New Constitution Released

BY RALPH JOHNSON

The long awaited proposed constitution of the Student Government Association was distributed to all senators at the last meeting which was held November 5, 1977. Senate President, Dale Dove stated that this was the preliminary draft and it was given to the senators for their study in order to obtain student opinion. Actual debate on the constitution is not expected to start until after Thanksgiving.

The new constitution, which is still in its primary stage of development, essentially outlines the functions and duties of the three branches of SGU: The Legislative, composed of the Senate; the Executive, headed by the President of SGA; and the Judicial branch, headed by the Attorney General and composed of the Judicial Board. There were no By-Laws given with the constitution as yet; these will be drawn up by Dove with input from the Executive Board.

Dr. Miriam Williford was named Dean of Continuing Education, and was appointed to the Board of Trustees. A proposal that would allow the Planning Committee to take steps to begin the actual planning of the proposed field house was approved. This will allow the state legislature to appropriate a small amount of funds so planning can be finished and construction can begin thereafter as quickly as possible. The Planning Committee asked that the "board consider the intended use, seating capacity, type of building, type of athletic activities, and design.

Relsion to the College General Conduct Policy were reviewed. The revisions were minor and made for clarity. One such revision was changing the punishment for "trouble property" to "damage to or destruction of college property". Another revision was the product which is unreasonable for the students "will be permitted only when it is impossible to simply "disorderly conduct".

As a supplement to the March 23rd Board meeting, summer school fees for 1978 were changed proportionately to be in compliance with the semester and part-time fee fee. At the March 23rd meeting Vall defended the fee adjustment and the following reasons: the net reduction in operation funds in 1977 was due to a decrease of fringe benefit, less, and absence of carryover funds; significant rise in utility costs, return to PTE funding; and necessity of reducing debt. A new measure of the proposed fee will not generate all that will be needed.

The Board of Trustees listened to the committee chairmen present several individual items on the agenda and approved all except three. In compliance with the new regulations for board meetings were one of the most discussed items by the board.

Optimism Prevails

BY C. L. HAYES

President Vall said respect is being regained for Winthrop at the fall meeting of the Winthrop Board of Trustees, November 6. In his report to the trustees, Vall said, "There is a mood of optimism in the air this fall semester. Winthrop is expanding and growing... this should be a "good year."

According to Vall there is a growing awareness of the college and its students. He mentioned the all-time record enrollment (4,483 students; 12% increase over 76-77) and the number of male students (50% increase as good signs for the school's future. Vall said that activities already established could now, and in future years, be enhanced.

In respect to the administration Vall said the college "has tried to respond to the growing size by changing administration, without a surplus of personnel being formed." Dr. Conni S. Lee was changed to the post of Assistant Vice President for Development and Dr. Miriam Williford was named Dean of Continuing Education.

"There Is No Other": Mother's Finest

BY RALPH JOHNSON

There is no other to compare to Mother's Finest. Their opening show for Peter Frampton, Iggy Skyrd, Parliament, Earth, Wind, and Fire and more. Their music fits into none of the popular descriptive terms used by the music business today. They are not rock or disco; they are a blend of all of these elements.

The group, which is based in Atlanta and records on Epic, was heard for about seven years, Joyce Kennedy and Glenn Murch, both vocalists, are originally from Chicago. Husband and wife, they have a distance for drugs and are vegetarians. The music they play is a combination among all six members of the group. Each person is an individual yet united with the group.

The music is original and adds somewhat to the unusual quality of their music. There has been, however, that segregation is still very evident in the record business.

It's not so much a problem in the social sense, but in the business sense it is very real. One has to know how to handle a group in which four members are black and two are white. Add to that the fact that their music could not be released. One of the highlights of a Mother's Finest concert is the music by new talent (their own version, of course).

The live experience of Mother's Finest is the highlight of the group on stage. The group is known for its live performances. Their set ends with the explosion of a flash bomb and ends with the band's playing on a thick cloud of carbon dioxide. They are full of vitality and energy that any audience can feel radiating from the music. Their music, which Glenn Murdock describes as a loud gospel feel, is powerful and by the end of the night, everyone is dancing in the aisles and good music.

