Winthrop's debating activities are gaining wide recognition with the installation of a chapter of Phi Kappa Delta, national debating fraternity.

Students who lament over their ignorance of astronomy have the chance offered them now to learn what it's all about. A one-evening course will be given on the first clear night.

Many of the seniors who are to do exchange teaching have expressed their intentions of stocking up on stories to tell for weeks after their return.

Rumors of class politics for next year's officers are already being heard from some juniors. We ones has yet been decided on to the satisfaction of the foreigned politician.

It is often said that there are certain teachers at Winthrop whom every freshman should have a class with. Why not allow these teachers to exert their energies on new students only?

Some may question the wisdom of allowing students to miss classes in order that they might attend conferences. It is seldom the affects of the conferences are not seen reflected in the work or personality of its delegates—and student conventions are pre-eminently serious.

Modern Moses Smites Winthrop Rock For Water

"Moses smote the rock, and water gushed forth." This is not a story of the Moses of The Commandment fame, but a tale about the fountain by Main Building.

According to Dr. Kinard, this incident occurred back in the days when Winthrop had just been moved to Rock Hill. President D. B. Johnson was sick for a year or so, and J. E. P. Moore, professor of pedagogy, was appointed acting president.

During his administration of the college, in about the year 1894, workers began drilling the well under the fountain. When a few feet had been drilled, however, a big rock was struck. After drilling for some time, workers began to despair of ever getting through the rock. It even seemed that plans for the well would have to be given up.

National Forensic Fraternity Installs Chapter at Winthrop

MEMBERS GIVE BANQUET

Mary Gallman and Rachel Hay Are President and Treasurer

South Carolina Delta Chapter of Phi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, will be installed at Winthrop, Saturday night, November 14. Dr. A. B. Hookins, of Asheville Normal, as representative of the National Council of Phi Kappa Delta, will conduct the installation ceremony. Four members of the Asheville Normal Chapter will assist Dr. Hookins. A banquet will be held at the Periwinkle tea room after the installation ceremony.

Phi Kappa Delta has organized in 1913 under the direction of Professor E. B. Nichols, of Ripon College, in order to stimulate progress in speech development, to promote the study of intercollegiate oratory, debate, and public speaking by encouraging the spirit of intercollegiate fellowship and brotherly cooperation.

Today the fraternity includes 15 chapters and is considered the largest Greek letter society in America. Phi Kappa Delta in order to promote forensic activities provides a national debate question each year, a national convention every two years, and a tournament in each of the thirteen provinces into which the chapters are grouped.

Charter members of the Winthrop chapter are: Dr. Warren O. Keith, faculty adviser; honorary members, Dr. Shelton Phelps, Miss Ruth Rollings, and Dr. Mary Armstrong; and active members, Virginia McKelhen, Bobbie Jones, Esther Hay, Frances Holland, and Mary Gallman. Officers of the fraternity are Mary Gallman, president, and Rachel Hay, treasurer.

Bulldogs, Dragons, Devils, and Tigers to Contend for Annual Pep Tonight

Unusual noises portending the annual Pep Meet have sounded for over a week from Main Auditorium, Johnson Hall, the Gym, and Roddey basement. Tonight at 6:30 the quality of these noises and the result of an afternoon spent in decking the amphitheater in class colors will be judged.

Bulldogs, dragons, devils, and tigers will honor their respective hockey teams as they enter and are escorted to their dens. Each section of the mob from the superior Bulldog down to the Cuba will turn burst forth into snags and yells while the courageous shaver, Goggers, and Purr gallantly endanger their lives by giving all to the cause of just decisions. When they can stand no more of the show the judges will retire to elect the lord of the animal kingdom. (Judges have promised to accept no bribes.)

Four Class Leaders Claim Victory In Pep Meet

As Outcome Hangs in Balance, Spokesmen Prove Optimistic

Excitement over the Pep Meet, to be held tonight, is by no means on the wane this year. According to predictions of class officials all four classes will meet amply well: Dickie Williams, president of Freshman Class:

"The Freshman Class is out to win the Pep Meet, and naturally I hope we do. However, we won't mind so much if the out-going Senior Class should win. They deserve it and we wish them the best of luck. We are expecting some good competition from the sister classes. As for the Sophomores—they won the Pep Meet last year and someone has to take it away from them this year. I hope, in the end, that that job will fall to the Freshmen."

Jean Flinn (in the absence of Flossie Clauson, President), speaks for the Sophomores, in the capacity of cheerleader:

Miss Louise Peace To Wed Mr. Fewell

STUDENTS GIVE IDEAS ON PEACE

I. R. C. Holds Poll to Determine Stand of Students on War

Collective security as a means of preventing war received an overwhelming majority vote of students at Winthrop who expressed their ideas on Peace, in the poll held by the I. R. C. November 11.

