WELCOME AGAIN

It isn't often that Winthrop has the chance to entertain students from other colleges two week-ends in succession. Last week representatives from nineteen colleges were on the campus, this week, from twelve.

Again we welcome you. We consider it an honor to have you on our guests.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

"I saw some Winthrop girls thumbing a ride to town yesterday. All Winthrop girls thumb rides, you know."

As students of Winthrop you immediately protest. The statement is not just. Perhaps several students have been guilty of the offense. But to judge all thirteen hundred of us by a few is absurd.

Yet many people make just such generalizations as the one we mentioned. Newspapers even carry stories that have little better foundations than this one, but which, nevertheless, help to lower the esteem in which Winthrop is held by outsiders.

Let us face facts. Such statements as these, true or not, hurt Winthrop and indirectly us, the students, for we are judged in many cases by the college which we attend.

What can we do to help the situation? We must try to correct false statements about our college. We must help to point out that one can not judge a college by a few students who attend it.

We can not assume responsibility for the conduct of 1,314 girls. We can, however, make sure that one student does not by her actions give an impression that damages not only herself but also Winthrop.

WE MUST LISTEN

"It is the speaker's duty to entertain me." This statement sums up the attitude of many of us to ward chapel speakers.

If the subject for the chapel talk doesn't interest us, if the speaker does not adjust his voice to the use of the microphone, we immediately assume an air of boredom. We turn to our knitting, to that thrilling novel we just couldn't put down, or to our neighbor for diversion.

Do we have any duty towards the chapel speaker? Those who come to speak to us must give time and energy to preparing a talk. For twenty minutes approximately they must try to do the almost impossible, namely, to put a message across to some 1,300 people.

We say to these chapel speakers, "You must entertain us."

We should say to ourselves: "Our duty is to listen."

NOTICE-TEARERS

We've seen girls—intelligent girls—walk along the hall and suddenly stop, look around, and tear off a notice or poster that may be within reach. We've wondered about these girls considerably.

Does it really annoy notice-tearers to see any instructions, however necessary, posted on bulletin boards? Or are they trying to spite someone? How do they explain the habit to themselves?

The only reason we can give for leaving notices as they are posted is the same reason that must be given for every action in a community. Consideration for other people is the first rule for living successfully.

Tearing notices off boards is a small thing; the lack of thoughtfulness for other people concerned is vitally important.

TEST YOURSELF

Do you know the words to your College Song? Are you quite sure as to whether or not it has a second stanza?

Probably these seem like absurd questions to be asking the students. But the facts are surprising. At a recent meeting of a club on this campus, the fifteen students present tried individually to sing the College Song. Not more than five could sing the words of the first stanza correctly, and only two could finish the entire song.

The lack of knowledge might have been excusable if the group had been composed of Freshmen, who have not had much opportunity to learn the song. But, certainly, it was unacceptable in this group—some of whom was below the Junior Class!

Again, we ask, "Do you know your College Song?" If you do not, get a handbook and memorize the words. Listen to the melody every afternoon at five on the chimes. Then fit the two together and learn the entire song.

WINTHROP DAY BY DAY

Calendars are coming into their own once more—faithful strikers' revolt the few remaining days with increasing eagerness. For the most accurate statistics are Laura Vance Marlowe who has the hours and minutes account.

Most patriotic soul in school—Miss Violet Anderson, of the night shift. Expressions of fear, surprise, anger (mild), admiration, or else—all are consummated in the term "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The chameleon custom of drawing names at Christmas has stuck with many of the Winthrop sophisticates. Social clubs National Honorary Fraternity, the "Y," and dormitories all participate in the seasonal celebration. Freshmen make use of the opportunity to appease—and dash easily to inquire the addresses of the entire faculty, hoping to remedy the situation by sending a cheery wish at Christmas time.

Nothing's worse than seeing two rotten movies in succession—Miss West in "Go West, My Boy" and Katherine Hepburn in "Silvia Scarlett"—and Hepburn's usually a favorite.

Recommended for close observation of true deception—Robert Story, 117, Devereux Court, best seller in North—the new LIFE magazine—whether from interest, curiosity, both, or neither. And Miss Ketchum would like to have it known that copies of "Complete Works of Browning" are on sale for $1.25.

The Clemson Beggar comes out in good weather and is typically a College Magazine.

Oddest combination of nervous energy and brain—Lois Young.

An unlabeled interview with some of W. T. S. bright lights reveal that they have very definite ideas concerning their student teachers. But there is no need for embarrassment, so just hope you are among the favored.

Bagatelle—Barney Houser has a maul for cutting hair... "Bip" Geiger wishes she knew her own mind... Mary B. Pagan never says anything without consulting the opinion of at least three other persons... Barclay lists fashions at three cents per... The McKeithen class takes a turn on back campus every Sunday after lunch.

