Featured Facts

A holiday such as the one just passed seems to be utterly demoralizing. While the vacation is pleasant, class work is paralyzed for two days before and two days after the holiday.

Next week, with its Artist Course number, basketball games, and election, should prove one of the most frequent of the year.

Trade School's dancers seem to have been a complete success at Winthrop. The remark heard most frequently was, "I can understand what it's all about!"

One of the most important features of a class, the students have found, is the ventilation in the room. Students dropped by heat or rigid with cold are equally unresponsive.

It has been said that one of the first additions to be made to Winthrop's curriculum, when funds are available, is a course in philosophy. The importance is generally granted.

Another contemplated addition to the faculty is a dean who will oversee the revision and shifting demands of curricula.

A recent magazine article, in comparing colleges, observed that co-ed schools call for better competition in clothes, while students at girls' colleges are content with flat-headed shoes, skirts, and sweaters. Content or not, Winthrop students run true to form.

Clue to Use of Gas Jets Sought by Curious Moderns

Builds of one hundred and fifty watt power now furnish light in North and Hancock dormitories at 6:45 in the morning when the mists begin their twice-hour job of collecting dew. In 1927 gas jets lighted the halls during the early morning hours. The few remaining old-fashioned gas jets that are 4,200 hanging here and there along the walls of the older dormitories have no doubt aroused the curiosity of many a student. These jets resemble in many ways the once fashionable Aladdin Lamps. The mantle-like part of the jet is, however, entirely obscured by glass.

Mary Ball's Announces May 1 As Probable Date For Release of Annual

Mary Ball, editor-in-chief of The Tattler, announces that the Tattler is well under way and that the hope is that it will be out by the first of May.

Class and club sections, art work, features, and statistics have already been completed. The literary staff is now working on organization and athletics, and Tinsah McLaughlin, business manager, is completing the advertising section.

Mary says that she would like to have more campus news. She says she will give to Elizabeth Gullford, or Mary Ball sometime within the next two weeks.

N.E.A. SPOTLIGHTS MANY PROBLEMS

TOO MANY CLUBS, TOPIC

Lectures, Panels, Sectional Meetings Feature Rally of Nation's Educators

"Youth and Its Problems" was the subject dealt with at the National Education Association Convention in New Orleans last week-end. According to Dean Kate G. Hardin, who returned Monday to Rock Hill, lectures, panel discussions and sectional meetings tended towards the objective of developing the personality and character of youth.

Of particular interest to students at Winthrop was Mrs. Hardin's report of a speech on campus clubs made by Miss Agnes White, dean of women at Indiana University.

"Our study leads us to believe that there are too many honorary groups on the average college campus," she said, "and that their functions are quite often overlapping. We have questioned members of the Mortar board about this and find that they hold the same view. The Mortar board students are generally members of several honor groups. And what do they tell us? That the expense of belonging to so many organizations has become such a burden that it far outweighs the benefits."

There were 236 college officials at the convention, each presenting for discussion his own problems. The same problems were found to exist almost everywhere.

In connection with the general subject Mrs. Hardin made special reference to a talk, "Not Yet Twenty," by Ada L. Osmack, president of Radcliffe.

Educational leaders throughout the country discussed some of the vital questions in the field of education today, such as camps for women similar to the G. O. W. P. A. work, treatment of the radical student, and the cooperative plan of residence.

Dancer, Horsewoman, Socialite Typifies Miriam Winslow

The dancer with as broad a background to draw from as Miriam Winslow is thought to be a rarity. She exemplifies the cultured, educated young American girl of varied interests, who has found a career more important than the life of an active socialite.

Miss Winslow was born in Beverly, Mass., and moved later to Boston, where she made her bow to society. She is a member of the Junior League and is an expert horse woman, having been prominent in horse show activities in the East until she decided that her time and energies had to be focused on dancing.

"I started to dance," she says, "just as I started to ride and play tennis—for fun and exercise—with no thought of a career."

Mystery Thriller to be Presented by Dan Reed

Some call it a mystery—a thriller; others call it a profound psychological study of a latent case of insanity progressing to a psychotic climax. The Town Theater bills it "An Exciting Play." Yet, the keynote of "Double Door," to be shown tonight in Main Auditorium, is naturalism.

