A HOLIDAY

Each year Winthrop College has a holiday on May 12. Sometimes this holiday is used for catching up on back sleep, sometimes for studying, sometimes for trips—but regardless of how it is used, practically always its significance is forgotten.

Robert C. Winthrop was the man who secured for Dr. Johnson the money with which he might make the small beginning of the Winthrop College we now know. In 1886, Dr. Johnson presented to Mr. Winthrop, who was chairman of the Peabody Education Board, the need of a training school for teachers in South Carolina; consequently M. Winthrop recommended that a grant of $1,500, and later $2,000 be given annually to the training school in South Carolina. Thus did Winthrop College have its practical beginning.

It might be well to remember some of these facts on the day we commemorate the birthday of Robert C. Winthrop.

WHY NOT BRANCH OUT?

Each student is requested at the close of her sophomore year to select some field in which to major. This demand is in accord with the need of specialization today. One finds, consequently, that there is a tendency among students to restrict their curricular and extra-curricular activities during the junior and senior years to the departments in which they are majoring. There is, therefore little or no cooperation among departmental organizations. Does the student gain or lose by this limiting of interests to one department?

For the student to limit herself to one field is to narrow her education. Knowledge is the monopoly of no particular department. Each organization, each department at Winthrop has something to offer the student. Let us therefore cooperate with majors in other departments. Let us broaden our fields of interest.

DINING-ROOM CONDUCT

Tim and again we complain about the way we are treated with regard to the dining-room. We are quite resentful if we are locked out when the last bell rings, or if any notice concerning our conduct at meals is posted on the bulletin boards. Yet the state of affairs concerning the dining-room has become deplorable. We are constantly late for every meal. The majority of us seem to be in the aisles or just entering the doors when the blessing is started. We seem to make no effort to be on time. But do those of us who are late stop quietly until the blessing is over? Instead, we continue our mad rush to get to our tables. Do those few of us who are already at the tables immediately stop rattling dishes and silver? No. We continue until we have finished setting the table; consequently, very few of us ever know or seem to care whether or not the blessing has been sung.

But once at our tables, then the real noise begins which makes of the dining-room a veritable bedlam. Wild yells frequently burst forth from all corners. Water fights are commonly engaged in. And if dessert happens to be a little late, we, thinking we are being clever, grab spoons and beat on the glasses as if this idiotic action would magically produce ice cream.

And evidently, we think that an announcement concerns only those to whom it is made first. At present, it is impossible to use the amplifier for announcements since it is in need of repairs. Announcements must, therefore, be made for each end of the dining-hall. But when an announcement is made to one end of the dining-rooms, then those of us at that end make so much noise that it is impossible to hear an announcement when it is repeated for the other end.

Such conduct as ours is quite inexcusable when only we students are in the dining-room. But it is unpardonable when we have guests with us. And we seem to try to bring about more confusion than that ever. The noises increase until they become almost deafening. Are we willing for our guests to formulate their ideas of the conduct of Winthrop students from the impressions they get in the dining-room? Certainly, our answer, in most cases, would be an emphatic "No."

We all know these conditions exist. We feel that something should be done to remedy the situation. The authorities have asked our cooperation in coming on time to meals and in keeping orderly in the dining-room. We complain loudly and long if the authorities do not cooperate with us when we ask the to do so. Are they not justified in complaining because we do not cooperate with them about the dining-hall? Can we criticize them if they force us to obey dining-room regulations? And clearly we are showing them that they must force us to obey.

DEAR JUDY

Another week—but not the same. Instead of being one of those un-rememberable back in the dead of winter, it's this from the end. I can even count the number of clear days in this subject that are to come before that last and extremely final meeting we call the exam.

From all I can hear May Day and Junior-Senior were good size successes. One fair damsel even got herself engaged! This bunch of seniors and juniors will be all right—though of course they get better every year than the last. The roommate has decided not to be on the campus committee—a break for me—because I seem to have a mania for finger-plucking. The funny part of it is that she has, too.

I'm longing for those paved roads we dream of having. After sitting on the campus the whole of a windy Sunday afternoon, I looked like a dry mud pie and felt worse.

I've found roommates with my next-door neighbor for a few nights. Conditions in my room seem to be more favorable to hers and vice-versa. It's really quite nice for a change. Why don't you try it some time?

A letter from a male supposed-to-be friend informs me that he knows the secret of my un-success. At last! Hope he'll try it some—at least before summer. I've been searching for it (or them) for years. The mystery is how he found it.

