Women's Tennis: Looking Good

By Becky Ferguson

The 1977 season for the women's tennis team is well underway with WC, 4-1.

The team's first match was held on March 3 when the Erskine College team traveled here. The WC team won the match 5-4, losing only one doubles match and with split singles sets.

The second match was held on March 14 at Coker College. The WC team defeated Coker 7-2, with five singles sets played and two doubles. March 21, the WC team was defeated at Erskine College by a close score of 5-4.

On March 24, Western Carolina was defeated by WC, 6-1. In singles competition, Lisa Forrester (WC's number 1 ranked player), defeated F. Wilson 6-4, 6-7, 7-6. Robin Litsker (2), defeated J. Cusomah 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. Jane Polansky (3) lost her sets 6-7, 6-6. Sheila Stewart (4), defeated D. Black 7-5, 6-1. Athena Manos (5) defeated S. Keup 6-3, 6-1. Kim Collins (6) defeated F. Moore 6-2, 6-2.

In doubles competition, Forrester and Litsker defeated Black and Keesey 6-1, 6-0. Polansky and Stewart defeated Styles and Quinn 6-3, 6-1. Manos and Collins defeated Epton and Lambert 6-4, 6-4.

On March 25, WC again won by defeating Mars Hill College in a close match, 5-4.

In singles competition, Forrester defeated J. Self 7-6, 6-3. Litsker lost to V. McGlosken 3-6, 6-7. Polansky was defeated by R. Almond 2-6, 6-4. Manos rallied to defeat J. Harrison 7-6, 6-4. Collins also won her set against M. Porter, 6-1, 6-2.

In the doubles sets, Forrester and Litsker defeated McGlosken and Self 6-4, 6-4. Polansky and Stewart lost to Almond and Branden 2-6, 4-6. Manos and Collins came back to defeat Harrison and Davey 6-1, 4-6, placing Winthrop at the top with a slim margin of 5-4.

According to Tennis Coach Ann Chambers, "The players have steadily improved with their experience and have shown promise for the State Tournament, they will be more consistent in their individual games. I think we have a strong, young team and play should be much improved."

Tuition Hiked!
New Gym On The Way

By Sheila Nolan

The Winthrop College Board of Trustees, on March 23, gave Winthrop officials permission to seek legislative approval to sell a 72.2 acre tract of land located between Cherry Road and Eden Terrace, according to Dr. P.L. Brownley, provost.

According to Brownley, Winthrop officials will also seek permission from the legislature to keep the proceeds from the sale of the land in order to build an athletic facility.

Winthrop owns 400 acres where the soccer field, golf course, and the lake are located. The proposed site of the field house would be located near the greenhouses off of Eden Terrace.

Brownley said that it is hoped that the proposed athletic facility would seat more than 6,000 people.

"This facility will also house other indoor sports as well as part of the physical education program," said Brownley.

There is no time table as to the construction of the athletic facility. However, it is hoped that the land can be sold so that the center can be built within the next few years. According to Brownley, Winthrop officials will attempt to bring this proposal before the legislature before the end of the present session (which ends in May).

At the Board of Trustees meeting, a proposal to hike Winthrop's tuition was also approved.

South Carolina students living on campus will pay $1,847 as compared to $1,722 this year. Those commuting will pay $305 for nine months, $1,740 for 12 months, and $1,255 on equal installments. Two-room private apartments will rent for $1,305 for nine months, $1,740 for 12 months, and $1,255 on equal installments. One-room private apartments will rent for $950 for nine months, $1,205 for 12 months, and $880 on equal installments.

Attention!! Elementary and Early Childhood EED Majors

All Elementary Education and Early Childhood Education majors must attend a meeting to be held Thursday April 7 at 4:00 pm in Wither Auditorium. The purpose of this meeting is to have Elementary Education and Early Childhood Education majors meet with their advisers to plan courses for Fall 1977 and for Summer 1977.

It is necessary that students see their advisers before early registration, since in order to register for certain courses in Elementary Education and Reading they will need course approval cards signed by their advisers.