Mrs. William C. Parker's portrayal of cold, greedy Miss Van Brel, exclamation and acrobatics by underplaying rather than overplaying, and according to the opinions of those who have seen the play, she succeeds in giving the audience a vivid and gripping picture of an untold but memorable character.

"Double Door," which was written in 1913, was designed to be a melodramatic play to be enacted in the period of 1910; the time of Wilson Poppo's and the time of Gibson and button coats and pop-top trousers. Director Daniel Reed has set the time of the story in 1927. "The carriage is at the door, madam," he has changed to "the car is waiting"; and telephone numbers are dialed rather than given to central operators.

WINSLOW LEADS DANCE TROUPE

DANCERS ACCOMPANY

Program to Include Numbers From 16th Century to Present-Day Music

Miriam Winslow, a young American dancer now touring the United States with her group, will appear here as an Artist Course number at a debut Monday evening, in Main Auditorium.

Miss Winslow has with her a pianist, Mary Campbell, and four dancers, Olive Cunnison, Mary Hughes, Jacqueline Maynard, and Nancy Moran.

An artist in movement, Miss Winslow presents a balanced, well-rounded program of solo and group dances, varied in themes for displaying the individuality of their creator. Miss Winslow's dancing combines the precision of the ballet and the power of the modern dance into a technique and a style essentially her own. Her accent is on the lighter, more brilliant aspects of the art.

For her program here, Miss Winslow will present numbers drawn from a repertory which includes a few solo-dance sketches and seventeenth century music, a Mozart Allegretto, a group of Spanish and Oriental dances, a dramatic Gopak Prelude, a swift-moving Sport Intermezzo, a waltz, a Hungarian of Hungarian inspiration, a Debussy Valse, and a group composition of the familiar Largo of Handel.

A. A. CARNIVAL TO BE STAGED

Dee Bryan and Essie Dargan have charge of the entertainment; Belle Ray, Thelma Hart, Mary, and M. E. Martin, the food committee; and Lavona Galloway, the publicity committee.

Recognition Sought for Bravery Under Hardship

The present student body of Winthrop is suffering more for poverty than strangers might think it first glance. It is the student body that has had to walk in from the street since the first of the year, begging doors and miring up in a slough of red mud.

The legislator who started it all because by distasteful social emergency muddy after they had run through the campus had no intention of choosing the rainiest winter in history to begin construction; but still that does not minimize the sacrifice. The notes of the cement mixer, etc., bother students in the afternoon when they are trying to carry on conversations, and the teachers in the morning when they are reaching a lecture class.

The attitude of Winthrop girls has been one of patience and endurance during the whole trial. They have restrained from putting words, names, and footprints in the wet cement—in regard for the esthetic senses of future Winthrop daughters as well as because it would make skating rough in case we are allowed to skate.

IT'S UP TO YOU!

Tuesday the president of the student body will be chosen for 1927-28.

For weeks you have been urged to observe your fellow-students. The nominating committee has selected carefully the students whom they feel qualify for the position.

Now consider carefully—and vote! We are not exaggerating the importance of your vote in the election. The girl you choose will be your leader. She will represent you among students from the entire United States and be your spokesman before the officials of the college.

You will choose her, and by reason of your voice in choosing her, you will feel free to praise and, more often, to blame her for her actions while in office.

WINTHROP MEALS

"Male or female, college students are always eating, planning to, or wishing they were," according to an article in a recent magazine. And Winthrop girls are no exception.

Naturally, then, students spend much of their time talking about Winthrop meals. "They're unbalanced in content." "They're not flavored right." "They're badly served." But they are as good as the average meal of the average Winthrop girl. It has even been contended that they're better than average.

Winthrop students pay an amazingly small sum for meals. And more than 1,300 meals are cooked at a time.

It's true that on occasion the meals may tend to over-work starch, for instance. It's true that the flavor can't be as perfect as it is in separately prepared dishes. It's true that tables don't get individual service.

But until more funds are available no great change can be made. Improvements in meals must be paid for. Before you complain, then, remember what the conditions are.

CAN YOU CONCENTRATE?

Can you really concentrate? When you sit down to study or to read, is it possible for you to keep your mind exactly on what you are doing until you have finished it? Or does your mind wander the well-known "million miles away," and come back to the subject only spasmodically?

If your answer to the last question is, "Yes," then there is the explanation of why you may "study" a lesson for three hours and not get a word of sense out of it. That is the explanation of why you never learned to study.

