Voices From The Wilderness

Dear Editor:

This letter is in reply to the article "No Bid, But Many Errors" in the Nov. 5, 1976, paper. The article dealt with Bobby Richardson's visit to Winthrop College and was written by Debbie Mollycheck. Although we are not avid Richardson supporters, we must take offense with Mollycheck's stand.

First of all, Mr. Richardson did not insult the intelligence of as many Winthrop students as you suggest, judging from general comments from students afterwards.

As for Richardson's comments concerning his baseball career, we recognized them as a "warming up" technique frequently used by public speakers. Very effective in his case.

Mr. Richardson did not "strike out" in regard to the Equal Rights Amendment. We did recognize the fallacy in his statement concerning the sharing of bathrooms. But, he was correct in stating that women can be drafted if ERA is passed—if the draft is reinitated. However, that is a provision that is necessary with passage of such an amend- ment. Actually, if Mollycheck could see beyond her narrow scope, she might see that ERA (along with abortion) because of its social nature, is an issue that Congress should not be asked to decide on. Do your homework!

You neglect to mention any of the other subjects discussed in the hours and a half that Richardson was on our campus. During that time, Richardson projected an image of an exceptionally honest man who did not have all the answers, but possessed a tremendous zeal to learn.

You heard and reacted only to the things you selfishly are interested in as did that other idiot who attempted to upset the meeting with statements he could not even make out! All this shows that you are not in the least qualified to objectively observe politics as a good political scientist must!

Dear Editor:

During the recent campaigning, the candidates of the two major parties received pretty much the same treatment as all other parties. Of course the two major parties fear and what we stand for, because they don't want anyone upsetting their political monopoly. If the colleges and universities continue to support the status quo of those two major parties, we can only expect more of the same for our future.

I call upon any thinking students to open the doors of their campuses to alternative thought. If the students of today fear the act of thinking, fear the possibility of having their beliefs broken, let it not be at Winthrop.

I realize that Winthrop's facility is controlled by a few elitists who jealously guard the truth. Let your voices be heard by the students who are interested in true education.

Dear Editor:

The Winthrop College soccer team would like to express its appreciation to the various individuals and organizations who contributed to making the October 29 Soccer Fest a success. In particular we are grateful to Dinkins Program Board for its efforts in planning the event and to the campus groups which prepared banners. The fan turnout and their support, spirit, and enthusiasm at the match meant a great deal to us and certainly contributed to the team's effort against Francis Marion. We hope that in the future the Winthrop community will provide similar support, not only for soccer, but for all of the college's intercollegiate sports.

Likewise, we hope that the Soccer Fest will become an annual event. This letter also seems an appropriate place to thank The Jehovah for its "excellent coverage of our matches this season. We are most appreciative of your support.

Sincerely,

Jim Casada, Soccer Coach and The Soccer Team

Dear Editor:

Phel Students! I have a dream. It is a building designed in shape as many stories high as it must be...On each floor of my building, I will find four rooms across and each story slightly shifted so that the effect of Hugh ladder twisted around many times by the time you reach the top.

In each room you will find a Hayes Griffith. (U of O) Ultra High Vacuum Photoemission Electron Microscope. The latest Computer Terminals, A Spectroscopic Analyzer and other toys of the Theoretical BioChemist-Physicist and Medical Scientist. And People...Yes, Biochemist. Mathematicians, Chemists, Biologists, Cellular Biologist, Computer Programmers, Physicists, Electronic Engineers and an Army of Undergraduate Science Majors.

What will these people be doing? They will be studying separate segments of DNA! In hopes, that within a short period of time cancer will be eradicated as it is found in whatever shape or form.

I have had this farfetched dream since my dear grandmother Elizabeth Chapman died many years ago. I was cursed with the means to my end and still my dream is realized.

The most appropriate means to accomplishing this end is the Federal Legalization and controlled marketing of Marijana. I am not suggesting that Pot is good for you or to smoke a Doobie for Science. I will say that people will continue to smoke pot and that the Annual profit of a Billion Dollars per annum could be put to fantastic use by Society. For societies all over the world.

