The Rotagilla Riot!

By Ron Layne/Joey Raad

THE ROTAGILLA RIOT!
FREE FUN!
"YOUR MOST TRUSTED NAME IN ABSURDITY"
The funny farm? The president of your favorite college? NO!
It's ROTAGILLA! What's a rotagilla, you may say. Well, ROTAGILLA is music, laughter and a full fledged good time.
The 1st National Rotagilla Band is the extremely versatile rock and roll band from Jacksonville, Fla, that is unprecedented in their ability to strip an audience’s inhibitions and allow them to have shear FUN! Dinkins Concert Committee is bringing thisرهudsckelous team of entertain­ment experts to Thomson Cafe­teria Sat. Feb. 26th, at 7 p.m. and all necessary equipment.

Also tomorrow, the final session of the “Lovinglookings” short course will convene in Tillman Auditorium at 7 p.m. and on Wednesday the final meeting of “Lifestyle Alternatives and World Hunger” will meet in Dinkins 222.

For all of you ski buffs, this week’s Friday ski trip has been reduced to $12 and will take skiers to scenic Sugar Mountain instead of Appalachian. Price still includes transportation, lift tick­ets, and all necessary equipment.

Students must sign up at the Dinkins Information Desk by Wednesday, February 23 and make a deposit of $6. The balance of $6 must be paid by Thursday, February 24. Travel Committee Chairperson Paul Varga said the reason for offering reduced rates for the February 25 trip to Sugar Mountain, which many skiers consider to be North Carolina’s finest resort, is that “everyone had a great time on the 11th at Appalachian” when rates were reduced. A bus will leave Dinkins at 2:15 p.m.

This week’s movie is “Hard Times” starring Paul Newman and James Coburn. It will be shown in Tillman Auditorium beginning at midnight. There is no admission charge.

Got The Itch?

By Sadie Taylor

Rumor has it that a curious animal (no, not the spring fever) has struck Winthrop campus. It’s scabies, and stu­dents are all asking themselves what it is, how one gets it, and how to get rid of it. T.J. decided to retaliate against the plaque with some much needed information.

Do you have an irritating rash, little bumps or sores in your body and aren’t sure if they’re scabies? If you’ve ruled out hives, allergens, poison ivy, and measles, your problem may be scabies.

Scabies, also known as the seven-year-itch, is a skin disease caused by parasitic mites burrowing under the skin. The condition is contagious.

Scabies is one of a number of irritating diseases that can be embarrassing to its victim. Because scabies is often present on the body on the buttocks, under the breasts in women and along the penis in men, it is mistakenly thought of as some form of V.D. But scabies seeds no sexual contact to be transmitted. Brushing against the infected person’s body, or contact with their clothes, bed linen, or towels can transmit the disease.

Scabies is carried by the female of the species Sarcoptes scabiei, who’s duty is to tunnel into randomly selected human skin to deposit her eggs and feces. The female mite finds excellent burrows in the folds of the human skin, frequenting the areas between the fingers, at the bend of the elbows of the wrists, under the armpits, around the navel, most often. Her ideal tunneling hours are after dark. Her exasperated host usually awakens with scratch marks over his body from nighttime itching.

Scabies can be cured quite easily through external applications of a prescription ointment known as Kilwell.

Relief from the irritating itching, though, can only come when the individual seeks help.

The college Infirmary and the York County Health Department will be glad to assist anyone in terminating their “itch.”

Two Coeds Escape Attack

Campus Security and the Rock Hill Police Dept. are currently investigating two possible rape attempts that occurred last Wednesday evening in the vicinity of the Rutledge building on the Winthrop College campus.

In separate incidents, coeds were forced to flee would-be attackers.

The first incident occurred about 7:30 p.m. A coed, walking past Rutledge, was grabbed from behind and thrown to the ground by a tall, lean black man. The coed kicked out at her would-be attacker, jumped to her feet and fled to a nearby apartment building, where she phoned campus security personnel.

In the second incident, a coed was leaving the Wesley Foundation building, just off campus, about 8:30 when she heard a black man call to her. The young black male reportedly pursued the coed to the Tillman adminis­tration building, then fled the scene. The coed contacted Security shortly after the incident occurred.

The coeds could lend only sketchy details to the physical descriptions of their would-be attackers, but in both instances, the attacker was reported as wearing a light colored shirt and jacket.

