Miss Hi-Miss Edition
Pres. Sims Invites High School Students To Investigate Winthrop's Program And Facilities

This special edition of The Johnsonian honors the Miss Hi Misses of many high schools in South and South Carolina. It is being mailed to the young women members of the grade to open their minds to the possibilities and opportunities for a university education. In this day and time, a university education is one of the requisites for modern civilization. The need for such an education is always before us.

We hope that the greater part of these students will be able to pursue their education by attending college. In this day and time, a university education is one of the requisites for modern civilization. The need for such an education is always before us.

Quite naturally, therefore, Winthrop College would like to see these graduates to inform something about the advantages to be gained by attendance here and the opportunities for a high level training for life. A careful reading of the pages of this issue will give some accurate information on Winthrop College, as it operates and advances young women for a more complete happiness and success in life.

20th Edition Of Miss Hi Miss Honors 299 North And South Carolina Girls

The 1937 special edition of The Johnsonian, weekly student newspaper at Winthrop College, marks the 20th anniversary of the Miss Hi Miss program at the South Carolina College for Women.

This Miss Hi Miss edition honors more outstanding North and South Carolina high school girls than ever before in its history.

There are 299 girls elected from their schools on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and personal attractiveness. Two hundred and twenty girls are from South Carolina and 77 are from schools in North Carolina within a 200 mile radius of Rock Hill.

Winthrop College and the staff of The Johnsonian extend their congratulations to these outstanding young women. It is hoped that all 299 of them will be able to attend the college's special weekend in their honor.

WINTHROP COLLEGE MARSHALS — For more than 20 years, the outstanding members of the junior class have served the college as marshals. Dedicated to the honor of the college and to the welfare of the students, these young men wear the distinctive uniforms of the marshals. The marshals are under the direction of the dean of men and are selected from the junior class by their peers.

Winthrop's Role Is One Of Service To State, Nation

Winthrop College, located in the picturesque center of the state, has served the young women of the state and neighboring North Carolina for over 70 years. Founded in 1861, Winthrop College became a state-supported institution for young women in 1891.

Because of its support from the Southern Conference General Assembly, Winthrop is able to offer a strong academic program with the modern educational facilities to the students at relatively small cost. Student fees are less at Winthrop College than at any other college for women in this area.

Winthrop is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the Association of American Colleges, the American Council of Education, the South Carolina Association of Colleges, the National Association of Schools of Music, and the National Commission on Accrediting.

A CHRISTMAS PARTY for members of the student body is an annual event sponsored by the Student Government Association at Winthrop. During the party, a gift is presented to President H. B. Carnegie Library Plays Large Role In Lives Of Students Here

One of the first places a freshman coming from one of the Winthrop College courses to the Carnegie Library before the end of the campus between McDade and Rodney Halls. The Carnegie Library is a main part of the life of every student. It is not long after entering Winthrop that the student finds this part of the campus to be the library. There, the student can find books on every subject. There, he can find the books that have been carefully selected to supplement the instructional program. Besides providing books for reference, research, and study for the undergraduate and advanced student, the library has books for leisure reading and special interests.

Winthrop students have always been granted the privilege of borrowing in the open stacks of the library, and this privilege permits the student to become familiar with the library, its resources, and the nature of the best in any subject. The staff of the library is alert and well trained. They are always on the job, prepared to help or give advice.

The library receives another service from the campus in its exhibits. Those, or a current nature, feature college functions, student activities, class work, and national and international events. Frequently exhibits feature famous paintings and works of famous writers. The library is used quite frequently by all Winthrop students.

Librarianship Offers Numerous Opportunities

Work in a library offers an exciting future to those who love books and people. Librarianship is a rewarding career.

The need for librarians in this generation is now greater than ever. There are libraries all over the United States, in schools, and in public libraries. There are libraries in public schools. There are libraries in college, and in many communities. There are libraries in businesses. There are libraries in hospitals. There are libraries in museums. There are libraries in universities. There are libraries in government agencies.

Winthrop College offers a major in library science for students interested in librarianship as a career. Students may register for either the B.A. or B.S. degree. Courses offered by the Department of Library Science meet the graduation standards of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and are accredited by this agency and the South Carolina Board of Education. The students above are shown in a class in children's literature.

Students who wish to combine library work with other teaching certificate. The Department of Library Science offers a major in library science and a concentration in teacher education. A student who wishes to combine library work with another teaching certificate must complete the requirements for the major in library science and the requirements for the other teaching certificate.

The Library science department in well equipped on campus. A collection of books and periodicals in all fields of knowledge is available to students. The library is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday.

Commerce Department Serves Two Purposes

COMMERC OUT STUDENTS AT WINTHROP are trained to use all types of office equipment which they will be using after graduation from Winthrop when they become secretaries, stenographers, and teachers. In addition to its four-year program for students earning the Bachelor of Science degree, the commerce department offers a two-year commerce curriculum for students who do not plan to attend college the entire four years necessary for the Bachelor's degree.

Four-Year And Two-Year Courses Are Available To WC Commerce Students

Winthrop College's Department of commerce, located by authority as one of the best in the southeast, fulfills two important purposes. The department prepares the four-year graduates for positions in business or for teaching profession, and for those who wish to use a shorter college course, the department offers a two-year curriculum.

Dr. Harold H. Girard is head of the department. Members of the faculty of this department are Mrs. Vivian B. Rouse, Miss Dorothy G. Cobb, Miss Clara Toc调味, Miss Martha Williams, Mr. Alfred D. McMillan, Mr. Billy Wise, Miss Alice K. Smith, and Miss Betty E. Maronge.

The department offers many courses in business which are available for both high school and college students. The courses offered include shorthand and stenography, bookkeeping, business administration, and management. The courses are designed to prepare students for jobs in business and industry.

Pianist Claude Frank Gives Program at Winthrop Assembly

A native of Germany, Mr. Frank began his study of music at the age of 12 and at 15 he attended the Leipzig Conservatory.