Also appearing with Mother's Finest will be the group "High and Mighty". Their brand of music leans towards the disco sound and will appear at the Auditorium on Tuesday night (Nov. 15), at 8 p.m. in Byrnes Auditorium. The concert is sponsored by the Dining Program Board. Tickets are $3.00 for Winthrop students and employees, $4.00 for the public. The student price at the door is $3.00, and $3.00 respectively. Come on out for an evening of dancing in the aisles and good music.

BEER.

That's one four letter word that we're allotted to all the old key board and type all night long without ever having to fear censorship. Beer, beer, beer. Go ahead, just try to make me take it out of this column.

Speaking of beer (that's five times and still no pencil marks from the editor of faculty advisor), the current trend in amber alcohol seems to be to hit the weight conscious American, who apparently are in a Phase of low-calorie joy.

The flood (if you'll excuse the pun) of low-cal beers has just begun. Prepare yourselves for the massive advertising campaigns levelled at your waistline (forty year old beer drinkers refer to it as a "waistline") whether or not they actually are indicative of a sick society. Yes, there's something wrong with the state of U.S. "C"

"What happened to the Christian Ethic? You know—Love Thy Neighbor, Good Samaritanism, etc., etc., etc. Aren't we a Christian nation, you know.

A terrible disease has so corrupted us that we permit such acts? What force drives us to break and commit these acts?

The answer to the first question is APATHY. The second? Rolo May answers it very well: "When inward life is disturbed, feeling decreases and apathy increases, when we cannot affect or even genuinely touch another person, violence flares up as a domestic need for contact, a mad drive forcing touch in the most direct way possible.

There are other explanations as well. We stand in self-defense and point accusing fingers at the media, the environment, the glorification of violence. We've wiped it off our conscience and brought it upon ourselves.

The answer to the first question is APATHY. The second? Rolo May answers it very well: "When inward life is disturbed, feeling decreases and apathy increases, when we cannot affect or even genuinely touch another person, violence flares up as a domestic need for contact, a mad drive forcing touch in the most direct way possible.

We have created a sick society.

We live in a society so intense, so cold, so full of pressure that we can't help but break—across the thin red line. We are so caught up in our dreams that we have ceased to care—we no longer care.

We are the ones standing in silent windows, watching Kitty Genovese die, or the ones watching Carol Holder knock over their TV set.

It's appalling. It scares the hell out of me! I can't understand why people don't realize the claim to being a civilization nation.

I don't claim to have the answers. Maybe the psychologists do. But, at any rate, we must face it, we must realize the claim to being a civilization nation.

NOTE: Due to a couple of typos, my column was over a quarter of an inch wider last week. Ah well...

Lamentations Of A Sore Cyclist

KATHY KIRKPATRICK

I'm not your ordinary ten-speed whiz. When I climbed on my new bike the Christmas of '75, my first question was "Where's the brakes?" They had been buried somewhere around the petals on my old Sears Skyark. Handbrakes are fine, but I was right in the ditch beside the road, and I didn't intend then to get back on the thing. Riding 37 inches off the ground with my rear in the air and my nose in the dust just wasn't practical, so I decided. Neither was speed. I passed her in the hall at School. And my new ten-speed stayed locked in the shed.

But the bike had something to do with me, and I was faster than ever for long-mobility. Two wheels were faster than two legs-so I climbed back on, wobbled over to the ditch, rolled into it and out of it, across the neighbor's lawn, into the driveway and back onto the street. From then on I could frequently be seen pedaling here and there, one cautious hand on the back brake handle and the other pulling the shirt down over the small of my back. It was a pose that soon became my trademark.

But to the point: I still feel around on a ten-speed, can't afford four wheel mobility except possibly in the form of a little red waggon and then there's no one to pull it. And so I hike and I think of the proposal for bipedalism Rock Hillians defeated last year and some day not so softy. Sidewalks are for people, streets are for cars. I've tried both on my two wheeler and each time I'm aware that constructors definitely had someone other than me in mind.

Take sidewalks. If you have all day they aren't bad but I usually don't. I often meet a grizzly old man who's mastered the art of curbing-straddling his cycle he wades off the curb, across the street and up over the next curb. He passes me as I balance rather painfully on my hirewalker and the passengers in their cars at the stoplight smirk. Slipping curbs are the least this city could do for us.

