Thanksgiving has come and gone and everyone is huddling over the purposeless time she had and how hard she is going to

Christmas work between now and Christmas. Sad to relate were the few casualties of the holidays. Two girls withdrew, and one Columbia girl could not get back on time because of illness.

One student who withdrew about this time last year has donated her uniform and is in our midst again. Welcome home!

By the way, did you know that thirty-one girls remained here during the holidays and from all we hear had a wonderful time. And such food!

Here ye, here ye! All those interested in Clemson college should read the biography of Thomas Green Clemson written by two Clemson professors of that worthy institution. Almer G. Holmes and George R. Albert II. It is an interesting study of the life and work of the Philanthropist who married the daughter of John C. Calhoun, served in the diplomatic corps in Belgium, fought in the Civil war, and was largely responsible for the founding of our brother college.

The book is to be found in the Carnegie library and is a very interesting study of an even more interesting subject.

The South has been greatly publicized of late. First "Come With the Wind" gave us a romantic background and then an

The South article to a national weekly painted a warped picture of our industries.

Erskine Caldwell, author of the much-discussed "Tobacco Road," and Margaret Bourke-White, noted photographer, have been in our midst and have recently published a book about us entitled "You Have Seen Their Faces."

The pictures show that we in the South live dreary and manage to have a certain kind of happiness in spite of our comparatively harder work and poorer return. The text shows us in a somewhat different light. We urge you to read it and draw your own conclusions as to its truth.

"High intelligence and a lively sense of humor generally go together," was a statement made at a meeting of the National Honor Council of Teachers of English in Boston recently.

If this is true, we say it is grossly untrue. Brilliant people don't do who know how to laugh it off, but we know blue legs do. Something should be done to even things up a bit.

In an interesting editorial in last Sunday's New York Times, Professor J. B. Rhine's experiments in E. S. P., or extra-sensory perception, E. S. P. Gen. are discussed. Those who were interested in our recent chapel program explaining E. S. P. should certainly read this article in full.

Entitled "In the Cards," the editorial states that most statisticians are with Mr. Rhine. They do not agree with his mathematical procedure but concede that the results are correct. The dignified Times seems to feel that the experiments are important and that they have brought to light many questions for science to answer that have hitherto been considered outside of its realm.

Three Room Mates Win Prizes In 'Candle' Contest

Mary Jones, junior from Timonville, guessed how long a candle would burn, and won a $25 cash for the trouble.

Her roommates, Flo Foster, junior from Cassell, and Sara Taylor, junior from Lexington, guessed, too. They won $12.50 and $10 respectively, in trade.

The candle, which was in The Journal, had a least firm. The candle-burning week actually burned 25 hours, 28 minutes, and 15 seconds. Mary guessed 25 hours, 30 minutes, and Sara, 19 hours, 30 minutes.

The first prize, a diamond ring, was won by a Rock Hillite.

CRUM APPOINTS 3 JUNIORS TO TATTLER STAFF

General Charles P. Sumnerall, president of The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., will speak at assembly next week. It will be held on Thursday instead of Wednesday.

Wanted: Student Announcers For Weekly Radio Broadcast

The college radio broadcasting committee is looking for a chief student announcer and two assistant announcers to handle the weekly radio broadcast from Johnson hall.

A preliminary contest will be held Monday at 11:30 in Johnson hall. Winthrop students who think their voices might be acceptable for announcing are asked to hand their names to Mr. Graham's business office by 9 o'clock, Monday morning.

A short piece of script will be given each girl when she hands in her name. The contestant will read the script over a loud speaker system at 12:30 in Johnson hall.

Judges will score voices, not names or looks. EVERY girl has a chance. The least surprising might win one of the three announcing assignments.

The committee urges Winthrop students to consider carefully this opportunity.

SPANISH CLUB ELECTS CORBETT AS PRESIDENT

New Organization Chooses Officers

Melvile Corbett, Kinross, N. C.; Emily Harrison, York; Rachel Patterson, North; Helen McConnell, York; and Christine Crawford, Savannah, Ga.; were elected president, vice president, corresponding secretary, recording secretary, and treasurer of the newly organized Spanish club.

The constitution, which was drawn up by Jane Hazel, Mary Howard, and Melville Corbett, was read by Jane Hazel. Dr. Helen K. Russell is faculty adviser.

Students in Spanish 1, 2, 21, 22 and all former students interested in this new organization are requested to be present at the next meeting, December 8. The place of meeting will be posted on the bulletin board.

Seven Initiated Into Pierrans

Poetry Club Makes New Regulations

Marian Denay, Caroline Riley, Myra Laneator, Ruby Latham, Margaret Lenor, Sara Cooper, and Lily Byrd were initiated by the Pierrans Monday night, November 22.

The formal initiation took place in the student government room in Johnson hall, while the informal initiation was carried on over all of Winthrop's campus Monday afternoon.

The Pierrans decided to hold their meetings twice each month and any member who falls consecutively will submit her four poems per meeting will be automatically dropped.