TWO OUTSTANDING WINTHROP COLLEGE juniors and seniors commerce majors are members of Beta Alpha, an honorary commerce fraternity. The purpose of the organization is to prepare for the business world and to promote fellowship among the members. Officers of Beta Alpha are, left to right: Virginia McGilvray of Sumter, president; Sylvia Price of Williamson, secretary;和 Frederick Thrall of Great Falls, treasurer; and Virginia Bower of Candler, vice president.

End of THE LARGEST DEPARTMENTS at Winthrop College, the commerce department annually graduates a large number of students with additional students receiving certificates in the two-year commerce curriculum. Demands by business and school systems for Winthrop commerce graduates are high, and the department always has fewer graduates than the job opportunities created through the Winthrop Placement Bureau. The students above are operating an electric typewriter, a calculating machine, and a microscope.

FINE ARTS FIELDS OFFERS VARIED COURSES

Fourteen courses are offered in the department of Fine Arts. Designed to serve all members of the Winthrop College student body desiring such courses, the classes must be taken as electives as well as the credit hours required for a major or minor in Fine Arts. This department is one of the major fields in which a student may begin taking courses in his freshman year.

The department has something to offer every student whether majoring in Fine Arts or the Sciences. Courses are available in the fields of commercial art, ceramics, graphic arts, photography, sculpture, and art education.

Winthrop students may take 12 hours of elective courses during their freshman and sophomore years. These courses include figure drawing, history of art, design and color, painting, and sculpture. The art major at Winthrop emphasizes art history and theory and studio equally.

This is one of the fine arts fields which offers many practical, career opportunities. A basic course in ceramic practice, including experience in creative problems and studio practice in techniques of building and shaping ceramics, is offered every semester. Even though the state of South Carolina is extremely rich in the field of decorative arts, and in the ceramic industry, ceramics training is particularly lacking here. Students majoring in other fields can choose a minor in Fine Arts to take a course related to their major courses.

The basic course covers the study of form and shape, techniques of building and shaping ceramics, and the furnishing of adequate space for the student. Although the entire third floor of the Administration Building is used for laboratory and classroom space for the Fine Arts department, the studio area must be well equipped with equipment and materials for the students to work at various projects of the department.

WINTRUP COLLEGE IS ONE OF THE Few colleges in this area to offer photography as a course in the department of Fine Arts. Students of all age groups have one hour of lecture and two hours of studio work each week. The course is taught by Professor William L. McDermott, head of the Fine Arts department.

In the picture shows the students are setting up their own cameras in the labs for pictures. The photograpic equipment used in the classroom is supplied by the college.

COURSES IN PAINTING AND COMPOSITION are among the numerous selections of courses offered by the Fine Arts Department. Pictures are set up as at

THE STUDY OF CERAMICS which has recently made great strides in South Carolina has attracted the interest of many Winthrop students. Rose Marie Jordan, a major in the Fine Arts department, is shown pouring the slip into the mold. The slip is mixed in an electric mixer and poured into the mold to harden.

MAT REMOUTH, a Winthrop student, works on a vase. At right, the student is shaping her vase into a realistic form which will take the clay.

TECHNICS, MATERIALS AND TOOLS for the sculptor are taught in a three-hour course in the Fine Arts Department. Students work at various projects of the department.

WINTHROP THEATRE IS POPULAR ORGANIZATION

The Johnsonian Proudly Presents The Miss Hi Misses Of South Carolina

The Winthrop Theatre, the producing organization of the dramatic art department, is one of the most widely recognized and popular organizations on the campus. Its annual production of "Family Portrait" is a major event for students and alumni alike.

The Winthrop Theatre, under the direction of Professor Green, presents a variety of plays and musical productions throughout the year. The theatre is located in the historic Johnson Building, which was built in 1912 and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The theatre is equipped with state-of-the-art lighting and sound systems, providing a professional atmosphere for both students and visitors. The theatre also offers a variety of workshops and classes for students interested in drama.

The Winthrop Theatre is beloved by students and alumni alike, and its productions are eagerly anticipated each year. The theatre's commitment to excellence in the arts is reflected in the high-quality productions that it presents each year.

Home Ec Department Is Leader In Field

IN EARLY DECEMBER students of the home economics department presented a fashion show to which everyone at the campus was invited. The students who made the first sales which were on sale at the Fair. Highlights of the fashion Fair were a great variety of home economics projects such as clothing, home decorating, and home economics in office training.

The general curricular approach is for students to be introduced in home economics projects which they learned in the classroom as a means of preparing them for the fields which they wish to enter. During the summer, some students will have opportunities to work in the homes of their employers, either at the College of Home Economics or in their own homes. This program is designed to give students practical experience in home economics projects which they will be able to apply in their work.

The courses in home economics are open to students who are interested in home economics and who qualify in other college requirements. Admissions to the College of Home Economics are continued on page 2.

CLOTHING AND TAILORING courses are very important to the home economics majors. Margaret Beavers of Laurens is shown pressing her material before fitting the parts together.

Winthrop Offers Major In Journalism

By CALLIE ATKINSON

Winthrop is one of the few colleges in South Carolina offering a major in journalism.

Courses are offered in both the Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science degrees, which are available to students interested in entering the field of journalism. A major in journalism includes 24 semester hours of journalism classes, plus a minor requiring 18 semester hours.

Many types of academic careers are possible for the B.A. graduate, and 52 hours are required for the B.S. degree in professional major.

Winthrop offers a wide variety of electives, including courses in public relations, advertising, and broadcast journalism.

The demand for the graduate is expected to remain strong, with a need for skilled journalists in newspapers, magazines, and broadcasting.

Winthrop College is the only college in the state that offers a major in journalism.

Fees of the department of journalism are currently being paid by the Journalism Department.