Begin now to adjust that situation; to make yourself concentrate. Study a paragraph at a time. When you have finished that, see whether you have gotten the idea in the paragraph. If you have, go on to the next; if not, re-read the paragraph, keeping your mind on its content. Be sure not to leave it until you have gotten the information that it contains.

Try this procedure, and see whether or not you can really learn and understand that lesson, and learn it in less than three hours.

WHAT ABOUT THE SWIMMING MEET?

"To what about the lack of interest in the swimming meet be attributed?" is the question pending in athletic circles on the campus.

Is it the conflicting basketball? Definitely not. The schedules are arranged so that no class practices swimming and basketball at the same hour. Besides, these two sports have been carried on during the same season for the past two years and the results were favorable.

Is it due to lack of initiative and responsibility of the class managers? No, again, is the answer. Each of the four has been all over the campus, not only asking students to come out to practice, but also pleading with some.

Could lack of ability among students be responsible? The records of the meets of the past answer this. Each year the classes have had top-notch swimmers and divers. One result were entered in the southern telegraphic meet in Florida. The lack of freshman material is not to be considered. From the time they entered until the last few weeks these girls have been working on their strokes and dives. They have a larger representation than the other classes put together. Now their interest is waning. What's the matter anyhow? Something must be done if we're to have a decent swimming meet. Is it up to you?

WINTHROP DAY BY DAY

By way of rehabbing the past—rummaging through old Johnsonians of the 29 variety we find the cause and notes the effect of recent steps:

"In the name of the class of '29 and with the permission of Dr. D. B. Johnson, I Grace Kinder, president of the class of '29 announce to all that these steps are hereby set apart for the use of the seniors only, as an outward expression of its dignity." How 'bout that?

The Irish Jig was the p-older dance step of the year '28, and does were danced in "Old Zip Coo." Questions announce that "Mother Winthrop Pushes Another Brother From Topmost Branch of Tree"—for goodness sake.

How's this for reflex action? Alice Johnson got a novelty "Valentine" basket, in season. She had a couple friends in to divide the spoils. This accomplished, the party agree to write notes to the sender—a note of thanks as it were, chain letter business. Nobody (except those concerned) knows what was said, but a week later Alice Johnson received a package of eleven half-penned boxes of chocolates from the same girl. A letter on the same small, gave instruction to cover the distribution problem.

Dean Hardin met Dorothy Dix in New Orleans last week. Winthrop was modeled somewhat on the plan of Mr. Robinson. There's barely half as many college girls as bar-maids in the United States. Trudi Schoop uses Ma Factor lipstick.

Do You Know?

- 1. Who painted the portrait of Dr. Johnson which hangs at the door of the president's office?
2. Where is the statue of Minerva in Main Building?
3. What did the Class of '29 present to Winthrop?
4. What was Miss Hall intended for when it was built?
5. Where in Main Building is the statue of the Muse of Comedy?

One Minute Interview

Miss Hester Callahan, assistant secretary to the president, was interviewed this week.

What phase of your work here is the president's office to you enjoy most?

A good bit of it is routine, you know. But I rather suppose I like the work with admission of new students, that is, during the summer, for the coming school year. You mean tabulating credits and applications?

Yes, and looking at the photographs on the application blanks.

Student Opinion

There seems to be much doubt among freshmen as to the real value of a course in library methods. A freshman has a right to doubt, but no superintendent ever regrets having studied how to use the library.

Despite the complaints, Library Science is no harder than other freshman courses, and why should anyone consider it an exception to regular college work? Naturally, no one expects to remember all the details she learns either in this course or in any other, but that fact does not lessen its value. The standardized library course for freshmen gives definite experiences in handling books and magazines, and in finding information. (Many valuable things in the library are not tabulated in the card catalog).

To know how to find information save time in doing required library work for other courses and in finding material for personal interests. It is essential in graduate work or in self-adult education.

The library is the residue of all knowledge, and the trend in modern education is to use the library more. There are in some colleges, already, independent study courses where classes are practically omitted, and work is done entirely in the library.

The idea is not altogether new; for in the 18th century Samuel Johnson wisely said, "Knowledge is of two kinds: we know a subject, or we know where we can find information upon it." Library Science, then, must have its place. W. M.

Dear Editor...

What's wrong with this college in that the chapel seats are uncomfortable, excruciatingly uncomfortable, in fact, very uncomfortable indeed.

