Editorial Asides

Acknowledgements
We want to take this opportunity to acknowledge the aid of the journalism class in putting out this issue of The Johnsonian. With the retirement of the seniors, the staff consisted of five members, including the editor. We are also grateful to the retiring editor for her help and encouragement, and to Loren Galloway for "covering" athletics in spite of her retirement.

Seniority
With this issue Seniority, edited by Harriet Morgan, becomes a regular feature of The Johnsonian. Because of the large size of the student body and comparatively small size of the paper, the news will have to be restricted. Contributions to this department may be made through The Johnsonian box, in Main Building across from the post office, by submitting signed accounts of such things as club parties, parties, or unusual week-end trips.

Marshals
The action taken by the three Literary Societies in giving up the tradition and honor of having marshals selected from their ranks is commendable. We approve the entire new plan, with the exception of the fact that there are no students on the committee to select the marshals.

It seems to us that the position would carry more honor if both the administrators and students' opinions were obtained. Besides, the trend is definitely toward more student participation in the administration of student activities.

Speech
The enunciation and vocabulary of five-year-old Donald Veale, son of last Sunday's speakers, somewhat astounded us Southerners. Even at college age many of us have not the fluency of speech that this Wisconsin-born youngster exhibits.

U. W. LEAVELL AT WINTHROP APRIL 12-17

Peabody Professor To Speak At Spring Teacher Exchange

DIRECTED BY MITCHELL
120 Seniors to Obtain Experience in Actual Teaching

Dr. Ulin W. Leavell, professor of education at George Peabody College for Teachers will be the principal speaker at the Spring Teacher Exchange Program, April 12-17, according to Prof. O. M. Mitchell, director of Winthrop Training School. Approximately 120 seniors are expected to participate in the Spring Exchange.

Dr. Leavell will continue a discussion he began last April on "The Place of Tool and Content Subjects in the Modern School Program." During the past five years Dr. Leavell has been actively engaged either as participant or adviser in the revision work that has been undertaken in schools in several Southern states.

"From his position on the firing line, his conclusions are most valuable," Mr. Mitchell writes to the prospective exchange teachers. Last year 176 seniors participated in the spring and fall exchange program. These students change places with professional teachers in order to obtain practical experience in field work. Mr. Mitchell estimates that the 1937 spring program will include 120 Winthrop seniors. Exchanges will be made on primary, intermediate, and high school levels. Special subjects included are school music, home economics, commerce, physical education, and art.

No Johnsonian Next Week
The next regular issue of The Johnsonian comes out April 9. Next Friday there will be no paper. On Thursday, March 25, a twelve-page high school edition will take the place of the regular issue.

Vienna Choir Boys Here Tonight in Second Concert

Chorus Started Six Years After America's Discovery Has Grown From Eight to Eighty; Boys Act Adult, Feminine Roles

When the Vienna Choir Boys appear on the stage of Main Auditorium tonight at 8, they will sing to their second Winthrop audience. The choir is the fifth concert tour of America, and was an Artistic Course number at Winthrop years ago. The history of the Vienna Choir Boys, sometimes known as the Winter-Spring chorists, began six years after the discovery of America, in 1492, when the monarch Maximilian decreed that a daily mass must be sung by a chorus of boys, and ordered that the Court Orchestral train and take such a body. This institution has continued generation after generation, growing from eight boys to eighty, many

Exchange Leader

DR. U. W. LEAVELL, who will again be principal speaker for Teacher Exchange Week. Outstanding as an educator, writer, speaker, and gentleman, Dr. Leavell, a young man, is looked on as a "coming man" in American education.

VOTE NEW PLAN FOR SELECTION OF MARSHALS

Group To Be Chosen From Entire Class; Bases, Grades and Beauty

A plan providing for the election of marshals from the entire junior class was passed at a joint meeting of the Wade Hampton, Winthrop, and Curry Literary societies in Johnson Hall Monday at 8:30.

Fourteen girls who have a scholastic average of B, a high personal contact, and an attractive appearance will be chosen as college marshals from the rising junior class, according to the new plan. The president, the president-elect, the dean, the bursar, and the registrar shall make up the committee for choosing marshals.

Under the old plan, college marshals were chosen from the three literary societies. Three rising juniors in each dormitory were selected by the student, the president, the president-elect, the registrar, and the bursar. The societies also voted at this same meeting to continue the custom of literary society night during commencement.