Why—oh, why, do the energy-exercising sports like tennis come in the summer when merely sitting in the heat is all I can bear? Of course there's an advantage for those lucky people who tan beautifully, but I only freckle, then blister, then swell! Great! I've! Don't tell me I shouldn't be class rumber!

LOVE, FRISCELLA.

PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

Faculty Members Mr. Edwin Hughes, of New York City, will hold his fourth annual Master Class of Music during the summer session at Winthrop. For several years Mr. Hughes has been the piano department at the Institute of Musical Art, New York City. His course will consist of two private lessons and three one-hour class lessons each week for four weeks.

Winthrop College will present also for the second year Miss Hazel Cartrade Kincaella of the University of Nebraska. Miss Kincaella was formerly connected with the summer session of the University of North Carolina and with Purman University. She is an authority on Music Appreciation, and is now a member of the Walter Dueschek Committee on Music Appreciation through the medium of the radio.

The visiting teachers to be at Winthrop this summer are John G. Kelley, Mrs. Clotilde Patton Sangulnet, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, and Miss Martha Shealy.

Mr. John G. Kelley was graduated from Wofford College. He was superintendent of schools in Bennettsville, and is now State High School Supervisor. Mr. Kelly holds the master's degree from Teachers College, Columbia University. He has been teaching in the Winthrop Summer School for the past two years.

Mrs. Clotilde Patton Sangulnet, Instructor in Health Education at Teachers College, Columbia University, attended the University of Washington at Seattle; State Normal College in Ellensburg, Washington; Columbia University; summer school at University of California and University of Washington. She holds B. S. and M. A. degrees. Mrs. Sangulnet has taught in public schools and colleges in several sections of the country and in the University of Philippines at Manila, P. I. She has travelled extensively. Mrs. Sangulnet will present three courses: in Health Education and Hygiene, Winthrop, in cooperation with the South Carolina Tuberculosis Association, has arranged these courses in order that general social workers as well as students and teachers may profit from them.

Miss Martha Shealy was graduated from Winthrop College in July, 1933, with a B. S. degree in Voice.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Dunlap was graduated from Winthrop College in June, 1932, with a B. S. degree in Music.

Those planning to attend Summer School are expected to make room reservations at once.

SENYETTE SINGS

Winthrop College Senette will sing at the Baptist Church, Sunday morning, May 13.

Gym-Cracks

Have you noticed how popular the tennis courts are these days? We can't figure out whether we play tennis to get a sun tan or get the sun tan because we play tennis—guess it doesn't matter so long as the results are the same. Speaking of sun tans the "Skin Twisters" certainly are brown, aren't they?

Freckles seem to have had a rip-roaring, smothering coming-out party. One of our fair Freshmen decided that the only way another freckle would have room to come out on her face was to push some of the others off.

Question of the hour: How can one play tennis around a tree? Evelyn Martin would like any available information on the subject.

Recreational swimming is, running tennis a close second in popularity these days. By the way, there's to be a swimming pageant real soon.

We've just found out something about "Little Nell." She likes to climb but the other day when she reached a nice high spot—just the right height to fall from and break a neck or something—she got dizzy! She had a terrible time climbing, or maybe I should say getting down. Ask her how she hurt her elbow for the rest of the story.

The Sophomores have a swell baseball team this year. I wonder why the rest of us can't seem to get our teams together. Come out and play with us. If you can't catch the ball you'll get your exercise chasing it. (This is the "Voice of Experience" talking.)

Dear yet Dear yet We've a farmer-demonstration. Ask Miss Weller about her farm. You'll hear remarkable things.

Did you ever go off on a tangent? Miss Post says that quite a few of the Junior and Seniors Majors have. Want: A say back.

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press) The cost of education should be higher, says Dr. William P. Few, president of Duke University, otherwise we build a race of half-educated and sometimes half-respectable paralytics, and at the worst ordinary vagabonds and even criminals.

"It indicates that our student body is extremely broad-minded and does not believe in the effectiveness of mob demonstration." Mrs. W. B. Graham, Montana State ROTC head, explains why ROTC attendance rose 40 per cent above normal on April 22.

"College today is something like a chain drug store which in spite of the many incursions into other merchandising fields continues to sell a few drugs." Albert Britz, president of Knox College, Illinois, drops a word of criticism.

"The answer of the old school of common sense isn't the one. There must be something else, so we've got to go on searching. Now it is you young people who must find the answer." Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt speaks her mind to 1,000 N. Y. U. students.