The Catawba Indian Pottery, subject of a feature in last week's T.J. is now being shown in Rutledge Art Gallery through April 21.
The 'Diehards': By Winthrop

Perhaps we should pursue the topic of JUNIOR FOLLIES from the same angle as CLASSES NIGHT—"Maybe we shouldn't do away with it but if it does need revamping." (Oct. 18, T.J.) However, as time goes on, we are becoming convinced that class oriented events need to be abolished totally. Harsh words, maybe, but hear us out.

First, let's consider the people who participate in class events. There are very few day students and virtually no Blacks. They are segregated events. We did not say it was planned to be segregated. Neither is Black Week. But, the fact that such events are by choice segregated is very troublesome to us. Another point to be made; class officers are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain student participation. Male students, for the most part, seem to find it awkward and uncomfortable to participate in these events. Class oriented events do not have the wide-range appeal that is so desperately needed.

Another point: FOLLIES was originally intended to be a fund raising event to help finance JUNIOR-SENIOR. But, JUNIOR-SENIOR was two weeks ago. By the time one subtracts the money spent in order to produce FOLLIES, there really isn't very much funding left to support such an event as FOLLIES. And while we are on the topic of makey, each class receives a healthy portion of Student Activities Fees allocations. That money could be felled into events designed to meet the needs of the entire student body.

Perhaps the strongest point that can be made against class oriented events is this: Winthrop students need to unit-as-four separate entities but as one united force of individuals who actively support athletic endeavors, etc. We feel that special events of the same kind as class events are needed. But the events need to be geared more toward the student body as a whole — not a class of people. When Winthrop was an "all girl's school" we can see why class events were suited and possibly even necessary. But no longer. We recently talked with the newly named Athletic Director. His expectations and plans for Winthrop are attractive. These plans also include such things as women's basketball, men and women's soccer. Tell us, where do class cheerleaders fit into this picture?

Reality is always but unavoidable to the "fairest flowers," "die hard," "the inner circle," or what you want to call them. Class events are dying. If they are discontinued now, then these events will be respectable and it will give a progressive third time to come up with events more suitable to our changing Winthrop. However, if they are allowed to continue (draging on to the bloody end) then a painful death will be the end.

*Little Miss Moffat Decided to rough it. Rising above all of her doubts. Along came a spider. Who seemed not to mind her. Now they're mellowing on Buddha and sprouts.

*(another of the famous Mother's Loose Rhymes)

Hey, oats and rye everybody and everyone and welcome to this week's portion of unlashcd deviance. Gather ye, prepare ye for the Great Laddling. (You get two scoops of reason?) All seriousness aside, is it too late??!! Which brings me through this barrage of unshod eloquence to the very core of the apple-tinged topic which I hope to crochet into the close-knit awareness of your baffled brains: HOW TO SPACE UP YOUR SPACE WITH SPROUTS. That's right, folks this week I wish to illustrate the phenomenal rise of sprouts and the effects that their sudden growth is having on our agricultural structure, as they continue to spread their roots under and over the very crust of America's green thumb. We should not underestimate the strength of the sprout—they show all signs of forming their own shrub-culture and who knows— with their ever increasing size and proportions, we could possibly be held at the mercy of these seedy characters. Why, we've already seen the emergence of some class rebels:

1) James Bean, whose classic performance in "Sprouls Without a Cause" stirred entire audiences of young chicks and snobs. Not to mention the popular soundtrack from the movie. (James Bean, James Bean—you say you're blue, but man, you sure look green.)

2) Mung Tse-Chung, who encouraged the revolutionary trend of mass propagation among exotic species of bean sprouts. Not only did he seed the conscious—nesses of his followers in his popular programs of growth and reform but he also initiated a movement of social integration by distributing little red pods to his supporters. Luckily for us, these little red pods make members of his cult easily identifiable.

3) Soy Rogers, who with his faithful companions, Tiller and Millet, devoted his chlorophyll to the health and protection of those "soys in the green hats." Soy, who later teamed up with glamorous Alfalfa Evans, did much to color the image of his fellow soys for the sake of creating a greater appreciation and deeper understanding among other morsels for this minority.