Anapaestis Frighten Postice Student

Kathrine Hunley recently established Dr. Wheeler's postice class by her account of how she was chased by anapaestis.

She admits that it was a dream, but claims that it will have a no less deep and lasting effect on her than if it had been real. She was unable to describe an anapaestis in detail, but recalls enough of her dream to know that they are monstrous.

SUMMER SCHOOL BULLETIN COMES OFF PRESS SOON

Winter Session Advantages Offered June 7 to July 30 at Winthrop

With the Winthrop Summer School bulletin ready to come off the press, plans for the 1937 summer session are taking definite shape.

Directed by Dr. W. D. Maggins, head of the education department, summer school will convene June 7 for an eight weeks' session ending July 30. It will be possible for students to earn a maximum of nine credits, taking three subjects eight weeks. Six semester hours of work can be completed in six weeks taking three subjects, but credit towards a Winthrop degree will not be given for this work.

In addition to the courses that will be offered in 20 fields, special instruction will be available in music and penmanship, and special observation opportunities will be provided.

Entertainment, concerts, speakers, and conferences make up a varied program for summer school students.

Mrs. John Hargrove, president of the alumnae association and Joyce Hall, business, will serve as dean of women.

Most of the advantages and few of the rules of a regular winter session are features of summer school. Dormitory life, free books, placement bureau service, are available to the student. Practically the only rules are those forbidding smoking in the dormitories and requiring women students to be in at 10:30 p. m.

Visiting instructors for summer school are Dr. W. A. Barton, Miss Elizabeth Eaters, and Prof. R. C. Gurtis in education; and Mr. Edwin Hughes, guest instructor in music.

Freshman Cabinet Sets Objectives

Plans to Sponsor Inter-Dormitory Freshman Meetings and to Have Picnic This Year

To have a picnic and to sponsor visiting of freshman groups in different dormitories were decided upon as objectives of Freshman Cabinet at their second meeting in Johnson Hall on Monday at 6:30.

The group selected Mary Sanders as chairman of the program committee for future meetings. Betty Todd, Betty Winners, and Libby Hopper were appointed as the food committee for the party at the Shack by Hattie Stone, president of the Cabinet.

So that the Freshman groups from the five dormitories might know each other better, they decided to have at least two units meet together each week.

Kneecap Receives Basketball Cup For Sophomores

Nell Jackson, chairman of the basketball club, presented the basketball cup to Mary Kneecap, sophomore manager, and announced the 1937 variety in chapel Wednesday, March 10. The sophomores won the championship by winning all three games.

The variety members were chosen because of value to their teams and perfection of basketball skills. The following were selected: Seniors—Doris Yance, "Hen" Barwell, Nell Jackson; Juniors—Marjorie McKeekin and Lee Danister; Sophomores—Mary Kneecap, Dolly Sledge, and Grace Funderburk.

Heterogeneous Basement Is Campus Hodgepodge

The home of Old Hall, workroom for The Johnsonian, Journal, and Tattler staffs, classrooms, home economics research headquarters, the college canteen, the town girls hangout, and a general upholstery factory, plus stockrooms, storerooms, and restrooms for the Y ontological staff make up the hodgepodge that is the basement of Main Building.

All these things serve as integral parts in Winthrop's varied program. Be it teaching, debating, news writing, loungeing, marching, tid-bitting, furniture-making, mimeographing, or house-cleaning—one can always find something "going on" in the basement of Main Building. Clio Hall and the upholstery room once served at the college kitchen and dining room. What is now The Johnsonian and Journal offices was at one time the college gym, and the storeroom across from those offices was then a swimming pool. After the new dining room and gym were built, the basement in Main Building was used for classrooms. Then, later on, when Winthrop Training School "carried out" in Main Building, the town girls' room was used for a kindergarten. The alumnae office and the extension department were also located in the basement at one time. After the Winthrop Training School and Kinard Hall were built, the basement in Main Building was deserted and used only as a dumping place for books and junk. As a center of college life today, the basement of Main Building lacks student-lineating effect, but it has substantial comforts and conveniences for many phases of college life.

FRIDAY, MARCH 12, 1937

JANUS

In this our first issue of The Johnsonian we are at the point in our college career when, like the Roman god Janus...

Retrospecting, we see standards that we must maintain—standards of progress; ideals and traditions that we must reverse; and true leaders that we must follow.