Any persons who were in that vicinity the night of the attacks should report any strange occurrences to campus security. Security personnel encourages students to walk in pairs and to stay in lighted areas while the cases are being investigated...

Show the golf team knee deep in a water hazard or with their heads down, the defense in the center of the field, the outing club standing behind a bush, a bush that just happens to have a set of ribbons hanging from the branches. Are you getting the idea?

Field hockey teams could be shown doing a down-and-out opponent with their sticks. Security officers could be shown trying to get in their own locked patrol cars with a coat hanger.

The young republicans could be shown pushing out the young democrats. Stapl Hutter moustaches on all the members of the hutterite sect. Sometimes the bald join the 60 white- no hat. Just give the students a photo file, give them the laughs they’ll need when they’re old and out of shape.

Of course, you can still run the class pictures. Row after row of polished teeth and passive expressions. But...may the cap-time...not photos that look like obvious- sions. When you have a picture of a pretty crooked smiling face, it’s a good idea to all the viewer she is mentally underex- him. Why? Because it seems a that same portait the good times: rather picture of the chess club member winking at a dusty good times: rather picture of the chess club member winking at a dusty. The caption would read: “...that’s C-h-e-e-s-s’B,..”

Pass Me a Role, Please

Debbie Kelster

scribed. Roles. And this where feminism steps in.

As a feminist, I feel that I have a role to play in the existence and effects of role playing, particularly from the point of view of the role playing extends from early childhood (remember playing house?) through high school (dating and other wonderful games) up to adulthood (oh boy!...). And it is not healthy. That is, it is not conducive to an effective form of communication between both men and women, and I feel that this communication is becoming an absolute necessity in a time when our technological advances continually threaten to dehume us. We need to be able to understand each other and to be able to listen to each other and to each other are human beings. Otherwise, our social systems of sex discrimination and inequality will continue to exist.

Personally, and above all, I want to be accepted as a human being. I do not want to be recognized for my sexual characters, but for the person I am and gain attention on the basis of my being a woman. Yes, I am a woman, and I am not interested in the sexual characteristics-but I am human first and this is the level on which we are to communicate and relationships with others. Role... are traps which we ourselves... create and hate. It is up to us to free ourselves. It is up to us to experience the reward of existing in the open rather than in the closed societies. It is up to us to survive.
Dear Editor,

I think it is time for something to be done about the problems encountered when dealing with security on this campus.

I'm tired of seeing security enforcing rules at their own whims. How often have you seen security drive cars illegally parked in front of dorms? How often do they enforce the rule of towing away these cars? I have seen cars illegally parked in front of dorms for as long as three days. I was parked in front of a dorm for no more than twenty minutes and when I returned, I was told my car was impounded and going to be towed away. I admit that I was in the wrong when I parked there. But what about everyone else who parked there? Why didn't they get towed away? When a girl who was with me asked the security officer when they had started enforcing the rule, he replied that they had been doing it all along (but they couldn't enforce it all the time). At what hours is the rule enforced, and when is it not? If security would answer that question, I would find it at least worth my time to park my car there during the hours that it is enforced.

Another problem is security's inconsistency in picking up sick or temporarily disabled students. The time that my roommate has a stomach virus, we called security to pick her up to take her to Crawford Health Center. Security did come and take her. After she had seen the doctor and called security to come and take her back to the dorm, they made her wait twenty minutes and, finally, had to walk back to the dorm. Also, another girl, who was on crutches, called security after her class to come get her. She waited twenty-five minutes on the carrier before one of her professors drove her back to the dorm. I do not know if this is part of security's job to transport students, but if it isn't the least they could do is tell the students they were going to pick them up, so they could find another ride.

There have been three incidents where security has been inconsistent. I am sure that there are others. If any students know of more, why not write the T.J. so everyone can know?

I am not offering any answers to these problems, but there has got to be something that students can do to make security consistent or change rules so that security does not have to enforce them.

Sincerely,

Denise Abbott

Dear Editor:

I have really been disappointed in your last two editorials. Such an abrupt change of attitude is surprising.

Needless to say, I was perturbed at your inference that student leaders are afraid to voice their opinions for fear of losing their leadership roles on campus. How do you think we've gotten here? Our leaders have been doing it all along, but thev couldn't enforce it all the time. At what hours is the rule enforced, and when is it not? If security would answer that question, I would find it at least worth my time to try to do something about it.