As you have no doubt noticed for yourself, almost every chapel speaker is in possession of a Winthrop degree... and there are many more and more sophisticated speakers... makes the same set of introductory remarks... is terrified by the men of these actors... has it occurred to you that these remarks recur too regularly to be out a coincidence?

What's the use of these coaches?—That there is something terrifying in the faces of the Winthrop daughters... What is it that 1,300 Winthrop daughters have in common during chapel?—The chapel seats of course (the speaker: not having started)...

First and foremost, the seats strain downward and neither hynook, or baloon, nor any Winthrop likely to be handy to the chapels is capable of remedying it.

Secondly, there is no place to put the feet. The crack shows the slanting of the seats... the feet are in front is too small to allow the entrance of a foot, and the rows are too far apart for the occupants to rest their knees against them.

Thirdly, there is no place for the arms. There is a rest between every two seats, but the girl in the next seat is always using it.

All in all, I think it is an unfortunate situation, and if it cannot be adjusted for the sake of the student body, it should be done for the sake of our visiting speakers.

Your crusader still, JENNIE JUNIOR.

JUST LINES

Dear Mother, This is just to let you know that I arrived safely and almost in one piece. The trip back was—well, exciting to say the least. I sat on the space between the front seat and the back seat, supported by bags and legs. I think that I came out pretty well, considering that she came back in one car.

I'm on the verge of forgiving old George for not letting a fit about the cherry tree, since he was such a dear about as birthday. A friend of mine says that her little brother wants to know why all the great men have their birthdays on holidays!

By the way, I've just read the Wally Stimpson is the greatest chamber-player of all times. She jumped two men and got a king! I've found that the most interesting thing about college is that you can live next door to someone for five months and never say any greeting to her. Then suddenly, by some chance, you'll find out that she's very clever, very brilliant, or that she's had a very inveterate and exciting life. It keeps you making new friends.

Love, BALLY.

About The Gym

Seen here and there about the gym: Well, crying a volleyball net to Training School and some smart child asking where she was going to Feb. Kerubias stopping basketball before she got warmed up on account of blistered feet. Pat Jeter—out of the game and her pet sport, swimming—tough break—hope the arm's better. The second broken arm within two weeks time. Pearson and Barnwell closing their Training School basketball season just before the district tournament. One point ended it all—Miss Clague fearing that one of her many archers will hit the chicken that meanders calmly around behind the targets—moving targets—but a shot like that would be purely accidental. Staunchest upholder of the recreational sports club: Grace Penderbark.

Class rivalry, which has been long forgotten, can now be brought out, dusted off, and put on display while the five cage teams go into action every afternoon next week. Sister games will be played off Monday and the usual senior-junior, sophomore-freshman battles will be kept until Friday. Come along and bring somebody with you. The fight is on!

But nearer at hand than the games is something just as important—Athletic Association Carnival. Immediately after the show, five minutes after the show, presents—colts. Collect your pennies and join us there!

Before we have time to congratulate the new staff of The Tiger, Oscar comes through with a crack about as funny as those made by some of the old staff members.

But The Tiger does carry a few items of interest: The campus store at Duke University had $15,000 worth of matches every year, at a cost that ranges from $10 to $100. A recent news item says that the most popular magazine for new students are Collier's and Esquire, and for women students they are Good Housekeeping, Ladies Home Journal, Cosmopolitan and McCall's.

The favorite toothpastes are Equibee and Ipana; and Lux, Woodbury's, and Lifebuoy are tops in soap. The leading candy bar is Hershey's, and the ever-popular "oo" leads the list of beverages.

There's a sophomore co-ed at L. B. U. in the College of Agriculture. After graduation she plans to raise beef and dairy cattle on a 600-acre plantation, with a wholesale horticulture and florist business as a sideline.

The one from The Marver Club is printed in case it hasn't appeared in this column before: You kissed and told - But that's all right. The guy you told Called up last night.

From The Two Echo comes across news that Winthropians are advised to read—take it for what it's worth, but don't change any standards before careful consideration: A little blood co-ed at the University of Utah graduated the "missing strike" that paved the way for similar movements on many of the college campuses throughout the country.

During a laboratory class she pressed a glass slide to her lip, placed it under a microscope and screamed when she saw millions of bacteria dividing before her eyes. Co-ed's all over the campus took action and declared a "missing strike" that included most of the girls. "Oscar" who refused to join in the anti-occupation drive rationalized to appease the anger of striking females and to retain their per standard of exchange with the Utah men.