For these reasons we face the future eagerly to see what it holds. But realizing that the future will produce what we make it produce, we have established two goals for the coming year:

(1) To make The Johnsonian in every way representative of Winthrop College.

(2) To assume our responsibility in building Winthrop in the right direction.

Perhaps our aim is exceeding our grasp; but with the good foundation that has been laid by preceding editors, with the help of an able staff, the counsel of the faculty adviser and Publications Board, and the cooperation and constructive criticism of the student body, faculty, and administration, we think that much can be achieved during the year ahead.

ARE YOU COMING TO SUMMER SCHOOL?

Students have been urged since the beginning of the second semester to let summer school authorities know what courses are wanted for next summer.

The need for this is obvious. The summer school curriculum committee must have this information in order to offer courses that students want.

Early summer school planning has two chief advantages for a student. She may be able to take courses that are not offered in the regular session, or she may fill her schedule with required subjects in order to be able to take desired electives in the regular session.

On the other hand if a student does not plan her work and let the summer school curriculum committee know what subjects she wants, she may have to elect subjects just because "they come at the right time," and next winter she may not have a place in her schedule for electives because it is filled with required courses.

A tentative summer school curricula will be found elsewhere in this paper. We suggest that, if you are considering coming to summer school, you examine the list carefully; and if there are any courses you want added, see the summer school director at once.

NEW REGULATION SHIFTS RESPONSIBILITY

Recently a regulation has gone into effect which states that the administration will excuse from classes "no student, neither a single student nor a group of students... to attend meetings of any kind."

A careful analysis of the situation reveals the need for this action. The administration could only at the expenditure of a great deal of time and energy determine the wisdom of allowing each student who requests permission to miss classes to do so.

Thus, rather than meaning that except for the permissible three cuts and for absences due to illness or emergencies students will not be allowed to miss classes, the new rule means that students who are behind with their class work will have to work harder if they expect to be granted special privileges.

The contentions of certain students that the new regulation will mean the end of campus conferences are absurd. The majority of the faculty will judge students' requests fairly and impartially.

The value of the new regulation lies, not in the fact that there will be fewer cuts, but in the fact that the cuts permitted will be better deserved.

According to The Florida Alliance the University of Florida originated the idea of selling scholarship fund tags for the purpose of raising funds for much-needed scholarships.

So far the total for the 1937 scholarship tags has already passed the mark set at $200. To date 2,000 tags have been sold by the tag agencies throughout the state.

WINTHROP DAY BY DAY

Diary: Pullest day in the history of the nation. Classes all morning. Classes all afternoon. A fair sprinkling of tests at intervals—nice tests—the kind where the answer is either true or false, and all you have to do is decide which.

Chase celebrities and write "ephemeral articles for ephemeral papers" all late afternoon. Attend one meeting or another all night, and somehow manage to get into suitable clothes to fall stiffly into bed in the early morning hours.

Fun figures: Virginia Workman and Lett Young. Heard in Grammar class: "Your handling of pronouns is an index to your personality." I fear for my notes.

Now that most of the major notes have been placed in the hands of certain rising seniors, we can begin our annual woful lament over the lack of material in the senior class of two years hence.

"Blir' McCuen's 'Pop' must had one of those fits when he saw the campus covered with jeopards after tenderly bringing a bouquet of the same all the way from Laurens!

Personalities

Annie Rosenblum... from Laurens... small... sense of humor... generous... unique sense... retiring editor of The Johnsonian... Curry Literary Society... Kappa Delta Phi... Book and Key... Senior Order... Secondary Education Club... Press Club... Writers' Club... Delta Ipsilon Kappa social club... Ambition—to do professional newspaper work.

About The Gym

Seen here and there about the gym: Min Bell and her photography class taking action pictures of tennis, basketball, swimming, and archery.

For a few minutes the senior players of the Fresh-Soph game... Rose Runkel snapping into it in closing... Helen Ferris arriving soon... Sophomore class having a pep meet after the victorious basketball season.

Excursions from basketball finals: Mary Kinsey piled up a score of 43 points in the spin-frank wrangle. Incidentally she missed the hoop only five times. Some spectator was so intrigued by this wizard that a record of every shot was kept.

Kinsey Evans looped the ball into the basket from the center of the court—was so surprised that she almost forgot to shut her mouth... Outcomes of the final: juniors edged out a 24-22 win over the seniors; soph overhauled frank with a score of 21-27.