Approximately two-thirds of the students who voted were certain about their stand on war.

Over 500, as against less than 200, expressed themselves as opposed to heavy armaments as a means to enforce peace by intimidation.

The vote in opposition to all war was not consistent with the vote in favor of defensive war. The vote in opposition to all wars was 687 opposed, 261 not opposed. The vote in defensive war was 400 in favor, 233 opposed.

Sixty-Seven Seniors Teach in Field During Week of November 16-21

ANNUAL FALL PROGRAM Representatives From Three Levels Participate

Sixty-seven Winthrop seniors are exchanging with teachers in North and South Carolina during the week of November 16-21, according to Mr. O. M. Mitchell, superintendent of Winthrop Training School.

Distribution of teachers according to levels is as follows: primary level, 20; intermediate, 20; and high school, 11.

The fall exchange program is planned primarily for the teacher who has only begun her work in the field and desires to have an opportunity of help in solving problems relating to sources of material and control. The program offers to older teachers the opportunity of observation of demonstrations teaching by the Training School.

Through the system of exchange teaching, the Winthrop seniors become acquainted with the problems found under actual teaching conditions.

The senior participating in the exchange program, reports on Monday to the school to which she has been assigned and observes the regular teacher as she conducts the class. Monday night or Tuesday morning the regular teacher comes to Winthrop and leaves her class in the hands of the Winthrop senior.

The regular teacher takes the student's place in the dormitory and in the dining hall of the college. The Winthrop senior stays at the boarding place of the regular teacher.

WHY ALL THE PEP?

The Pep Meet is an interesting thing. The classes turn out practically one hundred per cent, and they show what class spirit really is. One would imagine, in fact, that Winthrop students had really gone rah-rah in a big way, and that the hockey games are an occasion for a general departure from all other parts of the school to the hockey field.

But this picture is, of course, far from being a true one. The real picture is of a field on which girls play energetically and a grandstand on which a few spectators—sometimes interested, sometimes not—can occasionally be spotted. Evidently, then, something's wrong!

What's the use of generating an overwhelming supply of pep for one night, and then forgetting what the pep has been stirred up for?

If you're not interested in the games, why have the Pep Meet? If the Pep Meet does indicate your sentiments, though, why not support your team on the field?

"I GOT BY"

"He didn't send me a slip! I got by somehow under him!" Such was the jubilant cry of many a student as she found her mail box empty of the dreaded blue slips this week.

Certainly, it is all right for anyone to be glad that she is doing passing work. But, certainly, it is as wrong for a student to be delighted to do barely passing work, or as we put it, just to get by!

We come to college, supposedly, to get some sort of education. If we just "get by," and still know nothing, we are not so smart as we think. We haven't hurt the professor in the least, although we often have that mistaken idea. We have merely failed to get the most that we might. We have cheated ourselves!

If we are supremely content just to get by, then John Erskine was speaking of us when he said, "We make sacrifices to come to college, and then we defy the college to educate us!"

HAVE YOU A VACANCY?

"I had almost rather do without eating than to ask for a vacancy." How often have you said this, or have you heard it said? Quite frequently, no doubt, since very many tables are broken each holiday or week-end.

Why is it, then, that even though you are accustomed to asking for a vacancy, you dislike so very much to do it? Simply this: because of the reluctance with which a vacancy is given you, and because of the way you are generally ignored when you are eating at a table not your own.

But are you yourself guilty of giving away vacancies reluctantly, and then ignoring the persons to whom you give them? If so, you deserve no better treatment than you extend.

When you have a vacancy, give it to the first person who asks for it. Make it your duty and pleasure to treat this "guest" as if you were her true "hostess"; you might have to ask for a place at her table the next week-end!

WILL WE ENFORCE IT?

"Light cuts have failed," is a statement we frequently hear. Senate members are asking what plan, if any, students wish to substitute for the present one. This week faculty members and students have suggested through The Johnsonian means of dealing with the "light cut" problem. Accordingly, student opinion will line up naturally behind one or another of the suggestions.

As students we readily enough assert what we want. But do we also declare that we are willing to enforce regulations adopted?

There should be a two-fold purpose served: (1) Student opinion should suggest changes, and (2) Student opinion should enforce rules.

We ask for privileges readily enough. We say we want certain regulations adopted.

Are we going to enforce these regulations?