P. E. DEPARTMENT MUST MEET NEEDS OF ALL

It is the responsibility of the physical education department to ensure that the needs of the physical education majors, as well as the students of all other departments, are met by the physical education program. The teaching staff is made up of an experienced and knowledgeable group of instructors who teach in the gymnasium, which will double the present space. A swimming pool with a machine for showers is located on the first floor of the present structure.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION courses offer a variety of fun with the classwork. Students are required to participate in the recreational sports, team sports, and other activities. All four groups should be enrolled in the four semesters of work.

The student schedules are organized and supervised so that the students are able to develop the essential qualities of leadership, to master some of the skills of outdoor education, and knowledge they will need while working in their chosen fields.

A well-rounded curriculum is available to the general education majors.

The student must meet certain requirements for entry into the major, and to qualify for this they must serve as a practical teacher at Winthrop Training School.

During the summer many of the majors work as counselors at camps or are employed by recreational departments.

For the major, four semesters of physical education are required. From the courses offered, the student must select two sport, special sport, and recreational activities. All four groups should be enrolled in the four semesters of work.

Camps include volleyball, speedball, basketball, and other activities.

As an individual sport the student might select from swimming, tennis, golf, squash, and badminton.

The aquatic group offers beginners, intermediate, and advanced swimming, water sports, and life saving.

Concert in rhythm include folk dance, country dance, modern dance, tap dance, and social dance.

Students in each course in camp leadership and outdoor recreation are constantly called upon to perform in outdoor and recreational activities, and in outdoor and recreational activities.

At the beginning of the semester, minority, and other races were so far away from the campus, and the students at the gym were more active than ever.

At EKB, the addition of Winthrop's Physical Education is being approved by officials of the Southern College for Women.

Amateur groups are Raymond Baker, and Gilt of Florence, the Jess James who served as an official with Winthrop's Physical Education. The addition will double the space of Winthrop's Physical Education.

MEMBERS OF THE MODERN dance classes in conjunction with the Winthrop College Choirs presented a special Christmas program before the holidays. Scenes from the program are shown above.

PLATINUM GYMNASIUM, located on both campuses, is the home of the Platonic organization department and student of Winthrop's recreational activity. Construction will begin soon on a $200,000 addition to the gymnasium which will double the present space. A swimming pool with a machine for showers is located on the first floor of the present structure.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION courses offer a variety of fun with the classwork. Students with outside activities are required to take part each year in an aquatic show which attracts a large audience.

All Women’s Sports Offered By P. E. Department

Courses in tennis are offered for students whether they are beginners, intermediate, or advanced in tennis ability. In the afternoons many other students enjoy matches on the nine courts located near the gymnasium. In the fall, the Winthrop Recreation Association sponsored a tennis tournament between each of the six student dormitories.

One of the highlights of the Christmas season at Winthrop is the display of various types of Christmas trees made and decorated by the students in the physical education department studying social recreation. In order to have a well-rounded program of physical education, it is suggested that students who take four sections of credit in the department take a team sport, individual sport, dance and swimming courses.

Whether outdoors or indoors there are many sports from which students may choose in the physical education department. The photographs above show students at softball and basketball and a group of juniors who entertained recently at the Fort Jackson Hospital.

The indoor pool of Peabody Gymnasium provides for courses in beginners, intermediate, advanced swimming and life guard training. When not in use by the swimming classes, other students may use the gymnasium as an outdoor pool. Adjacent to the gymnasium is a large athletic field on one side and the tennis courts on the other. Nearby is the archery range which is used also as an equipped gym room for basketball, volleyball, etc.
FUTURE TEACHERS AT Winthrop College receive actual teaching experience at Winthrop Training School located just across the street from the college. The Training School has over 40 rooms providing an auditorium, gymnasium, laboratory and classrooms for the kindergarten, the grades and high school. There is special equipment for the teaching of manual arts, household science and industrial art. The training school center provides a playground for the W. T. B. students.

THE PROPER EDUCATION of the pupil is serious business, and the teacher-training program at Winthrop College is geared to meet the needs of the state for properly-trained teachers. All Winthrop teachers are trained for service school, kindergarten, elementary school and high school. Student teachers at the Training School are supervised by the teaching staff of the school. Students in home economics teacher-training do their practice teaching in schools near Rock Hill. Having completed the college's training program, above, senior Ann Connelly at Rock Hill is teaching in the Winthrop Training School.

Students who plan to be teachers will plan their college work to include practice teaching their senior year. In teaching, as in almost every field of work, experience is the thing that counts.

Every Winthrop graduate who expects to meet South Carolina teaching requirements must have a total of 75 hours of experience. And, as originated the familiar phrase among educators, "You've practicing teaching this semester.

Practice teaching for most seniors means a period every day during the term at Winthrop Training School, a school conducted by the third, established especially for the purpose of training Winthrop students for teaching.

For others, including some home economics and commerce majors, it means going to Rock Hill High School, or teaching in other towns for six weeks. It is a new experience. To become a teacher after 16 years as a student is a happening as well as an interesting experience.

The most important reaction among practice teachers is, "I can't wait to be a good teacher."

The most frequent reaction among Winthrop seniors is, "What if I'm not a good teacher?"

Students who plan to attend Winthrop Training School who guide student teachers throughout the semester, give them suggestions and work with them as teachers at the end of the teaching experience.

In fact, one student teacher recalls, "The understanding supervisor is the only thing that keeps you going after a bad day in the classroom. It does no good to hear him say that he has had bad days, too."

"Bad" days are for what you get from them. The occasional teacher looks back at the very next day, and then finds it lacking in the same manner after a pep meet during assembly.

Dr. S. J. McCroy, academic dean of the college, also serves as director of the teacher training program at the South Carolina College for Women. He talks with school president Dr. C. J. McCorkle.

The Head of Winthrop's Department of Education is Dr. M. L. Story, who is on the staff of Winthrop as a sociology major in the field of education. Variety of Fields Are Open To Majors In Science

The Winthrop College Department of Biology offers numerous courses which enable it to serve courses to preparatory students for careers in medicine, dentistry, chemistry, veterinary medicine, and other professions. The college's curriculum requires that all students have taken the freshman year of biology. Winthrop also offers continued study in graduate schools throughout the country, as well as advanced study in the college itself.