4) A caste of millions more. These few examples should serve to show you just how far sprouts have come. Why, it seems like it was just yesterday that all sprouts were noting more than just pods in the sod. Even I grew up with the notion that sprouts were simply "cute roots with taste to boot." However, it seems like the sprout has sprung up in recent years which nurtures the concept that they have been misplianted in the past and now deserve better treatment. This long-overdue attention being paid sprouts today leaves some green with envy, but I see it as being healthy to both their being and growth. And new opportunities are sprouting up all over the place. No longer are sprouts solely confined to the rice paddies of Oriental cookery. An amitious sprout—whether he or she is a chick pea, soy, mung, or alfalfa or any other nationality—can now exist along side any member of the edible establishment. Whether it's next to a carrot in a salad between two slices of whole wheat, or just simply alone. This progress and social acceptance rests on one thing: that we accept the sprout for what it truly is. Sure, there's a difference between the color of your skin and a sprout's. But we need to overlook this basic-land trivial-diversity. After all, under the earth beneath those pods, all sprouts are nothing more than a complete diet of millions more.

I hope that I have sent some mental stimulation shooting through you regarding sprouts. They still have a long way to go and certainly need all of the support you can afford to give them. Spread the news about sprouts, tell your friends, family—EVERYBODY. And member MUNG'S THE WORLD.
Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

This space usually exists for student gripes and observations. Here's one, however, for the faculty and staff, that "other" oppressed group on campus. In a classic "catch 22" situation, a certain hypothetical Winthrop employee must now make the following decision: This person must either drop out of the Winthrop College lunch program, six hours away from a M.A. (something like taking a step short of an organ) or must resign from his/her full-time job in order to finish the degree (a sort of "prevented" unemployment, not looked upon favorably by the government, by prospective employers or by one's own starving body.)

This semester, rules have been "clarified" to the administration regarding free academic courses taken by Winthrop employees. Such courses may be taken only if certain conditions are met, conditions which make completion of a degree dependent on specific courses nearly impossible (try building a degree program from night courses in five years or less). The other alternative—taking courses on one's lunch hour at regular tuition rates (although the employee handbook indicates academic courses taken by employees on their own time are "free") is equally nonsensical, since many classes aren't normally scheduled between 12 and 2—the administration's prescribed lunch hour time. And Winthrop employees just can't go around badgering heads of departments to schedule courses for the employee's convenience, when there are many not-so-choosy regular students who are much easier to please.

In short, the Winthrop administration is making it more than difficult for its own employees to earn degrees and thus to increase their knowledge and potential, and—it logically follows, I believe—their worth at Winthrop College.

There are many such hypothetical cases on campus; I just happen to know about this one intimately. If the administration wishes to discourage or dissuade class attendance by employees, they let them say so. Such a statement would be much preferred to meanderings of "pre-existing" rules which are constantly being interpreted to suit the whims of those in control. If an employee is serious about pursuing a degree relevant to his/her career goals, then Winthrop College should try to accommodate. Thanks.

Dear Editor:

To state it bluntly, I feel as if I have failed. Teaching "THE WORD COURSE," Classes 105, is not an easy matter when one considers the number of words in our language. We certainly can't learn them all in one semester or two; but we can learn to use the dictionary if we are astute, peripatetic, relentless and tenacious.

My star pupil (and your feature editor) has not yet fallen in love with either Webster or Funk and Wagnalls. Debbie should know that LINGUISTIC (used in her last feature) does not exist. The adjective is LINGUISTIC. Perhaps, before the end of the semester, Debbie will become astute, perspicacious, perspicacious, incessant, pressing, and CAREFUL, or at least a horridly-polished—albeit over the piece.

Ron Layne:

Coors, Foster's, Rolling Rock, Blue Ribbon, Hopp-n-Gator (If you can remember back that far), Molson's, Olympia, Busch. Heineken. Schlitz (you have to be careful typing that one, especially "prevented") unemployment, not looked upon favorably by the government, by prospective employers or by one's own starving body.

This is the dawning of the age of ALQUIEREISTS. Alquireerists are individuals between the ages of fifteen and twenty, who are absolutely ape dundung over alcoholic beverage. I'm not talking about some kid from the rough side of town, I'm talking about your kid brother, your kid sister, and... well, probably you...

The really intellectual members of this new breed of American can rattle off over one hundred different brand names of beer (when sober), as well as being able to give you price-per-percent-alcohol figures for most of the really big selling/low price wines. Remember, most of these mental giants are under the age to drink anything stronger than that God-awful stuff they call "near beer." Staggers the imagination, doesn't it?