"Kissing may not be so dangerous if you use the right technique," argued one germ-drying co-ed. Another suggested that although bacteria may "go to town" under the microscope they are pretty helpless in the dark. Angered at being deprived of romance, the man organized an Occasion League to combat the realistic women. The league's first step was to call a strike on all dates.

This trend brought matters to a head—science versus romance! There were no two ways about it. Since the men were unyielding, the girls had to "kiss and make up."

And The Davidsonian contributes: Who's the class thing I know HD to I I v hr; H to H to H to H; HD to H to H to H; HD to H to H to H?

It appears that all the South Carolina College met down in Auburn, Alabama, at a conference of the International Relations Clubs from colleges and universities in the Southeast.

More than $1,000 worth of valuables were stolen from fraternity houses on the campus of Washington and Lee University last semester.

Three of the main rooms of the Biology building at the University of Notre Dame will be re-constructed to afford an even temperature year around.

The Iowa State Student attributes this one to a faculty member: The one about the girl who was so dumb (she didn't read the ad in Esquire) that she thought "40 was the Pope's telephone number, but this time The Telephone carries one on the nose! Time and again there have been numerous descriptions of women, but this time The Telephone carries one on the nose! Men are likeorks. Some will pop the question. Others have to be drawn out. Other colleges being as much perturbed over exams, and their aftermath, as Winthrop, it is not unusual to find poems such as this one from The Appalachian: I think that I shall never see A "D" so lovely as a "D". A "B" whose rounded form is pressed Upon the records of the blessed. A "C" comes easily—and yet It isn't easy to forget. "D" is made by fools like me, But only the best can make a "B". The Mississippi College's simile for a bright future seems to hit a sore spot— With as much future as a moth in a snail's march.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD IS BUSY

Policy-Making Group Elects Editors of Johnsonian and Journal

The Faculty Publications Board will announce its selection of next year's Johnsonian and Journal hands in the next issue of The Johnsonian. This board, established at the beginning of the year, is primarily a policy-making group, in keeping with the organization of campus journalism in most of the large colleges and universities.

Winthrop's Publications Board consists of James P. Kinard, chairman, Dr. Paul M. Wheeler, Dr. A. M. Graham, and Mr. Ray Fur, executive secretary. With the addition of Student Government and Junior Class presidents, this group receives itself into an election board. At no other time are these students active on the board.

C.C.C. and N. Y. A. Provide Means for Education

One out of every fifteen college students in the United States is earning part of his expenses through employment in the N. Y. A. program, according to the Associated College Press bulletin. At Winthrop there are 194 students with N. Y. A. scholarships. The college has an allotment of $24,000 a year.

Besides giving scholarships in colleges and secondary schools, the government is encouraging activities in the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The OOO enrolls number 350,000 and the official figures indicate that 75 per cent of these young men are taking educational courses. Not merely elementary and vocational courses, but in the foothills, the forests and the mountains thousands of OOO boys are occupying their evenings and week-ends with regular college and university instruction.

The bulk of the college work done by 1,500 of the OOO, is, of necessity, through correspondence and extension courses. More than 200 colleges, including the nation's leading universities, cooperate with the Educational Advisors of the OOO to make college courses available for the enrollees.

All of the OOO educational work is voluntary. There is no role or regulation requiring enrollees to study. They are encouraged to do so, and an educational adviser is provided for each camp, but there are no troop officers to force the boys to attend classes.

Almost 100 colleges have awarded scholarships to OOO enrollees. College College, for example, offered one, but the president of the college after interviewing six applicants for the first selection was so impressed that he gave two scholarships instead of one. One lady OOO enrollee received a four-year scholarship to Tufts Medical School. This scholarship is worth $1,000 a year.

Spectator Speculates on Sideline Sidelights

BY LORENA GALLOWAY

Sophomores scored one on the pep meet; the Juniors scored one on the hockey matches; the big question now is who'll get the next mark of victory. From all appearances the Juniors will double their score by taking the pending basketball game.

The Frosh have the best material on the floor, but bring new at college basketball they're not clicking yet. The Sophs have an excellent chance at the cup, if Kinard is able to play. The seniors really should win because it's their last chance at a goal they've never reached—and they have the best line-up; but they're practically thrown away the title by lack of practice. The Juniors will win because they never give up!