Congratulations to the eight selected for varsity. Forward: Mary Kinsee, Nell Jackson, Margie McMeekin; Guards: Ben Barnwell, Della Young, Grace Penderburg, Dolly Bledsoe, and Lee Daniels.

This week sees the end of 1937 basketball. Dormitory tourney has been played at 12-30 and again at 4-30 all week. Championship team will come through today. Winthrop is the best as far as this sport is concerned... Thursday saw the crowd that has been practicing and playing since Christmas at the shack—the banquet of the season!

A banquet to Chairman Nell! Swimming practices have been more successful during the last week but enthusiasm is still lacking. The date of March 29th has been set for the meet. The chances to practice can be counted on the hands. All team managers are urging students to come out and put the meet over in a big way.

Spelling bees are "coming hot" again at the University of Baltimore. Prizes are being awarded to the winner and two runners-up in the contest sponsored by the Student Activities Association.

S.A.F.T. Brightens Eyes of Over-Worked Girls

The S. A. F. T. has been welcomed. Has been entertained, has departed.

Those girls who, until March 8, spent their days and evenings before sewing machines in the Home Economics rooms, or behind the typewriters in the Commerce rooms, found it indeed pleasant to spend their days and evenings outside the doors in Kinnard Hall. They admit they found it a bit inconvenient when in the midst of reading a delightful book or having just caught his eye and smiled a smile, his opponent finished talking and the near-acquaintance had to get up and begin debating.

Most of the girls, though, say it was much more fun just to watch the heated discussions through the doors, noting particularly the friendly words of the debaters to the judges—when they thought no one was looking.

The victors returned time and again their good fortune in being able to come here—from the time they first read the "Welcome B. A. F. T." signs (some of which had adjectives written in pencil, such as "is you" and "Come see me sometimes") to the moment before they left to spend the last shift last night at Oatwaba. A few were gallant enough to say that it was being at Winthrop that made the conversation so attractive; others, who confessed to being quite frank, said that any conversation would be attractive, especially when the arguments were exciting them from all angles—including tests.

One boy went so far as to say that he didn't know where he was going in his last school. The other three boys had told him they needed a fourth, and he thought he was going to a bridge tournament; and when he got here they gave him a brief case to carry around with him, the words "S.A.F.T." were on it because the shirt inside might have gotten soiled.

Dear Editor...

The trouble with this school is that I don't know when to check out. I have been a member of this institution for three years and have studied with diligence all its precepts. During that time I have learned that one does not check out to go to the little store and that one does check out to go to town. Otherwise my knowledge is vague.

Even after concluding that it is an inevitable requirement to check out upon going to town, one is not definite as to how. To town for supper is different from town to town to dinner. To town to the second floor of the postoffice is different from town to town to the first floor. No doubt there are other differences.

Dear Editor, I have questions to ask you that are of importance to every student at Winthrop. Please do consider that they are merely rhetorical.

- 1. Does one check out to go to church?
2. Does one check out to go to dinner after church?
3. Does one check out to go to the tea rooms near the campus?
4. Does one check out to go for a walk out on the Charlotte highway?
5. Does one check out to go to meetings in Joyce Hall?
6. Does one check out to go visiting in homes on Oakland Avenue, College Avenue, Park Avenue, etc.?
7. When one makes out leave of absence slips does one leave the carbon copy and the original? If so, where? If not, which copy?

I believe that an editorial explaining the basic principle of these checkings out would be of great value to students and administration.

Yours, BERTIE JOHNSON

JUST LINES

A sudden inspiration of the roommate caused us to spend the entire morning in rearranging the room. We moved all the furniture in every possible position and the funny papers always left it ended with the same arrangement. The result of a morning of gymnastics are a sprained finger and a room silence between me and the roommate.

Heading all 1,200 girls and the 83 members of the faculty discussing "Gone With the Wind" for seven months was just too much. I at last succumbed and have been "going" ever since.

It's peculiar the way everyone seems to pick one week-end to come visiting. The campus has been overwhelmed with fellow students, alumni, and friends. In fact they filled up all the benches on front campus and the amphitheatre. We were reduced to sitting on the athletic field and gazing at the empty grandstand.

Love, SALLY.

Five-Year Old Rates Winthrop Above Clemson

"I like Winthrop girls better than Clemson boys," five-year-old Donald Weale laughed, throwing his head back and tapping his toe. Donald ("Doc" "Daddy"), the son of the Rev. D. E. Weale, of Clemson, spoke at vespers Sunday night.