Vampire Gets His Fill

Relaxed veterans lay on the starched, paper-covered tables making small talk of politics. White-coated nurses and Red Cross volunteers busily scurried across the room dispensing smiles and medical knowhow. And the first timers, some with slightly green tinted faces, pensively stared at the ceiling apprised in thoughts of whether or not this was the way Dracula got his start.

The setting was the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Dinkins on November 3 & 4, where nearly 250 Winthrop students and local townsfolk each donated a pint of their blood.

"We were expecting more", stated Mrs. Julia Ellis, the co-head of the Red Cross Volunteer operation, "but any help, specially student response.

"The entire two-day operation was staffed by over 50 Red Cross Rock Hill Volunteers, almost a dozen Winthrop volunteers, numerous Charlotte nurses, technicians, and a full-time doctor. The Blood Mobile was from the Charlotte Piedmont/Carolina Blood Center with processes and stores nearly 800 pints of blood per day.

Despite the scare of the big needle, students did turn out for the approximately 45 minute blood donating procedure. The whole process began painlessly enough by signing up, getting a blood donor pin, and filling out forms. Next came the needing out of unusable donors, by a criteria of weight, blood pressure, temperature, pulse rate, facts about their last meal and medical history. The skinny and the hungry were turned away to fasten up before donating. For some, though, being heavy enough to pass the 110 pound weight minimum was a "true impossibility."

After the judgement of near normalcy, next came the hemoglobin check by way of the copper sulfate test. A few drops of blood were extracted from the finger or ear lobe and dropped into the solution. If the blood drop sank their hemoglobin was in fine shape.

Standing before the double doors to enter the blood donating chambers was where the condition of "butterflies in the stomach" began to develop, for some. One student called it a case of "mild terror".

Upon entrance, essential data was typed up and the donor given a cup of orange juice to replace body fluids. Led by a smiling volunteer the donor lay down on the table as the nurse readied the vein for puncture. Before anxiety had a chance to strike, the needle was in the arm and the blood bag on its way to being filled.

Once full the needle was retracted and the bag sent to be sealed, processed for blood type, checked for any impurities and then refrigerated. With the slight puncture blotted dry, the weak-kneed donor was led by the Red Cross Volunteer slowly toward the Canteen—one of the most enjoyable parts of the experience. Seated, arm out-stretched on the table, the atmosphere changed as relieved donors nibbled cheese crackers and cream and sugar cookies and slipped milk and coke (donated by Pet and Coca-Cola). The brave and not-so-brave shared small talk as they gained their strength back in the 10 minute recuperative period.

With only a pink band-aid and a donor sticker to show evidence of their visit the donors slowly left. One 19th century veteran summed up the experience, "It seems like an awful pleasant gift you can give, considering all the good it can do." And with a smile she added, "It makes you feel mighty good too!"
Controversial film maker Al Mayales brings the southern premiere of "Grey Gardens" to Winthrop College Tuesday, Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Al Mayales and his brother David produced the feature-length documentary about Edith and Edouard Beale, eccentric mother and daughter who live isolated lives in a run-down Long Island mansion. Their lives attracted national headlines when health department officials ordered their home and grounds cleaned up, and the media discovered that the women were relatives of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

The Mayales, whose style of "direct cinema" is famous for the realism it portrays, met the Beales while working on a film about Jackie Kennedy and her sister, Lee Radziwill. The film makers spent five weeks around the old estate recording the two women in everyday life.

The resulting film has been called "one of the oddest, most magnesium-filled films ever" by the London Sunday Times. Other reviewers commended it for being exploitive of the Beales, but magazine praised it as "a painful but poignant affirmation of life."

The Winthrop showing, open to the public at no charge, will be a Tillman Auditorium on the Winthrop campus with Al Mayales present for commentary. For more information, contact Joyces Center at (803) 323-2196.