DEAN BARDIN ANSWERS
"Some of us have been disturbed by a recent article in a newspaper concerning the group conduct of Winthrop College students on trains while traveling. A few students can cause much comment and such statements do not apply to all or even many of our students. I am sure, when a woman is traveling, society expects her to maintain a certain amount of dignity and reserve as well as courtesy toward the officials of the trains and buses."

"The best reply to the article is for Winthrop College students to so conduct themselves in all situations as to command respect."

—DEAN HARDIN

JUST LINES

Dear Mother.

The rain is falling in a monotonously steady beat that makes me want to sit down and cry or go to bed and sleep. I think, for the sake of my room-mate and all else whom it might concern, it's do the latter.

This week is going to be crammed full—opera, picture shows, exhibits, parties, and Model League—so we're not going to let minute time slip. It's a good thing they're giving us a long enough vacation so that we can recuperate before examinations. If the saying that you can't be happy unless you have something to do is true, then I should be one of the happiest girls at Winthrop!

At our ball sessions lately, we've taken to discussing, not our next neighbor's every fault, but strange to say, such subjects as "Philosophy of Life," "Times of Religion," "Telecommunication," and "Mental Telegraphy." And I've been in college only three and a half months. I expect to start on Einstein's theory next semester.

And now to bed.

Love,

RALLY.

One-Minute Interview

Mary Sease, senior from Prattville, S. C., gave her opinion on the following question:

Of your four years at Winthrop which do you consider most difficult?

My freshman year was by far the most difficult. Not that the classes were any harder than during other years, but this problem of adjusting to the new, where, and why of the college kept me busy and bothered.

Do you find practice teaching a particular burden?

Oh, at first. Training school worried me, but I got used to it after a while and now I really enjoy it.

Figures Don't Lie

Canvassing Campuses

What The Tiger terms a "Wildcat Schedule" has been signed by Joseph Jay Neely, of the Clemson Tiger, for 1927. The card includes army, Tulane, University of Georgia, and Florida.

Credit for this "Little Audrey" goes to Iowa State Student, whom we note:

We were like that joke about little Audrey and the two sailors who B. O. and little Audrey's sister failed, and some dumb chuk called it the smallest little, see, and then this dumb little Audrey she just sits and gawks, on account of she knows a couple. She's the nuttiest. As we've heard of.

Just ever so often we can find a few pleasant thoughts from school years. This one from The Crimson and White is, perhaps, one of the most pleasant yet:

She stood on the bridge at midnight;
Her voice was all asplendid;
She had her hand on the railing;
Her leg felt off;
And floated down the river.

If we kept on reading some of the remarks made about us in THE MISSISSIPPI COLLEGIAN we'd soon become a pretty disillusioned bunch. An example:

Some nice girls are popular, others don't care who knows they're nice.

And then there was the freshman who wanted to know how many quarters there are in a football game.

Dr. L. L. Clark, of the University of Texas, says there are two ways for freshmen to finish out of college: (1) either freshmen get too scared of their studies; or (2) they don't get scared enough and go to sleep.

The Alabamians do a little modernizing of one of our nursery rhymes:

See, see, black sheep,
Have you any wool?
Sure, what did you think I had—
Peanuts?

Students with "A" averages pay less tuition than those with lower grades at Hillsdale College.

Paul Gaffney, alternate captain of the 1926 Gamecock eleven, made the Associated Press All-State team for the third year. He was the only player in South Carolina to receive honorable mention for All-American last year.

How many of us—and how many times—have thought the name thing as printed in The Iowa State Student, even if we haven't said it in rhyme?

Don't tell me—let me guess—
Was it the time I broke the date?
Or the time I was eighty minutes late?
Was it when I kissed your fraternity brother?
Or the time I called your sister "mother"?
One of those times you stopped loving me—
But no regret, love, it had to be.
I saw it coming long before that.
Your ties don't match my new Green Hat.

Because we think it applicable here as well as in The Parley, You—
"I just shivered up when I hear that, as if I had bitten down on a lump of alum."

Mr. Maginlay:
"A graveyard is probably the most orderly place in the world—nothing ever gets out of place there."
"A pun is a plum that has undergone evaporation. Do you know any puns?"

That year is best which is the first
When slide and prof are stranger;
It's not until he knows the worst
That you're in any danger.

One college president advocates a re-examination for all graduates at the end of five years and, if they think, their diplomas will be revoked.

Furness and Greenville Woman's College were officially consolidated last week at the annual South Carolina Baptist Convention held in Spartanburg.

From The Villanovan comes the latest one about Mary's lamb:

Mary had a little lamb;
It drank snow for water;
One day it got into a fine flame when it's not because.

The Alabamians contribute this one to "Canvassing Campuses":
Why the tentacles in your legs?
It's my class pin—I go to Colgate.

