The Winthrop soccer team again failed in their bid for their first victory of the 1976-77 season. This time falling to defeat at the hands (and feet) of an aggressive U.N.C.-Charlotte 49er's squad, 4-3 at the Charlotte playing field. The Eagles still seem to be suffering from the first half jinx that has plagued them in their earlier matches, and were forced to play "catch up" soccer.

The 49er's scored first, ten minutes into the match on a kick by Dave Stephens. They added to their lead minutes later when Bob Ross scored on a head deflect shot that gave them a two point lead at the half.

Early in the second half, the Eagles seemed to find the composure they lacked in the first period. Contributing to their cause, the Eagles narrowed the 49er's lead when Frankie Griffin scored on a short kick on goal. The Eagles began to play agressive, hard hitting soccer and seemed to control the overall tempo of the match. Fifteen minutes after his first goal, Griffin found the range again and tied things up for the Eagles 2-2. U.N.C. battled back and took a two point lead with goals by Ross and Mosher. The Eagles continued to play inspired soccer and it paid off with Mitch Long giving the assist on a penalty goal by Frankie Griffin. The Eagles real enemy at that stage of the game became the clock and time ran out before the Eagles could se up the tying goal.

Coach Canada summed up the game best when he called it "disappointing." With six games remaining to be played, chances are slim that the Eagles will improve on last years record. "We are just lacking the experience the other clubs have and we can't seem to get going in the first half," Canada added. "If you look at the last 70 minutes of play, you can see we outplayed them."

Winthrop did manage a tie in the midterm soccer match against Baptist College, battling the BC team a 2-2 tie. Down 2-0 in the first half, the Eagles came back in the second half on goals by Mitch Long and Griffin, forcing the game to go into overtime. The two teams battled for twenty minutes in the overtime period but neither team could produce a winning goal.

Winthrop dropped an earlier match that week to Warren Wilson, a team Canada called "one of the two best teams we have faced this season." Warren Wilson won the match 7-0.

This week the Eagles face the College of Charleston (Oct. 27) in an away game. Score from the Lenoir-Rhyne-Winthrop match was not available when T.J went to press.

Dinkins Sponsors New York Trip

by Joey Raad

The travel and recreations committee of Dinkins Program Board is sponsoring a trip to New York City during Thanksgiving holidays. The trip is open to all Winthrop affiliates; however, students receive first priority.

The price of the tour is $39.95 and includes bus transportation and lodging in the Empire Hotel in downtown Manhattan.

The bus will leave Winthrop on Thursday, November 23, and will return on Saturday, November 25. Students who reside on campus should make boarding arrangements for Saturday night as dorms will not reopen until Sunday.

According to Dwayne Elmore, chairman of the Travel and Recreation committee, each person will be allowed to spend the days (and nights) in New York the way he or she desires. There are no guided tours but a packet containing a map, broadway shows, night clubs, etc., will be provided.

To reserve a seat on the bus, you must sign up by Monday, Nov. 1 and pay a $30.00 deposit which is transferrable but not refundable. A person may, however, sell his reservation to someone else if he desires. The balance of $29.95 will be due by Wed., Nov. 15. All money may be paid at the information desk in Dinkins Student Center. For more information contact Dean Tom Webb at 323-2249 or Dwayne Elmore at 328-0893.

Student Fees Committee Speaks At Dinkins

by Martha Holder

Senate met Wednesday, October 13 at 7 p.m. in Dinkins with Patricia Shalla, president of senate presiding.