Cult': Still Casting Spell

by Jim Good

For those of us who have listened to psychedelia since its inception back in the middle '60s, most of the originators, we find, are either dead or forgotten, or have changed their approach or have simply, burnt themselves out. Turning to the musicians of the seventies in the field once called "heavy metal" listeners like myself find the tastiness, originality and musicianship somewhat lacking. The new brand, probably best labeled "shock rock", gives us the likes of Alice Cooper, Black Sabbath, Aerosmith, Kiss (possibly the most thorough disregard of the facade in history), The New York Dolls, vampy, treancy, and campy, and Tubes, along with a plethora of make-up grotesqueness, its shooting flash-bombs, splitting flame torches and blasting air-ra id sirens Intended upon dis· tractlng the audience from the bland, monotonous drone of faceless musicality.

Enter the heroes of this piece, although not outside white charg es, nonetheless a welcomed if demonic sight. On stage the Blue Oyster Cult are "guilty" (if the term is truly deserved) of the same cheap theetres as any of the above mentioned, yet they carry it off with professional precision, using pyrotechnics to enhance their detectable mega-decible boogie style.

Aside from proving themselves, among the all-time masters of energized live performance with their classic, teeth rattling, foot stomping, brain cardling "On Your Feet or On Your Knees" two record live album, the Cult has steadily reached out to perfect a variety of moods and styles. Their newest album, "Agents of Fortune" blends jazz, blues, avant-garde, and gool of R&R influences to give us their best studio effort yet. To my knowledge this marks the first time they have successfully broken a hit single with "(Don't Fear) The Reaper" climbing the top ten.

In the grand Cult tradition, other cuts off the L.P. include such pseudo-diabolical titles as "E.T.T. (Euthenial Territorial Intelligenc e)", "Sinful Love", and "Tattoo Vampire", the opening cut. "This Ain't the Summer of Love" grabs you immediately with the strident hot 'n' nasty style most often associated with Led Zeppelin. Followed immediately by an electronic '50s styled hokey-took track entitled "True Confessions," the vivid bass lines blending organically with Buck Dharma's throaty, styled lead guitar. Dharma continues to exhibit impeccable guitar work throughout, always managing to be in the right place at the right time with just the proper emphasis, never fighting the other instruments for dominance as in a band like Led Zeppelin.

This type of disciplined work seems to be the key to the success of this band musically. The obvious effort of the members to interweave their music into an integral fabric comes through in their stage work as well as in the variety borne of such a sympathetic relationship which is evidence most particularly on 'Agents'. Here's hoping the Cult can attain commercial success without forfeiting the quality of their product.

Listening Tip: For maximum enjoyment the Cult should be played fairly loud and on a set with high speaker capacity and good headphones. Turn off all the lights, put the headgear on and space.
'It Keeps You Running'

by Ron Layne

A new movie, visually violent and heart stopping, has been running (literally) in Charlotte for the last couple of weeks and it won't be long until the MARATHON MAN will cover the twenty odd miles between Charlotte and Rock Hill. Produced by Robert Evans and Sidney Beckerman, directed by John Schlesinger and based on the novel by William Goldman, the film stars Dustin Hoffman in probably the most intense role of his career.

MARATHON MAN has some of the most Peckinpahsh violence to explode on the screen since TAXI DRIVER. In many instances, the blood shed is overtone, a stomach wrenching plasma party, but if you can stand the blood, go see, go experience the film.

The film opens with many diverse scenarios, that seem as unconnected as most of our brains after final exams. Then, like a spider bringing the fragile threads of a web together, Goldman and Schlesinger send your senses on a run for their life. You are very step Hoffman takes, every breath he breathes and every moment of anxiety, fear and anger he experiences. MARATHON MAN is a run through past and present, and leaves the viewer out of breath and out of his seat with every twist of plot.

Surprisingly, the most painful scenes, are the ones where the hero suffering is implied, but not explicitly depicted. The director may have achieved a new high in viewer empathy. To see the film is to know the real meaning of willing suspension of disbelief. Don't take our word for it, go feel for yourself. It should leave you visibly shaken.