A number of Winthrop College alumni who received their basic education at the South Carolina College for Women now hold Ph.D. and M.D. degrees. For many of these graduates, biology played a major role in their professional lives. For students interested in other aspects of biology, Winthrop offers courses in general biology, botany, zoology, and genetics. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the biological sciences.

Students majoring in biology may take special courses in plant and animal physiology, cellular biology, genetics, and molecular biology. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the biological sciences.

The chemistry department at Winthrop Hall is housed in Tillman Hall. Tillman Hall is a part of the science complex and is equipped with modern laboratory equipment.

In addition to the chemistry department, Winthrop College offers courses in mathematics, physics, and computer science. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the sciences.

Winthrop College offers courses in history, political science, and economics. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the social sciences.

Winthrop College also offers courses in fine arts, music, and dance. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the humanities.

Winthrop College offers courses in communications, journalism, and public relations. These courses are designed to provide a solid foundation in the field of communication.

Student Government Is Vital Campus Group

"The students of Winthrop College, believing that there is dignity and honor in student government, desire and seek the highest standards of leadership and service. They value and respect the concept that good government is founded upon the spirit of cooperation and mutual respect between the students and their leaders. Therefore, the Student Government Association was formed to provide an outstanding and progressive self-governing organization of their own." (1)

This was the request made by Winthrop students in 1951. And from that request the Student Government Association was formed. Since those days the Student Government Association has grown to encompass a wide range of activities, including the election of the President of the Student Government Association, who serves as the main executive officer of the organization.

The Student Government Association is a student-run organization that is responsible for the management of all student affairs at Winthrop College. It is made up of elected representatives from each class and dormitory, and it serves as the voice of the student body to the administration. The Student Government Association is also responsible for organizing and running various campus events, such as the annual Student Government Ball and the Student Government Awards Ceremony.

The Student Government Association is composed of the President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer, who are elected by the students. The President of the Student Government Association is responsible for leading the organization and representing the student body to the administration.

The Student Government Association also has several committees, including the Student Senate, which is made up of representatives from each class and dormitory, and the Executive Council, which is made up of the President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

The Student Government Association is an important part of the Winthrop College community, and it plays a vital role in shaping the campus culture and providing students with a voice in the decision-making process.

A MUCK ELECTION with its campaign speeches, campaign posters and signature collection of students representing the presidential candidates. To vote in the mock election, students were required to register just as they do for the actual election. Unfortunately, only a small percentage of students voted in the mock election. Although this was generally reflected in the votes for the candidates in the actual election, the rest of the nation did not take the hint.

SERVING AS PRESIDENT of the Winthrop College Student Government Association is Kitty Mitchell of Greenville, a junior English major. The Student Government Association also serves as the main executive officer of the organization.

THE PRESIDENCY OF the Winthrop College Student Government Association is the highest position in which a student of the South Carolina College for Women can hold. The position of president is reserved for a student who is a junior English major. The president is the leader of the Student Government Association and is responsible for leading the organization and representing the student body to the administration.

Under the leadership of the President, the Student Government Association works to promote the interests of the student body, including organizing events, providing leadership training, and advocating for student rights and concerns.

The Student Government Association is an important part of the Winthrop College community, and it plays a vital role in shaping the campus culture and providing students with a voice in the decision-making process.

COLUMBUS, president of the Winthrop Recreation Association, is a Junior English major.

ELECTIONS TO OFFICE of all campus-wide student organizations are conducted during the spring semester. All officeholders are elected by the students, and the elections are announced in the college newspaper. The elections are open to all students, and they provide an opportunity for students to express their opinions on issues such as student activities, academic programs, and campus policy.
W. C. A. Meets Spiritual Needs Of Students

The Winthrop Religious Emphasis Week program this year is Dr. Carl Mitchel's "A Study of Church and College Life in the South." Dr. Mitchell, who received his Ph. D. degree from Yale University and has also been professor of religious studies at various institutions, is president of the Christian Association.

In addition to his other duties, he talked individually with the students at Johnson Hall. He believed that a service such as this should appeal to all students, for in the course of the academic year, the Winthrop student body is made up of students from various denominations, and he felt that it was important for them to learn about each other. He encouraged the students to participate in spiritual activities and to use their faith to guide their lives.

Special Prayer Is Adopted By Students

The Winthrop Christian Association is a non-denominational student organization which encourages students to join together in worship and service. Following chapel on Sunday nights, the W. C. A sponsors a prayer service for students with visiting Rev. Elbridge B. Lowrey serving as president. Bible study is held on Monday nights and the association builds a community-wide prayer circle to support each other. In addition to its regular activities, the W. C. A. also sponsors various programs in order to promote further understanding among the people of the various faiths. The association is made up of students from various denominations, and they meet regularly to discuss their beliefs and to pray together. They are committed to working towards a world where people of different faiths can live in peace and harmony.

WINTHROP'S CAMPUS IN PICTURES

MCLAUNDRY HALL, one of the oldest student residence halls, is a dormitory for freshman students. Over the years, living in this dormitory are Student Government Association officials and sophomore advisors. An adult counselor helps manage the residence in each of the six sophomore residence halls. MCLAUNDRY Hall was formerly called "Winthrop Hall" and was named in honor of D. W. McLaurin, a charter member of the board of trustees of the South Carolina College for Women. In addition to the student rooms, each dormitory has a kitchen, a lounge, and a study room. Dormitory residents give parties and entertain guests and library science. The Administration Building was the first building constructed when the school was moved from Columbia to its Rock Hill campus in 1886. The dormitory was named in the early 1920s for D. W. McLaurin, a charter member of the board of trustees of the South Carolina College for Women. At the time it was dedicated, the dormitory was the largest dormitory in the South, and it was the largest dormitory for women in the United States. The dormitory now houses the administrative offices of the college, and it is used as a conference center and a student center for a large opera company or the largest symphony orchestra.