If you can get away from the frightening implications that point to an American crippled by cirrhosis of the liver, it is all pretty amusing. I mean, we are all those parents, correction, concerned parents, who went out of their way to educate themselves about the dread canabis weed, while the kids were waiting for them to go away to a cocktail party for the evening, so they could throw one of their own. The kid is smart, too. He takes a look at the back of the six pack, and his old man is never the wiser. Half the time, he knows the old man is going to come home splitting cotton balls from all the kids he has had at the party and will figure he drank all those beers himself. Meanwhile, the Jack Daniel's in the liquor cabinet is becoming less and less potent due to the all the water he has been putting in, in place of what he has taken out. The parents come home from the party, a little bit high, and looking forward to playing honeymoon, and take a look on the old, who is sleeping like a baby. That baby, as it turns out, couldn't possibly do anything but sleep, since his blood-to-alcohol ratio is approaching 1 to 1. It's the classic case of 'they can't see the Old Forrester for the trees."

Seriously, folks, alcohol has snuck up on us. Not that there is anything wrong with a kid sipping the alcohol business. That is part of growing up. But some of these kids, and I'm talking about a LARGE PERCENTAGE, are becoming borderline drunks. They live for the weekend, when they can leave mother earth for the warmth found at the bottom of that tenth or fifteenth beer.

That brings this story full circle, back to education. Think about it, then go tell your kid brother.

Winthrop’s New ‘Good Ole Boy’

By Sheila Nolan

“You know, he’s just a real nice guy.”

“Yeah, he’s a good ole boy. But, I’ll tell you something, he’s smart. I mean, look at his record. NAI coach of the year, the records Newberry has set this year— I’ll tell you, we’re lucky to have a man of his caliber here at Winthrop.”

Well it seems safe to say that the majority of the Winthrop population is pleased to have Nolan Gordon as the school’s first Athletic Director and Men’s Basketball Coach. The “good ole boy” was on campus Friday, March 25 to meet with students and faculty and to get a better look at Winthrop’s facilities. I caught him in between bites in the cafeteria. Here’s what he had to say about Winthrop.

T.J.: How do you feel about the facilities Winthrop presently has to offer for a men’s basketball program?

GORDON: Oh, I don’t think that Peabody will be a liability. Winthrop has so many other things going on to get. Peabody will lend itself as a good place to practice. And, we can play in the local high school gym until the new field house is built.

T.J.: Where do you plan to recruit some of your players?

GORDON: Anywhere we can find them. Actually, I’m willing to look locally and out of state.

T.J.: What type of scholarship program will you have?

GORDON: Well, the first year, it’ll probably be me and a graduate assistant. Then the next year, we’ll hopefully have a couple of assistants as well as the basketball players themselves. They always have served as the best means of recruitment. Plus, I hope to have hostesses who will serve as guides to potential basketball players.

T.J.: Without adequate time to build a team, what are your plans for the coming year?

GORDON: The first year will be a very important one for me as well as the forming team. A player has four years to play in a five year period. So, it’s not like he will be missing a year of play. I hope to bring in some transfer students, some junior college players, as well as freshmen. That first year will give the players time to become adjusted to Winthrop. I plan to have informal practices a couple of times a week, put them on a weight program, and hopefully, I can get the guys on some kind of city league team. This should help prepare the team for a 26 to 30 game schedule the following year.

T.J.: How will the scholarships from the Booster Club be allocated?

GORDON: Well, it all depends on how much we get. All grants-in-aid will come from outside the college— from the Booster Club. Women’s programs as well as the men’s will be funded with scholarships if they so desire.

T.J.: What other goals or plans do you have?

GORDON: I’d like to see a halftime show similar to other schools as well as cheerleaders for men and women. And, of course, it will be good to have the girls’ basketball program.

“I Don’t Think That Peabody Will Be A Liability.
Winthrop Has So Many Other Things Going For It.“

GORDON: The first year will be a very important one for me as well as the forming team. A player has four years to play in a five year period. So, it’s not like he will be missing a year of play. I hope to bring in some transfer students, some junior college players, as well as freshmen. That first year will give the players time to become adjusted to Winthrop. GORDON: We’ll have the radio transmission and the half-time show similar to other schools as well as cheerleaders for men and women. And, of course, it will be good to have the girls’ basketball program.