If you can stand a plasma picture, don't walk, run to see THE MARATHON MAN, and, take a friend. You'll need someone to help you off the floor when the final credits begin to roll across the screen...

Portraits On Display

A collection of historic portraits from families in this region of the state is now on display in the Winthrop College Gallery of Art in the Rutledge Building.

Open to the public free of charge, the exhibition will be on display through Dec. 13. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2-5 p.m. Sunday.

Several of the portraits come from the Winthrop collection, but many were donated by individual families of the area. A few were loaned by the North Carolina Museum of History in Raleigh.

Edmund Lewandowski, chairman of the Winthrop art department, arranged the exhibition. He said it was ideally suited to the bicentennial year and was an example of how rich this area was in the history of the nation.

THE ATLANTA CONTEMPORARY DANCE CO.

'Fun, Frolic And Sheer Entertainment'

One of the South's most famous dance groups, The Atlanta Contemporary Dance Co., will perform at Winthrop College Monday, Nov. 15, at 8 p.m. in Byrnes Auditorium.

The Atlanta Contemporary Dance Co. has been in existence since 1948, but only went professional in 1971.

Resident artists at Georgia State University, the six-member group achieved national prominence by participation in the Dance Touring Program and Artists-in-the-Schools Program, both under the sponsorship of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Their repertoire includes modern dance, jazz and mime choreographed to music ranging from Brahms to mountain songs. According to the ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, "They discovered that dance is fun, frolic and sheer entertainment."

Tickets for the Winthrop Series presentation are $5 for orchestra and first balcony and $3 for second and third balcony. Tickets will be on sale at the Byrnes box office from 2-8 p.m. the day of the show.

For further information, contact Joynes Center for Continuing Education, telephone 332-2196.

THE WORLD'S SMALLEST CIRCUS was enjoyed by Winthrop students and faculty on November 3.

The Royal Liechtenstein 1/4 Ring Sidewalk Circus, which was held at Thompson Cafeteria, was led by ringmaster Nick Weber. Weber performed a balancing act with a plow and a sword.

Students enjoyed two mime fables put on by Nick Weber, Gary Gitchel and Mitch Cannon. Magical tricks were also performed by Gary Gitchel with assistance from the audience.

Captain Kevin Duggan of California exhibited his trained horses, Odelle. Duggan mystified the audience by escaping from a riveted and padlocked with was filled with one hundred gallons of water which had been thoroughly examined by two Winthrop students.
Eagles Given Booster Shot

Sports enthusiasts in Rock Hill Tuesday elected to found an athletic "booster club" that will support the increasingly competitive Eagles of Winthrop College.

The Election Day decision by nearly 30 Rock Hill community leaders was the result of a campus breakfast meeting led by Winthrop President Charles B. Vall.

John A. Gill, a Rock Hill businessman, was appointed chairman of the club's temporary steering committee and will lead groundwork on the club's by-laws and constitution.

The meeting came on the heels of Sept. 20 decisions by the Winthrop Board of Trustees to hire an athletic director and to introduce Eagles basketball as the fourth intercollegiate men's sport on campus.

Vall explained during the breakfast session that 44 applications for the newly authorized athletic directorship had been received.

The athletic director will coordinate the men's basketball team when it does Eagle livery for the 1977 season.

Winthrop Eagles now compete in 10 intercollegiate sports for men or women. Women's teams are entered in field hockey, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, tennis, golf, and softball. The college is a member of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW).

Eagle men, meanwhile, compete now in soccer, tennis and golf. Basketball will continue as the sport in which the college competes as a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

"A strong booster club will play a major role in defining the Winthrop program of competitive men's and women's athletics," Vall explains.

Funds contributed in support of Winthrop Intercollegiate athletics will be managed by the Winthrop College Foundation, says George Junlap, president of the foundation.

Contributions are tax deductible, Dunlap notes. Checks should be payable to "The Winthrop College Foundation."

Said the Winthrop president, "This development effort will require the support of many groups, including Rock Hill citizens and Winthrop alumni."