Diary of a Maid in Uniform

May 2: Couldn't get quite the classic mood required for May Day, mainly because the Room-mate as Mother Earth is waxing plentiful all over the amphitheatre. Am greatly relieved to see natural dancing instead of the inevitable folk-dancing—and even more relieved to see that only head-bowing and arm-waving were required of the Helmsmeet.

All in all a very fine May Day. But I still don't like the idea of having Jr-Sr. the same time. Be darned if I'll ever ask my best boss to come up and watch the May Queen and All Tier Court file slowly past.

Junior-Senior: And yet again I am asked to be the Comic Element on the program. I might be sensitive about it after so many times except for the consolation that, at least, the audience never thinks I'm so funny.

What time I'm not consulting the crowd with my antics, I am spending nostalgically at the uniforms of the Juniors.

May 5: Hear from Fond Mother that she will be on hand today. Spend hectic hours stuffing things out of sight in the room.

May 6: Finally finish last Saturday's bag supper.

DR. MAGGINS SPEAKS IN WARE SHEDS Dr. W. D. Maggins will attend dedication exercises and speak at the Junior-Senior banquet in Ware Shops, Friday night, May 8.

Speaking Before Scottish Daughters Affords Miss Shaver Early Wealth

"How did I make my first money?" stilled Miss Shaver as this question was unexpectedly thrust at her by a reporter.

"It's been so long ago that I don't know exactly how I did earn my first real money. Oh, yes, now I recall the answer to the pending question." Keeping the said reporter in suspense, she glanced, stuck out her chin and said: "Public speaking—that's what it was! Such was the vogue during my childhood; so I had private lessons. Thus I proceeded to give a series of readings for a night's entertainment which was sponsored by the Scottish Daughters of America. (Quite appropriate, you know how Scotch I am!) The outcome—five dollars! What a lot of money for such a little girl! Not so little at that. I guess I was about 14 years old—but you can well imagine how proud I was."

After a minute of pleasant memories she came down to earth and said, "I think that's how it happened—"

"through" was incapacitated by a door's closing on his tail. Nevertheless, 9,224 hops were registered by his hopometer. The second rabbit went "around." This took a slightly longer time since he lingered to pick violets. After he arrived at Science Building he had to stop to clean the mud off his feet before he would allow himself to undergo examination.

Of course the results of these examinations proved that neither through drizzles nor around crowded corridors could a well-trained biology lesson be obtained.

Una Merkel, Neil Hamilton In "The Command Performance"

"The Command Performance," starring Una Merkel and Neil Hamilton, an exciting story of the private lives of two royal families will be shown here Monday night, May 11, in Main Auditorium.

Neil Hamilton plays a double role, being both the prince of Scotland and the young hero, Peter, who was forced to woo the lovely princess Katherina (Una Merkel) for the contrary prince in order to keep his country out of war.

Despite the uncertainty of his fate (all the prince's lovers have met mysterious death), Peter presends that he is the prince and proposes to Katherina. Then the inevitable happens: they fall in love with each other. Peter confesses his true identity, and feeling himself a martyr to his country, flies.

Katherina is left to decide between the Prince of Scotland and Duke Charles, a trustworthy person who was responsible for the deaths of all her sisters.

It's a thrilling drama with plenty of action and a sprinkling of pathos. "Palm Faces" will be shown Saturday, May 9, and "Three We Love" will be given Tuesday evening, May 12.

Student Government Is Being Abandoned

Norfolk, Va.—(ACP)—Student self-government, once the objective of many a hard-fought battle with administration heads, is not so important to American colleges today, and some observers profess to believe that lack of interest will finally cause it to die.

The College of William and Mary, Norfolk division, is the latest to drop its governing body. The men's Student Senate resigned in a body recently, with the statement that "lack of student problems has made these offices impotent."

No substitute body will be appointed, it was indicated.

HITHER AND YON

Our combined hearts go out to Bill Hussey, of The Bull Dog, for his gracious words of last week. Let us seem less gracious—the new Johnsonian staff started its perilous journey ending an abundance of sweetness and light towards all newspapers, students, teachers, and other critics; consequently, we have considered the feat one of those regrettable incidents of ancient history for in these many weeks. Long may our harmony prevail! (Everything, you notice—even true misanthropes—must make way for our sincerity!)

Registrar Sage of Iowa State University says that the object of going to college is to get a job upon graduation; and that the object of flunking so many out of Iowa State is so that those who manage to graduate will be able to secure jobs with greater ease.