Speculations about possibilities of results of each game are running rampant. Monday the seniors will have their hands full downing the Sophs, while the fast-stopping Juniors will breeze down upon the bewildered Frosh and leave them more than bewildered. Tuesday will see the seniors give their all to eke out a victory over the Frosh and a neck and neck game between the Juniors and Sophs. The grand finale Friday—seniors will hold their rivals a point below until the last few minutes—the Juniors will win by a narrow point. Equally as exciting will be the Sophs vs. Frosh squabble. A tie or one point either way will result. So much for the actual journey—and the cup goes to the Juniors!

Broadway Atmosphere On Staid Auditorium Platform

The cast of "Alb's Pair" has definitely decided that despite the advantages of attending a Women's College, Winthrop would do well to admit male students, if only to take part in the annual Junior Politics production.

At the last practice the students taking the male roles came out on the stage fifteen times to rehearse in fifteen different beam voices (which under the slightest provocation turned into sweet soprano), but left for home deponently, with the aid and realization of their other femininity.

But rehearsals go on—with Jean McLaurin and assistant Virginia Workman in the roles of hard-boiled directors driving on the chorus girl in the typical Broadway manner.

And all the spectators—undivided guests—noticed the makings of a top performance that will be given March 25—the date when apparatus will be accomplished. English majors will be fast-stopping show girls, and "stylish stouts" will be negro mammas.

PHOTOGRAPHERS NOTICE!

Classes in Kodak developing will be conducted every Tuesday and Thursday from 4-4 in Johnson Hall Basement. The Interest Group of the Y is sponsoring the classes and Evelyn Martin will be in charge.

Marguerite Zeigler led the discussion on morals of a college girl at the regular meeting of the Secondary Education Club last Thursday afternoon. A vote was taken on new members, but no final action was decided on.

Miss Winthrop Goes A' Shopping

Well, girls, here's some good news! Everything seems to be very blue this season (and I hardly think there's any "out" now that the styles all say "spring"). Ethel's window is almost entirely devoted to navy blue, and attractively scattered around are cut little bunches of flowers (which are the thing now) and pretty gay hats and pocket-books for accessories. There is a counter of lovely vivid-colored scarfs inside to brighten up our own blue a bit.

Blue prints seem to hold sway in the window of Bell's and my! they are pretty. The new array of evening dresses upstairs makes us think longingly of Junior-Senior.

Rayless has just the thing to protect us from spring showers—those handy ellipsoidal slickers and umbrellas.

The thought of getting alone makes us think of Mrs. Anne's. Just take a look at Ethel's smart display.

By the way, the ice cream at Good's is still good! and those doughnuts at Carolina Sweet's touch the spot—treat yourself to some with coffee. Have you tried the plate lunch at Phillips' for only 25¢? Do it some Saturday.

When you finish this limited mail, let Ethel's block it for you—they do a grand job. Also let them or Rock's or Pauline's Cleaners keep your uniforms clean at reasonable prices—bringing school seniors especially should take heed.

After walking all over town, stop at the Baker's Shoe Renury, and they'll fix the heels on your shoes up dandy! Then if you get a nice, big, juicy apple at the Florida Fruit Store on your way home, the week won't be so bad.

Folks Back Home!

Winthrop Students will be rendering a service to Johnsonian advertisers, including this bank, if after they read the paper they will mail it to their homes.

For instance, this bank enjoys patronage from many communities in North Carolina where adequate banking facilities are not available, loans as well as deposits. Many parents of Winthrop students live in such communities. This bank has made quite a number of Federal Housing Loans to homes and other property owners in this and in other sections of the State.

Frequently many others would take advantage of our facilities if they knew they could finance the repairing, remodeling, and repainting of, and other improvements to their homes and other property. These loans are made for a period of three to five years. The three year loans are more popular, and are repayable at the rate of $2.50 per month for each $100 borrowed.

This bank also makes loans on cash surrender or loan values of life insurance policies. Frequently your father or brother may be paying more than 4% interest, the rate this bank charges on life insurance loans.

Mail this issue of The Johnsonian to the folks "back home." You may be rendering the home folks a service as well as a service to this bank and your advertisers. It goes without saying that it will be appreciated if you call attention to this advertisement.