Merrill P. Wilkerson, a Rock Hill attorney and Winthrop trustee, declared that the expanded Winthrop sports program constitutes a "heightened Rock Hill "identity."

A Long Winter's Nap

by Ron Layne

Well, Coach Casada and the Eagle soccer team have played out their hand in this year's season. Though the record doesn't reflect it particularly a good season, it was good in the respect that the team gained some valuable experience and will be coming back as a veteran soccer club, without suffering too deeply from player loss due to graduation.

Casada is already looking ahead to next season, when hopefully some newly recruited players will add even more experience to the squad.

What brings us to today... and a lot of tomorrows. You see, when Winthrop soccer ends, so ends men intercollegiate sports for a few months. I hear the gripe of the women intercollegiate teams voice about the attention men's athletics get, but who looks in water sports here at good ol' WC. Sure, next year Winthrop men will have basketball, but for now we must content ourselves with basket weaving or some other pursuit. This is an age when people are screaming prejudice, so here goes. GET US MEN'S ATHLETICS IN A BIG WAY.

That's about as far as that will go, but at least its been said. If people scream back about cost, well, we put together women's volleyball, how about men's. There are schools that have intercollegiate men's gymnastics, how about Winthrop? Maybe it's time to consider the possibility of a men's baseball team. Sure it costs, but not like football. We know it can't be done overnight, but give us an indication that these things will come to pass. That's all we really ask.

Now, the administration may say, 'There they go again, give give give...' but when a college has some intercollegiate sports for men, people stop going home so often on the weekends and there aren't great big holes in the week's activities. Not only that, more people will look at a college as a possible selection for their higher education if the college has some athletic programs to offer. That's where the college gets some returns for all their investment. Wake up Winthrop, these jock straps hanging in the windows of Thomson and it looks like the men are here to stay...

Winthrop College men's and women's intramurals ended the season this year as they played Lander College at the Rock Hill Stadium, Wednesday night, November 2.

Showing outstanding offense, the Women's Disco Ducks shut out Lander 36-6. Winthrop's scoring began as Karen 'Hoss' Iseman threw a 13-yard pass to Pam Smith, and continued as Iseman passed to Anna Dews for a 15-yard touch down. Jane Ashworth scored both conversions on 10-yard passes by Iseman. Iseman then kicked up 6 more points on a 10-yard run, leaving the score 22-0.

Iseman continued her outstanding game with a screen pass to Karen Duncan, who ran for 10 yards. The Disco Ducks final score came on a 10-yard pass to Connie Strickland by Karen Duncan, who also threw to Linda Clark for the extra point.

Lander's only score was early in the third quarter on a 10-yard interception return.

Outstanding Disco Duck players were Teresa Steinhauser, Holly Bland, Karen Duncan, Karen Leman, Teresa Moore, Connie Strickland, Anne Reese and Phyllis Griggs.

Coach Evans Brown said "All the girls played extremely well. They all looked really good."

The Buccaneers were put as lucky, as Lander squeaked by 6-0 in a very well-played defensive game. A 45-yard run by Lander's Phil Lowther was all that could penetrate theBuzzards powerful defense, with outstanding players Wayne Bowman, Scott Beyers, Lynn Cole, Mike Wylie and Dave Riggins.

Scott McSwain, Jr. Boyd and Wayne Bowman led the offense, while John Landstreet's tremendous punt helped the team out in many tight situations.

Coach Brown commented on the game, "It was an extremely good defensive game. They were playing a very well organized, good team, and did very well against them. Lander was a much, much faster team."

Brown hopes to make the games with Lander an annual event. "It was a tremendous climax to the intramural season. The crowd support was good, we all had a good time."

He also said both Lander and Presbyterian commented on the "first class hospitality Winthrop College showed. I'd like to thank all the students who made this year great."

Charlene Faglier and Lynn Avant served for most of ETSU's points during the match. Winthrop played a tough Tenn. Tech team for third place by defeating them 13-15, 16-14, 15-11.