There are the streets. There is where most cyclists stay, but I'm not most cyclists. The noise of a monsterous Buick bearing down on me from behind is enough to send me over my handlebars and into another ditch. Once a woman even rolled down her window and screamed, "Why don't you stay on the sidewalk where you belong?" That was the same day a fat man walking his poodle informed me that riding on the sidewalk is illegal.

Well, WHERE, pray tell, AM I supposed to be?

Jane We? To The Editor: Who is Jane Ashworth? I know she is the President of the Student Senate, but I've never seen her on campus participating in any activities such as the "SAVE THE CHIMES" drive. I suspect she does not seem to be following the campaign. She seems to be following the old readership in. I notice there are an inordinate number of those who put little thought or care into the news orifice, but that's all right. I wish to express my appreciation for the efforts of those who put their hearts into the news orifice.

THE JOHNSONIAN is funded by the Student Activity Fees Committee, whose aim is to help organizations to further reach out to the student body. The T.J. staff is composed of 18 members, approximately 1/3 dorm students and 2/3/2 day students. The student body voted the editor in chief to represent the entire campus interests, their voice and their actions. Classes Night is a forum for the student body, thus, the event should have been publicized.

Marcie McCarty Sr. Class Pres. Nancy Gao-On Sr. Class Treasurer Della Baker Sr. Class Secretary Judy Rast Sr. Class Cheerleader Jeannine LaidClass President EDITORS NOTE: The quotation in this letter is in error. Forgive me, folks, this is an unfortunate case of "their worst against mine."

THE JOHNSONIAN: On October 27, during a Sr. Class officers' meeting, the fact came up that no information about Classes Night was presented in THE JOHNSONIAN. Judy Rast, Sr. Class Cheerleader, called the editor of T.J. at this time and asked if any information would be put in the next or any issue to come. The editors' reply was, "No, it will not be published because the T.J. staff decided that it was not important enough," and that Classes Night is considered another activity for the bands.

We, the Sr. Class officers, feel that Classes Night is not a die hard and as long as it is not a wide activity, it should be recognized. We feel that the problem is activities are not publicized, thus student actions are not well informed. The Sr. Class offers equal opportunity to participate in Classes Night; therefore, those who do not participate are the ones losing out. We feel that it is not fair to those who worked so diligently to make the event a success.

World Food Situation Examined

As we approach the FAST FOR A WORLD HARVEST to raise money to help people who are less fortunate than we are, we should examine the world food situation.

Looking at malnutrition, we find there are several problems. One is under-nutrition and under-nutrition are unbalanced diets. Over-nutrition is found especially in the affluent world where unbalanced and unbalanced diets plague us. There are no easy and adequate solutions to this problem of malnutrition and hunger. The problems are created by a multitude of factors. However, we now know enough to do a great deal if we have the will.

The Oxfam program, for which the fast day is being held, is based on the observation that the people must provide food for themselves. The Oxfam concert will be in Byrnes Auditorium and will begin at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $5.00, Advance and $3.00 at Door. For students with Winthrop ID, other tickets are $4.00 Advance and $3.00 at Door. You can get your ticket in Dinkins or Thomson Cafeteria.

This spring a one-credit hour course related to career planning and job selection will be offered to senior and graduate students of all majors, according to Frank Joseph, career counselor.

Joseph said the three main objectives of the Career Planning Seminar are that students learn something about themselves, "the world of work," and they enjoy what they are doing.

The course, B.A. 569, will be taught by means of group discussions, lectures and individual exercises, Joseph said, and all work will be evaluated as satisfactory or unsatisfactory. The class will meet weekly or bi-weekly for one and one-half hours, at a time to be arranged after students have completed their schedules, according to Joseph.

"I think most students will learn more about themselves in this one hour seminar than they have in their previous years in college," Joseph commented.

Students will be able to look at their Interests, abilities, values and goals through the use of inventories, self-assessment exercises and feedback from class members, Joseph stated.

The last part of the course will be practical application and

Special Ed Internships Required

Students majoring in Special Education: Emotionally Disturbed are required to serve an internship at one of many Treatment Centers for eight to ten weeks during the summer before completing the program, according to Ms. Helen Abell, Coordinator of Internships.

Abell said that what started as an optional program in 1971 is now a requirement for the Emotionally Handicapped program. Winthrop is the only school in the Southern region to require an internship.