With the interview concluded, Gordon began introducing himself about the cafeteria. Yea, Gordon’s a “good ole boy”— a good ole boy that’s sure to bring some good things to Winthrop.

National Jazz Ensemble At Winthrop

The National Jazz Ensemble will bring 16 highly talented musicians to Winthrop College April 4-5 for a two-day residency and public concert.

The concert, slated for 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 5, in Byrnes Auditorium, will be a celebration of jazz forms ranging from early styles to the most modern arrangements. The performance is sponsored by the Winthrop School of Music, the South Carolina Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The National Jazz Ensemble will give an open rehearsal and demonstration from noon to 2 p.m. April 4 in Winthrop's Recital Hall. From 3-5 p.m., the ensemble will give individual instrument clinics, featuring dance band and vocal.

On April 5, the musicians will present a demonstration lecture from 12:15 to 1:30 p.m. and an improvisation workshop at 4:30 p.m. All workshops are open to the public free of charge.

The musical expertise of each of the ensemble's members is outstanding and marks the group as one of the finest collections of jazz talent in the "blue country." The group's director, Chuck Israels, had performed with many jazz "greats" including Billie Holiday, Benny Goodman, Don Byas, Kenny Clarke and Herbie Hancock. He is best known for his work as a bassist in the Bill Evans trio. Until this past year, he was an assistant professor of music in charge of jazz studies at Brooklyn College of the Performing Arts.

Experience in this group is as diversified as its repertoire. The reed section of the band is comprised of Lawrence Feldman, Joe Romano, Greg Herbert and Ken Bergera.

The trumpeters are Jim Maxwell and David Berger, who also composes and arranges music. Jimmy Knepper, Sam Burton and Joe Randazzo comprise the trombone section. The guitarist is Ithaca College jazz teacher Steve Brown and the bassist is Steve Gilmore. The drummer for the ensemble is Bill Goodwin and Benny Aronov is pianist.

Vocalist Margot Hanson accompanies the group. Classically trained, she appeared on Broadway in "Promises, Promises" and has performed with Leonard Bernstein and Seiji Ozawa. She was also a regular on the Arthur Godfrey Radio Show and has recorded with Columbia Records.

JAZZ ENSEMBLE--National Jazz Ensemble director, Chuck Israels, directs his "jazz museum" in concert.

United Artists, Folkways and Chisumcraco.
The National Jazz Ensemble tours the country performing together year round and conducting workshops. Members are dedicated to the creation and continuation of that uniquely American form of music-jazz.

For additional information on the Winthrop performance, call the School of Music at 327-2255.

Coming Concerts

Lots of concerts are coming soon to the Carolina Coliseum in Columbia and TJ thought you might like to know about them.

Olivia Newton-John will appear April 16 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7.50, $6.50, and $5.50. Special guest star will be Jim Stafford.

Natalie Cole's daughter, Natalie Cole, is coming to the Coliseum April 24. Tickets prices and time has yet to be announced.

May 1, Neil Diamond will appear at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10.25, $7.25, and $5.25. Fleetwood Mac is next on April 24 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7.50, $6.50 and $5.50. With June 11 cominexhe O'Jays. The ticket prices and time is to be announced.

Personal checks can not be accepted two weeks prior to a show. Money orders are acceptable, but a self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompany all mail orders.

Creative and Professional

By Su Taylor

That's her approach as the new editor of Winthrop's weekly paper, THE JOHNSONIAN.

Pam Zagarelli (P.Z.) wants things "controversial, but fair."

The New Jersey raised senior is pleased with the new student interest toward TJ and wants to continue the trend. "The TJ," she states, "ought to be the best outlet of information at Winthrop College." She adds, "I want a rect paper that reaches everybody from students, to staff, to faculty."

Running a 12-page paper is not easy task, but the part Italian, history major is adept to tackle the job. With two years prior experience on TJ's layout staff, and experience from writing for her own high school's television show, P.Z. is aiming for a "creative and professional paper."

In order to achieve this P.Z. is setting goals. "I'd like more investigative journalism," she states, "but besides more features, records/movie/book reviews and more montised layout. And of course," she adds, "as much news as possible." She would also like to see the paper expand its boundaries to cover relevant Rock Hill news.

