women, once married, tend to stay so. In other words, divorce among college women is much rarer than in the case of non-college women.

Masquers Give Play For Parents' Day

"His Lady of the Garden," a one-act play in three scenes, will be presented by the Masquers as part of the Parents' Day program this afternoon. This play was written and directed by Maryland Wilson.

The characters in this play are Emily, taken by "Jo" Jones; Evelyn; by Maryland Wilson; and John, by Catherine Hunt Pauling. Charlie Francis Stewart and "Snip" Geiger are acting as stage managers for this performance; Madeline Hayworth has charge of the make-up; and Lou Kloogof, of the programs.

FIRST PARENTS' DAY BRINGS OVER TWO HUNDRED GUESTS
