THE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE STUDENT BODY OF WINTHROP COLLEGE

VOL. 14, NO. 22

ROCK HILL, SOUTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1937

In May a Winthrop Girl's Fancy Turns to Exams and Home

Editorial Asides

Wingding There is undoubtedly method in the madness of the installers of the sprinkler system who are doing a swell job of making it dangerous to be out on the campus after dark. The staticastic system of trenches interlinking back campus will be the path of pipes of water at future Winthrop fires.

Lifting Mr. R. A. James of the commerce department tells of a department of loafing at a New York University. Courses offered are the philosophy of loafing, comparative loafing, theories of loafing, and a loafing seminar. After observing some of the activities of our own students, it strikes us that such a course at Winthrop would not be amiss.

Sign We think some sort of campaign against those students who so thoughtlessly remove posters and signs from the halls. If anyone ever tried making a poster and saw how much work was involved, they might think twice before either defacing it or taking it away entirely.

Seniors Weary, Ambitious As Graduation Approaches

May is the time of the year when the seniors very definitely take the center of the stage. Their big moment is approaching. The most interested in the "expulsion," namely the seniors, view it with many different emotions.

"A very unambitious feeling," says one. "I have visions of pulling a boner the first day of the new job and of ever doing forever."

"It would be grand if only I knew what I was going to do. It's a little early to be worrying about a job. I guess, but it's also a little early to be analyzing feelings about graduation.

I'll start both next month."

FRESHMAN DORMITORIES

When freshmen first come in the fall, they are a week ahead of the other classes. But, thrilled and enthusiastic, they enter the dorms, almost deserted, dormitories. Some are homesick; some without roommates. They are all mixed up about the physical examinations and intelligence tests. In spite of these things, they manage to struggle through that week.

Then the upper classmen return, hailing old acquaintances and making happy reunions. The freshmen do feel left out. When they get to know the upper classmen, their attitude somehow changes. Things don't thrill them anymore. They start finding fault unnecessarily. They try to see if they can get by, too. They decide that Dr. So and So "doesn't like me anymore, so what's the use of studying?" Many attribute this change to the influence of the other classes.

Freshman dormitories, it is hoped, will do away with many of these hardships and prejudices of the freshman. We hope the new dormitory plan will make Freshman Week easier for the new students. We hope that it will make them feel more important that they are an integral part of the student body. We want them to learn how to study. And we don't want them to be laughed at because they are so enthusiastic.

However, we do desire that our freshmen form a good opinion of Winthrop and to aid in spreading that opinion throughout the state. We think freshman dormitories will do a lot toward helping accomplish these aims.

Congratulations, TRAINING SCHOOL!

Congratulations, Winthrop Training School! Your recent victory in winning Sweepstakes in the State Music Contest is merely the latest proof of your standards and position as one of the outstanding high schools of South Carolina. Winthrop is proud to claim you as her own and you, in turn should be proud to be Winthrop, Junior.

Training School is not merely a vestigial appendage of Winthrop; it is a vital part of the college itself. By offering an experimental laboratory to would-be teachers its value is immeasurable. It is an apprentice shop where embryonic teachers may go to learn their trade. As the achievements in the state contests have shown, it is also a broadcasting station telling the audience interested in the practical value of the school.

For very different reasons Winthrop is an asset to the community. Now a child can enter the Winthrop nursery school at the age of two and emerge twenty years later with a college degree tucked under her arm. During all that time she has received only the most thorough and most approved educational methods. In fact her entire school life has been planned by experts who have tried to provide the richest, best rounded program possible.

Thus Winthrop College and Winthrop Training School are not two separate institutions. They are cooperative units working together for the welfare and improvement of the whole.

WANTED: A LARGE SUPPLY OF DEPARTMENTAL COOPERATION

Much has been said and more has been implied recently about lack of cooperation among departments of Winthrop College. Why does such a situation exist on our campus?