A charter was approved for the Winthrop Outing Club and Senate discussed the fees allotted to various campus publications and organizations by the Student Activities Fees Committee. Senate will meet Wednesday, October 20 during which a second reading will be presented.
The traditional fall event on campus, CLASSES NIGHT is over. The MINISTRY classes can rejoice over the achievement of a Senior-Sophomore survey. All classes can feel a certain amount of self-satisfaction over the fact that they pulled off all the work involved in undertaking such a project, and they did it with few hangups. But there were still some problems that each class had to face. For instance, one class with less than a week to go managed to scrape together a show, an unofficial poll reveals that less than 1% of the participants were day students. And, male students participating (especially in entrance) were few. None of the classes have over 200 people adding in the production. With an official enrollment of 4,000, that figures tells us that just a little over 1% of the student body was involved in CLASSES NIGHT. So it is understood that CLASSES NIGHT should be abolished. Quite the contrary, personally speaking, I have enjoyed working with it. And, factors such as personality conflicts and other academic loads may be causes for the lack of involvement.

However, I feel that it is time to do a little revamping. Winthrop is in a transitional stage. No one would argue that point. And, I feel that it is time some of the traditional programs also received some slight renovations. Not, I am not referring to the tradition. That is the reason I oppose a revamping. I would hate to see a tradition become an historical event.

Winthrop has a big fall event. Larger sized schools have football homecomings. For the first time in its history, Winthrop will have a soccer homecoming this year. And that's great! But, Winthrop still needs a big, fun event in the fall. CLASSES NIGHT could be in that capacity. Or, it could aid in making a soccer homecoming such an event.

The event, no matter what it is, should have a wide range of appeal. All of the male student body should not be participating, male participants are less than 10 in number, and many dorm students are not involved, then that should not be the case that at present. Winthrop will have to make sure that they can attract them. The following comments on images and the candidates responses on running issues are based on the experiences of the past few weeks.

With the presidential race drawing to a close, its time to face the fact that one of our beloved candidates is going to lose. Considering the fact that this race seems to be between the tortoise and the hare, I believe better for us all if they could both lose, but that's un-American. In any case, it doesn't matter in the long run. To lose, we've all

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

You carried an article titled "Fairy Tale Farcotized" by Coryn Fielder which had a rather surprising effect on me. People like to, express their disappoint in the choice of your articles. The article, seems to reflect the nature of a college student: poor taste and is not representative of good journalism.

Sincerely,

Bob J. Porterfield

Dear Editor,

I don't think the post office hours should be from 9-12 because a lot of people have morning classes. I think two hours in the morning and one hour in the evening would be better. Classroom hours I have to wait several days to pick up my packages or cash between classes.

Linda Hamilton

EDITOR'S NOTE: The post office hours have been changed. They are now 10:00-12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.

Dear Editor,

Though letters to the Editor are not my forte, the first three issues of The Johnsonian have stimulated my interest. I feel an undertone of enthusiasm as well as a positive attitude reflected on your pages. No college of any size is without problems but I read in T.J. honest criticisms-always worthwhile. Now, this approach on the part of the students will continue. I applaud your publication and look forward to each issue.

Sincerely,

That family and friendship loyalties mix with party loyalty. But Bobby Richardson need a lesson in blind party loyalty. As a citizen first and republican second, I believe that we are allowed to keep the apparent stature, vision, and integrity of John Anderson (R) for the good of all Americans. I am a Democrat and I have not explored in depth.

First some traditions of the republican party and Christianity are not compatible with the tradition of Strom Thurmond (Bobby describes himself as a Thurmond republican).

* Much republican tradition is based on "(1) human rights and the conciliation of all races; (2) a party of special interest or gavend won; (3) the preservation of national unity; (4) fiscal restraint. I.e., a balanced budget and a second dollar relative to the cyclical needs of the economy; (4) decentralization of power."

Second, there is a Christian tradition more important than any political tradition. It calls for "Christians to BLAZE the trail to social understanding and racial justice for we can only hope to bridge the gap between black and white with the help of a Christian love."
Musical Magic

by Susan Poisson

A Little Night Music, the first of the productions in the Winthrop Series, was an outstanding presentation.

Set in Sweden at the turn of the century, the story was based on a timeless theme of love and compatibility. Through a blend of music, choreography, drama, and humor the presentation showed people with diverse interests and lifestyles all searching for the right mate.