"We've had internships for six years now. We've had time to see how effective it is. The students liked it, and WE FOUND IT DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN THE COMPETENCY OF FIRST YEAR TEACHERS," Abell said.

There are twelve treatment centers in North and South Carolina where students may be placed. Five centers are in Charleston and three are in Charlotte. Marshall I. Pickens Hospital in Greenville, where Ms. Abell is consultant as educational specialist, offers a center.

Children live at the Treatment Center during the week, going home for weekends. The program involves work in academic and non-academic free play, and "pow-wows," which are a form of group therapy. Workshops and conferences are held for the parents. Interns will spend the major part of their time in the classroom. They will also be responsible for supervising the children and for conducting "pow-wows" and parent conferences.

Abell said intern will work with a treatment team consisting of psychiatrists, behavior therapists, aides, clinical psychologists, pediatric and special education consultants. "We draw heavily on these staff expectations. They will attend daily meetings in addition to teacher meetings to receive progress reports. It's a therapeutic process," Abell said.

"The students care very much about progress and performance. The fact that they don't go through the traditional grading system allows them more freedom to be creative in professional development. They become molded by the grade system, instead of becoming molded by the program," she said.

"If I had to pick one aspect of teacher training as most valuable, I would pick the internship. There is no way to fail," she said, "and the students are not limited by the evaluation process. They are secure enough to get in touch with themselves as teachers."

We found it does make a difference in the competency of first year teachers

NEW McFEAST!
LOVE AT FIRST BITE.
It's Foreign To Me

When a student has problems in a foreign language he invariably says, "Why can't everyone speak English, it's so much easier?"

Susan Humphreys doesn't agree.

She taught the complicated language of English to Thai and Philippine youngsters this summer in the Philippines.

Susan, a Winthrop sophomore and special education major, agreed easier than English as she speaks it. "Why can't everyone speak English, it's so much easier?" she says.

Susan found that on the other hand they were already pretty much oriented American. "They wore the same clothes as the kids do here," tells Susan. "T.V., comic books and Pinoy Pop songs are what they all talked about," she tells. "One American trait they didn't teach was the kids were singing the national anthem and saying the pledge of allegiance. The kids just loved to sing," says Susan. The teachers also put on a July 4th carnival, and the Thai kids had trouble pronouncing the names, but as they would soon move to the United States. Susan inquired though, they were already pretty much American oriented. "The kids just loved to sing," says Susan. The teachers also put on a July 4th carnival, and the Thai kids had trouble pronouncing the names, but as they would soon move to the United States.

The English course lasted two hours daily, was divided into two sessions, both with a total of about 100 children.

The foreign students caught onto the new language fairly easily considering its complicated nature. "English has so many exceptions and so much slang," sighs Susan. "It's a tough language to learn."

Part of the course dealt with Americanizing the children, since they would soon move with their parents to the United States. Susan said though, they were already pretty much American oriented. "They wore the same clothes as the kids do here," tells Susan. "T.V., comic books and Pinoy Pop songs are what they all talked about," she tells. "One American trait they didn't teach the kids was singing the national anthem and saying the pledge of allegiance. The kids just loved to sing," says Susan. The teachers also put on a July 4th carnival, and the Thai children quickly learned to celebrate their new holiday. Susan, who plans to become a speech pathologist, also learned from her teaching experience. "I enjoyed it, but I found out I don't want a career in teaching," she tells. Her students had all the characteristics of a typical classroom. "We had shy ones, sweet ones, brats and slow-wits," she explains. "My favorite were the bad boys," she jokingly confesses.

Susan said she was given up on by bad boys and focused her spare time on tap dancing and ballet. And studying in that foreign language we're so familiar with: English.

Have Winthrop athletes ever broken any world records?

On April 1, 1920 three world records were broken by Winthrop athletes on the athletic field. New world records were set in the 80 yd. two-foot high hurdle race, the 100 yd. one-and-one-half feet high hurdle race, and the basketball throw for distance.

Winthrop's basketball thrower has also captured a gold medal in Olympic competition. Outstanding sportswoman Lucile Godboin won six medals, including the gold for the final. in the 1926 Women's Olympic Games in Paris. Of the 31 second place spots scored by the American women, Lucile contributed a whopping 10 points, more than any single contender at the Games. Lucile also became the first woman elected to the S.C. Athletic Hall of Fame.