A SCENIC VIEW of the Winthrop campus is shown from the porch of the Administration Building looking to the North end of the campus. During the spring months, the Winthrop campus is at its finest. The natural beauty of the campus is enhanced by many drives and walks and by the graceful arrangement of shrubs, trees, and flowers. The campus is located about one mile from the business district of Rock Hill.

LOCATED ON BACK CAMPUS is another of the freshman residence halls, MCLAUNDRY Hall. Named after Dr. David McLaurin, a member of the Board of Trustees, MCLAUNDRY Hall is connected with a covered walkway to the first floors and a walkway adjacent to the second floors of the dormitories. During the spring months, many students use this covered walkway to take sunbaths, study, play cards, etc.

THE COURTS OF Bovder Hall is one of the most picturesque areas on the Winthrop campus. In the fall and spring, outdoor receptions can be held in the courtyard. Members of the freshman class live in Border Hall. In addition to the student rooms, each dormitory has a kitchen, a lounge, and a study room. Dormitory residents give parties and entertain guests and library science. Winthrop Professor Plays Major Role In Latin Revival In S. C.

What in the world do you do at a Latin Forum? Just ask the 1899 Latin school graduate who submitted the ground-breaking Latin Forum idea, presented, sponsored by the Winthrop Forum Committee. It all began with Dr. Dora Martin, a Winthrop graduate and professor of Latin at Winthrop who taught at Winthrop for 40 years. She was a Latin scholar and a proponent of Latin education. The idea of a Latin Forum was inspired by a visit to a Latin Forum at the University of Oxford, where she saw students reciting Latin poems and philosophy. The Latin Forum idea was presented to the Winthrop faculty and was met with enthusiasm.

The first Winthrop Latin Forum was held in 1901, and it was a huge success. It was a day-long event that featured Latin recitations, speeches, and debates. The forum was attended by students from all over the state and was a great opportunity for Latin students to showcase their skills. It was also a chance for the Winthrop Latin program to gain more recognition and support.

Since then, the Winthrop Latin Forum has become an annual event, and it has continued to grow in popularity. The forum now features a variety of Latin-related activities, including poetry readings, debates, and history lectures. It is a great opportunity for Latin students to come together and celebrate their love for the language.

Winthrop's Latin program has always been recognized as one of the best in the state. It has a long history of producing successful Latin students, and it continues to attract students from all over the state. The Latin Forum is just one example of the innovative and engaging ways in which Winthrop University promotes Latin education.

SOCIETY DEPARTMENT PREPARES ITS STUDENTS FOR WORK IN THREE FIELDS

Winthrop College's department of sociology prepares its majors for work in the teaching profession, as social workers and for work in research. For students in either of these fields, departmental courses, and individual research, which helps to orient them in the social field, are offered. These courses are offered with delinquency and crime.

Students try to find out why societies make the laws they do, why some people break the laws, what reactions different societies have toward people who are lawbreakers, what has been done or might be done to prevent or control lawbreaking.

Social problems is a course in which students study sociological problems and the sociological analysis of these problems. For majors in sociology, this course helps them understand the way in which sociology can be applied to social work.

Junior sociology majors prepare for social work by taking a three semester hour course in introductory sociology and an one hour course in social work methods.

In these courses they learn about community resources and the programs carried on by various social agencies.

Students in the methods course do field work in the Department of Public Welfare, Family Service Agency, Red Cross, Juvenile Court, or other social agencies.

The courses in marriage and the family are taken as part of the training of social workers in the South Carolina Welfare Department, and will help the students in their work in the field.

Winthrop College students who take sociology courses are given the opportunity to observe and to study the lives of people in the community, on the home and in the schools.

Students may also take the Sociology course for non-majors. The Sociology Club, which is open to students in all fields of study, invites members to the semesters in Winthrop, and many students have been able to successfully complete the course.

Study Of Modern Languages Gives Students Variety Of Opportunities

Students planning varied careers choose to major in modern languages at Winthrop College.

Philosophy, Religion Courses Are Available

Winthrop College inaugurated a degree program in philosophy and religion in 1954. Courses available on every level give students the opportunity to study in the field that is most important to them. There are many avenues open to them, from the study of religious journalism, which is designed especially for students interested in careers in religious education following graduation. Instead of majoring in one subject, these students take courses in their own departments—philosophy and religion, education, psychology, and sociology. This four-year program of courses leads to the Bachelor of Arts degree. Many of the students will go on to graduate work in the universities of their own churches after graduation. Others will go immediately into local church work in education programs and attend their church seminaries after a few years of practical experience. Several of these students have already taken the first classes in their graduate work.

Department Gives Assistance On High School Level In Guidance Programs

School officials and high school students appear to be improving the quality of information available through the school guidance counseling program.

A relatively new academic department at Winthrop, the department of philosophy and religion is under the direction of Dr. R. P. Jacobson. In addition to majors and minors of the department and students majoring in religious education, courses in the department may be selected as electives by other students. Student interest in these courses is high with enrollment much larger than initially expected when the department was begun several years ago.

Winthrop Awards B. A. In Religious Education

Some of the girls concentrating in the inter-departmental program in religious education recently awarded to the considerable number of girls at Winthrop with interests in this general field, and they determined to do something to help one another to keep aware of the new developments in the field.

For the year in which leaders from various departments were asked to tell the group about the duties and services of their religious education department, the group is an informal one, designed to provide an opportunity for leadership among themselves; and the group, however, is in continuous discussion.

The new class of girls is to foster the idea of the religious education department on Winthrop's campus and campus-wide activities by such programs as a film series, a series of meetings, a group discussion, and the Winthrop College Religious Education Committee and the YWCA. It is also planned that the group will profit from exchanging ideas and growing in creativity in discussions. It is hoped that the program during the year will open avenues for people from various religious backgrounds to meet and discuss the work of the various groups and the various fields of religious education, and will be a means of promoting the development of the religious education department.

