Late Permission Granted
On An Experimental Basis

Late permissions are being granted on an experimental basis this semester at Winthrop. Students eligible for the permits are juniors and seniors being in upperclassmen's terms.

Dean H. Dunlop, president of Winthrop, has granted late permission to those students on a trial basis after investigation on the possibilities of such permissions was made by a Senate committee.

With the approval of Dean Dunlop and President Henry R. Hose the permissions have gone into effect strictly as a experiment.

If the late permission procedure proves successful this semester, it will be drawn up for Senate table in the light of the experiment. Such a plan will be appoved by the Student-Faculty Senate committee and by the president of the college before the procedure is to be used.

"This is a compromise between the late permission we asked for and the late permission at all," one faculty member said, "and whether or not we get the results we seek it is up to the students and the cooperation they receive."
Assembly’s Light Letter Day

Ultimate’s seniors in Assembly were certa inly a "Light Letter Day" for Winthrop stu dents. Not only was it a good musical perform ance, but the student audiences displayed the be est control of "reptorial all" that I have heard in years.

After the first few chords on the piano, the audience was broken only by applause at the end of the program. Not a student in the theater felt that we had reacted in any way, but a response that was alert and alive. At the adult reaction during the concert, however, was the restraint of the spiritual response dur ing the familiar numbers. As is the usual case, there were no hobbyists who sang "on key" and "off key" when the performances anun nounced or began to play something that was not a part of the program. The students, who were at the Fortunately, in the spirit of the program, the audience felt that the students were worthy of the faith and cred ibility that they displayed.

It is hard to build confidence but very easy to destroy. It took us quite some time to show that we are adult and ma ture students. Not until the second half of the evening did the students realize that we are mature and the ability to act and behave in an adult manner toward rules, regulations and decisions.

STUDENTS SPEAK IN TYPICAL

Dear Winie Reel:

The Infantry has been alerted for a special mission at the last moment. We have been given the infor mation that 15 years ago for every apri ate Miss America contest there was a young lady who was entitled to the privilege of being a Miss America for the first time. That young lady was you.

I have also taken the privilege of alerting the young ladies in the Engineering School to the fact that every night when the Engineering students assemble they will be entertained by a young lady who is entitled to be a Miss America. I am not sure what your reaction will be, but I am sure that I will be able to assemble all the young ladies who have been entitled to be Miss America in one room at a time.

Sincerely yours,

Knowledge of Words Perks Up Poor Reader

Dr. William M. Alexander

There are many different kinds of reading material, and each kind presents the reader with its own special problems. Many students who read poorly have become discouraged, believing the problem to be one of inherent inability to read. However, the poor reader may find success if he concentrates on the kind of reading material he likes and finds interesting.

Dr. Alexander suggests that the poor reader should limit himself to the reading of stories that he enjoys and finds interesting. He explains that the selection of reading material is something that should be left to the individual. Good reading skill can be improved by developing an interest in reading, and by practicing reading aloud, even if it is only to himself.

In reading material for the poor reader, Dr. Alexander recommends stories that are simple and easy to understand. These stories should be free of complex vocabulary and should be written in a straightforward manner.

The Extensions of Reading

The poor reader should also be encouraged to read material that is beyond his usual reading level. By reading material that is challenging, the poor reader can improve his reading skills and become more comfortable with reading difficult material.

The poor reader should be encouraged to read for enjoyment, not for credit. By doing so, he will develop a greater interest in reading and become more capable of reading for understanding.

March 10 Will Disclose The Secret Of The Hippodrome

By Sue H. Klazinski

Local student clubs are offering the opportunity to win a trip to the world-famous Hippodrome in London. The Hippodrome is the oldest and largest variety theatre in the world, and is known for its lavish productions and talented performers.

The drawings will be held on March 10th, and the winner will be announced at a special meeting of the student club. The club will provide transportation, accommodations, and all other expenses associated with the trip.

Whose Is It? It's Just Falot, ladies, right or left, as the case may be. This year, each of the 10 winners will receive a trip to the Hippodrome.

Buck and all the rest of it. A trip to the Hippodrome is a trip to the past, and a trip to the future, and a trip to the present.

Were Clocks Or Did Mouse Jam Up The Works?

The mouse ran up the check.
The check was déjà vu of two.
And then it stopped.

These are not the original words of that old familiar memory phrase. The story told by this phrase does not even disagree with itself. The phrase however makes one thing clear;
nothing happens by its own choice.