The volleyball team played its last game of the season last Tuesday. WC defeated Presbyterian College 15-10, 16-15, 15-4. Results from last weekend's State Volleyball Tournament were not available at press time.

GI Benefits Increase

The following GI Bill has been signed into law by President Ford.

"GI BILL-An eight-percent increase, retroactive to Oct. 1, in GI education benefits is provided in Public Law 94-502. A similar cost-of-living increase is made in educational benefits for the spouses and children of deceased or totally disabled veterans. The new benefit rates are $292 per month for a full-time student with no dependents, $347 for those with one dependent, and $396 for those with two dependents, with an extra $24 for each additional dependent. Three-quarter and half-time students receive proportionately lower amounts."

The new law cuts off G.I. benefits for men and women entering the armed forces after Jan. 1, but sets up for them a new educational savings plan to which they would contribute. It provides that, if they wish to participate, $50 to $75 of their military pay each month would be set aside for their education after they leave the service. The Veterans Administration could put up $3 for each $1 they contributed. An $8,100 maximum is placed on each individual's educational fund—$2,700 on his or her own contributions and $5,400 on the VA's. The new plan was enacted for a five-year experimental basis.

Another feature of the law gives nine additional months of benefits to all those now eligible under the GI bill, making a total of 45 months of benefits. Still another provision increases the reporting fee paid to institutions from $3 to $4 per student veteran, and from $4 to $6 per veteran whose check is delivered to the school. Under the new law, the VA cannot approve the enrollment of any veteran in any course in which more than 85 percent of the students are having all or part of their tuition, fees or other charges paid for by the educational institution, the VA or by grants from other federal agencies.

Rocking For A Cause

The Rock-a-thon raised $320 last Friday night for the Children's Attention Home, according to Student Life Committee chairperson Susan Whitaker. Sixteen students rocked from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. in Thompson Cafeteria after having collected pledges of money for their time spent rocking. Classy Clark collected the largest sum of $116, with Ginger Barfield running second with $85.

Epicure Food Service donated cookies, donuts, potato chips, and hot and cold drinks for the rocking. Fred Angerman, manager of Winthrop's cafeteria and his assistant, Chuck Jones, stayed in Thomson and played cards with students.

Several non-rocking students stayed around the cafeteria to talk and enjoy the festivities. Students passed the time by playing games, watching TV, leafing through magazines, embroidering, and talking.

"I was pleased with the amount of money we brought in. The people who rocked seemed to enjoy it because they knew it was for a good cause," Whitaker commented.

Campus Bestsellers

What are college students reading when they are trying to ignore their textbooks? Publishers report that paperbacks are selling like hotcakes on campuses this year and students' tastes have shown very little change over the last few years.

The big hits this year are spiritual books, including Robert Pirsig's Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance, Ken Ober's The Art of Hanging Loose in an Uplifted World; T.A. Harris' P.M. O.K., You're O.K. and numerous works on Transcendental Meditation and RST. In the fiction department, Kurt Vonnegut and Ken Kesey are grabbing a major portion of the reader market, especially with the received interest in One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest. Publishers say the topics that deal with the feminine sex remain biggest as well. Erica Jong's psychological jaunt titled, Fear of Flying; Judith Rossner's Looking For Mister Goodbar; Betty Frie- dan's The Feminine Mystique and Susan Brownmiller's Against Our Will are the top sellers among those books written by females.

Science Fiction and Fantasy readers are still hooked on the old favorites, including Tolkien's HOBBIT TRILOGY.

Advising Dates Scheduled

Ms. Nancy Forester, Arts and Sciences Student Counselor, has announced Nov. 15-19 as the official advising week prior to pre-registration Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

"Majors in the Arts, Sciences, or those who are undecided should seek advising with either a peer, Beth Lowman, or myself. The students can come and sign up for an appointment to see us. We will be staffed with two extra people (peer advisors) to try to accommodate the people," said Forester. Appointment sheets are in the Arts and Sciences advising office in Kinard.