A program hued on American Blues and swing with a repertoire that includes modern jazz, pop and rock tunes from the nostalgic "Caledonia" to Frank Zappa will be presented in Byrnes Auditorium at 8 p.m., Monday, Nov. 14 by Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd Band.

"I have always had a "sound" but never a style. My approach has been to let it be tasteful, let it be exciting, and always make it swing," said Herman in regard to his music. In 1936 Herman formed a new band from members of a group just disbanded. "The Band that Plays the Blues" played one nighters, theaters, and jukebox clubs before they recorded their hit song, "Woodchopper's Ball." A critic later gave them their present name because he was overcome with the power of their sound.

The band has introduced to audiences some of the finest names in jazz musicians. Igor Stravinsky composed a song, "Ebony Concerto" for the band and conducted them in their performance at Carnegie Hall. Now at 64, Herman tours 48 weeks in the year and plays "big band" sound music as well as contemporary tunes.

For ticket information, call Joynes Center for Continuing Education at 323-2236. Tickets for full time students are free, not $5 as stated earlier.

Featured with the Chorale are the Winthrop Singers, the popular entertainment group of twelve voices plus rhythm which will be performing later this year at the 1978 MENC National Convention in Chicago. In addition to the music of the Beatles, Barry Manilow, and the Captain and Tennille, the program will include the current number one hit song, YOU LIGHT UP MY LIFE.

PLAY IT AGAIN, SPRINGS:
THE 19TH ANNUAL SPRINGS ART SHOW

BY JIM LAY

A sampling of the finest artists from North and South Carolina can be seen at the Lancaster National Guard Armory between November 4-10 and admission is free.

Along with Grandmas' dabbings in painting one can see top-flight professional art. Judge Diane Waldman says she would not be surprised at seeing gallery quality in New York. Anyone can enter this regional exhibition, young or old, talented or untaught, and it is this unique aspect that makes the 19th Annual Springs Show so much fun to see.

Mr. Waldman, Curator of Exhibitions for the Guggenheim Museum in New York City and Harry Lowe, the Assistant Director for the National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington were the distinguished jurors at the show.

Regional art shows have long been associated with "arts and crafts material," Mr. Lowe said, "but with a greater influx of professional artists and an ever-shifting population, this show is no longer amateur. This greater cross section of art cannot be considered "regional."

Out of the 948 entries the judges chose Aaron Karp's "A PLANER FOR GREENVILLE." Airbrushes a watercolor by Columbia artist Blue Sky, a silhouette by Philip Mullen entitled KATHMANDU TAPESTRY, a collage-painting by Robert A. Nelson called THE PIT and a wood sculpture, and TPF 1654 by Blowfly Rock artist William Leck Wiltlet.

Along with these six works, 31 honorable mention awards of 50 dollars each will round out the traveling show, slated to go to New York after the 20th of this month.

Among the artists to receive an honorable mention was David Freeman, Winthrop's art professor. His acrylic painting JEANNIE'S PARLOR contrasts the figurative elements within the ovals in an abstract setting. The Blue Sky colorings of the four ovals take on humanistic overtones, brought out more vividly by the relatively cold blush background," the Rock Hill artist said. "JEANNIE'S PARLOR is one in a series of twelve paintings, all involving the interplay of circular forms (at first circles, evolving to ovals as the series progressed) with a background that complemented and contrasted the woman within the ovals. The name for the award-winning painting came from the shocking pink border, which reminded the painter of Jeannie's Massage Parlor on the old 21 highway. Of course, I've never been there," Mr. Freeman was quick to interject, "but the pink border reminded a friend of a house of ill repute, so the name stuck.

Also in the show, but not making the traveling show this year was Edmund D. Lawrence-ow's painting TEXTILE TECHNOLOGY. Mr. Lawrence was the chairman of the Art Department at Winthrop, was awarded an honorable mention last year for his painting SKY SPIDER.

Approximately fourteen Winthrop art students entered the show. While none of them made the traveling show, it is important experience for anyone in the field to get as much exposure as they can, and shows of this nature allow many people to view their art.