"Winthrop has a better building (Johnson Hall) than Clemson, but Clemson has more buildings," he replied when asked what he liked about Winthrop better than Clemson. He thought that Johnson Hall and too many lights, though.

"Clemson boys can go and fight Winthrop girls," Donald volunteered enthusiastically in reply to no particular question, and refused to elaborate on the subject.

When asked where he acquired his northern accent, he explained that he had lived in Flint, Michigan. He also told that he was five years old, adding, "Last year I was four—I got you that time" and took another longer-than-usual breath.

He the lobby of Johnson Hall. When he came back this time he explained that he had on new shoes and they hurt his feet.

Donald was enthusiastic about football and basketball. In fact, Donald was enthusiastic about almost everything Sunday night. He likes to eat popcorn and drink Coca-Cola at Clemson games, and gave a vivid description of the recent basketball game between Clemson and Duke, which "Cockin" won.

After several attempts of his parents to get him away, Donald grabbed the door, waving his hand and saying, "I'll see you sometime when we can play a game of football."

Canvassing Campuses

Inconspicuous as it may seem, this little poem was taken from The Davidsonian:

Lady's Lament: I never met a guy like him, he sweet and yet so odd, either he's a gentleman, or else I'm growing old.

The College Heights Herald was struck with this one, and so were we:

Blush: I was struck by the beauty of her hand. I tried to kiss her. As I say, I was struck by the beauty of her hand.

The Blue Stacking in cruising about campuses has discovered a professor at the University of Alabama who reminds us of one of our own faculty members. It would be superfluous to mention his name:

Serely reclining in his chair, a University of Alabama professor extracted a rubber band from his pocket, and slyly ripped off a piece of paper from an envelope. Then he placed the rubber band and brought his weapon into firing position. Every eye in the room turned to the prof and everyone held his breath. Slowly the prof drew a head on one of the electric lights in the room and 3-2-1-up went the missile. It hit a desk center. Then the rubber-band-shooter snared a grinning countenance on the class and bragged, "That was nothing. You ought to see me handle a slug shot."

The Davidsonian says it:

Blind... Wake up... Wake up quick! Can't? Why not? Ain't asleep!

The Davidsonian brings in an economical note in this bit of information:

The same scientist who availed that Wisconsin co-eds use enough lipstick each year to paint a barn, now comes forward with the following:

The university heating system would use twenty-three less tons of coal this year, if students were allowed to smoke inside the buildings. And the total energy content of all this tobacco is about 100,000,000,000 calories.

To maintain our democratic policy, we fell impelled to give the opinion of The Upper Iowa Collegian, despite our feelings on the poem:

Oh Yeah? Mom's follicles are many Women have had teeth Everything they say, And everything they do.

We're wondering if we haven't copied this one from The Blues before. But we think it's worth trying anyway:

A divinity student named Tweedie Once wouldn't accept a degree. It's worth enough being Tweedie, Without being Tweedie, D. D.

The Two-Echo definitely establishes the fact that there expressions are a little trite:

Who Said It First? An apple a day—Twee; Hold that "line"—Daniel; Never say die—McMachman; You be like—Jumbo.

Physical and mental diseases are not major causes of student failure, according to Dr. A. B. Edwards, professor of psychology at the University of Georgia. Most of the students who get failing grades, he says, get them in courses which do not interest them.

The Two-Echo says this one's original. We've certainly never run across this name before:

Hotel Ballroom: Facing Mr. Watchmespivitchowsky, Mr. Watchmespivitchowsky: What initials, please?

VIENNA CHOIR BOYS HERE TONIGHT

The repertoire of the Saengerklub includes the operas "Hansel and Gretel" by Humperdick, "The Apothecary" by Haydn, "The Opera Rehearsal" by A. Lortzing, and "Wedding by Lanternlight" by Offenbach, many church and national choral works, as well as arias and songs.

Eligibility to membership in the Saengerklub is subject to strict standards. Applicants must not only show marked vocal and musical abilities, but must manifest high qualities of character. At a recent election when only three places in the choir were vacant, more than six hundred boys clamored for admission. When the times comes, as it always does, for a boy's voice to change, he is transferred from the choir to other musical activities, but his maintenance is secure for three years thereafter.

In all of the operas they perform, they appear in full costume and play all of the adult and feminine roles.