Freshmen interested in teacher certification are asked to note the new certification requirements in the catalog. January 7 will be the date to change unsatisfactory schedules for the spring semester.

All Elementary Education and Early Childhood Education majors should meet with their advisers at one of two meetings scheduled for November 16 and 17.

The purpose of the meetings is to plan for courses to be taken next semester. Students advised by B. Moody, E. Stallings and C. Tutwiler should attend the meeting on Tuesday, November 16 at 5 p.m. in Withers Auditorium. Students advised by R. Althouse, C. Afin, J. Afin, M. Bishop, R. Braswell and L. Lebby should attend the meeting on Wednesday, November 17 at 5 p.m. in Withers Auditorium.

Those unable to attend the meeting assigned to them should attend the other meeting. Students who can't attend either meeting should contact their advisers as soon as possible.

Writing On Walls

Scientists have seen the writing on the walls and have concluded girls are now scribbling more graffiti than boys.

Psychologists crawled through the bathrooms at four large midwestern schools discovered that female graffiti artists are penning four times the amount of graffiti as their male counterparts.

The girls wrote mainly romantic graffiti in the Journal of Partlclpants in the Model UN participant or Political Science Club which spring break trip is planned to the Mediterranean. The girls, "I have known numerous female graffiti artists that female graffiti artists are penning four times the amount of graffiti as their male counterparts."

Fasting

The Winthrop College Hunger Task Force will sponsor an Oxfam Fast on Wednesday, November 17. Each student will have the opportunity to fast one meal and donate the cost to self-help projects for under-privileged communities overseas.

Epicure Food Service has agreed to forward the cost of each meal to Oxfam. Oxfam is a low overhead credible organization churches for use in case of an emergency. Displays and information will be available this week on both Oxfam and the fast. For more information call the Wesley Foundation at 327-5440.

In conjunction with the Oxfam, it might be well and wise to take notice of the following:

Hungry people in impoverished countries may someday be eating the 300 million pounds of survival rations squirled away in U.S. fallout shelters. That is, if it doesn't rot first.

The wheat biscuits and candy balls have been stored for the last 13-15 years. The arrangements of schools, offices, hospitals and churches for use in case of an A-bomb attack. About half the food is still edible.

Volunteer relief agencies, such as CARE, want to send the good food to countries where it is needed. But Congress has not yet allocated money to pay for its distribution.

How To Get A Job

What do I wear? What do I say? How can I make a good first impression? These and other questions concerning job interviews were the topic of a short course held last Tuesday in Dickens Student Center entitled "How To Conduct A Successful Job Interview." The course is being taught by Jerry Tyson, personnel manager for Sears' Roebuck & Company in Rock Hill and is sponsored by the short course committee of Dinnis Program Board.

According to Mr. Tyson, competition is the biggest hurdle one will face in finding a job. He says, "I have known numerous cases where there has been one job opening and over a hundred applications. This makes the job interview the most important interview one will face in finding a job."

UN Benefit –Brunson Memorial

Participants in the Model UN and friends of Sandy Brunson are combining their efforts to raise funds. The combined effort has been made possible by the Political Science Club which accepted a 10-speed bicycle ($150 value) to head a list of 10 prizes for a raffle.

Originally scheduled for November 18, the raffle has been rescheduled for December 1 at 9:00 p.m. at Across the Street. Other prizes include dinner for two at the Pineville Dinner Theater, 920 certificate to Parish Flowerland and dinner for two at Thursdays. One "surprise prize" will still be announced.

Tickets are $1.00 and may be purchased from any Model UN participant in whether or not you'll be hired." Tyson pointed out the following helpful hints for a successful interview:

Fill out your application neatly and legibly.

Dress well; "you never get a second chance to make a first impression."

Know a great deal about the company and the job you are applying for.

Plan your interview Be prepared to answer any questions about yourself.

Time your interview-Mr. Tyson suggests any day but Monday. Be passive.

Be aggressive.

The final session will be held on Tuesday, November 16 at 7:30 p.m. in room 222 Dickens. There is no charge.