And now as we read that the boys at University of South Carolina voted sick as their favorite meal, we decide to stop and concentrate—"food for thought" sort of thing.

Student Opinion

Students are often heard complaining that Winthrop does not offer many social and cultural advantages.

Yet the same girls who make these complaints are seen carrying books, crossword puzzles, and knitting to chapel. The same girls are seen eating before the bleating:

"These girls have too much work on hand to go to the presentation of 'Cavallieri Rusticana.' The same girls moan and groan when there is a meeting of the education club or when they are invited to a 'Y' party. The same girls slip in behind the garage during the President's reception in order to avoid the receiving line."

I, too, think that if Winthrop does not offer the social advantages we think should be offered, it is our own fault, and we can correct the condition if we try.

—MARY BALLE

About The Gym

Ice and snow can't go for the tennis floor they run them indoors. Tennis on a hardwood floor is a much faster game—have you tried it?

Recreational sports are quite the things during the winter.

Slack-table tennis, slush, deck tennis, tetherball, and horse-shoe pitching hit the spot. The club started last spring Friday night—let's see what this Murray girl is doing in the house.

The aforementioned volleyball didn't mature but with the bowling, swimming, and recreational sports clubs humming there's little time left. Then, too, basketball season is yet to be looked forward to—need something to bring us back down to earth after the holidays!

The pedagogical tour to the schools in Greenville and surrounding territory made by the Senior majors, Misses Paul, Hammond, and Hoffman, turned out to be an experience worth filing for future use—it will serve as lively bedtime story for the proverbial grandmother.

Seen here and there around the gym: that ever-sizzling Edith Century-Greenville product... lovely Oregon State college offers own students plenty of variety—if they have enough nickels. They are admitted to each society for five cents and have the privilege of dancing for 15 minutes before they are shooed out. Professor E. O. Van Dyke, professor of entomology at the University of California, says that, contrary to popular opinion, squirrels and mice are not enemies of mankind. Actually they play an important part in preventing insects from devastating our forests.

Dr. Neville McKeithen, one of the four dentists from Atlanta, who traveled 16,000 miles to take part in graduate work in the University of Minnesota's college of dentistry, says the average price for a tooth extraction in his home land is twenty cents.

Tuesday afternoon Dr. Greene was guest at a tea given by Mrs. Agnew, dean of women, for the mothers of day students at Queens. She was entertained at dinner in the college dining room by Miss Cordelia Henderson, director of physical education.

Famous Alumna Establishes River Road Day School

Believing with Dr. Dewey that "Growth is not something completed in old moments," Mrs. Hetty B. Browne, one of Winthrop's famous alumnae, has established in San Antonio, Texas, the River Road Country Day School, with which she attempts to "make every situation one which affords opportunity for growth in terms of self-education."

When questioned about Mrs. Browne, Mrs. Russell, alumnae secretary, gave some details of her life. She said that Mrs. Browne's work in rural schools began, not in Texas, but practically on the Winthrop campus in the Lanesman Avenue school occupied by Mrs. John Bealy Hens, and later at Oak Ridge, she opened up a new type of rural experimental school which received high tribute by the editor of The Journal of Education.

When she had completed her graduate work Mrs. Browne resolved to establish a progressive school of her own, and finally selected a site in San Antonio.

Recently Mrs. Browne has allowed this school to become a part of the public school system of Texas. It serves as a demonstration and observation school for the teacher's colleges in San Antonio and the University of Texas.

The students of the River Road Country Day School find it difficult to get into the play ends and work begins because of the fatigue of the studies. It is this quality of her work which makes it remarkable.

At present Mrs. Browne is away on a year's leave of absence. In the meantime, a governmental agency is taking over the school.

Five Leaf Clover Cheers Seekers On

Two girls, despite the wintry winds, were diligently combing over a small patch of clover in the campus. Their hands were cold their noses were red, and their teeth were chattering; but neither the northern blasts nor the incense physical efforts could discourage their quest for good luck.

The scene is a familiar one, for Winthrop girls are constantly seen crawling around in search of four-leafed clover. But the starveling girls earned more than the usual reward and came forth with a five-leaf clover.

If a four-leaf clover means good luck, a five-leaf one must surely guarantee it.

Mrs. W. B. Franklin presents College Copy of Dr. Johnson's Birthplace

A picture of Dr. D. B. Johnson's birthplace, the old La Grange Female College, La Grange, Tennessee, has been presented to Miss Lela Russell for the college.

The presentation was made by Mrs. W. B. Franklin in behalf of the class of 1929 of La Grange College, the last to graduate from the institution. Dr. D. B. Johnson's father was president.

A few years after closing in 1892 the building was destroyed by a cyclone and fire, and a public school now stands on the site.

Winthrop alumnae of Tennessee placed a tablet in memory of Dr. Johnson on the walls of the school building this fall.

No announcement has been made as to where the picture will be hung.