Department has been active throughout the year with the help of the committee and the religious education department, and plans to continue active throughout the year.

The Johnsonsonian Proudly Presents The Miss Hi Misses Of South Carolina

PHI ALPHA THETA, an honorary historical society, greets another year with a banquet. Guest speaker at last year’s banquet was Dr. J. Britton Wiley, (BS), professor of history at Emory University, President of the Miss Hi committee, right, Dr. Wire, Mary Dresser of Greencliff, and Mrs. Henry R. Hall.

Students take courses in the history department designed to understand the world in which they live and to prepare for work in various fields.

History gives background for work in many positions.

In the field of American history an understanding of the country and the political system is offered in each of the following: American Government, American Foreign Policy, The War Between The States, United States History, United States History, History of South Carolina, and the History of South Carolina.

The government courses of Winthrop are designed to suit students in political science and government. Studies in public administration, local, state, federal, and foreign government and international relations.

In the general course in American government emphasis is placed on the role of the United States as a nation and on the role of the federal government. Attention is given to contemporary events and personalities.

ENGLISH STUDY IS VITAL FOR ALL COLLEGE STUDENTS

Every student at Winthrop College studies English for two years. During the first year, she is taught more effective writing and reading. The sophomore year emphasizes literature.

Since the beginning of time man has found it necessary to have some method of communicating his thoughts to other men.

Whether this method consisted of grunts or songs, of oral or written words, the same urge has always been present. Material progress has been due to the development of this urge. Man has always striven to improve his methods of communication.

And then, the job of the Winthrop English department is to give students training in effective speaking, writing, and reading of the English language. (Continued with this purpose is printer in the equipment of good literature.)

Here students who choose to major or minor in English continue in the department after their sophomore year. During the junior and senior years, they continue their studies in literature, grammar, and rhetoric.

Most English majors plan to teach after they graduate. Some, however, combine English with economics, sociology, or journalism, and plan different careers.

For students interested in writing, the English department sponsors The Journal, college literary magazine. Department junior and senior majors and minors are members of Sigma Epsilon Kappa, the national English honor society, designed to bring together those students with the same interests.

Also associated with the English department are French and German students. Here students interested in public speaking or dramatics can find the training they need.

MAJORS IN THE department of English are advised by Dr. Hampton J. Jarrell, head of the English department, during their junior and senior years. Here Dr. Jarrell is talking with Shirley Gail Lang, a junior English major from Cheraw.

AN UNDERSTANDING of the geographical and economic position of the nation is the world, is vitally important to Winthrop students in gaining deeper insight into present world situations as they develop. Also, Mike James displays to students some of the excellent maps and geographical position of the world.

Study Of Geography And Geology Aid In Better Understanding Of The World

Two of the many questions for which a Winthrop student finds an answer when she enrolls in courses in the geographic and geologic departments are man's adjunct to the physical environment and his response to the complex and interdependent factors of the earth. Offering a minor in geography, this department is popular with students who choose careers for sciences.

It offers opportunity to become familiar with some of the fascinating peoples and cultures of other parts of the world. Strange names and far away places become meaningful and so enhance the student's understanding of many current events and policies which are shaping the future of the country. The study of geography includes such subjects as economic geography, the study of world resources and industries, with emphasis on those of America, the geography of North America, a regional study of the United States and Canada, observation of natural resources, regional geography of the world, and the geography of Latin America, Europe, Asia, Africa, and the South Seas.

Some of the very latest work in geography is being done in these courses. They teach the student the most useful and least useful representations available. A single study of the systems of the earth has a little table for each student to construct maps of her own. Guidelines courses include climatic geography, surface features, agencies and processes of change; general geology, the formation and movement of earth structures; and the study of the geological time scale, the origin and evolution of the earth and the evolution of the life of the earth.

Increased Emphasis Is On Mathematics

Mathematics is being emphasized in public school and college curricula because it seems to educate the individual to be useful professionally, in the home, and in the community.

It is a prerequisite to many careers in industry, engineering, scientific research, and other technical professions.

Only a few students have chosen to be equipped for such, but they are feeling the pressure to take mathematics courses. In fact, mathematics in Winthrop is rapidly becoming popular in the science department, and it is being taught in many places.

Twenty courses in mathematics are available for the Winthrop student who is preparing to teach mathematics. The calculus courses are required to take at least two minutes of mathematics, and many students who are preparing to teach mathematics are taking three courses in mathematics.

Students who are interested in mathematics courses are required to have knowledge of other courses. Mathematics can also be taught as a science and as a social science, and students are encouraged to take additional mathematics to meet these requirements.

Many students who are studying mathematics courses are required to take a course in elementary mathematics, and they are encouraged to take additional mathematics to meet these requirements.

 mathematical courses are offered for those interested in advanced mathematics.

A major in mathematics consists of at least 30 semester hours of course work. These courses are selected as an option to be taken.
EXPERIMENTS AND RESEARCH conducted by students taking psychology courses at Winthrop enable them to obtain a better understanding of human nature therefore benefiting them regardless of their major field of study. Whether a student plans a career in business or in the home, a better understanding of himself and others will be of lasting value. Above, Gail Linda of Fortuna, Colombia, Burkhard Wehr of Rock Hill and Rosemary Knight of Springfield, Mass., study drawings made by school children and college girls to observe differences between people of different races.

THREE WINTHROP STUDENTS were among the four college students selected by the Department of Psychology of the University Hospital of the West Virginia School of Medicine in Morgantown, W. Va., to serve as hospital aides. They were selected from 150 other applications and will be supervised by Dr. Jacob Mandl of the psychology department. This is the first time they have had an opportunity to serve in this capacity. The training will equip them to serve patients in this hospital.

SLOW BEARING CAN be a marked handicap for the student. Winthrop College's developmental reading program supervised by Dr. Jacob Mandl (above) is designed to help junior college students in improving their reading skill. The courses are taken on voluntary basis by students at all academic levels.