Eagerious though, require an increased staff. This P.Z. sees as THE JOHNSONIAN's biggest problem. "We need people to write," she pleads. "To be original, we need creative writers." she continues. Lack of staff doesn't pose the only problem; a tight budget does. "We are operating on a budget that's inadequate for a continual 12-page," she explains.

Besides hitting occasional choppy waters, THE JOHNSONIAN is briskly sailing on open seas. "This past year was TJ's most successful year ever," the optimistic editor/navigator sighs. "I'll try to keep my ship at an even keel."

A Reflection of the Students

by Su Taylor

Denise Holcombe isn't sure if she's more scared or excited. Those are her present emotions as the new editor of Winthrop's yearbook, the TATLER.

She explains her conflicting views. "The hard work is scary, but the chance of recording life as it happens, to look back on—that's exciting."

Denise, a sophomore with three years of yearbook experience—including high school—is eager to record the Winthrop experience, in a new light. "With the additions of sororities, fraternities, and an athletic director," she states, "Winthrop is beginning a new life as a college." "It's a great time to be at Winthrop," she relates. "We want to capture the feeling."

The Kentucky-born editor hopes to accomplish this with an expanded staff. Plans for more yearbook salespersons, "designated typists," and a large repertoire of photographers are some of Denise's primary aims.

THE TATLER plays an important part in the student's life, she claims. "If you can't look back on your college years, then they're lost," she states. "We want a yearbook..." She continues. "That's not just full of pictures. We want one that is a just correct record: a record of friends, attitudes, lifestyles, and your attitudes toward them."

Editor Denise Holcombe doesn't mind the fear or excitement that her job entails. She's too busy recording your memories.

Shree Yongue doesn't mind the fear or excitement that her job entails. He's too busy recording your memories.

submitted are used in the publication.

After getting students to submit their work, another hurdle is getting students to read the publication. "Some people," Shree states, "feel that THE ANTHOLOGY is not the type of thing students read. We understand." she adds.

Changes to create more student interest include a brighter cover and a smaller size. "I'd like to cut the size down to 9 in. by 6 in."

Special Olympics: The Time Of Their Lives

Approximately 20 schools and centers from York, Lancaster, and Chester Counties participated in the Special Olympics held on March 23 at Northwestern High School. The event is held each year for mentally handicapped children of the area.
The Special Olympics are made as close to the real Olympics as possible. The contest opened with a parade of the participants, and the local police of the three countries awarded the ribbons to the victors.

Book and Key Initiation
Five new members have been initiated into Book and Key. They are: Susan Renee Jenkins, Deborah Deene Jones, Sara McElvain, Myra Elaine Rainwater, and Joyce E. Whithorne.

Students Recognized

The Winthrop Chapter of the Phi Kappa Phi recognized newly elected juniors, seniors, and graduate students on Wednesday, March 23, 1977 in an initiation ceremony. Phi Kappa Phi is an interdisciplinary honor society whose members are chosen on the basis of academic excellence and good character. The national guidelines stipulates that students who have junior status must be in the upper 50% of their class, those of senior status must be in the upper 15% of their class, and the number of graduate students cannot exceed 10% of candidates for degrees during the year.

Juniors elected to Phi Kappa Phi membership are: Peggy Lynn Adams, Elizabeth Alexandra Broughton, Gail B. Brown, Mary Catherine Fingarri, Karl Alan Fulkens, Cynthia Jane Ford, Candis Leigh Graham, Judy Diane Goy, Nadja Guyer Hudson, Martha Owens Jacobek, Sharon Lynn Kelly, Kathy Jo Kirkpatrick, Kandy Ruth Lee, Patricia Stiles Lowe, Bonnie Susan Merrett, Diane Marie Meyers, Brenda Lorraine Norwood, Virginia Watson Robinson, Judy Bannister Sharman, Dorothy Marie Smith, Phyllis Karen Spouse, Karen Marie Weaver, Celia Gregory Williams. Senior members recently elected were: Mary Anne Brookshire, Catherine L. Caudle, Michael McLean Deerin, Felicia Beck Edwards, Judy Marie Fallaw, Kathryna Ann Great, Renette Segura Helms, Joan E. Knight, Valerie Ann Manes, Kay M. Martin, Deborah Elaine Morrison, James Thomas Pegram, Merry Beth Poore, Angela Falla Pratts, Alan Grant Rash, Julia Denlap Selin, Constance Susan Shoup, Kathryn Heap Taylorson, and Ceryl Marie Woccoby.