For in these many years we've been carrying false ideas about alpha-beta scandals, but now The Los Angeles Junior College gives us the truth about them:

Alpha, A, is a person who is moderately dull. A D. D. is a person who is definitely dull. A Ph. D. is a person who is phlegmatically dull.

WINTHROP DAY BY DAY

Prophecy—rain for Thanksgiving. The law of averages will vote Friday for the Seniors at tonight's Pep Rally.

In the absence of Senior Statistics results, just for fun, let's predict a little:

- Most versatile—Janie Truog.
Most valuable—Kate Ocker.
Most sincere—Helen Perrin.
Best informed—Annie Rosenblum.
Most efficient—"Wenchie" Ziegler.

Professors—Anna Belle Carroll. Most interesting—Alice Johnson. And we can't locate even in suspension the most popular. To those who disagree: You may be right. These statistics are merely guess work, not based on fact.

Thingsamabobs and stuff: Julie Barwood calls her dad "father."

Jean McLaughlin has twin brothers, one named Colin; the other is called "Semi-Colon" for the sake of unity. Most psychological tests show in suspension the student too normal to be interesting.

Dr. Rogers admits of a phlegmatic temperament. Dickie Williams's real name is Ryan.

On the Social Calendar for the week—the Autumn Ball under the sponsorship of the German Club.

Picture of former club group in costume and action may be seen at 8:30 in the Alumni Room. They are almost worth the white slip in looking them up.

Unhitchable—Dr. Elizabeth Johnson and Dr. Helen Russell touring Europe on a bicycle.

Personal notification for the best figure at Winthrop—Mary Courtney. A student who was asked to write a quatrain illustrating unusual rhyme about what she did during third period Saturday when the Charlotte Band was playing at Johnson Hall submitted the following:

My very stoutest reason For not having heard the band That I had to give my attention To a uniformed Citadel man!

One-Minute Interview

Miss Eliza Wardlaw gives her views on the uniform situation:

Do you think that uniforms still serve the purpose for which they were intended—to prevent those girls who have plenty of money for clothes from dressing better than those who have not so much money?

It seems to me that with the uniforms we have, girls have almost as much chance to out-dress each other as they would have in a non-uniform school.

Do you believe that Winthrop is gradually getting away from uniforms?

It appears that the trend is away from uniforms. Every year there are more changes than there were during the preceding year.

What is your opinion as to the advisability of uniforms at Winthrop?

Although I can see advantages in the practice of having uniforms, I think it would be better not to have them. All our lives we come in contact with those who can afford to dress better than we, and it does not seem good to have four years of our lives spent in an unlike-like situation.

However, I think that should uniforms be abolished at any time, there should be some help given students in selecting attractive, serviceable, and appropriate clothes.

Need College students and faculty members are inaugurating a beauty of an idea: they plan to set aside one whole day of the school year to make the campus more attractive.

President of the IMA class at the University of New Mexico can now wear corduroy pants. They were given this privilege recently because of the economy of the practice.

We have a government of the people, by the people, for the rich—Prof. Hugh Stone, Political Science, Northwestern University.

D's, captained by Mary Ferguson, and the E. P.'s (Gala Miss Allen's team), were close runners-up with a score of 14 won and a lost. Alice Johnson lead Rah Rah into third place, winning 11 and losing 8. The Soap Slingers with Captain Ann Morgan merit fourth place with 11-7 score. Passing the halfway mark the Ku Klux Klan (Lon Kluge of course) and Hot Shots (Curt Watson) won 7 and lost 11. The Yellow Jackets, Busy Beet, and Wicks Deekers were less fortunate still—more money to them next time.

JUST LINES

The campus was practically deserted this week-end. I have figured and puzzled and used all of my mathematical genius and I still can't make out how many of the girls go off so many of the week-ends. If each one has two week-ends, how is it that three-fifths are gone every week? It seems that every third week there should be at least two-thirds of the students here. A problem for you, Mr. Einstein.

By the way, don't worry when you get those blue slips from the office. They are known as "warning" slips, but the girls say that if I went get all wrought up and excited that I'll make at least 2% on the courses. So I'm going to sit back and not let it bowl me over.

I haven't done much lately but get from my room to the library. I'm considering moving my belongings over and calling it home. It would be much more convenient—and think of the footpaths saved!

Another, darling, if you only knew what a yen I've had for devil's food cake for the past three days you'd send me one by return mail. Devil's food cake with better icing is my idea of heaven right now.

Following the re-election of President Roosevelt, W. R. Hearst made a statement to the effect that he would, of course, continue supporting the President.

After hearing the words of our Mr. Hearst, we like to think of the poem we read from The Bannockburn Polytechnic just before election.