Reading Development Program Aids Students

When poor reading can be a great handicap for the college student, Winthrop can tell you how reading is not the best way.

Western students in general psychology have been working for several years on a new kind of laboratory plan, in which they think up and carry out original research. The purpose of the plan is to give them an idea of how psychologists and scientists work. A recent experiment in this vein was conducted by Winthrop College students, Elizabeth Black and Phoebe Smoak, in the Winthrop College Department of Psychology. The experiment was carried out in the Psychological Laboratory of the department.

STUDENTS STUDYING child psychology constituted a puppet theatre and wrote children's skits in working with children while taking the course. The department of psychology has in operation a program which encourages original research in psychological problems. Pages on such problems were presented by Winthrop College students last spring at a meeting of the student division of the South Carolina Psychological Association. These students are conducting an experiment in trying to determine if perseverance characteristics are shown in hand studies.

Study Of Psychology Is Helpful To All Students Regardless Of Chosen Careers

If you're interested in people, you'll be interested in the psychology courses at Winthrop College. They provide training in the study of the mind and behavior of people and may be taken for credit or audit. Students may enter after graduating, or during vacation periods.

The study of self and other people is accomplished by concentrating on problems of individual development, learning and adjustment and of biological and social forces which shape the person. Scientific inquiry is practiced, within the framework of high respect for the individual and his potentialities.

Job opportunities for women are virtually unlimited today, and the West Virginia psychology department offers education toward many different careers. Psychology is an ever-expanding field, with the demand for well-trained psychologists ever increasing.

Conversely, in professional psychology there are expert psychologists in schools, guidance and mental health clinics, hospitals, universities, colleges and universities, government and the armed services.

Appreciation of the ways in which people behave and the understanding of the reasons for this behavior are developed by such courses as child psychology, abnormal psychology, normal personality, and social, abnormal, and developmental psychology.

A course in psychological measurement is a survey of the field of psychology testing.

Students in this class get practical experience by actually administering tests to individuals and by observing trained examiners.

Three Winthrop College students, Elizabeth Black of Columbia, Phoebe Smoak of Georgetown, and Bob Swick of Charleston, spent six weeks last summer as psychiatric aides at High- land Hospital, Asheville, N. C. The Winthrop students and a woman student at Duke University were the first aides to be used by the hospital.

Phoebe Smoak and Phoebe Smoak and Phoebe Smoak are seniors double majoring in psychology and sociology, and Elizabeth, until her withdrawal from college last fall, was majoring in psychology.

Mental Health Hospital is a private, non-profit institution owned by Duke University, and is dedicated to the treatment and rehabilitation of the psychiatrically disturbed. A resident psychiatrist and trained personnel, as well as students, are available.

The hospital is designed to be a haven for the mentally ill. It is a place where they get experience in all phases of the hospital program, which is designed to be 36 hour treatment for the patients.

Students Serve As Psychiatric Aides At Highland Hospital

WENT WITH PURPOSE The students went to Highland hop- ing to find out what working with the mentally ill, psychiatric case work in particular, was like. They wanted to get an idea of what work was like in an institution of this sort. From the experience, both Phoebe and Millie definitely felt that they had enough exposure to see mental health.

Working directly under Miss Anne C. Tillinghast, the chief psych- ically social service, the students learned by participating along with other hospital personnel.

Students at both Winthrop and Duke University were exposed only to the patients. At Winthrop, they were exposed to patients and patients only, during tours of the hospital that were given them by the hospital staff. During these tours, they were shown all phases of the hospital, from the mental health to the advancement of mental health.

1957 MISS HI MISSES WILL BE GUESTS AT WINTHROP

MISS HI WEEKEND is a very special occasion at Winthrop College and every effort is made to make the guests feel at home. Winthrop students enjoy entertaining their high school guests and when possible the guests may room with Winthrop freshmen whom they already know or with a Miss Hi Miss from another school they have met before. The pictures above show the Miss Hi Miss registration desk last year during the rush hour (left), and a stilt race during the picnic for the Miss Hi Misses at the College Beach.

The Miss Hi Misses of North and South Carolina, entertaining high school senior girls, will be honored with a special weekend at Winthrop College March 31.

The 250 young women pictured in this special edition of The Johnsonian will, in the near future, receive invitations from Winthrop's president, Dr. Henry H. Brown, to be special guests of the South Carolina College for Women during the last week in March.

Students and staff members of Winthrop College go all out each year to make the Miss Hi Hi Weekend something special in the lives of the honorees.

Last year all of the 277 Miss Hi Misses of North and South Carolina were able to accept Winthrop's invitations for the weekend. The 1957 weekend will follow about the same pattern as last year's program.

Among the staff of The Johnsonian is an events of the weekend will be the former Miss Hi Misses who are now enrolled as students at Winthrop.

Upon arrival at Winthrop, the guests register with the Miss Hi Miss committee in the Administration Building and are taken by Winthrop students to the final weekend, dormitory to which they have been assigned. Guests are seated each year in Bernadine, Barrier, and McLean Halls.

The first official event of the weekend for the week-end is a meeting in the college dining hall. The Miss Hi Misses sit at a special section of the dining hall, and two hours are spent at such tasks. Each is met with flowers from the Winthrop Press and Mrs. Brown and other college officials paint the picture that Winthrop is a family.

After supper on Friday night, a special treat will be a meeting for the Miss Hi Misses. They will be special guests of the Winthrop Theatre which is scheduled to present a play of especial interest and directed by the students under the supervision of Mr. William L. Long, and Mr. Donald Trench of the department of dramatic art.

Following the play, members of the Winthrop Theatre will have an informal coffee in the Johnston Hall in order to have an opportunity in meeting and talking with the guests of the college.

This Friday night Winthrop College's hospitality will be extended to the guests. The day will start with a short assembly in Johnston Hall at which the Miss Hi Misses will have a short talk by college officials and student body leaders including President Brown and the president of the Student Government Association.