I think my main complaint rests in the area of student involvement. If you have the answers or if anyone starts getting organized, why don't you try to bring about change here on campus, but you never let it be known that you wanted such change to come about until now, and I question the channel you use. Are you just playing devil's advocate? Please let me know if you sincerely feel SGA has not done anything or tried to solicit student involvement?

Sincerely,

Margaret Williamson

Editors Note: Margaret Williamson was last year's, 1975-76 SGA president, and is now employed in the Admissions Office.

Dear Editor:

Re: Ron Layne's editorial column last week, "When in the Course of a Normal Session, the Short Course Committee of Dinkins Program Board is disturbed to learn of Mr. Layne's misconceptions in interpreting the purpose of our Lovemaking short course. This course is being conducted by responsible gynecologists with the intent to teach the aspects of human sexuality to mature adults and not prurient behavior of nymphomaniacs and prurient teenagers. We, as a campus committee, strive to give the student body what it wants. We are offering this course as a result of the poll we conducted last semester; Lovemaking rated number one on the poll. We patterned Lovemaking after similar courses that were taught at other colleges and universities. We hope no one else has interpreted the purpose of our short course as did Mr. Layne. We challenge those who feel the same way as Mr. Layne to come to the final session of the Lovemaking series.

Winthrop Gymnastics Compete At Home

The Winthrop Gymnastics team will compete in their only home meet of the season on Friday, Feb. 25, at 7:00 p.m. in Withers gym. They will compete against the University of South Carolina and Western Carolina.

The team, which lost its first two meets, one on Feb. 13 to Georgia Southern College and the other on Feb. 4 in a tri-meet against Appalachian State University, Mississippi University for Women, and Furman University, will try to make a comeback on the 25th.

The team, which has eight competitors, has been handicapped by the lack of scholarships which would attract experienced gymnasts to Winthrop. However, Gymnastics Coach Jane Bell said, "I am very well pleased and proud of the girls. They have worked extremely hard and done very well, under the circumstances."

The team is further handicapped by the fact that only two of the eight gymnasts compete on the parallel bars and the top four are judged in competition. Only three of the girls have competed in official collegiate matches before, and this places a further strain on the team.

However, Bell said, "The caliber of the competition is improving because more and more girls are coming from high schools which have competed before."

Men's sports at the intercollegiate level are preparing for their seasons to begin at Winthrop College for Spring 1977.

Arrangement of the golf schedule has not yet been completed, according to the golf coach, Dr. David Gover. Nevertheless, WC golfers start to swing against competition on Feb. 22 (tomorrow) when a practice match with the faculty get underway. Only two members of this year's student team, Ben Johnson and Ricky Burgess have competed on the college level.

Dr. Gover welcomes all golfers interested in trying out for the team (freshmen and transfer students should see Dr. Gover about eligibility requirements). Here is this year's Golf schedule as it now stands:

March 1: Triangular match with USC-Spartanburg and Daviddsson (at the Mt. Mill Course.)
March 11 & 12: Edisto Golf Classic (at Orangeburg.)
April 7-8: S.C. Intercollegiate Tournament (at Hampton.)
April 11: Triangular match with UNCC and Catawba (at Ft. Mill.)
April 18-19: NAIA Tournament (at St. Mary Valley Country Club near Hendersonville, N.C.)

The latest word on the soccer team is that players are already being actively recruited for the fall. Also, many of last year's players have played on the indoor club baseball this year, according to soccer coach Jim Casada.

One final word of good news is that a small donation was made to the soccer program to be used at soccer team's discretion.

Tournament Is Definite

The tentative schedule for the Intramural League winners and runners-up to play at Erskine and Lander Colleges has been confirmed, according to Intramural coach Evans Brown.

The Women's, Men's, and Co-Ed League runners-up will play at Lander College on Wednesday, March 2. On Thursday, March 3, the Men's and Women's League winners will play at Erskine.

The teams will be determined by the tournament to be played here at the end of the Intramural season. The two phases of the Men's League, ABA and NBA, will complete with each other to determine which will go to Lander and Erskine. Women's and Co-Ed Leagues will complete only within their respective leagues to determine winners and runners-up.

Trophies will be awarded to those who participate in the Tournament.

BOWLING PINS

The Bowling League which was scheduled to begin at the end of February, has been canceled, according to Bowling Coach Evans Brown.

The League which was to consist of Men's and Women's teams did not have enough members to participate. A Co-Ed League was considered, but both teams decided to cancel instead.