Poem: I think that I shall never see A party like the C. O. P. A crowd whose loving heart is pressed So close to Wall Street's golden breast. A crowd that looks to Hearst all day And lifts its oily hand to pray. A crowd that now all copy over The Dupont's sunflower in their hair. A crowd that counts an evil fate That intimately lives in hate. Speeches are made by fools like me, But only Hearst can make a C. O. P.

Peter Moody, Claude Brana, and Albert Lancaster were selected as the Wofford representatives for the Rhodes scholarship trusts to be held in Columbia in December.

It seems that some students go in for reforms in a big way. Certainly one student at the University of California appears to be a bit of a radical when he writes a poem like the following:

Down wit de students Down wit de dean Down wit de trees Down wit de grass Down wit de countries Down wit de flags Down wit de army Down wit deun gump Down wit de woman Down wit de man Down wit de rooster Down wit de hen Down wit de spring Down wit de fall Whatever it is, I'm against it, so Down wit it all.

Of the 2,834 students enrolled at the University of Florida only 28 are co-eds.

The Mississippi Collegian tells us about the bad boy who quit drinking and smoking because he began to feel a bit silly.

Members of the entrance class at Kermelaker Polytechnic were told by Dr. William Ode Heichko that their time in college was costing them $125 an hour. This sum includes their tuition, loss of labor, contributions through the college and other items.

The Los Angeles Junior Collegian has uncovered a good one, which we pass on to you in the hopes that you can some day make use of it:

On Hastings campus, a group of students were reprimanded severely for leaving a classroom at ten minutes past the hour. They gave as a reason the fact that the professor hadn't arrived. The next time the professor met them he said, "You could see I was here. My hat was on the desk."

On the following day, when the professor arrived, the room was empty except for a single hat on each desk.

Dr. C. Sylvester Green, the newly-elected President of Coker College, will be inaugurated December 1.

"Goes With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell, is the most popular book at the University of South Carolina, and second in demand is last year's favorite, "Anthony Adverse," according to a recent statement by THE GAMECOCK.

We like the improvement recently made in Furman's paper by changing the name from The Furman to The Furman Herald.

We hope that by printing this excerpt from THE YELLOW JACKET we won't in anyway give our professors the same idea:

Fetters must be handed in with thermos at Northwestern University so the professor will know when work has grading.

"No Rate Defeat" is the name of the Spitzer Club which has just made its appearance at Wellesley College. A girl must refuse at least one date before she's eligible for membership. The girl who gets the longest time without having a date is the President. Since the object is to get the President out of office, she is the first member asked to fill a blind date.

How To Develop Personality

E. O. HARRIS, Director of Personality Development, Who Has Been Lecturing at Winthrop This Week

1. Forget yourself. Think of others. Be helpful. Remember the old doctor in "Magnificent Obsession" who enriched his own personality by releasing it in unpubescent, unselfish service to others.

2. Associate with great personalities. Read biographies. Think the thoughts of the great after them, by reading books they have written. Study the lives of great people to find what made them great.

3. Become interested because you have interests. Says an English writer: "The whole secret of life is to be interested in one thing profoundly and in a thousand things well."

4. Belong to some great purpose. Become its slave. All of the really great personalities of history have been passionately devoted to some old thing in life. Nightingales, Pasteur, Lincoln, Lee, Wesley, Jane Adams—each of them had some old "magnificent obsession."

5. Take the long look at life. Decide what you want to do and do it. Check occasionally to see whether or not you are making progress.

6. Develop an intelligent sense of values. Know good when you see it.

7. Outrigger the spirit of cheerfulness. Don't be a job slayer. If sorrow comes your way, know how to "take it." Don't try to pass it on to your friends. They have troubles of their own.

Pajama Parade Replaces Missing Victory Parade

Pajama, bedroom slacks, bath-ropes, and hair "a-la-pu-put" bally hung on to the hurrying files of hordes and hordes of excited Winthrop girls who rushed out of their dormitories to see the Recent Victory Parade scheduled to begin in front of the College last Friday night—but didn't.

The strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again" played appropriately enough on the well-known Winthrop chimes, instigated the mad rush to the front fence. From this position, the girls heard several sounds like pistol shot or fire-crackers, saw a few cars, and got some cold fresh air—while the parade evidently marched the other way.

The disappointed girls returned to their rooms, and while the chimes rang out "America," many noisily ached from being almost pushed through the screen in hopes the parade might take a turn.

"Aw, a pajama parade's all we could manage," one girl said when all hope had died. Someone else answered, "But some kind of parade, 'as it ever so humble,' is due our Roosevelt!"