The Winthrop students represented at the show were Chris Wallace with his painting METEOR SHOWERS, SELF PORTRAIT, a painting by Ms. Pamela Childers, Ms. Teresa Williams painting CHAINED REACTIONS OF... , a painting by Paul Kinney UNTITLED, a sculpture by Ms. Marilyn Rees called ENCOUNTERS, a painting by Colm Odon UNTITLED, OSTEOPHTHYTIC drawing by Susan Lanier Cooper, a painting by Diane Rangel, painting ROSES, FRIENDS, a painting by Gary Burrell, Cindy Futch's painting LAVELIGHT, UNTITLED, a painting by Julie Ann Nunnery, a pencil drawing by Ms. Nadja Hudson entitled FLINTLOCKS, a print by Elia Turner - SNIPS AND SNAILS AND... , and a drawing/industri-media work by Eric Chang Henderson called FIGURATIVE COMPOSITION.

With the prize money, the Springs Art Show will continue to attract many local artists, and the competition will get tougher each year, but this is after all what makes an excellent show ever better. The art community of both Carolinas owe Springs Mills, Inc. a debt of thanks for preserving this worthwhile artistic outlet to the public.

The National Guard Armory is located in Lancaster on Nichols Road just off the 521 Bypass. The show is open until November 20 weekdays from 9 to 6 and from 1 to 6 on the weekends. A videotape program of the judges' discussion of the show is on hand in the lobby, running continuously. There is no admission charge.
Eagles Win Tenth Consecutive Match
BY NANCY RITTER

"They played superb! It was the first time we have beaten Appalachian since 1972 and the first time ever we have beaten the University of North Carolina at Greensboro," said Dr. Bobb, coach of the WC field hockey team, in reference to the outcome of the Deep South Tournament held at Furman University November 4th and 5th.

The women's field hockey team named their season's record to ten consecutive wins, four losses and one tie after playing in the post-season tournament.

The first game WC played on November 4th was against Catawba College. Karen Izenman, WC's goalie was awarded with five goalie saves. The Eagles made nine attempts at their opponents goal and were credited two points, both made by Pat Bailey in the second half of the game. Catawba made five unsuccessful attempts at the goal. Their goalie was awarded for seven goalie saves. Winthrop Eagles claimed a 2-0 victory.

Saturday, November 5th, the Eagles won their first game over Appalachian College since 1972. WC with a strong offense and Appalachian with a non-stop defense ended the first half with a score of 0-0. WC made thirteen attempts for a goal and held Appalachian back with five goalie saves. Appalachian attempted six shots at Winthrop's goal and were awarded five goalie saves. The Eagles finalized their winning over Appalachian with a score of 2-0. The points were credited to Penny Bostain and Jodye Jennings.

In their next game the Eagles were up against the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, a team WC had tied twice and lost to repeatedly.

UNC-G made twenty-four attempts for a goal while WC made seven. The Eagles held UNC-G to eight goalie saves with no points awarded. Penny Bostain scored the winning point for Winthrop with assistance from Jodye Jennings. The Eagles won all of their games played at the Deep South Tournament.

"It was the best season we have ever had," said Dr. Bobb, coach of WC women's field hockey team.

Eagles' lead (pronounced lead!).
Following the advice of the crowd (chant of "We want Dean Moran"), Coach Webb inserted the Dean. Although Moran did not take control of the game (as Dr. J., or Bill Walton was capable of doing), he did manage to swish a 20-foot baseline jumper only minutes after entering the game.

Another F-S member responsible for his surge was Intramural Coach Evans Brown. Brown became the "Enforcer" (see SPORTS ILLUSTRATED article, November 1st issue) for the team, and also led the F-S in blocked shots—with one.

However, the strategy that really doomed the vanity occurred with 56 left in the game. Using the psychological approach, Webb put in his entire team! While that strategy was questioned by some, it is conducive to TEAM play! At any rate, leading 38-38, the F-S held on to win 42-38.

The first half of the game, though not action-packed as the second half, was nevertheless a display of good, sound basketball. The Dinkins Do-Nuts, a good team, were simply outplayed by the Eagles' balanced scoring by the Eagles led to a 56-43 victory.