War Merely an Attempt at National Suicide, Says Japanese Speaker

That war is merely an attempt at national suicide is the opinion of Junichi Nakanara, Japanese student of Duke University, who was on the Winthrop campus Monday and Tuesday as a guest of the Y and the Student Volunteers.

Personalities

Questions of romance, which Winthrop girls generally get around to asking, were first at Junichi. No, the moon has no specific meaning; the Japanese admire it for being heavy; and students there in the 'Land of Freds' are suspended from school for writing love letters.

Twenty-Nine Girls Spend Holidays In Winthrop Dorms

While the 1,640 who went home for the holidays ate in the family dining room, the 29 students who stayed at Winthrop ate in the dining room of the Winthrop dining room. Mrs. McElroy, the college dietitian, cooked for mothers and guests at home. A real turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served. Breakfast included pip-pip hot pancakes with butter and syrup. Brown from fond relatives and friends remained almost untouched, as their recipients slipped coffee with cream, and ate such delicacies as avocado pear salad in the dining room. While the girls who went away for the holidays attended parties given by friends at home, the 29 who remained at the college attended parties in Rock Hill. Friday night the Y gave them a "Kitt" party in the breakable radio room. Saturday afternoon, Rector and Mrs. W. P. Peyton of the Episcopal church, entertained the 29 at a social in the Episcopal student room. "We had loads of fun at both parties," said one girl who attended them. "Then, too, there were many 'get-togethers.' Different groups played volleyball in the gym, made candy in cornucopia kitchens, danced, and held bull sessions in each other's rooms. In comparing notes, two girls—one went home and one who did not—found that they had done about the same things. Both had attended parties, stayed up late, eaten a great deal, but neither of them had studied."

Faris Elected Delegate

To Attend Kappa Delta Pi Convention in Atlantic City. Mrs. Johnson Recalls First Trip to Winthrop

When Student Here, Wife of Winthrop's Founder Took Long Route From Home To Avoid Getting Lost in Columbia

Mrs. D. B. Johnson, wife of the founder of Winthrop college, for whom The Johnsonian was named, recently strolled across the campus from the library to show a reporter her garden, which even on a busy day in late fall retains most of its well-known beauty. "Did you know it was pure fate that I ever came to Winthrop as a student," commented Mrs. Johnson, "she sat down in a garden chair. The year she applied there was a long waiting list, but her grandfather happened to run across a dormitory certificate from an upper classman who could not return. The Mrs. Smith thus obtained her "half-room." Mrs. Johnson laughed when she told of her first trip up from Charleston to Winthrop. Her uncle was an afraid that she would get lost in Columbia changing trains that she had to take a route twice as long to avoid the "big city." "He didn't even give me credit for being able to get off down town. Instead, I arrived at school on back-campus, but I did arrive."

So watch out Wellner students. You may be the next one!

PRAYERS AND PROVERBS

A physical ed. major brings back this story from her exchange teaching experience. One morning she suggested that her pupils say certain prayers to start off the day's work. The teacher began the prayer appropriately, then waited for the students to contribute words of their own choice. The first pupil recited a Bible verse, but a few seconds got a little misted up. "A rolling stone gathers no moss," he mumbled reverently. "A hitch in time saves nine," added his neighbor. "Too many cooks spoil the broth," said another. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," said a fifth. . . . The teacher patiently concluded the prayer.

THEY COVERED THE EAST COAST

I'm glad I didn't have to "cover" the athletic staff during the Thanksgiving holidays, because those pay ones just about cover our east coast. Miss Well Wellner tripped off to New York, Miss Lee to Atlanta, and Miss Hayden to the sunny climes of Florida.

Miss Causey rode horseback, and saw her's completing of parts in the region of the rhomboids major and minor muscles (We might as well learn something in this column.) I care say that few of us were so particularly informed on our suffering after horsebacking, but we know we must just live with it.

THE THEORY EXPLODED

While her colleagues played about, M. a Post kept the hon. fires burning, and saved. She's quite proud of two dresses she made! So if you have any mending or remodeling to be done, girls, maybe you should see Miss Post. If sufficient response comes from this subtle advertisement, don't be surprised to see a new article replacing the "water without knocking" sign on the main gymnasium office door. It'll read like this: "Miss Julia Modeste."

MADONIA-ANGLES HIGH

And now that basketball season's opening, let me tell you about a small team over Annapolis way in South Carolina. They've got real team spirit over there, in spite of the girls' losing their first game. Here's luck to you, Madonia-Angles high school, from your teacher of "the other week." Remember?

Dr. Fort Is Speaker

Talks On Philosophy In Wednesday Assembly

Dr. W. E. Fort, Jr., associate professor in the commerce department, spoke in assembly Wednesday on the general subject of philosophy.

Dr. Fort, who received his doctor's degree in philosophy from Duke university, attempted to clear up the idea that philosophy is a subject impractical and cut off from daily living.

"Philosophy," he said, "attempts to give two things a world view, which is an established definite human experience, and a life view, which is a presentation of a scheme for living an ideal life."