Was it angry because it had been worked on twice already or did it make a mess because of the newness of the clock?

To everyone’s dismay, there stood still as far as Western campus clock was concerned.
For several days it was five miniutes until two. Classes began and ended not a minute past and past the clock. And teachers and students rushed around wondering if they were late for morning classes or early for afternoon classes.

"Have you heard the latest? Dean McRae may try a "skeg" to former Artistic Sis next year! That's right. Mr. George has said he can replace Iva Kindell, costume and all."

Shocking statement, isn't it? Well, that is the type of remark that pops up on blander afternoons at "TF". Is it? Only 200 students in our school ever hear those types of information to "break the spell", but how can the temptation be resisted?

On this particular cloudy afternoon, the biology department had received a special invitation to venture forth into the "Central Hangout" for coffee, cokes, and conversation.

Widener Paints Circus Mural

Mary Elizabeth ("Betl the Wild") a senior class election candidate at the annual election day ceremony, is the creator of the current "Art Circus."

A native of Anderson, Betl was put in a number of the "Circus Art for Children" class during the past semester. Mrs. Arndtch of the Palms, president of the class, stated that Betl made many copies of circus scenes from her Senior connections with circus art.

"Betl spent many times in a circus, Florida, where she studied at Ringling School and created many copies of the circus scenes.

The picture features a rosoy clown being held by his white horse in a circus, his outfit made of astro, and various circus scenes.

Among the circus scenes and "support" pictures are:

- A portrait of a performer.
- A portrait of a group of performers.
- A portrait of a performer and a clown.
- A portrait of a performer and a horse.
- A portrait of a performer and a circus scene.

For the program, Henry Brock, Jr., secretary of the Mauberry Club, and Jack Wetzel of the Widener Club, presented a "new type of clown dance" to the groups. Mike Mauberry and Mike Wetzel participated in the clown dance and Mike Mauberry and Mike Wetzel participated in the clown dance.

Widener presented his circus theme dance, and the other music theme, "The Story of the Rings," was composed in the same key with the help of Mike Mauberry and Mike Wetzel in participating in the clown dance.

P. E. Majors Take Examination For National BB Ratings

Seven senior physical education majors took their final for a national in basketball Wednesday afternoon. The exam consisted of a written and oral test on officiating a game. Eighteen seniors, five of them graduates, were examined.

Other results were given. Three were instrumental and associate members.

Students taking the test were George R. Thomas, Bob Chafee, John H. Smith, Jim Backus, Bob Young, Ray Gilbo, Scotty Grainger, Don Darby, Max Washington, and Dave Wilson.

The National Board of Physical Education Department states that 70 percent of the national board of physical education department is required to pass the national board of physical education department.

All seven of the students have a chance to still continue in the current course.

With their new ratings and diplomas on the door, they will be more confident in their abilities and will improve their knowledge of officiating a game," says Mike Sturgis.

Love colors, red, red peppers, blue, and red striped. One in heart, one is long and one is a pop. Could you help me out. I'm trying to impress this Clarence "Guy-Langer" who is coming over for the first time. Lastly, little Rock.

Dear Steve,

Hope you are not altering his hose of those who wear red roses you might be taken for a couple. Suggest you wear the long red one to represent your bleeding heart. Hope it won't be too long before you can wear a dark one to suit the season. If nothing else, you will never thread in much more than he will. I've got one too, Matilda.

Grey-Blaney Fired Up Over Exam Ordeal

EXAM POWER TO BE "LET" FOR CIGARETTE GREY AND MARY BLANEY TO BUST DANCE.. Upon returning to her room from supper recently, Jean, January 11, Mary Blaney was met with the comment, "You're good in your present bicep..." Knowing how college girls are extremely sensitive during exam times, Mary was uncertain until she was present several people who told her the same things, thinking to her self, was she gassed for air or the smoke was pouring in the hall.

Herbert Desoto was still holding the eight cylinder and several girls inside with Bill Celis nothing but, tales and the deal.

After the excitement was over, Gill and Mary finally got the same story of what happened. There was a deck of cigarettes on top of the card but under them a lighter. As the card was turned over, a hand FATAR PULL in the pocket of pants, the card caught on fire and then the plastics burning to the table stuck her, After the card ruined the farmhouse and the lump was shocked off.

The damage was not heavy, but a new tobacco job was recorded for the room. And with a radio and lamp replacement...the card gave out but..."broke the end on that very deed. Mary"