Top scorers for the vanity were Doug Schmidt and Britt Hudson with 10 points apiece. Gerald MacAfee and Benny Bennett added 9 and 8 points respectively. The Do-Nuts were led by Skip Goby with 10 points, Kenny Smith with 7, and Lane Holder with 6.

Eagles Seeded Third In NAIA Tourney

BY DAVE BURRAGE

The WC Eagles Women's volleyball team entered the State NAIA Tournament in Charleston this past weekend seeded third among seventeen teams. The Eagles ended their regular season play with victories over Presbyterian (15-3, 8-15, 15-1) and Converse (15-9, 15-10) and defeated Gardner-Webb on November 3rd and with victories over Benedict (15-4, 15-6) and Coker (15-3, 15-1) on November 7th. The Eagles enter the State Tournament with a 27-10 record. The top seeded team in WC's division was the College of Charleston (a team that has not lost to WC four of their ten losses.) Both teams seeded ahead of the Eagles offer scholarships (WC does not). Thus the Eagles have the strongest walk-on team in the state. This has been proven by the fact that the Eagles have not lost to any non-scholarship teams this season.

Four Players Named To SCAIA

Four Winthrop College field hockey players have been named to the 1977 South Carolina Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women field hockey team. They are Joyce Jenkins, a senior from Rock Hill; Suzy McGarrah, a senior from Anderson; Vicki Hawkins, a sophomore from Greenville; and Karen Iseman, a junior from Hartsville. Jenkins was selected for her offensive skills, while McCallan, Hawkins and Iseman were chosen for their defensive abilities.

Other members of the all-state team, chosen by college coaches in the state, are Susan Alton and Betsy Clasen of Clemson, Charlotte Sneek and Martha Hazlett of Converse, Heath Phillips, Nancy Taylor, Lark Warwick and Susan Presley of Furman.

WC Blanks PC

The WC girls' powderpuff football team blanked Presbyterian 13-0, Wednesday, November 2nd. First half play was fairly even until Sharon Duncan hit Anna Dowis with a 20 yard pass with time quickly running out. With one second remaining on the clock, Dowis had another reception, a 27 yard touchdown toss from Jane Ashworth. The point after was good, Duncan to Dowis.

Winthrop's stingy defense consistently stopped PC scoring threats. One goal line stand pushed PC from one foot line all the way back to the 14, while Sharon Duncan intercepted a pass near the end of the game to end another drive. The WC girls threw PC for losses all day. Outstanding players cited for their defensive play included Janeen Willingham, Clay Clark, Phyllis Griggs, Anne Reese, and Cathy Stanford. Stanford also averaged 38.5 yards per punt, booming kicks of 26, 30, 40, and 56 yards.

Casada Pleased With Eagles' Season

BY DAVE BURRAGE

It is no secret that Dr. Jim Casada is one heckuva good history professor. It is also no secret that Casada is one heckuva good college soccer coach.

It is true that qualities players are the essence of a good team. But a good coach makes a good team a successful team. In the case of the WC's men's soccer team, success meant the District Six Playoffs.

"We achieved what we had set as our goal at the beginning of the season, which was to make the playoffs," Casada said recently. Although the Eagles led to eternity at Dixie West 8-0 in the opening round, the team's members should be proud of themselves for having a successful season. Finishing with an 11-9-1 record (the first winning record ever for any men's team at WC), the young Eagles promised rapidly over the season. Most of them will be returning next year also. Only two starters will not be back—goalie Tim Mahon and Mitchell Long.

Getting back to the playoffs, Casada was disappointed at losing to Enkheim, but he gave them credit for the win. "They were by far the best team we've played all season," he said. He added, however, that the match was much closer than the score indicated, and that the final score could have easily been 4-0. Enkheim also knocked off the College of Charleston rather easily to advance to the Regional Tournament in Huntsville, Alabama.

Four members of the Eagles' team were nominated for the "All-District" team. They were Frankie Griffin and Tim Peay at forwards; Wes Jenkins at halfback, and Mike Mitchell at fullback. Casada expects one or more of these players to make the team for most number of goals scored in one season with 21. Tim Peay was close behind with 20 (both were among the nation's leaders). Also among the nation's leaders, in assists, was Mitch Long with 15. This too was a school record.

With this season behind them, the Eagles can now look forward to the 1978-79 season. The schedule should be definitely stronger.