Hodges Girl Chosen Head Of Tournament

Nora Morgan, junior of Hodges, was elected head of the April High School Speech Tournament at a meeting of the Executive Council, in Clio Hall, Wednesday, November 11, at 4:30.

The subject for discussion at the meeting was the P. Kappa Delta query, "Resolved: That the right of suffrage be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry."

Virginia McKelhen was leader of the government; Margaret Thomas of the opposition; and Anne Tighman, of the backbencher.

MASQUERS GIVE IMPERSONATIONS

Members Imitate Well-Known Movie Stars; Tell Fortunes With Tea Leaves

Impersonations of various movie stars was the center of interest at the regular meeting of the Masquers at 4:45 Monday, November 9, in Johnson Hall.

Lizette Walker Cookfield directed this feature on the program. Included on the program were impersonations of Ruby Keeler, by Mamie Katherine Rieckle; Jeanette MacDonald, by Anna Dixon; Frank McHugh, by Jean Wilson;

Jackie Cooper, by Marguerite Tidmarsh; Stan-ly Peck-It, by Virginia Workman; Clara Bow, by Marie Owens; Mae West, by Rebecca Barr; and Harpo Marx, by Lizette Walker Cookfield.

Louise Klug talked "out the way" movie stars told their stances by tea leaves. Each member presented a copy of a Chinese poem, an ancient interpretation of fortune telling by tea leaves. With the aid of this Chinese Jew, each girl studied the leaves in her cup of tea, and told her own fortune.

Although the display is in connection with the study of American Literature, it is open to all students who are interested. Some of the pictures have not been previously shown in Rock Hill.

MORGAN WINS PEACE CONTEST

Junior to Represent Winthrop in State Oratorical Contest

Mora Morgan, junior, was the winner of the Peace Oratorical Contest held November 11, at 6:30, in Clio Hall.

Mora will represent Winthrop in the State Peace Contest in December. Others entering the contest were Marguerite Zeitler and Martha Jo Jones.

Prizes for the state contest are fifty dollars, thirty dollars, and twenty dollars, for first, second, and third places, respectively.

The winning oration from each state participating will be sent to the Adams Bookery, donors of the awards, who will select a number of the orations which they regard as of most merit. The orations will then be submitted to the executive secretary, who selects the first and second national winners. Prizes of sixty dollars and of forty dollars, respectively, are given for these.

Last year marked South Carolina's entrance into the contest. In addition to South Carolina, 23 other states, with 150 colleges, participated.

Some few students who thought they knew the "man behind the desk," made noble efforts to remain faithful to their "writer-friends."

All in all, the "Tummy stuff," the editorials, and the rare bits of advice given on the feature page seem to meet with the approval of Winthrop students.

Student Counselor Gives Biography At Interview

Miss Eliza Wardlaw probably knows more secrets than anybody else at Winthrop.

As student counselor, it is her job to be the confidante and give advice, but her natural interest in everyone with whom she comes in contact, and especially her sympathetic understanding of every problem, make it seem that the position of student counselor was created for her rather than that she was appointed to fit the job.

After graduating from Winthrop, Miss Wardlaw obtained her B. S. degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, and she is now working on her M. A. degree in student personnel and guidance. She is well qualified to understand Winthrop students having been one for four years. While a student she was particularly affiliated with the Y. W. C. A., serving as president during her senior year.

Before returning to Winthrop six years ago, as "T" secretary, Miss "Jane," as she is called by students who know her best, served as Y. W. C. A. secretary in Macon, Georgia, where she supervised about 22 grammar and high school clubs. She also directed a "T" summer camp near Macon.

Introducing Miss Wardlaw in her new position, which was created last year, Dr. Phelps states in the 1933-34 handbook: "The student counselor is the student's guide, adviser, and friend. Her work is to listen sympathetically to a student's troubles, to guide, rather than to direct administratively; and, under all conditions and in all circumstances, to be the student's confidante and friend. She neither reports nor disciplines. She counsels."

Miss Wardlaw adds to this: "I don't feel that I am here only for students who are maladjusted or in difficulty, but I also like to know other students."

After many attempts were made to get Miss Wardlaw to talk about herself rather than her work, the "interviewee" confessed that she was very much interested in music, her major subject at Winthrop. But now, she declares that "Follow the Dream" is the only song she can play on the piano. More than playing the piano, though, she enjoys singing and listening to good music. Swimming, horseback riding "even if I don't always stay on the horse," and driving "Jane," her Knee-Action certainly runs in our family. You can get this modern contribution to easier riding and safer steering on any General Motors car.