The play opened with a musical overture in which singing narrators set the stage. The Night Waltz began the show as the cast of characters danced, apparently seeking the right partner. Characters included a cellist, mis-understood son studying for the ministry yet dissatisfied without a mate, his father who was dissatisfied with his virgin wife of nine months, a glamorous actress with no meaningful relationship with the opposite sex, and a count and countess who were dissatisfied with each other. At intervals, the actresses' wise old mother would give advice to the actresses' heir's young daughter.

As the action progressed, a web formed as the lives of these characters began to touch. Each was trying to decide what and who they really wanted. After much confusion, they all ended up with someone who was supposedly the right one. And they all lived happily ever after.

Outstanding members of the cast included Richard Cooper Bayne who played the son studying for the ministry. He seemed to fit the part so well with his slight build and studious expressions. The star, Jolise Wilson, sang an emotion-packed version of "Send In The Clowns" as well as giving a remarkable performance. The entire cast did a truly great job providing top-rate entertainment.

Showcases Are Presented

by C.L. Hayes

On October 30 and September 1, the showcases Beyond the Fringe and The American Dream were presented by the Winthrop Theatre.

Both showcases displayed excellent characterization. Neither show was predictable due to its formant or its theme. All the players were well received by the large audiences.

Beyond the Fringe, directed by Blair Beasley, was a loosely coherent series of skits set in Great Britain during the first half of the twentieth century. The skits often dealt with an aspect of war that was interspersed with a comical or sobering skit unrelated to the previous skit.

The American Dream was directed by Les Reynolds. While portrayed well, it had none of the vitality that gave Beyond the Fringe its appeal. The American Dream seemed to embody an instinctive feeling of down by dealing harshly with raw emotions. In the conclusion, when all the characters toasted to finally being satisfied, it raised the question: "Is giving love while not being loved, ideal?"

WC Sponsors Multi-Ethnic Heritage Project

by Barbara Barkley

Did you know that Rock Hill once had a Black library and a Black Neighbors Project? Well, neither did Dr. Joyce Pettigrew and her staff before the Multi-Ethnic Heritage Project was started.

The Multi-Ethnic Heritage Project is a grant funded project under HEW Title IX. Its purpose is to research the major cultural contributions three major ethnic groups have made to York County.

Dr. Pettigrew is the director of the one year project. The first part of the project is to gather data and as much information as we can on important people, crafts and events of the three major ethnic groups. We identify these groups as Native American; being the Catawba Indians, the Black American, and the Southern Appalachian; original up-country people, who moved to York County to work in textile mills.

One of the purposes is to help the various groups to take pride in their accomplishments and contributions and to educate others to this," Dr. Pettigrew said.

We do this by identifying resource people through clubs and civic organizations and then these people lead us to other people, who then become new resource people. We continue to identify resource people, while proceeding to the second phase; which is using the material gathered to make short teaching aids that can be used in classrooms in York County. The aids would be self contained aids.

"After the teaching aids were completed and before they would go into the schools, we would field test them at places like the York County Nature Museum and in Neighborhood Center schools," said Dr. Pettigrew.

"In connection with this, I'm going to be teaching a class in the Rock Hill schools, on Rock Hill history. It will be based on the Foxfire Technique (oral history). The students will be interviewing people and writing a booklet based on the interviews. We will also be developing other materials for the project with the help of the high school students.

"The third and last phase will be a three week workshop this summer, sponsored by Winthrop, for teachers, club leaders, and those who are interested in developing material to use in their own situations.

"While the focus is on York County, we hope the project here will serve as a model to other colleges or groups that want to start a Multi-Ethnic Heritage Project.

"We hope we can be funded again at the end of this year, because we would like to extend the project for another year. We would like to see Winthrop College as a repository of materials and people who will know they are accessible and where to get them.

The Multi-Ethnic Heritage Project is not without its problems, however. "One of our main problems is getting materials and if anyone knows of materials or people that could help us, please call the office or the English Department," Dr. Pettigrew said.
"Senior-sophomore sweep," was the chant heard in Byrnes Auditorium just minutes before the cry became a reality. Overthrowing the Glory Class rule, the Mighty classes of '77 and '79 took first and second places respectively.