Graduate students elected included: Sara Carolyn Blair, Diane Krapp, Dawson, Jack Burning Ford, Marcia Perry Leoard, Sara Elizabeth Lowman, Laura Matheson McNeely, and Adolphus C. Vamer, Jr.
The members were initiated in a formal ceremony that was conducted by the officers. Officers presiding over the initiation were president Melford A. Wilson, Jr., vice-president Deborah Keister, secretary of Gibson, treasurer Frank B. Tutwiler, and marshal Mary Roland Griffin.
The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to honor students in hope of encouraging the students to strive for excellence in character and academics.

Winthrop Net Action

The Winthrop College Men's tennis team traveled to Sumter Monday, March 21, only to be rained out before the match could get underway with USC-Sumter. On Thursday, March 24 the team played at home and lost to Wingate College, 8-1. The doubles team of Mackey Rawls and Lynn blasted Wingate 6-0, 6-3. Payne defeated Basko 6-2, 6-0. Lynn defeated the Williams 6-0, 6-2. Payne defeated Basko 6-2, 7-5, 6-4 and Poage whipped Jones, 6-0, 6-1. USC-L's Pardue topped Hester 6-3, 6-3 in the other singles match. In doubles, White and Lynn beat Smith and Pardue 6-3, 7-6. Rawls and Hester defeated Hammond and Wingate 6-4-6-1, 6-1 and Curtis Hancock (back from an injury) and Poage topped Jones and Basko 6-0, 6-1.

Banquet To Be Held

The annual Winthrop College sports banquet will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday, April 5, in McBryde. The event is a 36 hole tournament on April 7, 8, and 9. According to Dr. David Gove, WC golf coach, Winthrop's next big match is a three day event at Hampton. The event is a 34 hole tournament on April 7, 8, and 9. According to Dr. Gove, it's a friendly tournament, where the community down there gets involved, and the team enjoys the trip.

Golf Shots

The 1977 golf season is in full swing for the Winthrop men's team following a triangular match meet with Davidson and USC-Spartanburg on March 1. Against USC, WC's top four golfers lost 400-476. However, the top three golfers edged Davidson 271-272. Lowest score for the day was Pat Pruett from USC-S with a 77. Winthrop's Stan Overby shot an 81.

During spring break two WC golfers went to the Edisto Golf Classic in Orangeburg. Stan Overby shot a 77-80, with a total of 157, and Ricky Burgess shot a 90-91 with a 180 total, for the two day 36 hole event. Overby, a freshman transfer from USC-Lancaster, is a well-rounded golfer. "He shows real promise as a college golfer," said Dr. David Gove, WC golf coach.

Softball Season Begins

The softball season has begun with the Winthrop women's team competing against Indiana University on March 24. The team lost to Indiana, 7-5. Softball Coach Ann Upchurch said, "That was our first game. We were pleased to be able to stay on the field, and we are on the road all the time." The team consists of Pam Smith, second base; Helen Clement, left field; Sandy Tribbett, shortstop; Lynn Avant, catcher; Jeanie Bates, right field; Debra Fogle, center field; "Spanky" Skellet, first base; and Robin Lowe, third base, got four unearned runs due to Jody USC on April 15 and 16. USC Williams' pitching. The co-captains for the team are Avant April 22 and 23.

So plan to be where the action is!

Wrestling Meets

Intramural wrestling for men began Tuesday, March 29 at Winthrop with Mike Evason and Hal Carter in action, according to Intramural Coach Evans Brown. With five weight divisions, ranging form 130 to 200 pounds, only nine wrestlers are involved in the program. Currently, Jerry Martin at 130 pounds and Arthur Grace at 150 pounds are undefeated. In the 140 pound division, Ricky Neal and Johnny Schwartz are vying for first place. At 170, Bruce Lesslie and Robert Nesly oppose each other, and in the 200 pound class, Hal Carter, Mike Evason, and Tim Ryder are seeking the number one spot. Trophies will be given for places 1, 2, and 3. Wrestling matches will be held in Wither Gym beginning at 7:30 p.m.