"Pigskin Parade" to be Featured here Saturday

"Pigskin Parade," with Stuart Elvick, Fatsy Kelly, Arlene Juden, Jack Haley, and the Youth Club Boys, will be shown in Main Auditorium on Saturday night, at 8:30.

A mistake made by Yale's publicity director in inviting a tank town Texas college to send its football team to the Bowl for a game, is the reason for much comedy, music, dancing, frolics, and excitement. It brings Jack Haley, indiscreetly supported by wife Fatsy Kelly, into the picture as coach of Texas State University.

Music Faculty To Appear On Program

Mr. Emmett Gore will conduct a violin round-table; Miss Ruth Stephenson will read a paper; and Miss Janzette Roth will lead an organ round table at the State Music Teachers' meeting in Columbia today.

English Department Heads

so that you make A's and still have time for outside activities?"

"I study just as short a time as possible and get as much done in that period as I can. A short relaxation period between various activities or after two hours of study; does wonder to make the following time worthwhile."

"Do you think chee-chee-ing is necessary to the student who makes A's?"

"It depends on what 'chee-chee-ing' means. If it implies paying close attention in class, sincere interest, and a manner never antagonistic, absolutely 'Yes'."

"Do you have any suggestions for C students?"

"About the best way to pull up grades is to study every minute day a little more than is required. By following this schedule the beauty of the dawn at six-thirty and of the moon at twelve are guaranteed to produce an ordered, quiet mind."

Maudie Catherine Rible and Martha Miller Moore are A students. They were not at home. We were glad they were not at home. They are probably glad they were not at home. You are probably glad they were not at home.

DEBABELIZATION CHAPEL TOPIC

Dr. Wheeler Discusses Basic English as Means of Facilitating Understanding

"Debabilization" was the subject of the talk by Dr. Paul Morley Wheeler, head of the English department, at the regular chapel program Wednesday.

Dr. Wheeler elaborated on the idea that it had become necessary to world peace that a universal language be invented, and that Basic English seemed the most practical solution.

Primer of A Students as Seen Through the Eyes of C Students

ROSE B. UDENCK
LOIS YOUNG

There are eleven A students at Winthrop. We have met the eleven A students. We talked with them. We asked them five questions. They took five hours to answer the questions. They said that their minds went blank when they tried to answer questions.

We felt sorry for the A students, so we answered the questions for them. They told us they did not like our answers. Some did not like our questions either. Some would not say what they wanted to. We think they will be A students next year.

We interviewed Virginia Walker first. This is what Virginia Walker said:

"I attribute my success to brains and eggs—my brains and the eggs we have for breakfast. I have no advice to give C students—nobody gave me any advice when I was a C student."

"When I heard the news I called home and told Daddy not to let it get around that I'm a slay."

Next we went to see Maud Minter Turner. She thinks concentration is very important. She thinks high school experience is important. She always really tries to study. She likes to have time to play, too. She does not approve of chee-chee-ing, especially for other girls to do it. She finds that the best way to study is to go to bed, and change her position every five minutes. She had some advice to C students. She said, "Don't make A's—you might get mixed up with Johnsonian reporters."

After this one was interviewed, we went to Katie Coker.

She thinks her teachers made a mistake.

We then went to Crystal Theodore, who gave us candy and no answers. She was the only one who would own up that she has to prepare her lessons and study her books. She says the best time to study is right after the class.

Dorothy Rogers was the next girl we saw.

Just like all the other A students, she does not approve of chee-chee-ing. She says it is all in the way one studies.

Mary O'Dell tried to answer our questions, too. She said, "This is the first time I've made all A's, and I don't know exactly how it happened." She finds that she has very little leisure time because of her work and outside activities. She's against chee-chee-ing, too.

We stopped her. She thought we were students. She never had attributed her success. She finds outside activities are conducive to good study and work. She believes in girls going out for sports.

We understood why Louise Pant is an A student. We did not have to ask Louise, "Isn't it so that—?" We asked Louise, "To what do you contribute your success?" She answered reasonably, "About half a peanut butter sandwich every day for an hour, I eat a whole one before each class. For breakfast on exam days I always oatmeal (my mother says it's brain food), and two prunes instead of one."

"How do you apponize your time?"

We then went to Crystal Theodore, who gave us candy and no answers. She was the only one who would own up that she has to prepare her lessons and study her books. She says the best time to study is right after the class.