The event, held October 7 at 8 p.m. in Byrnes drew a large audience to watch as each class revealed their interpretation of the overall theme, STILL CRAZY AFTER ALL THESE YEARS OF... The freshmen entered dressed as clowns. Their skit centered around the idea that people are still crazy after all these years of clowning around. Cheerleaders for the class of '80 were Rose Brewer and Jennifer Davis.

The sophomore's skit centered around the idea that individuals are conditioned through life. To symbolize this conditioning, puppets were used to reflect man and his interaction with his environment. A backdrop depicting the various steps in life aided in their theme. Still Crazy After All These Years of Operant Conditioning. Cheerleaders for the sophomore class were Rhonda Robbins and Vickie Pace.

Still Crazy After All These Years of Growing into a Broken
Reflection was the theme of the junior class. The idea behind the junior's skit was the fact that instead of looking at one's own reflection, he needs to look at others and see their needs. To symbolize this idea, a society made up of mirrors as their idols was used. A stranger entering into the society sees the self-centeredness of the society and breaks the master mirror, thus revealing to the people their need to look outward. Cheerleaders for the juniors were Anne Reese and Judy Ratl.

The victorious seniors centered their skit around the idea that society is Still Crazy After All These Years of Wishing. With the aid of a genie, it was revealed to the main character that even in an Utoopian Society, one has to work in order to achieve what he desires in life. Special effects which aided the class of 77 were the use of a strobe light and mirror ball. Class cheerleader who received the silver cup on behalf of the seniors was Debbie Oliver.

"I feel that CLASSES NIGHT was a big success. There was active participation in all of the classes and male as well as female students participated." said Jackie D'Agostino, coordinator of CLASSES NIGHT.

The 1976-77 intramural football season is drawing to a close with action in both league and in intramural. Following is a brief wrap-up of action that took place before the break.

BUZZARDS 14-GOBI DESERT RAIDERS-6.

In what Coach Evans Brown called "... the most well played game I've seen here..." the league leading Buzzards downed the hapless Gobi Desert Raiders 14-6 to take a comfortable lead in the standings. It was the Raiders first loss of the season and left them in sole possession of second place. Outstanding for the Buzzards were Junior Boyd and Scott McSwain while the incomparable Raad Brothers, Moore and Johnson led the Raiders attack.

Chip Carter Visits Winthrop

by C.L. Hayes

On October 4, Chip Carter, son of Jimmy Carter, visited Winthrop. This was the first member of the Democratic presidential nominee’s family to visit during the ’76 Fall campaign.

Chip Carter has constantly been on the road since June ’75 campaigning for his father and he still says he enjoys it. He is married and lacks less than four hours credit before receiving a diploma and degree. Carter arrived without much pomp on the Winthrop Campus. Due to poor publicity about his visit, only approximately one hundred and fifty people were on hand. When Chip stepped out of the car, there were no shouts or hoopla from the students who had gathered for his arrival. He made his way quietly into Thomson while answering the newsmen’s questions and shaking hands.

After speaking and asking for support, he then answered student questions. I’m for de-criminalization, not legalization of marijuana”, was one of the few personal answers Chip Carter gave. When asked if the Playboy magazine interview would hurt his father at the polls, Chip Carter replied it would not. Chip then mentioned that he plans to buy his first issue with his interview in it, when the new Playboy comes out.

Chip said that the citizens of this country want a “government with compassion, sensitivity and leadership”. According to Chip, Jimmy Carter will run the national government in much the same manner as he did Georgia and has reform plans which will make it harder for special interest groups to get special treatment. Chip also mentioned that “people are not ‘victims’ and we will work with the people and not to create more bureaucracy.

Chip seemed to be no more than a politician’s son helping his father until someone asked him what his political ambitions were and he answered, “I’d like to run for the school board”.