Walk-In Art Exhibition

Walk into it, around it and inside of it. You can almost guess the name of Winthrop College's first environmental sculpture now being exhibited in the Rutledge Building.

"Web," designed and built by Maria Castle Black of Rock Hill, fills the entire space of the Intimate Gallery, the small white room next to the larger Winthrop Gallery of Art.

The room radiates with the sculpture's red neon glow and sparkling steel base. White filmy nylon is scattered over the plexiglass and neon axis into all corners of the gallery. An explanation printed on the gallery door reads: "an environment based on the search for universal truth."

Environmental art, envisioned more often than attempted because of the challenges the artist is confronted with transforming a given space into a totally different environment. The sculpture is usually open for participation; viewers may enter and interact with the creation itself.

Ms. Black, who is working toward a visual arts degree at Winthrop, like to emphasize the abstract in her work. She says sculpture instructor Mary Mimitch influenced her away from realistic imagery.

"There's no need to depict the real," Ms. Black explains. "You can just build on the emotion extracted from it."

Size is also important. Ms. Black has yet to do anything under five feet and intends to work in even larger formats. She likes the idea of having one's head overwhelmed people at first glance.

Materials for "Web" cost about $100, which she paid.

One effect of the "Web" sculpture is the viewer's reaction to color after leaving the environment. The complement color, green, jumps out at you in the lobby," says Ms. Black. She didn't plan the effect, but is intrigued by it.

"Web" will be on display in the Intimate Gallery through March 2.

Plant A Plot

Winthrop College is again making garden plots available to people in the Winthrop community. Faculty, students and staff are eligible to plant and harvest on the plots near the College golf course; the location is identical with last year's. Plots for gardening will be assigned and administered by the Winthrop Campus Ministry and can be reserved by phone: 327-1149. Produce grown on the plots is limited to personal use and not to be sold. The only charge for garden plots is $3, for spring plowing.

- The garden plots project is done with the permission of President Vail and under the auspices of Winthrop Cooperative Campus Ministry and the Winthrop Hunger Task Force, as part of their commitment to the issue of world hunger and personal lifestyle change.

Special Education Workshops Held

Special Education Assistant Professors Helen Abell and Ronald Weber conducted the third in the a series of five workshops designed to help teachers, school psychologists and others deal with the special child more effectively Monday, February 7. Those attending the Greenville conference came from the area affected by the Appalachian Council of Governments. The pair dealt with methods and procedures in the "psychotherapeutic process" for children with a learning difficulty resulting from an emotional problem or with learning disabilities. Ms. Abell said workshop participants evaluate the sessions, and that data from their evaluations is used to meet needs in the next workshop. Ms. Abell also said that a number of participants are Winthrop graduates in the field of Special Education who "form the nucleus for training other people in the area."

Ronald demonstrates what most students are beginning to feel as the semester wears on—fatigue.

Sophomore Week this year is February 21-24. The Sophomore Class is sponsoring the Rock Hill Girls' Home. Candy sales started February 14 and will continue till the 24th. During the entire week a raffle is scheduled. Many prizes will be given away and tickets may be purchased from any Sophomore class member for 25 cents or five tickets for one dollar. The Senior Class has rescheduled the Mighty Class party for Wednesday the 23rd. Signs will be posted telling the time. The final event of the week will be the SOPHOMORE SMASH on Thursday, February 24 at the Shack. Tickets are available from class members at $1.50, and at the door, $2.00 with a W.C. I.D. All Winthrop students are invited to attend and enjoy themselves and drink all the beer available. The Sophomore Class appreciates everyone's cooperation in these fund-raising activities.

Inter-University Bible studies will meet on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday at 9:00 p.m. in the Baptist Student Center.

The annual Canterbury pancake supper will be held on Tuesday at 5:00 p.m. in the Canterbury center. The cost is $1.25. The supper is in combination of Shrove Tuesday. Shrove Tuesday, also known as Fat Tuesday, is the day before Ash Wednesday, which begins the season of Lent. The Lenten season is a time of self-examination and self denial, preceding the joyous Easter tide. Since Lent is supposed to be a very sober time for denying the body certain things, the custom arose because the fare would be very lean during the next forty days. Since eggs and milk were some of the things which were to be excluded from the Lenten diet, pancakes came to be the traditional menu for the Lenten feast. And so, all over Christendom, people make merry and enjoy pancakes at this feast usually for over thirty-five years. Proceeds will go to Rock Hill's Hope.