All throughout the high point events will be conducted on a tour of the campus, and the girls will be especially interested in seeing the departments of the college which are of most interest to them.

At some point during the tour, the student guided tours will be led by guides of the Johnston whom where cooks and potato chips will be served.

Saturday afternoon the guests will attend a picnic at Stockton located on the college farm. They will be the guests of the staff of The Johnston and any recreation will be directed by student of the physical education department.

The Miss Hi Misses will attend a service in the Colledge Chapel on Sunday morning and this will be followed by an assembly in the Johnston Hall which will be attended by another party in their home in Johnston Hall.

The Miss Hi Misses will then leave Stockton and return to Johnston Hall where the Spring Assembly of the city of Rock Hill. After assembly the Miss Hi Misses will sit down to a formal dinner in the dining hall, then tour the city's highest honor organization, the American Riding Club.

Winthrop College students and officials carry all at the Miss Hi Misses to the site for them for the weekend of March 31.

THE REFRESHMENTS ARE on the house for Miss Hi Misses during their tour of the campus of the South Carolina College for Women. The tours are conducted by student guides who tell their part to the War in Johnston at the basement of the Administration Building at the office of The Johnston where pies and potato chips are served (photo at left). Junior Follies Is Largest Student Production
Original Show By Juniors Is Leading Campus Event

By EMILY CUNNINGHAM

One of the biggest events of the winter is the Junior Follies production given in the auditorium. The first Follies presentation was given in 1927. It was a modest one, but one that was a hit. Since then Follies became the official show of the junior class, and the cast was restricted to juniors alone. During this period of years, the shows have varied from the circus and musical comedies to melodramas.

Although the main purpose of Follies is to raise money for the junior class, it also gives the junior class a chance to show their talents in the making. The main purpose of the show is to give the junior class a chance to show their talents in the making. The main purpose of the show is to give them the opportunity to perform on stage and to promote the junior class.

The junior class of 1954 presented "Keynote to Happiness," a musical drama based on the successful Broadway show "Keynote to Happiness." The story of the show is about a Southern family during the Civil War years and the problems they face. The show was a hit and was performed at the junior class production.

The next Follies production was given in 1955. The show was called "Fantasy in Pink." It was a hit and was performed at the junior class production.

SOPH WEEK REVIVES SPIRIT OF CONFEDERACY AT WINTHROP

ROBERT E. LEE,avior the stage and bars for the last time during the Sophomore Week ceremonies presented by the sophomore class in commemoration of the Centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg.嘉. LEE, Jr., right, and Miss Marion Lewis of Charleston, and Miss Margaret of Aiken.

A SPECIAL COMMEMORATION of the slaves of the South was given on the Rock Hill City Council was given the Sophomore Class Slack of the Rocky Mount, and the Rocky Mount High School, left, to present gifts to Miss Margaret Pettit and Miss Marion Lewis of Charleston, and Miss Margaret of Aiken.

Shades of Robert E. Lee—the South has finally risen again after years of slumbering time.

That's the way it actually looked on the Winthrop campus for a week this fall when the members of the sophomore class went all out for their annual Sophomore Week. Sophomore Week yearly honors the members of Winthrop's second year class who had previously felt ignored by the campus community which regarded Sophomore Week as just an excuse for the less ambitious students. Sophomore Week is the junior class's chance to get out and about on the campus, to be noticed by the upper classes.

Shades of Robert E. Lee—the South has finally risen again after years of slumbering time. The stars and bars flew high over the campus this week. Confederate money totaling $80,000, donated by the Charleston Chamber of Commerce, was displayed throughout the week. One day the members of the class donned a large supply of Confederate uniforms and marched with the flag. The Confederate flag was carried aloft by members of the class in a ceremony attended by the Winthrop community.

The week opened with a drill team under the direction of the class president, Anne Ragsdale.

Arms were raised in the air as the sophomore Class shotgun the theme was "The Rebel Yell Again." The events were designed to forge a connection between the past and present on the Winthrop campus. The events were divided into sections and each section was directed by a different class. The events included a parade, a drill team performance, and a nighttime gathering.

Winthrop History Shows Growth And Progress

It began with one man's dream. It was sustained by many men and women of vision. Today Winthrop affords the leisure of nearly all South Carolinians.

From a borrowed stable to a campus of 80 acres and 23 buildings,...just a $15,000.00 initial grant in an annual state appropriation of more than $1,000,000...

From the first 6 students to an enrollment of more than 18,000,...from a single course in 1886 to a semester curriculum offering 50 courses...

Progress and growth are related by many facets, but there is more in the story of Winthrop College. Winthrop was born in the mind of David Johnson, Jr. This institution was a small brick chapel, originally built on the site of a large, great estate - the grounds of the Columbia Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

In December 1881, the Board of Directors of the Columbia Theological Seminary announced the establishment of Winthrop College. This building was purchased and utilized by Winthrop in 1882. With the purchase of its first building, Winthrop College had a home. In 1886, the school moved into its own building on the Winthrop campus.

The school was named Winthrop Training School for Teachers in honor of Dr. E. Winthrop of Boston, who as chairman of the Board of Directors was largely responsible for a grant of $1,200.00 to establish the school.

Two teachers were employed, and later in the opening year, a third. The first school for training teachers in the South Atlantic states, Winthrop utilized its facilities for musical instruction and practice with graded school children.

The site was successfully developed until today the college operates a complete nursery through high school system, primarily for training the student teachers.

The school in the little brick chapel was a success from the start. Graduates of Winthrop College were entitled to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

In December 1900, the South Carolina General Assembly took action to establish a state college for women. For the first time, the state recognized the need for higher education for women.

Providing scholarships for each of the 25 graduates in the class of 1900 was a major step in the development of Winthrop College.

In 1901, the first institution of higher education for women in South Carolina was opened. Winthrop College was established by legislation of the General Assembly, established by legislative action as a coeducational institution.