The trouble lies in the fact that each of us considers his or her department and its activities the most important on the campus. We are not willing to recognize the work of other departments as having the same value to its field and to the college as our own. We are not willing to make even a small sacrifice to aid the activities of others, if our help is needed.

Even in this supposedly civilized and cultured corner of the world, we find headed down from department head to department head feuds—not the shot-gun type, but feuds just as detrimental to the well-being of the college.

In participating in these petty feuds and jealousies, we not only show narrow-mindedness, but we really exhibit lack of intelligence. Modifying an old axiom, we might say no school is better than its weakest department; and an individual department will have difficulty in building its reputation above that of the school.

We are not hitting at any one group on the campus. There are many members of both the faculty and student body who have recognized the existing lack of inter-departmental unity, and who are working to ameliorate the situation.

But this group of people needs our support. Are we going to give it to them? Are we "big" enough to work for the good of Winthrop College, and not just our own department?

About The Gym

Tennis Panel II It won't be long before the tennis tournament will be over, and some will be right where they started if they don't play some matches soon. Plans are frantically being made for Play Day, to be held on May 8.

Plans are being made for the annual meeting of the physical education association: Neil Jackson!

Thoughts While Strolling: Young things of all ages and both sexes wandering around with a freshman air—Did the well-known "Tom O' Shanter" have a lovely week-end alone—or perhaps he had the famous Curie characteristic?

Two was to imagine oneself at a typical military institute Saturday morning when the vicinity of the Academy was filled with the high school girls on parade.

Garden Center: To be in London for orientation, or perhaps even to concentrate at dear Winthrop by some date on that memorable May 12.

Conclusion Bit: Sign on a Scotch golf course: Members will please refrain from picking up lost balls until after they have stopped rolling.

Irreversible P. S.: I won't write any more dear, my roommate is reading over my shoulder.

"You're a虎!"

Rowing balls are still being dashed down the alley as last-minute bowlers try to get rid of that extra pound they gained last week. It is recommended for seniors desiring clype-like figures for Junior-Senior.

The reported that Miss Weimer got out on route to New York. She went to the smallest town in the U. S. and found one even without a telegraph station!

There's always a circus of sorts on the campus. The present one is Miss Velmer's volleyball class. Dignified—such as Katie, "Pocket," Tirrah, Myra Spalding, and even May Queen Carroll too adds their weight to the athletic fields. It is quite the fad now to have sun tan before a visit to the beach!

THE JOHNSONIAN

WINTHROP DAY BY DAY

Diary: Up . . . to the sound of more adolescents taking trips down the fire escapes of Hudday. It starts one that some mothers over the state will have a very nice laundry bill next week! To breakfast (unusual) marching sleepily in a kind of caravan across amateur mountains of freshly-dug clay—the result of the sprinkler system installation. To classes. Afternoon spent in searching for my house-country paper—in vain. Then, out on the campus to view South Carolina's future musicians and singers.

Recitation Suggestion: Try reading Lloyd C. Douglas' "White Rangers."

Light Thought: Well, anyway, we are rich in experience (I mean well) to see the author tax their.

Prize Competition: For the most mathematics of the physical education students: Neil Jackson!

Thoughts While Strolling: Young things of all ages and both sexes wandering around with a freshman air—Did the well-known "Tom O' Shanter" have a lovely week-end alone—or perhaps he had the famous Curie characteristic?

"The General Died at Dawn"
Stars Cooper and Carroll

"The General Died at Dawn," starring Gary Cooper and Madeline Carroll, will be shown Saturday night at 7:30, in Main Auditorium.

The story centers about the adventures and experiences of O'Hara (Gary Cooper), an American soldier of fortune, in China. O'Hara is trusted agent of loyal patriots who seek to rid their country from the grasp of warlords, accepts a commission to buy arms for them.

Retired by the blood-stained, Judy Ferris (Madeline Carroll), an unwavering accomplice of her father (Purcell Hall), O'Hara is held prisoner by General Yang (Akira Tannetti). As Cooper escapes, the two plumes into real suspense-packed melodrama.
